New Rushing Rules Respected This Year As If Centuries Old

"Ho, hum! And am I ever glad that that is over!" seems as usual to be the universal sentiment at the end of rush week. The three days of concentrated rushing the sororities indulged in this fall were in many ways just the same as the rush parties of previous years, but there were differences.

Everyone seems more completely exhausted at the end with rushing under this year's new rules, probably because it was all boiled down to get the same number of dates into fewer days.

After last year's Pan-hellenic hubbub all the sororities were mighty careful about any infringement of the Pan-hel rushing rules—that is, until Friday night after the last official rush dinner. Then some of the organizations seemed to get pretty frantic and apparently forgot about such minor points as rushing rules. They possibly decided that a full house was more important than any restrictions that might be put upon them as a result of successfully proven charges to Pan-hellenic as to their disregard of a few rushing rules.

One noticeable thing about this year's rush week was the number of alumnae who came back to help the chapter get girls. With the general financial condition as it is (avoiding the odious term usually used, you notice) many of the chapters found themselves short on girls coming back to school—but what are alumnae for, if not to render aid in a crisis!

The days of the week got pretty badly jumbled up for the girls who have been accustomed to having rush week begin on Sunday, but that was a minor point after all.

One thing, though, that everyone missed from last year was the Empress Eugenie hats—but the cocky affairs this season were almost as bad. Last year's history repeated itself in the remark, "Well, wait until she comes back tonight and we'll get her to take off her hat so we can see what she looks like."

MANY STUDENTS APPLY FOR LOANS, SAYS FORD

Between $3,000 and $4,000 Available for Use by Needy Students.

The alumni loan fund, created by the alumni association of Kansas State college, now has between three thousand and four thousand dollars of a total available fund of $43,000 to be loaned to needy students, according to Kenney L. Ford, secretary of the alumni association and in charge of distributing loans.

Only juniors and seniors who have attended Kansas State college for at least one semester may receive loans from the alumni fund. New students are not eligible.

A large per cent of the calls for loans have come to the office from students who are working their way through college, and from those whose parents have suffered financially. Many of the students who are already working will use the money to pay enrollment fees.

The average loan to students is $137. The maximum amount which a student may borrow is $250. Those who wish to apply for a loan fill out a blank, and submit references from five faculty members and five home town friends including two alumni of Kansas State college. The students grades are referred to and the notes are endorsed by some person of good financial standing. Students who wish to borrow money for enrollment should apply at least two weeks before registration, Ford said.

Approximately 50 applications for loans to be used this semester by students have been received by the alumni office. Six per cent interest is charged on the notes.

The committee which approves the applications for loans is composed of Dr. W. E. Grimes, chairman; M. A. Durland, Miss Margaret Ahlborn, C. M. Correll, and Miss Stella Harriss. All members of the committee are graduates of Kansas State college, and faculty members.

ASSEMBLY WEDNESDAY

The first student assembly of the fall semester will be held Wednesday, September 14, at 11 a. m. in the college auditorium. The speaker on the program is F. M. Harris, a member of the state board of regents. Special organ music will be played by Richard Jesson of the department of music.

Lormor Pearman arrived Saturday to enroll in college.

PROF. ROGERS RETURNS

Head of Journalism Department Spent Last Year at Stanford.

Prof. and Mrs. C. E. Rogers and son, Bill, returned Wednesday from Palo Alto, Calif., where Professor Rogers received his master's degree in journalism, and served as an instructor of journalism at Stanford university.

Professor Rogers is head of the department of journalism at Kansas State college. During his year's leave of absence at Stanford university, Prof. E. T. Keith, acted as head of the department.

A thesis "The California Business Press" was written by Professor Rogers for his master's degree in Stanford.

INSTALL FIRING POINTS

Marksmen Will Use East Stadium For Rifle Practice.

Twelve firing points have been provided in the three north bays of the east stadium which have been assigned to the military department for practice in rifle range.

The new location will include target carriers, which permit the firer to inspect the target and replace it from his position on the firing line. An up-to-date system has also been installed by the military department.

It is believed the new rifle range which will be used during the first part of this semester will increase efficiency and interest in rifle marksmanship in the department.

Prof. W. H. Martin and Prof. H. W. Cave of the dairy husbandry department will attend the state fair at Topeka this week to judge dairy products and cattle.

PLAN ORIENTATION COURSE

Proposed Course Would Provide Means for Freshmen to Become Acquainted.

Plans for an orientation course for freshmen of Kansas State college will be considered at the first meeting of the general science division to be held next week, Prof. C. V. Williams, department of education, will review the plans for the proposed course, which provides for a freshman week of three to five days to take place before enrollment.

Although Freshman week will not be held this year members of the college faculty believe interest in orientation of freshmen is receiving increased attention. The new course may be introduced next year as a part of the freshman curriculum.

"Entering freshmen deserve knowing the aims and purposes of the work of different divisions before registration," Professor Williams said. "A great saving and morality of freshmen would result if a freshman week of three to five days were available. Freshmen would enter much more understandingly and save much time now lost in changing divisions at the end of the first semester or the first year. Freshman week would give the students a working knowledge of the institution and acquaint them with the conditions of the college campus."

MANHATTAN THEATRE LOWERS TICKET COSTS

Single Admissions Down to 50 Cents, Season Tickets $2—Five Plays This Year.

In harmony with the present day economic conditions, the management of the Manhattan Theatre announced last week a reduction in the price of admission for the five plays offered this year.

Season tickets will be sold this year for $2 in contrast to the $2.50 charge made last year. Prices of single admissions have been reduced from $1 to 50 cents.

Casts of the five plays to be presented by the Manhattan Theatre will be selected from college tadent, while one play will be open to townspeople as well. The management of the theatre plans to have added attractions at each play.

The Collegian is your paper. Subscribe to it and become acquainted with the activities and attitudes of your fellow students.

CAMPUS CHEST READY TO AID

Committee Expects Many Students To Call After Enrollment.

With a total of $650 loaned from its treasury, the campus chest fund last semester helped 48 needy students in paying graduation fees, tuitions, and board bills.

The first loan from the fund was made March 20, 1932, after Kansas State students and faculty members contributed to the fund, which was set aside by the campus chest committee to take care of emergency and short time loans.

Prof. J. O. Hamilton, physics department, is chairman of the loan committee. Other members of the committee are Mary P. Van Zile, dean of women, and Dr. A. A. Holtz, dean of men.

At the present time no loans have been made to needy students this semester, although it is expected many students will call for loans after they have established their connection with the college.

FAME FOR E. H. SHAFFER.

Article About Former College Student in Organization Magazine.

E. H. Shaffer, managing editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, Albuquerque, N. M., and former Kansas State college student, is featured in the July issue of the monthly Scripps-Howard organization publication. His picture appears on the cover, and there is an article about his work in the issue.

He attended college here in 1919-1921, but was graduated from Northwestern university. He married Elizabeth Dickens, daughter of Mrs. Albert Dickens and a graduate of the college. They have three children.

SEE NO DRASTIC DECREASE

College Authorities Believe Enrollment Figures Will Be Nearly Normal.

Despite the fact that present economic conditions have knocked the wind out of a great many pocketbooks, enrollment at Kansas State this semester probably will not show any drastic decrease from that of last year. College authorities believe enrollment will be normal, or nearly so, although it is impossible to give definite data regarding the number until registration is completed Wednesday.

"I do not believe there will be any marked decrease in enrollment from that of last year," stated Registrar Jessie McDowell Machir. Kansas State students last year numbered 2,900. This will probably mean an enrollment of from 2,500 to 3,000 for the present semester.

Vice-President J. T. Willard stated that although there has been small decrease in correspondence with prospective students this year, the amount which has been done is heavy considering conditions. An indication of a possible decrease in enrollment is shown by the number of transcripts received in the vice-president's office. The number received for this semester reached 857 as compared to a total of 1,075 for last year. Transcripts for 1930 totaled 1,259.

Many Kansas State graduates who were unable to find employment after graduation plan to return this fall for postgraduate work. It is believed that the number of graduates returning will make up for the possible decrease in the number of under-graduates who find it impossible to attend because of lack of funds.

During the summer many students and their parents visited the campus, indicating an increasing interest in attendance at Kansas State college. Many letters have been received from prospective students in eastern states and California.

N. U. DIRECTOR RESIGNS

Herbert D. Gish, athletic director of the University of Nebraska today announced his resignation, and said it was effective September 1. He will enter business in Lincoln.

His work at the university will be divided among other officials of the athletic department, now headed by Dana X. Bible, head football coach. The coaches will draft their own schedules and look after their various sports, and John K. Selleck, business manager of athletics, will handle business details of the office.

TO MICHIGAN LAW SCHOOL

Joe Menzie and Tom Kimball, graduates from Kansas State in the class of 1932, will leave September 15 for Ann Arbor, Mich., to attend the law school of the University of Michigan. Menzie was captain of the Kansas State golf team last year.

John Johntz came from Kansas City to spend the week end at the Sigma Nu house.

ORGANIZATION TAX HEARING TO BE NEXT MONTH

RESTRAINING ORDER PREVENTS SALE OF PROPERTY UNTIL DECISION IS MADE.

GREEKS OWE $21,686.30

To Be No Penalty Nor Interest When the Taxes are Paid at the Time Ordered by The Court.

Whether or not Greek organizations at Kansas State and other state schools in Kansas will be forced to pay general and personal property taxes will be decided by the Kansas supreme court at a hearing to be held October 3 Evans and Clammer, lawyers for the local fraternities, said.

A restraining order, issued by Chief Justice W. A. Johnston of the Kansas supreme court on September 2, 1931, prevents Riley county officials from proceeding with the advertisement and sale of the Greeks' property here. In the latter part of August, restraining orders were filed in Douglas county prohibiting county officials there from taking such action on the Kansas university and Baker university fraternity property.

As listed on the tax rolls at the county treasurer's office the fraternities and sororities here own $21,686.30 on real estate and personal property for 1930 and 1931, or $10,388.91 for 1930 and $11,297.39 for 1931. The 1930 valuations were $223,600 on real estate and $29,890 on personal property, and for 1931 they were $257,530 in real estate and $24,475 on personal property. Those figures also include in special improvement tax charges $1,737.49 for 1930 and $1,598.20 for 1931.

Special improvement taxes have been paid by the organizations in the past but may not be paid for 1930 and 1931 under the court order. In fact none of the taxes may be paid until the court makes its decision on the taxable status of the organizations. There also will be no penalty nor interest if and when the taxes are paid at the time ordered by the court.

FRATERNITY RUSH WEEK IS OFFICIALLY OPENED

Number of Organizations Report Decrease in Members Returning to School.

Rush week opened officially yesterday for 22 fraternities which started their three-day entertainment for rushees and out-of-town guests with dinners yesterday evening. The annual housecleaning which foretells the opening of rush week took place during the latter part of the week.

Early arrivals and fraternity members who live in Manhattan hearing that prospects of a successful rushing season were good, raked yards, waxed floors, washed windows, and did other chores ordinarily assigned to freshmen in the house.

Unofficial rushing took place in various parts of the state during the summer months. Parties and smokers were held for prospective rushees, many of whom have stated their choice secretly already. The rushing will officially close Wednesday.

Members of various fraternities said that they believed there would be no shortage of rushees this year as was at first expected. However several organizations report a decrease in the number of men who will return to school this year.

PRESIDENT FARRELL'S WELCOME

F. D. FARRELL

The opening of a new college year always is an occasion for gladness. Freshmen are glad to be in college and upperclassmen are glad to be back again. Faculty members and officers of the college are glad to welcome the students. The coming together on the campus of hundreds of teachers and thousands of students generates pleasurable enthusiasms.

Kansas State College is noted for its democracy and for the freedom of its atmosphere. There are few, if any, state colleges where students are more democratic or have more liberty than at K. S. C. The library provided here is a precious thing that should be cherished. It is possible only because the students who come here predominantly have good standards, self-respect and good sense. Here or anywhere else liberty can be preserved only by its proper use. Liberty does not long survive its own misuse.

Like work, play is an important element of happy living. But it is beneficial chiefly as recreation following hard work. People who never work hard are likely to be bored by play. The college provides opportunity for play as well as for work. Both are important and both should be engaged in by every student. But work comes first.

Many of you students are on your own responsibility for the first time. By the way in which you manage yourselves in work and in play each of you will reveal the kind of person he is. Your success and your happiness as college students will depend chiefly upon the wisdom, judgment and moderation you exercise.

College can put nothing into you. It can awaken and help you to train and to enjoy abilities and aptitudes which you already have. It offers you priceless opportunities, which you and only you can accept or reject. It is to these opportunities as well as to the campus that we gladly welcome you.

F. D. Farrell.
President.

WILL CLOSE LIBRARY ON FRIDAY EVENINGS

Lack of Available Funds is Reason For Action— No Change In Staff.

Because of a drastic cut in the school budget and a lowering of funds available for a full time opening, the college library will be closed on Friday evenings, according to A. B. Smith, librarian.

"During the present semester the college library will not be open on Friday evenings but will close at 5:30 p. m.," Mr. Smith said. "This curtailment of service is greatly regretted but funds available will not allow full time opening."

The new schedule of visiting hours at the library follows: loan department, 7:30 A. M. to 9:30 P. M.; class reserves, and reference department, 7:45 A. M. to 9:30 P. M.; continuations department, 7:45 A. M. to 5:30 P. M.—7 P. M. to 9:30 P. M. All departments will close at 5:30 P. M. on Friday evenings, and at 5 P. M. on Saturday.

Twenty-three new books have been added to the shelves in the reading department. No changes were made in the library staff during the summer.

Student help at the library will be slightly decreased this year due to the budget cut. Probably not over 13 or 14 students will work in the various departments of the library during the present school year, as compared to 19 students employed in the library last year.

Jim Price, Kansas State graduate and son of Professor R. R. Price of the history department was a guest of his parents and friends Saturday. Mr. Price is vice-president of the Raven Trust company in Shanghai, China.

MOVE CLASSES TO WATERS

Many basic and advanced military classes which were held in the engineering building last semester have been transferred to the west wing of Waters hall.

SORORITIES USE NEW SYSTEM TO BID 79 RUSHEES

PREFERENTIAL BIDDING METHOD PRONOUNCED SUCCESSFUL BY THOSE IN CHARGE.

RUSH PERIOD IS THREE DAYS

Determine Preference by Comparing Lists Turned in by Rushees and Sororities—Allow Three Choices to Rushees.

A list of the names of 79 young women announcing their preferences of becoming pledges of various Kansas State sororities was announced from the office of Mary P. Van Zile, dean of women, late Saturday.

After three day of pre-school rushing, using for the first time the preferential bidding system of selecting women, the new method was characterized by Mrs. Van Zile and Miss Grace Derby, faculty members in charge of sorority rushing activities, as having been a successful experiment. From Wednesday noon until Friday night teas, dinners, and parties were held in the various houses for the rushees.

Preferences were determined by comparison of two lists handed in by rushees and rush leaders Saturday. Each rushee presented a card bearing first, second, and third choices, while the sororities turned in lists of the rushees whom they were desirous of pledging.

THE COLLEGIAN'S WELCOME

Every year since 1895 it has been the custom of the Kansas State Collegian to extend a most hearty and sincere welcome to new students entering Kansas State and to those students returning. In accordance with that custom, the Collegian does such once more.

In this year of so called depression and famine, it behooves the Collegian to make its opening statement more than a mere welcome. It must also take the form of a congratulatory message.

No doubt many of the students enrolling at Kansas State this fall have done so after struggling mightily with a knotty economic problem. Those far sighted persons, both parents and students, who realize the value of a college education as a means to comfort and success to the extent of depriving themselves of many of the conveniences and enjoyments of life to provide such education, are indeed entitled to a pat on the back.

The college is able to, and does, provide an expansive academic education. It offers much more than that: extra-curricular activities, formations of new friendships, contacts with men and women of great ability and culture, and in general, a broadening of one's foresight and outlook.

A college career has long been characterized as "the four best years of life," and with the opening of the doors of Nichols gymnasium this morning commences another great year.

Prof. C. V. Williams of the department of education has advanced an idea which, if adopted, will be of utmost value and assistance to freshmen enrolling at Kansas State.

The jist of the idea is this: the authorities of the college should set aside a three to five-day week before enrolling in which time prospective students contemplating entering the institution be given an opportunity to become acquainted with the various divisions of the school and obtain a working idea of the purpose of higher education.

It is a universally known fact that innumerable students enter colleges throughout the country without the slightest idea as to exactly why they are there. Many of them know nothing of what line of work they wish to undertake. Others come to college with a superficial preference of taking some particular course, only to discover after a few weeks of class attendance that they had misinterpreted the situation entirely and were wholly unfit to continue study in that line. All of which brings about a change in course the following semester and results in the waste of both time and money during the preceding academic period.

Still others become victims of a rule existing in the majority of colleges and universities providing for the suspension of students having failing grades at the end of a specified period of time. Disillusioned and unable to comprehend the new and strange subjects in which they have enrolled, they return to their homes failures in the eyes of both themselves and their parents—and live the remainder of their lives entertaining twisted and wrong ideas of colleges and higher education in general.

There has been one instance occur in recent years in a mid-western college which stands out in glaring boldness as an example why a freshman orientation course is valuable and necessary. The student involved was undoubtedly over-sensitive to his shortcomings, which causes his case to be outstanding. He enrolled in an engineering course in the institution and algebra, a subject with which he was totally unfamiliar, was included in his assignment. Through lack of knowledge of the locations of the various buildings, the student was unable to find his classroom the first day of the class meeting. Later in the day he located the room and attended the class the second day. He at once become the target for the instructor's sarcasm and derision and was called upon to explain a previously assigned problem at the blackboard before the class. In the throes of embarrassment he at last convinced the instructor that he knew nothing of the subject and was allowed to return to his seat. A few days later the student committed suicide by drinking poison and the report published that the motive was despondency regarding his school work.

Had that student been given the advantage of becoming acquainted with the locations of classrooms, been advised by interested faculty members, and perhaps received suggestions as to his choice of curriculum, the tragedy may have been averted. Of course, the case is extraordinary and possibly a similar one will never occur again. Nevertheless, it serves the purpose demanded of it in this instance. Judging from various indications and past experiences it would indeed appear advisable at the meeting of the general science faculty next week for Kansas State officials to consider favorably Professor Williams' proposal.

The Snooper

The Greek-lettered wigwams which are clustered in this comely little valley are the scene of gayety and merrymaking this week as open season is declared on all non-fraternity men. The time is a weary one for the hardy young agrarians who are here for their first sweet taste of life. The soft tongued devils who infest the student hangouts are ready to pounce upon them, snatch their heavily laden carpet bags, and malte them unpleasantly comfortable. These back-slappers represent various strangely named organizations which, it seems, would like to have Jonah Emmanuel Bildgewater (our hero's name) be a member of for fifty dollars a month. To show their sincerity they stuff him with chicken-upon-biscuit which they call by a long-haired name.

After eighteen or nineteen years of tilling peas and weeding the karabies, Jonah is about ready to take a few soft words so he sucks in the sweet apple-strudel of the college boys and likes it. He meets the president of the senior class; the tenth senior class president he has met in two days. For fifty a month he can live with fifty strangers and wear a tin badge. Heavenly! Within a week half of them will be telling him how to press his pants and part his hair. He stands and tosses back his side whiskers and drinks deeply of the clean summer air and the old galoshes burning in the trash hamper three doors away and exclaims, "My, how fine it is to walk upon the broad, good earth." He has been re-born. He is a fraternity man. After all, Darwin wasn't so wrong.

Saturday night we were goaded into going to the Varsity where, they said, a Barnum and Bailey unit was putting on a show. Upon closed inspection, however, it proved to be June Layton and his Varsity Club orchestra, which recently returned from Hiawatha Gardens, the Bagdad of Colorado, in Manitou. The flashy uniforms so they tell us caused the boys no small degree of discomfort in that broad and pleasant land for the first two or three weeks. Certain thoughtless mountaineers upon seeing the boys on the street mistook them for a group of rollicking chorus boys out having some good, clean, wholesale fun and so, joining in with the spirit of the thing, they skipped merrily along the sidewalk stooping, plucking, and kissing imaginary daffodils and hurling the petals like confetti at the awed passersby.

Aggieville opened its eyes at the sound of familiar voices last week end. Proprietors of fest-parlors swept last year's gum wrappers out from under tables and scraped the moss off of well thumbed editions of Ballyhoo in preparation for the coming year.

But brethern, bare your heads and breathe a prayer for the Rexall Whiffle Table. It lies cached away in the lower chambers of the establishment wherein it tasted the sweetness of its glorious success. Its fate is a life of repentence for its many sins, and its now shabby frame but barely reflects the glory which it once knew. The more pious members of Aggieville society declared it a device of ill repute. Never again will its spacious coffers be glutted with the gold of innocents.

On Other Hills

When four students in an eastern college were found trudging the cmapus sans footgear, they were questioned as to the cause of their "Back to Nature Movement". They gave four reasons: 1. The depression. 2. The depression. 3. The depression. 4. The depression.

The University of California has recently introduced a course in fishing into the curriculum. The University swimming pool will be used as a laboratory.

Four continents, including the Phillipine islands, Canada, and 30 states of the United States were represented by students in summer school at the University of Illinois.

In a straw vote taken among University of Cincinnati summer session students, President Herbert Hoover was a three-to-two favorite. His majority was largely due to feminine support. Only 52 per cent of the men favored a second term for him. Of the men voting for Governor Roosevelt, 56 per cent favored the Republican ticket in 1928.

Football ticket prices for Indiana university's 1932 gridiron season have been reduced. Season books will be sol dat six dollars.

How to keep pestiferous flies away that are to be found in the classroom is explained for the benefit of the summer students in the Daily Illini:

1. Make faces so they won't know who it is.
2. Give instructor fly swatter, he will be glad to kill them.
3. Wave arms about head.
4. Catch one and paint it red. Others will go out searching to see where he got it.
5. Don't go to class.

LET CONTRACT SEPT. 5 FOR NEW DAIRY BARN HERE

Structure Will Cost $45,000 and Will Be Two Stories High.

The board of regents recently approved the construction of a new dairy barn for the college. The contract will be let September 15 at the office of the state business manager in Topeka, according to Dean R. A. Seaton. Contracts include the general contract, a contract for heating and plumbing, and one for wiring.

The barn was originally to cost $60,000 and such an appropriation was made by the state legislature. Work on the barn was delayed until the board of regents had an opportunity to act on the matter. The regents in July gave permission for the construction of the barn, providing it could be done at a cost of $45,000.

The structure will be two stories high and will be of stone. Radiating from the central axis will be two wings. The front of the central part of the building will be used as a milk house and the rear as a feed room. The second story will be of wood or of wood and steel and will be used for hay storage. The first floor of the barn will be of concrete and the ceiling of the first floor will be of reinforced concrete.

Work on the barn, which will be located northeast of the J. J. Smiley house on the college farm near the nursery barn, will start as soon as possible. Dean Seaton indicated that the work would be completed in the spring or summer of 1933. It is hoped that the barn will be ready for use next fall.

Members of the college faculty who have planned the barn are Dean R. A. Seaton, Prof. Paul Weigel, Prof. J. B. Fitch, Prof. H. W. Cave, Prof. F. C. Fenton, and G. R. auling. Their plans were drawn with the aid and approval of J. W. Radotinsky, state architect.

Rev. B. A. Rogers announced yesterday that there would be a welcome party this evening at the Methodist Episcopal church, 612 Poyntz, for all Methodist students.

The large number of marriages which has been reported during the summer months is the main topic of conversation amnog students returning to Kansas State. A PH. D. DEGREE NOW OFFERED AT KANSAS STATE

BEGINNING THIS MONTH, COLLEGE OFFERS WORK LEADING TO THE DEGREE.

INCLUDES FOUR COURSES

Recently Established Division of Graduate Study Will Administer Advanced Work.

Beginning this month, Kansas State college will offer graduate work leading to the degree, doctor of philosophy, in the departments of bacteriology, chemistry, entomology, and milling industry, President F. D. Farrell has announced. Authorization for the college to offer this advanced graduate work has been granted by the board of regents after several years of agitation for, and study of, the subject.

The advanced graduate work, together with the graduate work leading to the master's degree, will be administered by the recently established division of graduate study of which Dr. J. E. Ackert is dean.

Would Develop Vertically.

In his announcement President Farrell said: "The authorization is in accord with the policy of the regents and officers of the college to develop the institution vertically in the fields it already occupies rather than to spread its activities horizontally into fields not clearly belonging to a lang-grant college."

Dean J. E. Ackert of the division of graduate study said ample courses already were being offered and the necessary apparatus is on hand in the four departments which have been authorized to offer the advanced work. Dr. L. D. Bushnell is head of the department of bacteriology, Dr. H. H. King of the department of chemistry, Prof. G. A. Dean of the department of entomology, and Dr. C. O. Swanson of the department of milling industry.

Requirements for a Ph.D. degree ordinarily are completed in three school years after the bachelor of science degree is won. The work in the first year usually is applied on a master of science degree, if the work for the two degrees is in the same field. Ninety credit hours are required for completion of work towards a doctor's degree.

Half Class Room Work.

The work offered at Kansas State college will be about half in the class room, the remainder being research projects many of which will be in connection with the experiment station here. A reading knowledge of two foreign languages, usually German and French, two rigid oral examinations, one of which is a preliminary examination given a year before the degree is conferred, and the writing of a doctor's thesis are included in the requirements.

Authorization of the granting of the degree at Kansas State college is in line with progress being made in other land-grant institutions, Dean Ackert said. Many of the larger colleges and universities including Iowa State college, Pennsylvania State college, Purdue university and Michigan State college already grant a Ph.D. degree.

An increasing number of requests and applications for work leading to the doctor's degree have been made by students of this school and other institutions who wish to come here for work in which the college excels, Dean Ackert said.

LAYTON'S ORCHESTRA BACK FROM COLORADO

Dick Gossett, Guitarist, Replaced By Mark Kannel of Kansas City.

June Layton and his Varsity Club orchestra, popular local dance band, returned last week from their summer engagement at Hiawatha Gardens in Manitou, Colo. The band played the first official dance of the school year at the Wareham ballroom last Saturday night.

The members of the band are Hilmar Brewster and Bill Guerrant, trumpets; Sid Robinson, Adrian Sorrells, and Edmond Burke, saxaphones; Leroy Wilkinson, trombone; William Kahrs, drums; Harold Hunt, bass; Dick Fox, piano; Dick Gossett, guitar, and June Layton, director.

Dick Gossett, who is leaving Manhattan soon for school at Washburn college, Topeka, will turn his position in the band over to Mark Kannel of Kansas City, who is well known as a singer and guitarist on the Columbia Broadcasting system. Mr. Kannel will attend school at Kansas State.

The coming school year is the tenth in which June Layton orchestras have entertained the students of Kansas State. Most of the members have attended school and several have received degrees.

Burt Hostinsky, who teaches at Wilson, is visiting in Manhattan this weekend.

Sport Slants

The city park assumed a distinctive appearance of fall last Saturday with both the college and high school football squads out for their first practice.

Coach Bo McMillin gave the high school squad a thrill when, after dismissing his men, he lectured to them. The lads are still talking about it.

Pursuits of former luminaries contain: Cronkite, coach at Glen Elder; Auker, professional baseball with Moline—he is still owned by Detroit; Lud Fiser, coach at Washington, has been holding workouts daily though his school has not opened yet; Wally Forsberg, coach at Sabetha; Hoxey Freeman, coach at Agra; Ray McMillin, coach at Fort Worth, Texas; Tiny Feather, pro football with New York Giants; Bert Pearson, and Oren Tackwell are both with Red Grange's Chicago Bears in a pro football loop.

Babalo, Argentine marathon winner in the Olympics, is only 19 years old. The fourth place winner, Ferris of England, is 48.

Eddie Tolan surprise winner of both the 100 and 200 meter dashes in the Olympics is only five feet four inches tall. . . . and the knee supporter he invariably wears is merely a superstitious ornament.

Dougal Russell completely captured the hearts of the Wichita baseball fans while playing in the state tournament with the Manhattan Travelers. A Saint Louis Cardinal scout was also impressed.

The Travelers finished seventh in the tourney, and out of forty-odd teams entered it was not bad. Lack of a steady pitching staff brought about their elimination.

Kansas State men with the Travelers this summer included Forsberg, Prentup, Skradski, Wreath, Feather, Russell, Fiser, Gentz, Marshall, Freeman, and John Underwood.

Carter, who beat Joe Menzie in the golf tournament at the Country club last week was runner up to Don Moe, Walker Cup representative, in the Western Open last year, and took Moe 43 holes to win, also shot a 64 to down Menzie.

The strangest happening in the Olympics was the crediting of Hardin, of the United States, with an Olympic record though he finished second in the event, 400 meter hurdles. The winner, Tisdall of the Irish Free State, knocked over a hurdle.

With Jim Bausch, Gene Tunney, and Jack Dempsey all making political speeches throughout the country, it gives one the idea that perhaps athletics are a better entrance than the law school.

Warren Larson, 1933 Kansas State tennis captain, has been keeping in form this summer through much tournament play, the last in Colorado Springs where he attained the semi-finals. His eliminator went on to win the championship.

BIG SIX TO CONTINUE RADIO BROADCASTS

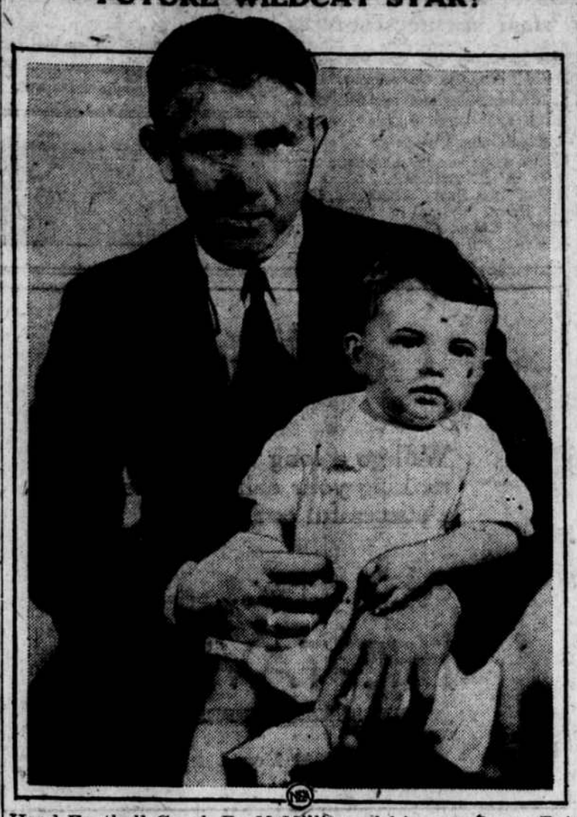

Athletic Directors of Conference Face Various Problems at Kansas City Meeting.

Athletic directors of the Big Six conference held their fall meeting recently at Kansas City and discussed the various problems facing that body for the present year.

Whether or not to discontinue radio broadcasting of conference games proved to be the outstanding subject of the meeting. It was decided that the games would be broadcast. The athletic directors agreed that radio has done much to popularize the gridiron sport in all localities and that while it might prevent some from attending the games, its effects are helpful to the sport.

The federal tax on admissions to athletic contests also received its share of attention. The interpretation of the tax law brought out the fact that the purchasers of athletic tickets would have to pay the federal tax on such tickets; the tax was meant to be paid by the consumers and not to be absorbed by the sellers of tickets.

FUTURE WILDCAT STAR?

Head Football Coach Bo McMillin and his son, Jere. Bo's early comments were that "those big hands of Jere's could certainly grip a football," which bears indications that football instruction will begin early in Jere's life.

An economy measure was passed by the athletic body in discontinuing the two-mile races between halves of football games. In place of the event one general meet will be held at Lawrence; the distance of the race will be left to the track coaches.

One night of the meeting was devoted to the interpretation of the new football rules. These decisions were then discussed at an open meeting which coaches and officials of other schools attended. The selections of basketball officials was also made.

The directors who attended the meeting were: M. F. "Mike" Ahearn, Kansas State; Dana X. Bible, Nebraska; Chester L. Brewer, Missouri; F. C. Allen, Kansas university; T. N. Metcalfe, Iowa State; and Ben Owen, Oklahoma.

PHI LAMBDA THETA CONVENTION HERE

Kansas State Chapter Host to National Gathering—Wins Scholarship Cup.

The seventh annual convention of Phi Lambda Theta was held at the Kansas State chapter house, 1623 Fairchild, August 26 and 27. The two-day session which brought 45 members of the organization to Manhattan included transacting fraternity business and election of national officers.

The convention closed Saturday night, August 27, with a banquet at the Wareham hotel. The program included speeches by each of the 18 delegates and entertainment features.

New national officers are Walter Foulkrod, University of Pennsylvania, grand president; J. C. Jenkings, Pittsburgh, Pa., grand vice-president east; Hobart Blaisdel, Hutchinson, grand vice-president west; Karl F. Weise, Pittsburgh, grand secretary-treasurer; K. L. Noll, Jersey Shore, Pa., grand chaplain; W. M. Hench, Philadelphia, grand historian; George F. Patterson, Wellsboro, Pa., traveling secretary east; L. C. Schwanke, Alma, traveling secretary west.

Hobart Blaisdel and L. C. Schwanke are members of Beta chapter of the fraternity located here. J. C. Jenkins is a former resident of Manhattan, having been a member of the chemistry faculty at the college from 1921-1924.

The next convention will be August 25 and 26, 1933, at Bucknell university at Lewisburg, Pa. The scholarship cup awarded annually to the chapter having the highest average was won by Beta chapter at Kansas State college. The cup was won last year by the local chapter.

Dinners will be held at the Methodist student parsonage, 1630 Osage, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week for the entertainment of new Methodist students.

Virgil Bergman will leave Tuesday to enter Northwestern university.

Coach Bo McMillin put his candidates thrcugh their first workout in the city park early Saturday morning. Forty-seven men reported.

The workouts, for the most part, consisted of limbering up exercises and the running of fundamental plays. The men were divided into two groups, of linemen, ends and backs. Assistant Coaches Maddox and Anderson each had charge of a grcup.

Graduation dealt the Wildcats a severe blow last year, taking from the ranks such performers as: backs: Elden Auker, an All-America mention, Ray McMillin, heady signal caller, Glen Harsh, a fleet back, and George Wiggins, a great blocker; linemen: Adolph Hraba, an All American mention, Captain Henry Cronkite, All American end, Alvin Stephenson, Robert Gump, Elden Teter, Paul Fairbank, and Oscar Hardtarfer.

The loss of such a number of regulars necessitates much rebuilding, but with 47 men to pick from, 15 of them letter men, the task is not disheartening. The morale of the club is unrivaled, every man is on the hustle and the coaches are highly pleased with their attitude.

The prospects of a powerful backfield were strengthened Saturday with the return of Leland Shaffer, of whom it was said would not be able to enroll this semester. With Emmett Breen, Ralph Praham, Tom Bushby, and Dougal Russell already here the outlook for the ball luggers is bright.

The line will be the real problem, though George Maddox, Melvan Wertzberger, Homer Hanson, James Freeland, Ralph Marshall and others present a lot of beef for a potential strong forward wall. Many of the boys from the B squad of last year will be up for these line positions.

Harry Hinckley, who holds an unofficial world's hurdle record, is a tackfield candidate. Hinckley is fast, ten-second man, and his speed may gain him a berth.

Everything this early is merely speculation, but there is a lot of spirit and fight in the bunch, and Coach McMillin is smiling a great deal; coupled together it looks like a successful season.

Line Lettermen

The lettermen who fill line positions are Capt. W. W. Zeckser, Alma, Dan Blaine, El Dorado, Lloyd Michael, Eudora, Neil Weybrew, Wamego, Harry Hasler, El Dorado, Lawrence Pilcher, Glasco, Lloyd Dalton Garnett, Shelby Neelley, Hopewell, M. H. Wartzberger, Alma, Homer Hanson, Riley.

The backs with letters: Ralph Graham, El Dorado; Emmett Breen, El Dorado, Tom Bushby, Belleville, Leland Shaffer, Mineola, Raymond Doll, Ellinwood.

Pictures were taken of the men checking out suits Friday as soon as they got and donner them.

Although the lettermen may be the nucleus or the known quantity around which to build, a great deal of hope on the part of the fans and doubtless of the coaches also lies in the promising quality of a number of players from last year's freshman and varsity reserve ranks.

Prominent among those are Linesmen: George Maddox, Manhattan, J. R. Marshall, Kansas City, Ken Harter, El Dorado, Lee Morgan, Emporia, Earl Brookover, Scott City, and Backs Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa., Oren Stoner, Sabetha, Henry Kirk, Scott City and Jack Going, Topeka.

Other Potential Stars

Developments early in the season however, are quite likely to produce other promising additions. The following also checked out equipment Friday: R. F. McAtee, Council Grove, Eugene Snodgren, Falun, L. E. Abbott, Phillipsburg, L. J. Sconce, Halstead, Blair Forbes, Leavenworth, W. F. Waddell, St. Joseph, Mo., D. R. Johnson, Manhattan, Harry Hinckley, Barnard, Milo Oberhelman, Randolph, James Freeland, Trenton, Mo., A. A. Boeka, Colby, De McAninch, Stockdale, G. E. Fuller, Earl Marrison, Colby, R. E. Armstrong, Riley, E. S. Wiseman, Delphos, R. E. Eberle, Emporia, B. J. Deters, Cawker City, F. F. Hamilton, Norton, Edward Broghamer, Wilkes Barre, Pa., Marion Pearce, Miltonvale, C. D. McNeal, Boyle, and W. S. Coblentz, Osage City.

W. D. Cowan, Suma, Tex., has not yet reported and it was not known whether he will.

WILDCATS MEET WICHITA SHOCKERS SEPTEMBER 24

McMillinmen Will Encounter Notre Dame Style of Play in Pre-Conference Game.

Approximately 50 Shockers answered the grid call of Head Coach Al Gebert at Wichita university last week in preparation for the 1932 football season which opens against the Kansas State Wildcats here September 24.

The call brought forth 17 lettermen and 10 reserves which Gebert must whip in shape to pit against the Wildcats in the first grid encounter of the season for both teams. Although Gebert will have the job of replacing several backs and the center lost last year, the Shockers cannot by any means be taken lightly. The former Notre Dame grid star has a number of outstanding veterans and a group of reserves that will make equally as good a team as the Shockers put on the field last year. The fact that the Wildcats gave Wichita a 20-to-6 shellacking in a post season game there last fall does not mean that they will be victims again this year.

In Jay Hunter, captain, Gebert has an Indian back whose all-around ability on the gridiron makes him a threat to any opposing team. Besides being a brilliant ball lugger, he is one of the best punters in the Central conference and can place his kicks where they will do the most damage. Besides Hunter, McLaughlin and Vern Wilson are veterans returning to back field positions. Both of these men have shown great ability and will be the nucleus for a powerful team. Pierce is another veteran whose all-around play will make him a valuable man to Gebert.

The Wildcats will have another crack at the Notre Dame style of play as that is used throughout by the Shockers. Gebert was an outstanding man at Notre Dame under the late Knute Rockne, and has the ability to put out a fighting football team which will be a match for nearly any other team in the state. In Joe Locke, line coach, Gebert has an able assistant who knows his job thoroughly.

FEW CAMPUS CHANGES MADE DURING SUMMER

Remodeling and Repairing Constitute Most of Work by Building and Repair.

Remodeling and repairing constituted the most of the work done to the campus and buildings by the building and repair department this summer. The roof of the old boiler room, which is to be used by the state highway commission for a laboratory was repaired and a rifle range for the military department was constructed at the stadium.

Among other work is the remodeling of room in the cafeteria, painting of the kitchen and dining room of Van Zile hall, painting of the roof of the gymnasium, repairing of woodwork in several buildings, painting of the water tower, and remodeling of the heating system and two rooms in Anderson hall.

Partitions were built in west Waters hall to provide for additional class rooms and the hedge in front of Kedzie was removed.

The electric bell system for classes and the spotlight on the auditorium will be operated on an alternating current instead of a direct current.

SEATON HEADS ENGINEERS

Elected President of Educational Society at Summer Meeting.

R. A. Seaton, dean of the engineering division, was elected president of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education at its annuel meeting held in Corvallis, Ore., June 30 to July 1.

Dean Seaton acted as vice-president of the society two years ago and served as a member of the council of the society from 1926 to 1929.

Membership in the society consists of 2,500 individual members from all colleges in the United States. A large per cent of American colleges are institutions, members of the society.

The next meeting of the societ, will be held in Chicago.

VACATION IN COLORADO

Dr. Margaret M. Justin, dean of the division of home economics; Mrs. Lucille Rust, department of education; and Miss Gladys Vair, home economics department, recently returned from Gold Hill, Colo., where they spent the month of August.

During the vacation in Colorado Dean Justin, with cooperation of Mrs. Rust and Miss Vair, prepared the manuscript for a new text book dealing with home economics.

MOVE MATHEMATICS OFFICES

Several mathematics offices were moved to the west wing of Waters hall last summer. The offices are located in what was provided for a corridor when the central wing of Waters hall is built. A number of recitation rooms in the building will also be used by the mathematics department.

L. O. Gilmore, a graduate of Minnesota university, will enroll in post-graduate work in the dairy department this semester.

These students were awarded scholarships of $100 by the Union Pacific railroad for outstanding achievement in vocational agriculture and 4-H club work.

Students winning the scholarships will enroll in the division of agriculture or home economics. All are from counties in Kansas through which the Union Pacific railroad operates.

STAGE "THE ROYAL FAMILY"

Manhattan Theater Presents Ferber-Kaufman Comdey.

"The Royal Family," by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman, constituted the only dramatic production presented by the Manhattan Theatre during the summer months. Under the direction of H. Miles Heberer, the comedy which is built around the actions of a family of actors was presented June 29 in the college auditorium. The cast included many players familiar to Manhattan Theatre-goers last year.

The cast:

Delia, Darline Conover; Jo, Donald Williams; hall boy, Arnold Chase; McDermott, Harlan Rhodes; Herbert Dean, Winfield Walker; Gwen, Lucille Correll; Kitty Dean, Frances Casement; Fanny Cavendish, Helen Browne; Oscar Wolfe, Robert Groesbeck; Antony Cavendish, Jamse Pratt; hall boy, James Siever; Gilbert Marshall, William Swift; Gunga, Albert Green; Miss Peake, Meredith Dwelly; chauffeur, Newell Hall.

KANSAS CITY SCHOOLS FIRST

Argentine and Wyandotte Win Two of Four Firsts in Yearbook Contest.

Kansas City high schools won two of the four firsts in the tenth annual Kansas high school yearbook contest, sponsored by the department of journalism and printing of Kansas State college. Wyandotte high school was first in class one and Argentine in class two, according to the announcement of the awards.

Depression times have evidently cut down on high school annuals for there were only sixteen entries in the contest of 1932.

In the first class which includes schools with an enrollment of more than 500, the "Quiverian" of Wyandotte high school, Kansas City, early won first. This is the third consecutive year that the "Quiverian" has held this position of honor. The 159 page annual is a faithful record of the year's activities. Signed articles by the Wyandotte students were considered very commendable by the judges.

Hutchinson Is Second.

The "Allegroo," Hutchinson, which last year placed third, won second place with its 95 page annual. It contained the best student cartoons that were submitted. The "Mirror" of Arkansas City, last year's second, dropped one notch, to third place.

Honorable mention was given to the "Orange and Black" of Clay Center. Other entries of class one were the "Orange and Brown," Abilene; "Purple and White," Pittsburgh; the "Parsonian," the yearbook of the Parsons high school, which the judges considered had the best potography of the group.

Class two was the high schools of 300 to 500 enrollment. The "Argentinian" of the Argentine high school, Kansas City, the judges announced, easily won first. Its outstanding work was the interviews and pictures of the living Kansas authors. Second place was given to "Rhorea," the senior edition of Great Bend's high school.

Smith Center Leads.

In the third class, schools with an enrollment up to 300, the "Centrian," Smith Center took first place. Art work by a staff member was declared the determining factor in ranking this annual first in its group.

The "Cathedral" won second. It is published by the Cathedral high school, Wichita.

The "Drawoh," Howard high school, was third. It was executed on mimeograph and printing press and was an account of the events that had happened in the Howard high school for the past five years.

Honorable mention was given to the "Seaman" published by the senior class of the Seaman high school, Topeka. Others entries were "Mankatoan" by the senior class of the Mankato high school, and "Retrospect" by the Holton high school.

The "Mirror" of Arkansas City placed first as being the best student printed annual, "Drawoh" of Howard high school won second best.

James Harbord Walked 70 Miles to Enter K. S. C.

General James G. Harbord, who became General Pershing's chief of staff for the World war and now is chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, hiked 70 miles to Manhattan to matriculate at Kansas State college when a youth, Christian Gauss reveals in a four-page illustrated article in the July 30 Saturday Evening Post.

That was in 1882. General Harbord's parents were poor farm folk. They could give the boy no money but they moved from Lyons, hoping to reduce the boy's expenses by living near the campus themselves. Gauss says Harbord was drawn to the college because of the free tuition and because of the possibility of vocational training.

I. D. Graham His Ideal

The deepest impression made upon young Harbord at Kansas State was made by I. D. Graham, secretary of the college and in general charge of the instruction in telegraphy. Graham was his ideal, and he even imitated the instructor's handwriting.

Harbord had to earn his way, and that meant many hours of work, for the regular rate of running an elevator and picking apples on the college farm, was ten cents an hour.

"With no time to waste, Harbord learned to organize his life; he worked hard while he worked and played hard when there was opportunity to play," Gauss wrote. "To hold his job, he had to be on time and punctuality became second nature to him in college. It still is. The skill which he was acquiring at telegraphy brought about his transfer to work in the telegraph department and on the books of the college, at 20c an hour."

West Point His Goal.

But it was the commandant of the college military department, Lt. Alfred Todd, a West Point graduate, who persuaded Harbord to direct his ambitions toward the army. Harbord decided he would become an officer and go to West Point.

"A few weeks after graduation it had looked as though Harbord's ambition could never be realized," Gauss wrote. "He had gone down to Emporia to take the competitive examination for West Point. There was but one vacancy to which he would be eligible. With 24 other candidates, he waited around three days for the results. Finally, after what seemed years of suspense, it was announced that two men were tied. No. 7 and No. 19. Harbord was No. 19. The committee decided that as No. 7 was one year younger and would therefore normally give one more year's service to the government, the appointment would go to him. That seemed to end it. Harbord swallowed hard. It would have been an even bitterer pill had he ever learned what has since been more than rumored—that Harbord clearly stood first and that other, possibly political, considerations had been invoked to help No. 7."

Became a Teacher.

Then Harbord started looking for a job. He took an examination and became the assistant school principal at Leon at a salary of $40 a month for nine months. His success as a teacher won him, the next year, appointment on the faculty of his alma mater as instructor in telegraphy and assistant librarian. He did well in that job, too, and it was an easy, pleasant life. But he was not satisfied and his determination to get into the army would not down. In January, 1889, he enlisted as a private.

Through long years of diligent application, he rose from the ranks, and when Pershing was designated to go abroad as commander in chief of the A. E. F. in the World war, General Harbord was chosen his chief of staff in which position he served with great credit to himself and his country.

INSTALL TIME SIGNAL

Beginning this week, naval observatory time signals will be picked up by a long wave receiving set for use in the broadcast studio of station KSAC. These signals will be picked up from station NAA, Arlington, and station NAT, New Orleans, by Robin D. Compton, radio operator of station KSAC. A new clock has just been installed in the broadcast studio and will be the official clock by which broadcasters will check their time in their radio programs.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild—"so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

DON GREEN FOR WICHITA.

Shockers' Blue Jerseys Would Blend With Wildcats' Purple.

The Kansas State Wildcats will shed their traditional purple jerseys when they meet Wichita university here in the first 1932 contest.

They will sport shirts of emerald green which will clash wonderfully with the stately blue of the invaders. The purple jerseys would blend with the blue, and the officials handling the game would have difficulty in making decisions.

Coach Bo McMillin has long had a passion to see his gridders in green, and this year he convinced the athletic director, M. F. Ahearn, that green alone would do. However the change will be made only when circumstances necessitate, and the game with Wichita will probably be the only one in which Manhattan fans will see the Wildcats rival the famed Green Wave of Tulane.

PLAY WESLEYAN AT NIGHT.

The 1932 edition of the Kansas State Purple Horde will be the first Wildcat football team in the history of the institution to play under the floodlights, as a result of a shift in the schedule for the contest with Salina Wesleyan.

The game will be played on the Salina gridiron on the night of October 7 instead of October 8 as was previously scheduled.

Wilbor Wilson, a graduate from Oklahoma A. and M., Stillwater, will take post-graduate work in poultry nutrition this semester.

A Danish Girl to Kansas State to Study Genetics

As far as Inge Kjar is concerned few persons at Kansas State college will ever know whether it was the venturesome spirit inherited from her sea-faring ancestors or the modern desire for scientific knowledge which sent her from her home in Denmark, across the Atlantic and half way across the United States to enroll at Kansas State college as a graduate student. Inge Kjar (pronounced Kyar) will talk volumes about Denmark, in fact she has a whole notebook of statistics she will quote, but about herself she refuses to talk.

Miss Kjar arrived in Manhattan Tuesday night and already is getting established at Van Zile hall and is arranging for her work this year. No, she isn't a home economics specialist. She is taking work in genetics and animal inheritance to further her interest in cattle breeding and farming which she will take up when she returns to Denmark.

Bad Times in Denmark

"I can't say anything about what I will do when I go back," she said in fluent English with a rich accent "because it is very bad times in Denmark. I may take a position if I can find one or I will go into farming."

By farming Miss Kjar doesn't mean sitting in the house and giving orders. She means going out in the fields, milking her cows, and taking an active interest in the business. She already has had actual practice in farming since the Royal College of Agriculture in Copenhagen of which she is a 1931 graduate requires three years practical experience before completing the course. One year of her experience was on her father's farm and the other two years were taken away from home.

From her notebook the young Danish woman reports that there are three million head of cattle in Denmark, and that one and one-half million are dairy cattle. In 1930 the country exported 416 million pounds of butter and 739,000 pounds of bacon. So you see there is a field for a person well-trained in cattle breeding, even though she is a young woman fresh from college.

"American" Unlike English

Miss Kjar learned English in her elementary school, but in order to speak it easily she purposely came to Canada for two months where she would have an opportunity to speak and hear English al the time. She also said with a twinkle that she thought "American" was different from English, and she is apologetic in choosing some of her words.

After visiting friends in Canada the young Danish woman came to the United States about two weeks ago. She has been visiting other educational institutions because as she said she wants to learn as much about the country a possible.

"I can't see what you Americans call bad times," she said. "To me you look like a very wealthy country, and we are much worse off in Denmark."

In her country, she said, there is a large percentage of unemployment but the worst effect of the "bad times" is the decline in the price of products while expenses have remained more stationary. The country has a high tax rate, and no one can pay his taxes. Miss Kjar said.

Heard of K. S. C. Reputation.

"I like your American colleges and I think that there is a very healthy atmosphere out here in the country," she commented on Kansas State college. She wasn't poking fun at the metropolitan features of Manhattan, but was contrasting the location of that college with that of Royal academy of Agriculture in Copenhgen where the college is in the midst of the city.

Miss Kjar is taking her work in genetics under Dr. H. . Ibsen of the animal husbandry department. She chose this college because of its reputation and because she knew of the work of Doctor Isben.

She is a blonde with her hair cut short and a hint of a wave. She wore a smart blue travel print dress. She likes sports, bicycling and tennis. She had a good home she says, where she and her four sisters were taught to cook and sew, but she gives the impression she likes outdoor activities better.

"Yes, I like to dance and all kinds of games," she said, "but don't tell about me, tell about Denmark. It's much more interesting."

Yes Denmark is interesting, but so is Inge Kjar, Kansas State's Danish coed.

AGGIEVILLE DRESSES UP FOR COLLEGE OPENING

Shops and Cafes Have Been Remodeled and Redecorated for Arrival of Students.

Shops and student cafes in Aggieville have undergone a variety of changes during the quiet month of August and present a spic and span appearance for the opening of college today. Nearly every business place has been remodeled, redecorated or cleaned. Several new ventures have been launched.

Most of the eating places closed during August. The Kampus Side cafe on North Manhattan avenue has undergone a change in ownership as well as in appearance. The new owner has repainted the interior and installed new equipment.

Two new establishments have been opened. The Canary Cottage luncheon and tea room at 718 1-2 North Manhattan is arousing interest and speculation. It is under the management of Miss Bertha Jo Needham and Miss Ferne Felt, who have come here from Junction City. They plan to specialize in the serving of teas, salads and sandwiches and plan to arrange their own menus, using original recipes. The room has been decorated in green and yellow and these colors will be carried out in the dishes. Live canaries will furnish music in the tea room. M. E. Wood has enlarged the frame building known as the Varsity Inn at 1309 Anderson and has transformed it into a hamburger and lunch stand with a stone exterior.

The Varsity Drug store, recently opened by Leo Cavanaugh and "Dad" Armstrong, has installed new equipment for luncheonette facilities. A new linoleum floor adorns the College Drug store and some rearrangements have been made.

At the Palace Drug store the fixtures have been repainted and a gneral cleaning up took place during the latter part of August. The College Canteen, remodeled and reopened last spring as a drug and luncheonette establishment backed by Frank Crooke, has been closed during August. The Aggie Rexall Drug store has been partially repainted and new upholstering has been installed in the booths.

DYKSTRA AND FRICK ON VETERINARY PROGRAM

Two Kansas State Professors Address Annual Convention at Atlanta.

Dean R. R. Dykstra and Dr. E. J. Frick of the veterinary medicine division of the college attended the sixty-ninth annual meeting of the American Veterinary Medical association in Atlanta, Ga., August 23 to 26. Dean Dykstra, as president of the association, delivered the opening address. He also appeared on the program of the large animal clinic.

Doctor Dykstra in his address reported on his observations made while visiting the various eastern and middle western states. He has visited every state east of the Mississippi and a few west of the Mississippi. On his trips he made many observations on conditions with which the veterinarian is concerned and these were the basis for his address.

Doctor Frick read a paper entitled "Intravenous Medication" before the small animal section of the association. He is a member of the special committee on canine distemper.

DELTA ZETAS CLOSE HOUSE

Members in School Will Have Meetings, However, Without House.

Lambda chapter of Delta Zeta sorority at Kansas State college will be inactive this year and hopes to dispose of its house at 1111 Bluemont, local alumnae have announced.

Mrs. S. M. Paddleford, local alumna, said Lambda chapter was not petitioning the national organization of its discontinuance. Members of the sorority who are in school plan to have meetings this year but will not have the expense of a house.

Lambda chapter was installed at Kansas State college in 1915 and is one of the oldest national sororities at this institution. There are 60 chapters in the United States.

Members of the sorority last year were Margaret Colver, Catherine Colver, and Mildred Harman, Manhattan; Mildred Bell, Bavaria; Olive Jo Clark, Lavenworth; Ferne Glover, Burr Oak; Pauline Patchin, Parsons; Helen Brewer, Peabody; Esther Dorgan, Alta Vista; Helen Hoffman, Haddam; Pauline Andrews, Sycamore, Ill.; Loraine Knox, Emporia; Leona Tibbets, Westmoreland.

RULE GOVERNING USE OF CARS IS REVOKED

Abolishment Will Save Considerable in Labor and Expense on Postage Stamps.

The board of regents at their summer meeting in Topeka revoked the rule requiring students to have written permission of their parents to operate automobiles in the state colleges.

The rule has been in effect for a year but it was found that only about 80 per cent of the parents signed permits last year, while others refused and some paid no attention to the requests. The abolishing of the rule will result in the saving of considerable labor and expense on postage stamps.

President Farrell said enrollment cards next autumn would have blanks on which students would indicate whether they would have access to cars, but that no blanks would be mailed to parents. Last year, he said, 637 students at Kansas State college, had access to the use of cars. A large number of these were students living in Manhattan and others were graduate or married students attending college on their own responsibility. President Farrell said that 85 per cent of the parents replied to the blanks sent from this college.

Vice-President and Studebaker Take a Whippet for a Ride

The old adage, "accident will happen," (even to vice-presidents) came to life again last Monday when Dr. J. T. Willard, vice-president of the college, driving his shiny new Studebaker sedan, collided with a Whippet coach driven by Roy Lund, of Manhattan.

It was late afternoon when the vice-president's limousine rolled up Bluemont avenue toward the college. Old Sol's rays were shining in the wind-shield of the shiny new Studebaker, making it difficult to drive.

The crash came at the corner of Ninth Street. Was the vice-president's shiny new Studebaker damaged? No. Not bad. A sparkling new bumper was torn off the front of the car and later a small dent became apparent in the front fender. And a new horn was ripped off too, but these new Studebakers have two horns, so that didn't matter much.

But what happened to the other car? Well, it took a terrible bump against the curb, and toppled over. There wasn't much left of the jitney when the vice-president's shiny new Studebaker took a jab at its ribs. This was the last run the Whippet ever took.

Doctor Willard secured pencil and pad and returned to the scene of the accident. He looked over the wrecked Whippet. You can bet he was glad this wasn't his shiny new Studebaker.

After taking a few notes on the accident, he approached the driver of the wrecked automobile and sighed: "Well, what's your name?"

The driver told him his name.

"I have insurance," the vice-president said, "I'll see my agent right away and let you know what we can do about it."

RECREATION ROOM FOR METHODIST STUDENTS

Addition Built to Rev. B. A. Rogers Home for Use of College Students.

Work is in progress on the new recreation room at the home of Rev. B. A. Rogers, 1630 Osage street. The room, which is 20 by 40, is for activities of the Methodist students attending college here.

In the past all student parties and social meetings, other than mixers, have been held in the student pastor's home. With the new recreation room completed all of these, as well as meetings of Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' organization, will be held in the new room.

The addition has been constructed by the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist church at a cost of approximately $1,000. French doors will give entrance from the Rogers home into the room which is equipped for all kinds of games. A kitchen is located in the basement.

Prof. J. B. Fitch, dairy husbandry department, returned yesterday from Sacramento, Calif., where he has been judging cattle at the California State Fair.

Leola White, a graduate of the University of Arizona, will enroll as a graduate student in the clothing and textile department of the home economics division.

FRATERNITIES ANNOUNCE LISTS OF NEW PLEDGES

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON LEADS IN NUMBER WITH NINETEEN MEN.

SATISFIED WITH OUTCOME

Short Rush Week, House Bills and Abundance of Material Account For Surprisingly Long Lists.

Fraternities at Kansas State announced the pledging of 223 men as rush week closed. Ribbon pledging began Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, with 19 pledges, leads all fraternities in number of new men. Pi Kappa Alpha and Kappa Sigma with 16 pledges each, follow. The number of men added to the Greek lists this year is surprisingly high Lower house bills and an abundance of fraternity material account for the long lists, according to rush captains.

Most fraternities expressed satisfaction with the outcome of rush week. There was little variation from rush rules although competition was keen this year. Some of the fraternities expect to add more names to their pledge lists laterr in the week. Sororities will hold open house for fraternity pledges Friday evening.

Blisters and Homesickness Ushers In School

Blisters on heels and homesickness have ushered in a new school term in much the usual style. Many a girl who has felt that to attend a dance once a month this summer was exceedingly good fortune and to walk two blocks to the corner drug store, a good sized tramp, finds varsities almost every night and long walks in and about the campus too much for her new shoes and tender heels.

Those who are suffering from homesickness are glad to have their classes underway so that they may make new friends and keep their mind off of home with plenty of study.

However, those old students who were back for rush week are leaving the campus forlornly, only too glad to undergo the agonies of homesickness or blisters for another year at Kansas State.

Y. M. C. A. OFFICE FINDS WORK FOR 64 STUDENTS

25 Have Regular Part-Time Positions and 39 Will Work at Odd Jobs.

Out of approximately 350 applicants for jobs, received by A. A. "Doc" Holtz, 25 students have received regular part time positions and 39, odd jobs. Many students had received work before the semester opened.

"Usually, we fill about as many jobs after the five-week examinations as we do before the ex" Holtz stated recently. "Many withdrew their applications after seeing what a college schedule is like."

According to "Doc," many students send in letters without filling out application cards, expecting to get jobs when they come. Any student wishing to get work, should apply to the Y. M. C. A. office and fill out an application card in order to be on time to get any job that may be left vacant after the five-week exams.

FOX S. G. A. VICE-PRESIDENT

Boyd and Johnson Act as Democratic Pages To Get Ringside View of National Convention

The following article has been prepared by F. W. "Bus" Boyd, who, with Tom Johnson, attended Kansas State last year, acted as pages at the Democratic national convention early in the summer.

Our party, consisting of my mother, father, Tom Johnson, and myself, left Phillipsbmurg June 23, and arrived in Chicago the evening of the 24.

For the next two days we tried to get our bearings in the wicked Al Capone city. However, we failed to see any evidence of gangsters, found everyone courtecus and hosppitiable, an got accomodations at good hotels and eating houses at a much more reasonable price than we had expected.

Monday, June 27, the Democratic national convention, in many ways the most interesting political convention that was ever held, was called to order by John J. Raskob, national chairman. The sessions were held in the stadium, which covers one block of ground. The speakers' platform was near the center of the building and rows upon rows of seats in the various balconies on all sides of the speaker were filled at all times while the convention was in session. The national committeeman from Kansas, Dudley Doolittle, had provided Tom and I with page and special officers badges, which gave us the freedom of the stadium at any time. We made good use of this privilege, which made it possible for us to get a close up view of many of the celebrities.

One of the most interesting features of the convention was the fact that people were milling up and downw the aisles, in and out, and on the move constantly. Someone was talking all the time, not only from the speakers' platform, but from every section of the room. Talking, booing, cheering, responding to their moods. The hall was provided with a large speaking system which made it possible for everyone to hear perfectly, even if their neighbors were visiting or shouting.

One of the most interesting sessions, although not important, was during the afternoon the convention was waiting for the report of the platform committee. Eddie Dowling, song and dance man, presided at the impromptu program and a number of celebrities in various walks of life were introduced. Among these were: Will Rogers, Amos and Andy without makeup, Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer; Gene Tunney, Floyd Gibbons, and numerous opera singers, moving picture artists and prominent democratic men and women. Mary Brian, one of the really beautiful movie artists proved an interesting talker, but Will Rogers as usual, stole the show. He was given a tremendduous ovation and kept the crowd in an uproar during his speech which he ended with the remark, "I am going to say something good about the Republicans. Something no one else has done since this convention started. It may take awhile to think of it—(pause). They did the best they could with what little they had to work with."

A political convention without parades would be like a football game without the "Purple Peppsters." The first parade took place when the "repeal" plank was read. Kansas' banner, with very few others, remained firm in the standard and did not enter the parade at any time. However, that does not mean that Kansas was not represented in the "wet" parade, for many Kansans got in line and made as much noise as anyone (Johnson included).

As each candidate for president was nominated, their supporters took banners and got in line and went wildly around the vast hall; shouting and dancing, with bands playing and cameras clicking. Beautiful girls climbed up on the speakers desk, waving flags, and, leading the singing and cheering. The delegates and visitors stood on chairs and shouted or gave catcalls; sat quietly in their chairs and read or visited as their fancy dictated. The partisan supporters of the different candidates tried to outdo each other in showing their loyalty to their favorites. Al Smith was given the longest and the most spontaneous demonstration. His personal following is very loyal, although he didn't get the votes. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt also received a great demonstration. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma, received the most picturesque demonstration. His parade was led by his state "Kiltie" band while his old friend Will Rogers marched ahead of the band and clowned for the benefit of the spectators. Governor Albert Ritchie of Maryland, also was a great favorite with the masses.

Toward morning of the all night sessin, a few of the delegates deserted their posts and went to the hotels. We sat with the Kansas delegation awhile during the wee hours of the night, and got a closeup view of a number of New Yorkers who are nationally known. The New York delegation was seated just behind the Kansas delegation, and John W. Davis, candidate for president in 1924; Mayor Jimmie Walker, or ex-mayor; John Curry, Tammany boss; McCoole, the Brooklyn boss and other prominent men of the state, sat near us. One prediction of Jimmie Walker has since come true. While roll call was being taken of the New York delegation, Jimmie Walker had not been present when his name was called but he was hurriedly summoned and he called into the "mike" (the one carried Continued from galley 3 ---- about on a page's arm): "Mr. Chairman." Chairman Walsh: "Who is addressing the chair?" "Jimmie Walker, mayor of New York." Man off in the audience yelled, "Who is he, I never heard of him." Walker turned toward the heckler and snapped back, "Well you will." Then again turning to the mike said "one vote for Alfred E. Smith."

Kansas delegates had one of the best sections in the stadium. They were seated about six rows of seats in front of the speakers platform and next to the large center aisle. All Kansans and former Kansans who applied at the Kansas headquarters, were furnished tickets, although many visitors from other states did not fare so well. Tickets were at a premium and were being sold for high prices by the Chicago committee. The best boxes were sold for $500 for the whole convention. Season tickets for ordinary balcony seats sold for $16 to $20 for all the sessions.

We spent much of our time attending attractions such as ball games, shows, dances, and night clubs. We spent several interesting days in Chicago, left there June 3 and arrived home on the fourth.

SEVEN RECEIVE LOANS FROM CAMPUS CHEST

Fund to Students in Need of Money to Enter School.

Seven students have been granted loans this semester by the campus chest loans fund for tuitions and entrance fees. The campus chest drive last March to which Kansas State students and faculty members contributed resulted in the fund from which emergency cases and short time loans may be met by students who are in dire need of rounding out their expenses of entering school, according to Prof. J. O. Hamilton, chairman of the loan committee.

Attempts have been made each semester to get money by students who, after investigation by the committee, are found not to need it for educational purposes or who could get a loan from some other source, Professor Hamilton stressed the fact that loans from the campus chest fund were given only to those students who could get money no other place and were in desperate need of it. Other members of the committee are Mary P. Van Zile, dean of women, and Dr. A. A. Holtz, dean of men.

At the present time enough of last semesters loans have been paid back to the chest fund that there is no definite information or immediate need of another drive for money Professor Hamilton said.

There were forty-eight students last semester who were aided in meeting expenses of graduation fees, tuitions, and board bills.

STUDENTS WAGES NOT CUT

Fred M. Harris Says Students Are Only Persons Enjoying Steady Employment.

Students are about the only percut and who are enjoying steady employment. Fred M. Harris, Ottawa, member of the state board of regents, assured a large number of students who attended the first student assembly, Wednesday morning.

"I represent the two million people of Kansas," he stated, "and I welcome you to one of the four great educational institutions built by the people of Kansas."

Mr. Harris believes himself one of the most highly compensated state officials of Kansas, but he measures his compensation in terms of the service he renders. "I hope to serve long enough to see the state approriate money to any worthy enterprise that this or any state institution wishes to carry out," he said.

"Conditions in this country will become better when people realize their obligations to the government and forget the governments obligations to the individual and 'half-baked' ideas of relief," Mr. Harris concluded.

The next chapel program will be on Tuesday morning.

REGISTRATION FIGURES SHOW A SLIGHT DROP

INCOMPLETE COUNT PLACES KANSAS STATE TOTAL FOR FALL SEMESTER AT 2,432.

VETS AND GRADS NORMAL

General Science Leads Divisions With 845—Tabulations Will Be Available September 30.

Latest unofficial figures from the registrar's office place the number of students enrolled at Kansas State for the fall semester at 2,432 a decrease of 425 under the 2,857 who attended school last year at this time. This drop in enrollment is no more than was expected by authorities after having practically a normal registration all last year and last summer school.

Tabulations according to divisions have not been completed as yet, though approximate figures have been obtained from three of the six divisions. A rough estimate of the number registered in the general science division shows a total of 845. The division of veterinary medicine remained practically normal with a total of 40 registered. The graduate study division had approximately 185 enrolled.

It is diffficult to tell whether or not the number of graduate students this year is greater than last due to the fact that this is the first year that graduate students have been placed in a separate division. Last year there were 195 taking graduate work, only a few more than the present checkup for this semester shows, but this number included many who were taking undergraduate work as well.

Complete and thorough figures enrollment will not be available until September 30, at which time registration figures from all the state schools will be ready for publication. It is possible that there will be a few more late enrollments at Kansas State by the end of the week which will change slightly the figures available to date.

R. I. Throckmorton, head of the agronomy department, left Wednesday for Hutchinson to prepare the agricultural exhibits at the state fair there. Professor Throckmorton is superintendent of the agricultural division and will remain there next week in charge of the exhibition.

RADIO STUDENTS TO SPEAK

Advance Classes to Broadcast Over Voice of Kansas State Program.

Advanced students in the course of radio speaking will be given permission to broadcast on programs over "The Voice of Kansas State," radio station KSAC, beginning Sept. 13.

Radio speaking, which is a two hour course under Prof. H. B. Summers of the department of public speaking, will have a schedule calling for a college news summary to be broadcast for 20 minutes each Tuesday, a national affairs program each Wednesday, an international affairs program Wednesday, an international affairs program each Thursday, and a weekly sports summary each Friday.

History of radio, broadcasting rules and regulations, suggestions for announcers, and a study of educational broadcasting will be the four general phases of radio development to be considered during the first semester.

As the students progress in their course, Professor Summers plans to assign them to handle short periods under the general topic then being considered.

EXPECT NO DECREASE IN VET ENROLLMENT

Figures Nearly Equal Those of Last Year—No New Women Students.

Enrollment for the five-year course in the division of veterinary medicine established this semester is expected to equal the enrollment in the division the first semester of the year 1931-32. Last year the total enrollment in the division was 159, including one woman student, Louise Sklar, a junior this year. There were no new women students enrolled this year. This enrollment was considerably higher than previous years.

The enrollment at the close of the enrolling period Wednesday morning was 151 and with late enrollments which may be made within the next ten days, Dean R. R. Dykstra, dean of the veterinary division, anticipates a total enrollment equal to that of the first semester 1931-32.

COLLEGIAN WILL CARRY STUDENT DIRECTORY SOON

STUDENT COUNCIL APPROVES APPLICATION FOR PERMISSION TO PRINT LIST.

BOOKLET ORDINARILY LATE

Directory Will be Given Kansas State Students Weeks before Council Could Publish Book.

In the columns of the September 20 issue of the Collegian will appear the student directory of Kansas State college. The publication, which will be made only one week after enrollment has been made possible through the cooperation of the student council and the office of the registrar. The decision of the Collegian to print the directory was brought about by realization of the fact that it has been impossible in former years for the student to print and distribute the annual directory booklet before several weeks of the school year had elapsed.

The list of students, including telephone numbers, classifications, home towns, and Manhattan addresses, only will be published. As numerous last year's student directories are still available. it has been considered unnecessary to delay publication in order to print the faculty directory, student self governing association constitution, and other additional material which ordinarily apears in the student council booklet.

It has developed into a tremendous task to compile the lists from the cards in the office of Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar. The cards were filled out at registration in the handwriting of the students, and in the haste of going through enrollment, illegibility resulted.

Consequently, there is a possibility that the entire student directory cannot be made ready for publication in Tuesday's Collegian. In the event that such a situation arises, the list will be printed in two or more consecutive issues of the paper.

Publication of the student directory prior to the regular annual booklet distributed by the student council has never before been attempted by the Collegian, according to Maurice DuMars, president of the council. The proposition of the Collegian printing the directory within one week after enrollment has met with much favorable comment on the parts of Kansas State authorities.

STUDENTS WILL STUDY PLAYGROUND PROBLEMS

Two K. S. C. Students and One Washburn Graduate Leave For New York.

Zora Gifford, Manhattan; Robert Lang, Denver, Colo.; and Earl Regnier, Spearville, left last week for New York where they will enroll in the National Recreation school sponsored by the National Recreation association. They received their appointments to the school last spring when a representative of the association was here to interview prospective students.

The course includes study of recreation problems with an opportunity to put the knowledge into practical use by supervising playgrounds in the city of New York. A limited number of persons from the graduating classes of colleges and universities in the United States is selected each year to enroll in the school. Both Lang and Regnier were graduated with the 1932 class of Kansas State college. Miss Gifford was a graduate of Washburn college, Topeka, and last year was employed as secretary in the 4-H club office.

THE STUDENT DIRECTORY

In an effort to be of as great service to students and faculty members of the college as is possible, the Kansas State Collegian has obtained the cooperation of the student council to print a student directory in its next issue, which will be published September 20. The council, in its meeting last Monday night, considered the Collegian's application for permission to compile and print the directory and recommended full cooperation by parties having access to most convenient sources of material.

It has been impossible in past years for the council to distribute the complete student directory booklet containing the faculty directory, student self governing association constitution, and other material before the latter part of October or the first of November. Consequently, the Collegian staff has conceived the idea that by concentrated effort and by the greatest cooperation of all parties involved it is possible to publish the directory within only one week after the beginning of enrollment.

Only the student directory proper will be published. There are few changes in the faculty directory, and since directories of last year are still available to most persons, it has been considered inexpedient to delay publication as would be necessary if additional material were to be included.

Present plans regarding the final publication of the directory are not complete. The task of compiling alphabetical lists of students, including telephone numbers, classifications, home towns and Manhattan addresses, has developed into one of gigantic proportions. Collegian staff members are making every attempt possible to assemble the entire list for publication Tuesday morning. However, in the event that it proves impossible to have the directory ready in its entirely for publication at that time, it will be printed in two or more consecutive issues of the Collegian.

The publication of a student directory prior to the booklet distributed by the student council has never before been undertaken by any group. Comments by authorities of the college and various faculty members, when approached with the directory idea, were to the extent that it will be the greatest service ever given by the Kansas State Collegian. It is through the inspiration of being able to perform such a service that the Collegian will print the directory for the convenience of its readers weeks in advance of the regularly distributed annual booklet.

Within the next week some of the first year men of Kansas State will begin to wonder what happened to all the courtesy and cordiality displayed by fraternity men during rush week. Faith will be slightly jarred by remarks of the nature of, "say, you big farmer, you handle that fork like a pick." Faith will be entirely shaken at the first weekly meetings of the various chapters when the pledges are forcefully reminded on the back of their laps that the penalty for not scrubbing the bathroom floor is a "round." After that they will take many things for granted and go through the pledge training with chins up. And before long they will be joining in the same cordiality and rush talks to ensnare some other unsuspecting souls.

The Snooper

Praise be to Allah! The "Brown Bullet," descendent of the late "Brown Bull," appeared in the streets of Aggieville last Monday. The original rag, a few of the old graybeards will remember, was barred from the mails for some he-she masterpieces which were clipped from other equally as humorous (?) publications but which were pronounced off-color by the authorities when they appeared in the old Bull. (You'll have to read that carefully.)

Then too, a certain nasty bit of rumor has it that the postman got sore at Mr. Amos, the original "Bullet's" proof-reader. (Don't get this confused with "the original bullet-proof readers, because that is another, and longer, story.) It seems that Mr. Amos' small boy Wayne trampled up his (the postman's) prize pansy bed, causing quite a bit of trouble back at Washington. However the story is not founded on fact so we wouldn't think of using it in this column. Anyone interested in obtaining these off-color mid rib stretchers may get them for the regular purchase price by applying at any door marked X. Merely say, "Immiegay the utgay etcherstrays,": and they will be lowered to you from the transom. And then again maybe they won't, you yokels.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon dug up the old "one in every home" slogan and came through with half the male populace of Kansas as pledges. The boys are at a loss as to what to contribute their success to unless it could be the riddance of such notorious characters as Johnson, Menzie, and the spool-eared wonder, Arch Miller.

The loss of the last named has put a crimp in the plot of certain Chi Omegas who earlier in the year were concocting a scheme whereby those spool-like appendages would be clipped, stuffed, and hung over the mantelpiece of the new chapter house to inspire the younger girls. Arch has had trouble with those ears before, what with getting them chewed up in electric fans and folding doors and all, so he has announced that he will take them back to Cottonwood Falls making it necessary for the good sisters to abandon their scummy plans.

Hoards of comely maidens have beseiged the Snooper with the query: "Who is that darling boy with the platinum blond hair at the Delta Tau shelters? He seems much finer than the usual rabble which infests their front porch furniture." Ladies, he is none other than Herman Teats of Kansas City, and for a consideration we will also give you his middle name and his mother's recipe for vinegar pickles. Herman has been here before but decided to try it again. "If Jean Harlow can do it why can't I?", asks this gorgeous male.

The electrical engineering department of Kansas State now has little grounds to admit through modesty that there are other institutions in the United States having as good or better courses in electrical engineering. When General Electric of Schenectady, New York, decided to discontinue its basic courses in that field the facts became apparent that Kansas State ranked highest of all.

The approximately 15 students from General Electric who enrolled here took definite pains to study the different schools of the country where electrical engineering is offered. Their research was not of a hap-hazard sort. They analyzed the entire situation thoroughly with officials of the organization before they drew their conclusions. The experts advised them to complete their work at Kansas State.

Such definite proof can be referred to for a long time by the electrical engineering department. It points out decisively and conclusively that that section of the college is recognized throughout the country as being the last word in up-to-date engineering education.

On Other Hills

Going to school "on the hill" is no easy job for Titicaca Indians, who live 12,000 feet above sea level in Bolivia. There are several flourishing schools perched high in the Andes, one of which has 130 pupils.

Every county in Oklahoma and many other states are represented in the student body at the Oklahoma A. and M. college.

Freshmen students at the University of Wichita get their first taste of college life and become properly informed as to registration and enrollment procedure in the pre-freshmen week which began last Monday.

Many K. U. girls will keep house on the co-op plan this year. Some expect to reduce food costs 50 per cent.

One young woman walked 27 miles of a 54-mile hitchhiking trip to interview President Fleming of Baker university and to find a way of financing her education. Others have shown equal tendencies to sacrifice.

Here's a college with a gain in enrollment. Ottawa university at the close of the first week of school reached 240, a small gain over last year.

After two hectic days of rushing which found organizations battling heavily for new members at the University of Missouri, Alpha Gamma Sigma fraternity was the most successful. The A. T. O's and Phi Delts ran next in order.

Indiana university faculty members have contributed $3.510 toward the program of unemployment relief in Bloomington during the past year.

Jim Bausch, Olympic decathlon champion and former football star at Kansas university will be a speaker for the Democratic party in the political campaign in Kansas this fall.

This morning the dean of men and the dean of women at Kansas State will talk to the freshman behind closed doors. They will inform them of the customs and habits of Kansas State students, they will touch on the traditions, and may even mention offhand a few of the vital facts about life. And the freshmen will come out from behind those closed doors with a new lease on life. That is, they will if they're not cynical young moderns as all upperclassmen think they are. At the houses most of the first-year students are protesting at having to attend such a meeting, and sympathetic juniors and seniors comfort them by repeating it will last only an hour. An hour out of a young persons life is not a very long time. Many men have learned a great deal in an hour. And learning can't be had unless some effort is expended. No matter what is said to the freshmen this morning, it will no doubt be worth the time spent in listening.

METHODISTS ENTERTAIN

Methodist students are engaged in numerous affairs as a means of acquiring new members for the coming year. The past week has been spent in fellowship mixers, open house at the student parsonage, and morning and evening worships. New student dinners are being served at the student parsonage, 1630 Osage, from 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

The Oklahoma Sooners, under the direction of Coaches Lewie Hardage and John "Bo" Rowland, are toiling thrice daily. Forty players are reporting to the Oklahoma mentors on the field morning and afternoon, and for skull practice each evening.

Coach Hardage sent his proteges through a long seige of individual scrimmage, Tuesday, in a search for prospects and for men who can block. The Sooner chief has been working with three combinations and was using Bob Dunlop, one of last years halfbacks, at quarter on one of the elevens. Teaming with Dunlop in the backfield are Ab Walker and Omar "Bud" Browning, veterans of last season's team.

Since grid practice for Big Six football teams began last Saturday, the various conference coaches have been putting their men through their paces with exceedingly tough practice sessions. The majority of grid mentors have been holding two practice drills daily with skull work at night in an effort to get their men into shape in the quickest possible time. Most of these twice-a-day practices will be discontinued within the next few days when regular class work begins.

Emil Von Reisen is a guest at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house. He is associated with the New York American of New York City.

AT THE DICKINSON

Janet Gaynor is still the same sweet little girl, and Charley Farrell remains the backward suitor in "The First Year." But they come out of it in grand shape after the show really gets down to business. Both of the screen favorites turn out to be real actors (or can she do that?) as they proceed to live the initial eleven months of their wedded life.

Because the girl he wants to marry insists of leaving the home town, Charley seeks fame and fortune in another city. The little woman stays at home, while the young husband beats off the bill collectors in his real estate office. And then, the big business man comes to dinner. To top it all off, in comes the other man-in-her-life.

Janet pulls a perfect abused-wifey scene, and Charley does a neat job of getting high. You guessed it—a misunderstanding. As money comes rolling through the door, the stork comes thru a transom.

You'll like it—and you won't come out of the theater thinking you've been munching on soft chocolates.—ed.

AT THE VARSITY

A crazy kid with the seven year itch saved "Honeymoon Lane." Between skating around on carpet sweepers and nigh on scratching off her clothes, the comparatively unknown Daephne Pollard stole all the honors from Eddie Dowling and June Collyer.

It was a sweet show, and by that I mean sweet. The dear old mother with her cherry pies and faith turned hard-boiled criminals into dish washers, and kings into bell hops. Her hotel (on which there was no mortgage-) was not making money because the honest old soul would not compete with the gambling house next door. But her maternal spirit, her dizzy granddaughter, and her energetic manager finally brought the books out of the red, and all was saved.

Even the young couple shdowwn Honeymoon Lane.—Ed.

"Ten-dollar gold-pieces . . . for sale cheap"

Not so long ago, an interesting experiment was made, to test the "sales-resistance" of the public. Several men paced the down-town streets of a large city, hawking their wares. And the wares, believe it or not, were ten-dollar gold-pieces . . . offered for sale at a dollar! Not one bought; the price was reduced to fifty cents; finally to a quarter . . . still no sales!

Only after this experiment appeared as news in the papers did those who turned down the bargain gold become convinced of their mistake. They doubted the evidence of their own senses when they were offered something for nothing, but they believed in the opportunity they'd lost when the newspapers told them the story.

Daily, in the papers that you read, you are offered a parallel opportunity—equally genuine, and sponsored by people of proven responsibility. What! You've never seen it? Stop for a minute and think. This newspaper cost you a trifle—which you gladly paid to learn what's happening in the world, to read about people and events. But there's other news here of vital importance to you—about things and services, about automobiles, clothing, food, household wares, vacation tours—about all those things which you pay money for, to live.

The advertisements! Your newspaper-pennies buy this news too. If you read the advertisements, let them show you how, where, what and when to buy, they will save you dollars . . . and put money in your pocket just as surely as if you purchased a bargain gold-piece!

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

500 PEPPY FRESHMEN AT ANNUAL 'KICK OFF'

Two and One Half Tons of Melons at Y. M. C. A. Feed Prove an Attraction.

A crowd of approximately 500 men students, mostly freshmen, attended the annual Y. M. C. A. "Kick Off" at the west stadium last night, and showed more pep in their songs and cheers than any similar group for many years.

Two and a half tons of watermelon, along with numerous speeches from the college coaching staff and other faculty members, proved the main attraction for the freshmen. A beautiful September moon which was rising over the east stadium added to the sincerity of the appeal many of the speakers made for school spirit and cooperation at the coming football games.

Dr. H. H. King, head of the chemistry department, acted as chairman at the "Kick Off," first introducing Dick McCord, head cheer leader, who had the entire cooperation of the freshmen in giving the college yells. Prof. William Lindquist led the songs of "America," "Alma Mater" and "Aggie Wildcat."

"Swede" Anderson, freshman football coach, who was the first speaker, advised the freshmen to like the faculty and keep their own ideas to themselves on how to run the college, leaving that to the faculty. Jerry Wilson, downtown clothier, extended a welcome from the Manhattan chamber of commerce. Ward Haylett, track coach, and Frank Root, assistant football coach, gave short talks.

Dr. Howard T. Hill, head of the department of public speaking, welcomed the freshmen for the Y. M. C. A. Director of Athletics Mike Ahearn spoke briefly before Alvin "Bo" McMillin, head football coach, asked for sincerity of purpose from the freshmen in coming out for freshman football. He guaranteed coaching for every freshman who came out. Ernest Reed, college senior and president of the Y. M. C. A., again asked for freshmen cooperation at football games.

Sport Slants

The promise of a football scrimmage for this coming Saturday has the student body buzzing. Quite a crowd watch the daily workouts of the Wildcats....too much of a crowd according to the coaches.

All of the football men have been wailing about the iron rail and bench exercise. You sit on the bench, hook your feet under the rail and let your head back until it touches the ground done innumerable times there is little wonder they wail. It is one of the most beneficial of exercises say the mentors.

Cochet, the French tennis star who was reversed by the youthful Ellsworth Vines in the finals of the United States singles, protested his treatment in this country. Vines coupled with another Californian, Keith Gledhill, also won the national doubles. . . .Vines insisted Gledhill was Davis cup material. . . .and seems to have proved it.

Cochet claims to like the position on the court around the service line better than anywhere else. . . .such a position is suicide for any other player.

Great Britain has a monopoly on speed, holding records for automobile, motorcycle, speed boat, and airplane. The most startling of them all to me is the 150 miles per hour on a motor bike.

Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia first baseman, joined the baseball immortals by hitting over 50 homers to date. . . .only three other men have wielded the bludgeon so adeptly. . . .Babe Ruth and Hack Wilson. Foxx also has a chance to beat the standing record of 61 homers for the season, set by Ruth.

Both Wichita university and Purdue university use the Notre Dame football system made famous by Rockne. This system employs wingbacks and many plays are run from spinners.

Tony Freitas, Philadelphia American pitcher in the big leagues tipping the scales at 155 and five feet nine tall. In the Pacific Coast league there is a Japanese twirler who is five feet tall and weights 100 pounds. . . .and wins ball games.

INTRAMURAL PLANS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Soccer and Horseshoes First Events On Full Athletic Program.

With a larger number of teams participating in this year's intramural events, plans for contests among Greek organizations and independent groups will be discussed at a meeting of all intramural managers to be held soon in Nichols gymnasium.

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, last year's winner of the big challenge trophy, will compete against more than 23 intramural teams again this season in order to retain the trophy which must be won three consecutive years in order to become the permanent possession of a team.

Men's intramural soccer team practice will probably start October 1, although no definite date has yet been set.

The first game of horseshoe among organizations will probably begin at the same time, while intramural basketball will start November 16. Cross country races will not be held this year because of unfavorable results of last year's events.

Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Sigma Phi fraternities were co-champions in intramural soccer contests held last year. J. W. Mather, Grinnell, won singles in horseshoe contests, sharing honors with H. L. Brown, Fall River, in final doubles.

CANDIDATES DIVIDED INTO A AND B STRING

Division Is Not Permanent and Lesser Experienced Men May Make Select String.

Coach Bo McMillin divided his football candidates into the first string and the B squad last Wednesday. The division is not permanent and many of the lesser experienced men will make the select list later in the season.

The first string squad is made up of 24 men, and will form the nucleus of the 1933 team. All the old letter men are in this group, and combined with the most promising sophomores have been running fundamental plays with the smoothness of mid-season.

The B squad has been under the direction of Chili Cochrane, a former Kansas State backfield star, and Assistant Coach Carl Anderson. This group has been working on Notre Dame plays the past few days in preparation for the scrimmages to be held later this week to acquaint the varsity members with that style of play. Wichita U. whom the Wildcats meet in their first game employ the Notre Dame system.

Many of the new men are being juggled around in an effort to determine the position to which they are the most adapted. Ox Cowan, hefty back, has been working out with the linemen where his weight can be put to the most advantage. Dan Blaine, erstwhile end, has been put into a guard position where he can pull out to head interference.

The center position seems destined to be capably filled. Lloyd Michaels, last year's regular, holds first call for it but has worthy competition in Ken Harter and E. S. Wiseman. Lack of an understudy for Michaels last year weakened the team.

The backs are lining up much as the pre-season dope predicted with Emmet Breen, Ralph Graham, Dougal Russell, and Leland Shaffer working with the first team. Oren Stoner has been alternating in this select backfield quite often.

The filling of the wing positions is the biggest problem this year. Two good ends, one an All-American, were lost last year, and their successors are still undecided. Ralph Marshall, Lloyd Dalton, and Harry Hinckley all have good chances of landing one of these assignments.

"BARGAIN PRICES" AT IOWA STATE COLLEGE

Board and Room Obtained as Low As $5 Per Week at New Cooperative Houses.

Ames, Iowa, Sept. 14—When John and Mary come to Iowa State College this fall they will "buy" their education at depression prices.

Room and board at the college dormitories has been reduced, according to a recent announcement. Board in the girls' dormitories will cost $4.75 a week instead of $5 and rooms will cost $32 a quarter with some available for $25.

Rooms in the boys' freshman dormitory will rent for $35 a term instead of $38 and board will cost $5.25 a week instead of $5.50. Room rent and board at many lodging houses has been reduced. Meal can be purchased at the Memorial Union and local cafes and restaurants for lower prices than two years ago.

Girls who are fortunate enough to get into the cooperative dormitories—for which there always is a waiting list—will pay not more than $2.50 a week for board or $32 a quarter for room. Boys who live this year in the first cooperative house ever established here for men will pay $5 per week for room and board. These students do part of the housework to reduce their living expenses.

Several fraternities have reduced their housebills to $35 or $40 a month where formerly they charged $45 to $50. Some sororities will have a $40 a month house bill and many $45 instead of $50.

Cost of social life and entertainment, of course, will depend on the individual tastes of John and Mary. Informal dances and parties to be held in the Memorial Union are being planned where students may attend for a nominal charge.

Dr. W. E. Grimes, head of department of agricultural economics, left Tuesday of this week Chicago to attend and partici in the central states outlook ference program of the U. S. partment of agriculture and agricultural colleges of the m west on September 14-16.

Harold Howe, assistant prof of agricultural economics, leave Friday afternoon of this for Topeka to advise with the committee of the Kansas Cha of Commerce.

INSTALL SILHOUETTEOGRAPH

To be Used in Physical Diagnosis Classes.

A silhouetteograph for use in corrective work has been installed in the room that was Prof. L. P. Washburn's office last year, on the north side of the gymnasium.

The room has been especially darkened and will be in use this year for the physical diagnosis class and for physical examination purposes. It will also be equipped for first aid use.

The silhouetteograph is an instrument with which to graph the posture of the body in a scientific method.

CANDIDATES TRY OUT FOR JUDGING TEAM

To go to Annual Dairy Cattle Congress At Waterloo, Iowa.

Prof. H. W. Cave of the dairy department is holding daily tryouts with 10 candidates for his dairy cattle judging team. A Kansas State team will enter the annual Dairy Cattle Congress at Waterloo, Iowa, dates of which are October 2-9. Because there is to be no national dairy show at St. Louis this year, the annual contest held in connection with that event has been cancelled for this year.

Enroute to the Dairy Cattle Congress the team likely will stop off at Fort Dodge, Iowa, to work on a herd of Brown Swiss cattle. This is the first year that the Brown Swiss breed has been used in the intercollegiate contest at Waterloo.

Last year the Kansas State team placed first at the Waterloo event and went on to St. Louis to win a third placing. Students who are working out under Professor Cave are C. C. Conger, Walter Babbit, F. W. Castello, H. L. Kugler, Ben Kohrs, Raymond Cohorst, Pius Hostetler, Wayne Jacobs, Orville Denton, and C. G. Page.

RUSH WEEK VIOLATION BRINGS INVESTIGATION

Charges Brought Against Kappa Sigma Involving Housing Rushee During Rush Week.

Charges were filed last night at a meeting of the senior men's Panhellenic council, held at the Phi Delta Theta house, against Kappa Sigma fraternity for violation of Pan-hellenic rush week rules.

The charges involved violation of the rule regarding the housing of rushees in fraternity houses during the three-day fall rush period. Ed Criner, Alpha Tau Omega representative, introduced the complaint through the discussion of the inability on the part of his organization to locate a rushee to keep a rush date.

Pan-hellenic representatives from several other fraternities reiterated Criner's statement and said that their organizations had been unsuccessful in locating the rushee involved at various intervals during rush week.

Upon notification of the charges Hal McCord and Lisle Smelzer, both of Manhattan and members of Kappa Sigma, denied knowledge of such action on the part of the organization. McCord said he had made a personal check of the beds each night to prevent any instance similar to the one charged from occurring.

The rushee in question was called by telephone and asked whether or not he had stayed in the Kappa Sigma house overnight on Monday, September 12. He admitted that he had stayed there that night.

A committee composed of Criner and C. W. Ater, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was appointed to investigate the situation and report to the Pan-hellenic council at its next meeting October 3.

TO CLOSE CAFETERIA

The college cafeteria will be closed for the evening meal on Saturday and Sunday nights, according to an announcement made recently by Miss Iva Welch, of the cafeteria. Parties at the cafeteria may be arranged for the evening except Saturday and Sunday, Miss Welch said.

MAKE CORRECTIONS

It is the wish of Glen Fox of the student council, in charge of publication of the official student directory booklet, that all changes of addresses, telephone numbers, etc., not included in the student directory on page four of the Collegian be sent to the office of Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar. In order that the booklet be correct in every detail it is necessary that these corrections be made immediately.

COUNCIL CLAMPS DOWN ON SCHEMES OF "RACKETEERS"

MEETING RESULTS IN ADOPTION OF RESOLUTION PREVENTING SOLICITATIONS.

HAS BEEN COMMON PRACTICE

Action Taken After Consultation With Manhattan Chamber of Commerce and Investigation of Conditions.

The student council, in meeting last night in the college Y. M. C. A. office, took action against advocates of high pressure advertising schemes and so-called "rackets" by adoption of the following formal resolution:

Resolved: That the business and professional people of the City of Manhattan should not be solicited to purchase advertising space from the various private publications and those ultimately benefitting only a small group of students at the college, and that the Student Governing association take whatever steps that are necessary to discourage the promiscuous solicitation by students for funds of any nature without approval from the proper college authorities.

It has been a common practice in the past for students or prospective students at the college to besiege Manhattan business houses for advertising on blotters, telephone directories, and other objects of a similar nature just before the opening of school on the assumption that each student would receive a copy of the proposed advertising. Official and permanent publications connected with the college have suffered extensively as a result of this practice. Various merchants and advertisers began to look upon all advertising in college publications as purely promotion schemes, and as a result, were hesitant to advertise.

The action taken by the council last night was the result of a conference with the Manhattan chamber of commerce and thorough investigation of the situation regarding this institution.

NEAR LAST YEAR'S ENROLLMENT FIGURE

Veterinary Division Enrolls New Students in Pre-Veterinary Curriculum.

The division of veterinary medicine is one of the few divvisions to have virtually the same enrollment of students as last year. The total enrollment at the close of registration was 152; last year at the same time 159 students were enrolled.

This is the first year for the new five-year veterinary course. Eighteen students are enrolled. These students will be freshmen next year. This year they are enroiled in the pre-veterinary curriculum and theoretically, there would be no freshmen in veterinary medicine this year, Dean Dykstra said.

There are, however, nine students enrolled as freshmen who have had a year of college work here, at other colleges or at junior colleges. The enrollment is: pre-veterinary 18; freshmen, nine; sophomore, 45; junior, 37; and senior, 43.

WITHDRAWS FROM SCHOOL

Lester Zerbe, Salina, withdrew from school Saturday, because of an injury received the previous Saturday when he was struck in the eye by a nail which glanced from a hammer. Mr. Zerbe was a member of the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity and was at the fraternity house when the accident occurred. Mr. Zerbe has not lost the use of his eye, as was feared at first, but his eyesight has been so weakened that he will be unable to continue his college work at this time.

Prof. R. I. Throckmorton, head of the department of agronomy at Kansas State and superintendent of the agricultural division at the Hutchinson fair, has been working in Hutchinson for a week. Prof A. L. Clapp, extension agronomist at Kansas State, is in Hutchinson where he is superintendent of farm crops exhibits. F. L. Timmons, assistant professor of agronomy at Kansas State is his assistant.

The animal husbandry department at Kansas State is represented at Hutchinson by Dr. C. W. McCampbell and Professors C. E. Aubel, A. D. Weber, and F. W. Bell. Professor Bell is superintendent of hogs at the fair.

Prof. J. B. Fitch and Assistant Prof. W. J. Caulfield of the department of dairy husbandry at Kansas State are also in Hutchinson. Professor Caulfield is judge of dairy products exhibited at the show.

A. C. Thomson, McCune, and J. I. Miller, Prescott, seniors in the division of agriculture here are working as clerks at the fair this week.

HOLD STUDENT MIXER

Approximately 50 students attended the Congregational student mixer which was held Monday night at the church. An unusual feature of the program was a play, "The Last Day at School," presented by members of the college faculty in the church. The play was humorous, being a take-off on the last day in a country school. A fight between two of the "school children" in one of the scenes afforded laughter.

It was announced at the mixer that the women's association of the church will serve a buffet dinner to freshmen and new students Tuesday, September 27.

WESLEY FOUNDATION ROOM

The new Wesley Foundation recreation room, which was added to the Methodist student parsonage at 1630 Osage this summer, is open each day until 9:30 o'clock to all Methodist students as an informal social center. The basement room is equipped with a ping pong table croquet, and game tables. There is a kitchen for candy making.

In addition to the informal use of the room, there will be special scheduled meetings which will be announced a week in advance.

KANSAS EDITORS WILL PLAY GOLF HERE NEXT MONTH

TOURNEY WILL BE STAGED AT MANHATTAN COUNTRY CLUB ON OCTOBER 14 AND 15.

CONTEST BY SIGMA DELTA CHI

Journalism Fraternity Will Announce Outstanding Editors of Kansas—Invitations in Form of Comic Strips.

Citizens of Manhattan, the Country Club and Kansas State college will join hands in welcoming and entertaining members of the Kansas Editorial Golf association when they come here for their annual fall tournament October 14 and 15.

The Country club will provide the golfing facilities, Manhattan through its chamber of commerce will stage the traditional golfers banquet Friday night, October 14 and the college athletic department will play host to the golfers at a major football game Saturday afternoon between Missouri and Kansas State. Editors who pay the tournament fee will receive pass books admitting them to all functions on the planned program—the golf tournament, luncheons at the Country club, the banquet, and the football party.

M. F. (Mike) Ahearn, director of athletics at Kansas State, is local chairman of arrrangements actin for A. L. (Dutch) Shultz, Topeka who is general manager of the tournament. Other members of the local committee include Prof. H. H Haymaker, in charge of pairing for the tournament; Harry Bouck and Fred Seaton, representing the chamber of commerce, and Prof P. E. Charles and D. G. Griffith invitations and publicity.

Will Offer Prizes

Famous for the huge prizes, both as to bulk and value, that have been offered to winners of the tournament heretofore, the editorial golfers will get back to a saner basis of making awards this year Mr. Shultz announced. In times past, business institutions of the city have contributed big prizes—carloads of salt, gasoline, flour, and oil, for example—but this year with depression conditions reigning and no manufacturer of such products operating in Manhattan, the plan is to give a list of suitable and reasonably valuable prizes to winners of the several flights of match play.

There will still be numerous prizes, another tradition among the editorial golfers. They will be contributed by Manhattan merchants, paper and supply houses, and concerns interested especially in the tournament. It has been a custom to send home as many editors as possible with some sort of a prize. There will be a grand prize for the winner of the championship flight a similar prize for the runnerup, a low medalist prize, and a blind bogey prize.

Details of the banquet program have not been arranged but an outstanding feature will be announcement of several outstanding editors of Kansas. This will be in connection with their selection by Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity, a biennial event.

Editors entering the tournament will register at convention headquarters in the Wareham hotel either Thursday night or early Friday morning and play their qualifying round of golf Friday forenoon. Pairings will be made so the first 18 holes of match play can be played Friday afternoon. Competition will be in flights of eight, allowing semi-finals to be played Saturday morning and finals the afternoon of that day.

Comic Strip Invitations.

Invitations to the editors, in the form of a comic strip, will be mailed to them next week.

Professor Haymaker is making arrangements to accomodate 80 or more golfers. There will be the championship flight, and other flights labeled to suit the calibre of golf shot by the entrants—city editors, copy readers, advertising managers, press men's, Boiler Plate (the Western Newspaper Union flight), reporters, office devils, society girls, and others as needed.

A special Coxey's army flight made up of 30 or 40 defeated golfers, is an annual feature of the tournament. The entire group moves off from number one tee together, several of these taking the greatest number of strokes being dropped at each green. It is a round of golf in which all rules of etiquette are dropped in the interest of editorial fun.

STUDENTS WIN AT TOPEKA

Kansas State students made a clean sweep of the first five places in the livestock judging contest for college students held at Topeka Thursday, Sept. 15, in connection with the Topeka Free Fair.

Earl C. Coulter, Willis, a senior in animal husbandry here, won first place and a $25 prize. C. G. Page, Norton, took second and a $20 prize. Walter Lewis, Larned, took third place; Joe Knappenberger, Kingman, fourth; and A. C. Thomson, McCune, fifth.

More than 20 of the 41 entrants in the contest were Kansas State students.

QUILL CLUB ASKS FOR MANUSCRIPTS

Convention Reports Will Be Given At First Meeting of Local Chapter Thursday Night.

Manuscripts are being received now from students seeking membership in American College Quill club, honorary fraternity of college writers. Ur Rune, Kansas State's chapter of Quill club, will hold it first meeting of the year Thursday night in the office of Prof. H. W Davis.

The closing date for the acceptance of manuscripts will be decided upon at that time, Chancellor Marjorie Pyle has announced. The program for the evening will consist of reports of the national convention in St. Paul, Minn. this summer by Miss Ada Rice and Veva Brewer. Miss Rice is a high chancellor of Quill club and Miss Brewer is keeper of the parchments of the local Rune.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT LOSES TWO MEMBERS

War Department's Economy Bill Forces Action Here—Swift to Leave.

In view of the war department's present economy bill, Kansas State will lose two members of the military faculty—Captain William A Swift of the infantry and Lieutenant John H. Madison of the coast artillery. Captain Swift has received tentative orders saying that he will leave probably at the end of the present academic year. Prior to coming here two years ago, Captain Swift was on duty with the second division, 23rd Infantry at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Lieutenant Madison will sail on January 13 from New York for Panama Canal zone for duty. Lieutenant Madison is starting his fifth year at Kansas State. Prior to coming here, he had one year of R. O T. C. duty at Ann Arbor, Michigan. Captain W. S. Rehm has arrived to take the place of Lieutenant R. A. Marshall who left for Panama in August.

Captain Rehm is well acquainted with college R. O. T. C. details having had a four-year detail at the University of Minnesota from 1924 to 1928. Before coming here, Captain Rehm was a student of the advanced officers' course at the infantry school at Fort Benning, Georgia.

There has also been a change in the non-commissioned officers' staff. Staff Sergeant Harvey O Williams replaces Master Sergeant M. O. Coffee who retired this summer after 30 years' service. Sergeant Williams has been on duty at Lathrop Trade school, Kansas City. This is also his second tour of duty with R. O. T. C.

According to Colonel John S Sullivan, head of the military department, there is a drop of 243 R O. T. C. students, 849 being the total enrollment to date. Last year the enrollment reached approximately 1,100. One hundred fifty-three of the 843 are advanced students. The coast artillery has 80 infantry 40 and veterinary division 33.

KAPPA PHI ENTERTAINS

Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' club is entertaining for all Methodist preference girls, both old and new at a "nutting" party this evening at the student parsonage, 1630 Osage, at 7:30 o'clock. All girls are cordially invited.

ENROLLMENT TO 2,436

Total enrollment at Kansas State college for this semester has now reached 2,436, an increase of seven students since the close of the regular registration Wednesday morning, according to Jessie McDowell Machir, college registrar. These figures take into consideration the number of withdrawals since the beginning of school. Saturday was the last day that fees may be refunded to students wishing to withdraw.

FIRST INSTALLMENT OF STUDENT DIRECTORY APPEARS IN COLLEGIAN

ONE-HALF OF ENTIRE LIST OF KANSAS STATE STUDENTS LOCATED ON PAGE FOUR OF THIS ISSUE.

COOPERATION OF AUTHORITIES MAKES IT POSSIBLE

Student Council, Registrar, Printing Department, and Collegian Staff Join Forces to Print Directory Within One Week After Enrollment — Remainder Appears Friday.

Approximately one-half of the student directory of Kansas State college appears on page four of this issue of the Collegian. It has been prepared for the Collegian through the cooperation of members of the student council, Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar, the college printing department, and staff members of the Collegian, all of whom have entered whole-heartedly into the attempt to supply students, faculty members and other interested parties with a directory within one week following enrollment.

Owing to the fact that various addresses have been changed, telephone numbers reported, and other information supplied since enrollment, there have been many possibilities for errors to occur in this first edition of the directory. In case errors of this nature appear in this issue of the Collegian, it is the privilege and duty of the student whose name is involved to telephone or send any corrections to the office of the registrar.

It is important to all concerned that the official booklet published by the student council later this fall be correct in all details. Consequently, the directory published herein will be rechecked by council members before publication of the book in order to eliminate any existing errors.

This portion of the directory extends partially through the names commencing with the letter "K", and the September 23 issue of the Collegian will carry on from that point, slightly more than one-half of the directory appears in this issue.

Copies of the issues of today and September 23 will be on sale in Kedzie hall during the entire days of their respective publications for five cents each. It is necessary to make the small charge to defray additional printing costs brought about by the publication of special material of a different nature than ordinarily appears.

SUBMITS FIELD HOUSE PLAN

R. U. Brooks, in Thesis For Master's Degree, Presents Several Schemes For Its Construction.

Realizing the vast need for a field house at Kansas State college and hoping to stimulate interest in one, R. U. Brooks, '32, submitted a thesis at the end of summer school in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of master of science.

The thesis, entitled "A Field House for Kansas State College" contains studies in parti, and development of the submitted design including layout and design and framing.

In the statement of the problem, Brooks explains in the thesis that primary function of the field house which shall be to provide a place for indoor athletic events. The structure shall be so located as to be easily accessible, not only to the general public, but also to athletic units now in use, and shall be in harmonious design with the architecture of the rest of the campus.

The first part of the thesis presents seven different schemes for the design of the field house. Each are illustrated by blue-prints.

Plans in the thesis provide ample seating for 5,000 people, of which at least 2,000 shall be permanent seats, the balance to be the bleacher type. A 200-yard running track six lanes in width, and ample entrance and exit facilities, including ticket offices, are also provided. Provisions are also made for dressing rooms, toilets, and showers.

Brooks, in the thesis, suggests building the field house at the south end of the stadium, thereby completing the structure as originally designed. Brooks believes the additional seats provided if the stadium is completed, are not desirable seats for witnessing a football game. Therefore a much more practical idea is to complete the stadium with some necessary units that will function perfectly as a completing unit. The capacity of the stadium now available has never been completely used, Brooks, in his thesis says, nor has it ever been close to being used for more than a single game each season. On the other hand practically every basketball game played necessitates that the crowd be packed into the space now available. Why not, then at one stroke, and at practically the same cost as that of completion of the stadium as originally designed provide a new building necessary and also complete the stadium?

In doing so the seating capacity will be increased from approximately 18,000 to 20,000. This capacity will amply serve the needs of this college for some time to come and when seats are necessary for just a single game, let them be of the bleacher type and placed just north of the football field out of the grass. Then when the time does come when a stadium of greater capacity than 20,000 is necessary these additional seats can be provided by double-decking the present stadium at a much lower cost per seat and in a more desirable location than by completing the "horse-shoe."

HOLD DAIRY TEAM TRYOUTS

Only juniors and seniors are eligible for these tryouts.

The team that will be picked will judge dairy products October 17, at the intercollegiate contest held in Detroit, Mich.

Student and faculty hosts and hostesses are being named today to assist in making it easier for new students to get acquainted with other students and with the faculty at the affair.

AD CORRECTION

In the advertisement of the College Book Store in the September 12 issue of the Collegian the headline should have read "official list of college text books by the College Book store" instead of "official list of College Book store by college text books," as it appeared.

A PHYSICAL IMPOSSIBILITY

The possibility of publication of the entire student directory in this issue of the Collegian faded rapidly as press time approached. The task of compiling the lists from cards upon which many of the names were nearly illegible, and setting the names in type with a sufficient amount of speed to bring about immediate publication proved to be a physical impossibility.

However, since one-half of the directory appears herein and the other scheduled for the issue of September 23, it will not be necessary for the Collegian purchasers to obtain several papers and clip a column of the directory from each one in order to assemble the complete list. The directory has been so arranged in the paper that it can easily be slipped from between the cover pages and tacked on the wall with no clipping nor pasting necessary.

It has so developed that the directory idea, which was advanced by an impetuous staff member of the Collegian, is one which takes on enormous proportions. Therefore, two issues have been required to assemble and print the lists. The September 23 Collegian will be arranged similar to the present issue and the directory may be taken from the paper without clipping.

WILL THEY OR WILL THEY NOT?

Are the Wampus Cats going to be allowed to fulfill their purpose this year? A few years ago an organization called Pi Epsilon Pi was organized at Kansas University and became national. The chapter at Kansas State was named the Wampus Cats. The primary reason for the organization of the fraternity was for pep, and the Kansas State chapter intended to further this purpose with entertainment between halves of football games. Alumni and students who came to the games during high school days can remember when they used to sit in the stadium between halves, in spite of the cold, just to watch the entertainment.

Now what do they do? They go down, drink a bottle of luke warm chocolate and a cold hot dog or hamburger, and why? Just because in the past few years the Wampus Cats could not get permission to put on their stunts.

That organization could, if given a chance, again be an asset, but, until some of the "permission givers" realize that, alumni will continue to ask what has become of the entertainment between halves.

SPIRIT WORKS BOTH WAYS

With the first football game only a few days off college spirit is picking up. Even though it has not as yet come to the point of causing arguments nor boisterousness it is evident to students of other schools. One medical student from Kansas University made the remark that right now there is more good old fashioned college spirit at Kansas State than developed at any time at the university. On top of all of that he is a backer of the university.

To students who have spent all of their college days in Kansas School the pep and enthusiasm for any kind of team put out by the school is not surprising for they are used to it and would not consider feeling otherwise about it. So, to further impress their good fortune another example is given by a student who recently transferred from another Big Six school. He said, "I have never missed a football game between my former school and Kansas State and, although that school was noted for backing its team, they did not compare with this school when it came to losing. Kansas State students seem to have always been good losers."

Only those who are or have at sometime been athletes can really realize the effect such backing by the student body has on the team. To others, who believe college spirit is only another phase of college life and does not help the team, try to do anything you know you are good at sometime with 2,000 people or more "booing" you.

The Snooper

A word to the new students: You are now a part of this great and noble institution which, if you are fairly quick witted, you have recognized as being the Kansas State College of Agriculture and Other Things. Large and worthy deeds are expected of you. If you possess the standard gauge brain of the rest of us you have by this time forgotten your entrance examinations and other etcetras, and are now concentrating on the holidays and the joys (what fun!) of helping with the Christmas decorations. If you are a fraternity pledge you have found, much to your chagrin, that you are not the only pebble on the beach because there is a little rock in Arkansas. Congressional Record, 1901.)

The boys at the II. K. A. house have abolished the paddle as an instrument for the succumbing of unruly freshmen. Nasty rumors have it that instead of the old method the new boys will cultivate geraniums, but woe be unto him who neglects his bounden duty and forgets to weed his specimen for in that case he must suffer to be slapped thrice upon the wrist, and believe you me, the third shall be the most severe.

"Scrooge" Martin, who has been around here, off and on, for so long that the citizens are beginning to point him out to visitors as an old landmark, got the thrill of being a pledge all over again at the varsity last Wednesday night. Scrooge was introduced by a pledge to a sweet young thing who should have known better but who, upon hearing that he was one of the boys at the S. A. E. house, gurgled joyously, "Oh, congratulations, I know that you will just love the boys." They are a bunch of little honeys, don't you think, Luella?

Max Fockele, the Ottawa burr-head, and who for the past four years has been in swimming meets for the Alma Mater, is taking a course in "beginning swimming." For the benefit of our readers (if any) we will explain how a class of this kind can be successfully crashed. Upon going in for your first time yell loudly that the last one in is a dirty so-and-so or something equally as appropriate and then race into the pool room (tee-hee), cut a half moon on the wet tile floor and let your half conscious carcass dribble slowly into the water. You will be removed stern first and the water will be wrung from your lungs. From then on it's easy and well worth the lacerations received in moment one.

Curtain.

On Other Hills

Smoking, having dates, drinking, walking on the campus grass, dancing and being caught on the streets after 7 o'clock at night are just a few of the things taboo for University of Missouri freshmen, according to the traditional edict of the sophomore council.

Rushees at the University of Nebraska were confined to "no man's land" during rush week. Two hundred coed rushees lived in hotels, in which elevators wouldn't even stop if there was a youth on board. Sorority girls were even afraid to speak to the rushees when they'd meet any place except at parties, for fear they'd violate some of the Pan-hellenic rules.

Preaching economy in school attendance costs not only by precept but by example, six men teachers in Griswold, Ia., schools appeared in classes wearing overalls and work shirts. Boys of the school soon joined them.

The plan of allowing students to defer fees at the time of enrollment and pay them during the same term has been discontinued at the University of Oklahoma. Working students must bring a special card from their employers before enrolling.

When E. C. Lytton, business manager of Drake University invited Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma to attend the Drake-Oklahoma A. and M. football game, October 7, and give a brief address the venerable possessor of the walrus mustache refused. Governor Murray replied that "modern education has too much football, basketball, and highball" policies to be wholesome for the country! Fifteen rahs for Murray!

Students working for Oklahoma A. and M. college are allowed to earn no more than $25 a month this year. More than 1,000 applications have been received by the student employment committee.

No excess weight will be carried by University of Oklahoma football players this year. Members of the team will wear an outfit designed by Lewie Hardage, head coach of the Sooners. The uniforms weight slightly more than half the conventional attire, approximately seven and one-fourth pounds.

Six freshmen at Northwestern university selected from hundreds of applicants, will take special studies to fit their needs as "prodigies." Imagine. And two of them are women!

University of Nebraska students are whistling the budget balancing tune of the times. Lower living costs for the ensuing year have been promised by fraternities, sororities, cleaners, book stores and the athletic department.

Among schools accepting farm products in payment of tuition is Illinois Wesleyan university, Bloomington, Ill. A student recently exchanged a truck load of potatoes for payment of fees.

Freshman-capped freshmen are still in the minority at Kansas State. Apparently the yearlings would rather take a chance on escaping notice or out-running upperclassmen than to part with a dollar for a cap. It has been a source of wonder whether or not the "K" men are not just a little high in the price of their merchandise. Reports have been circulated that the caps are of rather ancient vintage and perhaps might be turned more rapidly by a slight reduction in price.

LOW FARES ON UNION PACIFIC MAKE "TRAVEL BY TRAIN" A REAL BARGAIN

We believe that many residents of this community have not been aware of this bargain arrangement. Did you know that every week end you can make a round trip between any two points on the Union Pacific Railroad for only twenty five cents more than the one way fare? You can leave as early as Friday on certain trains and return as late as midnight of the following Tuesday. Ask Union Pacific Agent for particulars. 3-1

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

CUSTER'S LAST STAND

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the great painter of the American Indian, N. C. Wyeth... inspired by the massacre of Custer's dauntless band at Little Big Horn, Montana, by the savage Sioux Indians, June 25, 1876.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

"—a more pleasing taste and aroma"

© 1932, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.
Enough Turkish, but not too much, that's Why!
Hear the Chesterfield Radio Program. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays — 10 p.m., Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays—9 p.m., E.D.T. Columbia Network.
Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food . . . the "spice," the "sauce." You don't want too much seasoning in food. Or in a cigarette. But you do want enough!
Chesterfield uses just the right amount of Turkish tobacco. Not too much, but just enough to give to Chesterfield the finishing touch of better taste and aroma.
Smoke a Chesterfield . . . and taste the difference.

WILDCATS MUST IMPROVE TO BE READY FOR GAME

LOOK UPON GAME WITH WICHITA SHOCKERS TO BE NO SMALL UNDERTAKING.

LEARN NOTRE DAME STYLE

Many Changes Being Made in "A" Positions — Starting Lineup to Be Announced Later.

The Kansas State football coaches were not pleased by the showing made by members of the football squad Saturday afternoon as the "A" men were sent against the "B" team. According to members of the coaching staff there are many improvements to be made before the Wildcats are ready to meet the Wichita university Shockers here next Saturday afternoon.

Coach A. N. McMillin divided his squad of 54 candidates into two groups last week for practice purposes. The "B" men under the direction of Freshman Coach Carl Anderson and O. L. Cochrane were put to work learning the Notre Dame style of play, used by the Shockers, which is being used in scrimmages with the "A" men.

Run Notre Dame Plays.

Monday night Chile Cochrane and the "B" boys ran through play after play so that the "A" men might learn the Shocker style of play and how to break it up.

Only four more practice sessions remain before the Shocker contest It is likely that two of the four contests will be stiff scrimmage purposes as Coach McMillin and his assistants, Frank Root and O. W. Maddox, attempt to strengthen the offensive and defensive play of the Wildcats.

The "A" men found the going fairly easy after the first few minutes of the practice Saturday and it wasn't long before Ralph Graham, Emmett Breen, Dougal Russell, Jack Going, and Tom Bushby were showing their heels to the "B" men. Lloyd Dalton caught a pass and got away for a touchdown without a defensive player touching him.

"A" and "B" Squads Scrimmage.

During the latter part of the practice Coach McMillin put some of the "B" men in red jerseys and used them against the "A" squad in order to stiffen the defense.

As many changes were made in the "A" lineup it was hard to tell what the starting lineup might be. It will probably be the last of the week before Coach McMillin is ready to anounce any kind of a starting team.

The list of the "A" squad members, according to whether they play on the line or in the backfield, is given below.

The backs on the A squad: Ralph Graham, ElDorado; Emmett Breen, ElDorado; Tom Bushby, Belleville; Leland Shaffer, Minneola; Raymond Doll, Ellinwood; Lee Morgan, Emporia; Dougal Russell, McDonald Pa.; Oren Stoner, Sabetha; Henry Kirk, Scott City; Jack Going, Topeka, and W. D. Cowan, Sierra Blanca, Tex. Morgan and Going are non-letter men who have been candidates for the varsity before. Russell, Stoner and Kirk are members of last year's freshman squad.

Most Linesmen Lettermen

Linesmen on the A squad: Capt. Walter Zeckser, Alma; Dan Blaine, ElDorado; Nell Weybrew, Wamego; Harry Hasler, ElDorado; Lawrence Pilcher, Glasco; Lloyd Dalton, Garnett; Shelby Neeley, Hopewell; M. H. Wertzberger, Alma; Homer Hanson, Riley; George Maddox, Manhattan; Blair Forbes, Leavenworth; James Freeland, Trenton, Mo.; C. D. McNeal, Boyle; K. W. Harter, El Dorado; and Lloyd Michaels, Eudora. Madwdox, Forbes, Freeland, and McNeal are non-letter men.

AT THE WAREHAM

"SKYSCRAPER SOULS"

A magnificent honeycomb of interests and activities is Warren William's skyscraper, and as the daring, debonair business man, his heart is as hard as the steel and glass of his building.

He wrecks lives, businesses—all for his skyscraper. The varied types of characters involved in the story are portrayed by such capable stars as Anita Page, Jean Hersholt, and Hedda Hopper, with Maureen O'Sullivan and Norman Foster for the young love interest.

Maureen is her sparking Irish best, and Norman Foster an enthusiastic, dynamic suitor. You'll enjoy the speed of this talkie—and the elevator scenes.—E. G.

AT THE VARSITY

George Arliss, one of the screen's most entertaining of actors, proved to be that and more in "A Successful Calamity."

Playing the part of one of the world's greatest financiers, (like Charley Dawes. He even smoked an upside down pipe), he returned from Europe planning to spend quiet evenings at home with his young wife and two grown children. But while Arliss was abroad, the young wife had gone in for modern art and music, the son had gone polo mad, and the daughter had become infaturated with an amateur architect.

After being literally dragged to dinners, musicals, etc., Arliss rebels. He craves a return to the simple home life. And he concieves a plan whereby he might satisfy that craving. But it'd ruin the show if you knew too much about it.

Arliss is particularly well cast in this production, although the show lacks the greatest of "The Man Who Played God."—ed.

Sport Slants

Jack Going, track star and now football candidate, supplied the most sensational run of Saturday's scrimmage, when he completely reversed his field and skirted the other end for a 40 yard run across the goal line.

Captain Jay Hunter, Winnebago Indian leader of the Wichita university Shockers is said to have turned down a major league contract to finish his collegiate football. He caught for a Kansas City club in the State Tournament at Wichita this summer, and had a finger broken by a foul tip . . . and finished the game.

Wichita university and Kansas State meet twice in succession . . they ended the season with their game last year, and open it this fall.

Iowa State college will make no attempt to collect the newly imposed amusement tax on sports held at their college. Director Meteal contends the tax is unconstitutional when concerning a state school. It will probably devolve into a test case, and perhaps all will gain.

There were all kinds of smoking tobaccos

. . . tobaccos made for cigarettes and pipes; granulated tobaccos. But there was plenty of room for a tobacco made solely for pipes.

If you look, you will find that a great many tobacco packages say "for pipe and cigarettes." But the Granger package says:

GRANGER ROUGH CUT
Pipe Tobacco

Granger is made by Wellman's Method and cut right for pipes—rough cut. Burns slower and cooler. Just try it!

HOCKERS AND McMILLINMEN CLASH TOMORROW

McMILLIN TERMS IT HARD GAME BECAUSE OF EARLY SEASON.

WICHITAMEN WORKING HARD

Coach Gebert Has Few New Men In Line—Backfield Made Up of Old Men.

Opening his team against what he terms "the hardest game a team can have," because of the early start of the playing season, Coach Bo McMillin will put his Aggies on the field against the Wichita university eleven tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock on the stadium field.

Wichita, although not rated among the Big Six circles, will probably be one of the McMillin-men's hardest games due to the fact that practice was withheld at Kansas State until Sept. 10, due to the Big Six ruling. Wichita university began their practice sessions about a month ago.

Gebert Working Men Hard.

Coach Gebert, Wichita university mentor, has been working his men hard in order to avenge the last season defeat of last year. Gebert, although having a few veteran men in the line, will start almost an entire veteran team. The backfield will be entirely made up of old men, consisting of Koch fullback; Neelly and Hunter, halfbacks; Wilson, fullback.

On the line George Pechin will probably start at center; Spradling and Ford at guards; Shandoan and Parsons, tackles, and Beeman and Grubb at the end positions. Beeman is a freshman while Ford has been shifted from fullback to right guard position in order to get the line the most possible strength.

Men in Stiff Sessions.

At the Kansas State camp Coach McMillin has been putting his men through stiff sessions in order that they may make a creditable showing against the longer-trained Wichita Shocker eleven. This week McMillin has been scrimmaging his A men against the B men in order that they may learn the tactics which will be demonstrated by the Shocker eleven tomorrow. The first part of the week was used for offensive and defensive scrimmage while the latter part of the week has been devoted to signal and passing drill practice.

The largest team in the history of Kansas State will appear Saturday in the event that Coach McMillin sees fit to place it upon the field. In using a few sophomores the K-Aggie line can easily average 198 pounds while the fleet backfield that could be used against Wichita averages about 194 pounds.

New Men Showing Up.

Several new linemen are showing up well this season and will probably play in a good share of the games. E. S. Wiseman, center, Thos. has been putting the pressure under all his competition in practice and will probably see a good share of the fire in the Wichita game. George Maddox, Manhattan, and brother to Head line coach, will probably be called to take the place of the veteran tackles Weybrew, Wamego, and Melvin Wertzberger, Alma. At the backfield Henry Kirk, Ottawa City, has been showing up well but due to his small stature will be held from the game when the going is tough.

The probable starting lineup for the K-Aggies will be Lloyd Michaelis, Lawrence, center; Captain Homer Zeckser, Alma, and Homer Wilson, Riley, guards; Neil Weybrew, Wamego, and Melvin Wertzberger, Alma, will probably fill the tackle positions. S. M. Neelly, Sherwell, and Emmet Breen, El Dorado, will fill the end positions. The backfield will be composed of Dick Graham, El Dorado, fullback; D. Russell McDonald, Pa., quarterback; and Leland Shaffer, Ottawa City, and Tom Bushby, Greenville, halfbacks.

MIXER POSTPONED

The annual student-faculty mixer will be held Friday, September 30, instead of tonight as formerly announced. The postponement of the mixer was necessary because of the pep meeting scheduled tonight.

"Mortgage Heights" All Agog Regarding Wednesday's Sneaks

No pins were needed yesterday to distinguish the Greeks of Kansas State. Snores in classes, yawns, and desperate attempts to keep awake were sufficient to mark them unmistakably.

There was little rest on Mortgage Hill Wednesday night—and less sleep. What with Beta, Kappa, Tri Delt, Pi Phi, Zeta Tau, Alpha Xi, Sigma Nu, Sig Alph, and Delta Tau pledges zooming over most of eastern Kansas, Panhellenic clans spent a wakeful night.

An unusually large number of pledge groups staged their traditional "sneak." Not for years have so many different organizations chosen the same night to play hide and seek with their actives. And, hide and seek it was, particularly for Delta Delta Delta. Just in the nick of time did the Delta Tau pledges pack the Tri Delt youngsters into cars and whiz them off to Topeka, far from the clutches of the pursuing actives, who, incidentally, were having a party themselves—with the Sigma Nu freshmen.

The Beta pledges showed unusual intelligence and foresight by stopping any possible pursuit before it could get underway. Those clever lads, having had duplicate keys made, vanished with the actives' cars—so what could their seniors do but let them depart in peace. Luckily for the pledges, though, they left one car. They didn't allow it to go unused, however. It was called into service near dawn, to tow one group of sneakers back home—clear from St. George where they had gotten stalled!

Y. M. C. A. WORK OUTLINED TO FRESHMAN COMMISSION

Plans For Year Are Discussed at Meeting Held in Recreation Center Tuesday.

Plans for the coming year of Y. M. C. A. work were discussed by a large group of freshman men at the first meeting of the men's freshman commission held Tuesday night, September 20, in recreation center. The commission is headed this year by John Loth, who was vice president of the commission last year.

Dr. A. A. Holtz outlined the work of the Y. M. C. A. and discussed plans for the coming year. The Y. M. C. A. activities include approving of rooming houses, publishing the K book, and maintenance of an employment bureau. Last year 6,000 hours of part time jobs were handled through this bureau. Eighty-seven boys were placed in jobs of part time work last year, and as many will be placed this year.

A membership meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held once a month. Prominent speakers have been secured for these meetings. Dean R. W. Babcock, Coach A. N. "Bo" McMillin, and Dr. H. T. Hill of the Kansas State college faculty will talk.

Many special events will be held during the year. The first of these being the student mixer in Nichols gymnasium, Friday night, September 30.

A party will be held once a month in recreation center. Three retreats are held during the year. The first one will take place at Wamego during the first and second semesters. This year Kirby Page, author of the "World Tomorrow," which lately passed the one-million-sales mark, will attend this retreat. The Y. M. C. A. are sponsors of go-to-college teams, sent out to smaller high schools over the state in an effort to induce high school graduates to enter college, gaspel teams which conduct religious services, and Hi-Y extension teams. The world forum, another Y. M. C. A. activity, will be held the second semester. Several prominent speakers have been secured.

Ernest Reed, president of the Y. M. C. A., closed the meeting with a plea to the freshman men to assist the Y. M. C. A. in its work. The next meeting of the men's freshman commission will be held Tuesday evening, October 4, in recreation center at 7:30. Dean R. W. Babcock will speak. Raymond Lippenberger, Fort Morgan Colo., is in charge of the meeting.

STUDENT SOCIETY EDITOR

Miss Dorothy Sutton has accepted the position of society editor of the Kingman Journal according to a letter received from her this week. She was a junior last year in the department of industrial journalism. In addition to her society work Miss Sutton edits the paper's country correspondence.

CANDIDATES FOR POLITICAL OFFICES WILL SPEAK HERE

RUTH OWEN, LANDON, AND NORMAN THOMAS TO TALK AT FIRST THREE FORUMS.

SPONSORED BY Y. M. -Y. W.

Not Probable that John R. Brinkley, Independent, Will be Asked to Speak—Meetings will be Held in Cafeteria.

Candidates for political offices have been scheduled to speak here at the first three student forums to be held in October, Alfred M. Landon, Independence, Republican candidate for governor, will open the forum meetings on Wednesday noon, October 5. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, will talk Wednesday noon, October 12. Although their subjects have not been announced, it is thought they will discuss their platforms. Student forum meetings will be held upstairs in the cafeteria, as formerly.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of the United States, will speak here on October 28. He plans to stop in Manhattan between trains. The definite time and place of his address will not be announced until more definite word is received from his party's headquarters.

If the gubernatorial candidates in Kansas find it impossible to work out speaking dates here, prominent members of their political parties will substitute.

Norman Thomas talked at Kansas State two years ago in student forum meetings.

Members of the Y. M. C. A., which with the Y. W. C. A. sponsor the forums, are under the impression Dr. John R. Brinkley, independent candidate for governor of Kansas, will not be asked to speak here. Opposition from the secretary of the group was instrumental in Brinkley's not receiving an invitation, Ernest Reed, Norton, president of the Y. M. C. A. said.

DRIVE NOT DEFINITE

Plans for the fall drive for funds to complete Memorial stadium at Kansas State are as yet indefinite, according to Dr. J. V. Cortelyou, secretary of the stadium association.

The only hitch in the plans of the stadium association for the fall drive is the lack of a manager to handle the affairs of the drive. Should the association find someone suitable to handle the campaign in the near future, the drive will become a certainty.

At the present time the condition of stadium affairs at Kansas State is commendable. While many college and universities are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain funds to pay off bonds incurred in the building of enormous stadiums, Kansas State is fortunate in the fact that as much of the stadium as is completed is practically paid for, Doctor Cortelyou said.

N-I-B-B-L-I-N-G-S

Bystanders were shocked to observe the Y. W. president receiving money from a faculty member who stated it was for "those bottles, you know.". . . . Miss Mossman and Miss Holroyd, mathematics instructors whose classes have recently been moved to the ag building, haven't yet found a reliable formula for removing agricultural mud from mathematically constructed automobile wheels. . . . Scrooge Martin rushed into an Aggieville fizz-palace recently with ears a flaming red—someone had told him what a swell time he should have here on Dad's day when he could greet all his old classmates. . . . Last week Lyle Downey strolled into Professor Lindquist's Conducting I class and began calling roll—he received no answers. . . . Nothing so unnerving as to discover at six o'clock that you should have attended an eighth hour class. . . . Does Touchdown II stay in his house all the time or has he another home somewhere? . . . . Frank Root's popularity is nothing short of astonishing since he "dishes out" secret practice passes.

Famed Profs on Hill Named in Who's Who

Did you ever stop to think what a great thing it would be to pick up the 1932-33 edition of "Who's Who in America" and show inquiring friends, neighbors, and relatives that you are an important person.

Sixteen professors of Kansas State college are among the 30,000 outstanding Americans mentioned in the 1932-33 edition of "Who's Who in America." All sixteen are now, or formerly were on the college faculty. Recognition in the book is made on the basis of achievement and feme.

And to get in "Who's Who" (as you probably know already) requires no small amount of ability among famous Americans. Perhaps in a few years (if your present plans materialize), you may be able to sit back in your easy chair and flip the pages of the big red book which contains your full name and complete history.

But until you can convince the compilers of "Who's Who" that the edition wouldn't be complete without your name and address, the least you can do is grit your teeth, crack a few books, and look up to these professors who have reached the top of the ladder.

Those from Kansas State college and the field in which each has received recognition are: R. R. Dykstra, dean of the division of veterinary medicine; F. D. Farrell, president of Kansas State college; W. E. Grimes, agricultural economics department; E. L. Holton, department of education; H. L. Ibsen, agriculture department; W. M. Jardine, diplomat, and past president of the college; Margaret M. Justin, home economics department; J. E. Kammeyer, economics department; H. H. King, chemistry department; C. W. McCampbell, animal husbandry department; R. K. Nabours, zoology department; C. E. Rogers, journalism department; R. A. Seaton, dean of the engineering department; F. A. Shannon, education department; J. T. Willard, vice president of the college; and C. V. Williams, education department.

The group of which Laura Ward St. Joseph, Mo., is captain, will hold its supper Monday evening at the home of Mrs H. H. King, 1711 Fairchild. Two suppers will be held Thursday evening: the group of which Katherine McKinney, Bartlesville, Okla., is captain, at the home of Mrs. Randall Hill, 1902 Anderson; and the group of Florence Melchert's, Ottawa, at the home of Mrs. J. V. Cortelyou, 325 North Fourteenth.

Dean Mary P. Van Zile, Louis Chalfant, Wichita, college sister chairman, and Mary Alice Schnacke, LaCrosse, Y. W. C. A president, have been special guests at all the suppers, and have given short talks on Y. W. C. A. membership. Those who have given special musical numbers at the suppers are Marjorie Pyle, Manhattan violinist; Alice Bozarth, Lenora pianist; Doris Clark, vocalist; and Ethel Rosey, pianist.

C. year-book is mailing letters to each fraternity and sorority asking them to appoint photo-editors to arrange with the Brownie Studios for the individual pictures of the members of their organizations. The first to make appointments will have their choice of time.

FARRELL TELLS OF STUDENTS' IDEALS

Says Everyone Needs to Develop Own Guiding Principles; Gives Osler as Example.

"Students do a number of noticeable things while in college," Pres. F. D. Farrell told students and faculty members at assembly Tuesday morning. "But the most significant is the development of a personal philosophy for themselves."

President Farrell gave the ideals of Sir William Osler as a guiding post to be used by students in making their own ideals. Osler was a great physician to whom we owe some of the best features of modern medical education and hospital practice. His was a life of adventure, hardship, achievement and honors.

"Sir William Osler had three principles or ideals by which he lived, 'to do the days work well and not bother about the morrow.' Second, 'to follow the Golden Rule and third to cultivate such a measure of equanimity as would enable him to bear success with humility and the affection of his friends without pride and to meet sorrow and grief with courage befitting a man," President Farrell stated.

In concluding he said that every one needs to develop his own guiding principles, and the principle which guided Osler are worth careful consideration by anybody, college or out, who is seeking a set of principles for himself.

NAME DATE FOR ANNUAL AUDITION BY ATWATER KENT

CONTEST SET TO TAKE PLACE SEPTEMBER 30—FIRST PRIZE THIS YEAR IS $5,000.

JESSON IS AREA CHAIRMAN

Qualifying Contestants Will be in Line for Advancement to Participation in National Finals.

Singers of Manhattan and vicinity, who aspire to musical careers—not to mention a cash prize of $5,000—will have an opportunity to make their dreams come true by entering the Manhattan district radio audition to be held in the college auditorium next Friday, September 30, at 8 o'clock. This contest is sponsored by the Atwater Kent radio company, and has Richard R. Jesson of the department of music as the local chairman for this area.

Any young amateur singer between the ages of 18 and 25 inclusive is eligible to compete in the audition. Contestants who qualify in this local contest will be in line for advancement, through state and district contests, to participation in the national audition finals. Winners will receive from the Atwater Kent Foundation, cash prizes totaling $15,000. Individual awards to the 10 young men and women who reach the finals will be: $5,000 each to the man and woman rating highest; $1,000 each for the young man and woman finishing second; and $500 each to the three men and three women ranking next. Every winner—local, state, and district, will receive a token for his or her success.

The local audition will be broadcast, and the votes of the listeners who write in will count about one-third in determining the winners. Three judges will also be selected and their decisions will count about two thirds. The combination of the votes of the listeners and the judges will then decide the local winners.

In urging the singers to test their talent by entertain the local audition, Jesson emphasizes the fact that a high degree of vocal training is not necessary for entry. The aim of the audition is to select the most promising naturally beautiful voices, not the best trained voices. The untrained voice of rare quality, he declares, has a better chance than the trained but mediocre voice.

Enrollment for the local audition will be open until September 29. Full information for enrollment can be obtained from Mr. Jesson.

CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN

Six Chosen to Lead in Cheering Teams This Year.

Six cheerleaders, Jim North Robert Spiker, Max Pfuetze, Joe Kepler, Conwell, and Brown, will lead in cheering this year's teams on to victory for Kansas State.

The group will appear before the student body for the first time Friday night at the first pep meeting of the year in the auditorium.

The selections were made yesterday afternoon from a group of 12 men. C. S. Moll, of the department of physical education, and Dick McCord, last year's cheerleader who is not in school this fall, will coach the new group.

Judges at the tryouts Wednesday were Athletic Director M. F. Ahearn, Lt. H. H. Myrah, Prof. H. M. Heberer, "Brick" Garrison, and H. C. Johnson.

Miss May Tibbetts, secretary in the department of animal husbandry, has returned from a vacation spent at her home in Westmoreland.

MAKE CORRECTIONS

It is the wish of Glen Fox of the student council, in charge of publication of the official student directory booklet, that all changes of addresses, telephone numbers, etc., not included in the student directory on page four of the Collegian be sent to the office of Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar, in order that the booklet be correct in every detail it is necessary that these corrections be made immediately.

Communication with Fox may be obtained by calling 2419.

All Bulletin Boards Don't Contain Notices —Some Have Mottoes

How the veterinary students spend their time between classes, is the concern of at least one professor in tre veterinary division.

In the entrance of the veterinary hospital, this professor has placed a large bulletin board, not the usual kind filled with notices to the students that they never read, but an educational bulletin board on which are found reproductions of the worlds best pictures of animal life. Good thoughts with a high moral purpose and stimulating to good thought. These pictures good thoughts and a few good cartoons are changed each week.

Some of the sayings were well worth remembering, "Be kind to animals this week and every week." "God will not look us over for medals, degrees or diplomas but for scars." The best cartoon came from the mouth of a goat," Why should I vote for Dr. Brinkley he made a widow of me."

ROGERS REVIEWS LEAVE

Rogers, head of the journalism department who has recently returned from California, told of some of his experiences with journalism there.

Professor Rogers spent the past year studying at Stanford university. He was awarded his master's degree in business journalism.

MOVING DAYS HERE FOR MANY COLLEGE OFFICES

Headquarters of Y. W. C. A. Changed from Calvin Hall to Anderson—Redecorate Several.

Fall moving days are here for numerous offices of the college, and more shifting is being done than Kansas State students have seen for some time.

One important move is that of the offices of the Y. W. C. A. from Calvin hall to Anderson. The move is one long desired by the association as it brings it into closer contact with the student body and the administrative offices. Their new location is in two rooms formerly held by the extension work in home economics. Entrance is by way of the second door on the left as one enters Anderson by the south door. A short corridor gives admittance to the new Y. W. C. A. rooms to the west and to an office on the north occupied by Miss Helen Elcock and Miss Nellie Aberle of the English department.

The rooms are in the process of redecoration and Dean R. A. Seaton, chairman of the committee on rooms, said that he expects the work to be completed within a week.

The two rooms in the extreme southwest corner of Anderson will be used solely for 4-H work henceforth. The remainder of the home economics extension work has been raised to the second floor in the rooms immediately above their old location. This space consisted of English and mathematics offices and a mathematics recitation room which has now been sub-divided for the extension offices. Miss Emma Hyde, mathematics, now has an office in the shops, and two other members of the department of mathematics, Miss Ina Holroyd and Miss Thirza Mossman are now in Waters hall.

Other changes in office position are included in plans for the future, but it was necessary to curtail expenditures at this time Dean Seaton said. The offices now used by Miss Elcock and Miss Aberle will be transformed into a fire-proof vault at some time in the future if present plans mature. The vault will be for the use of the extension division and the executive department.

STUDENT'S FATHER KILLED

Esther Johnson Called to Ottawa After Lightning Strikes.

Miss Esther Johnson, sophomore in home economics at the college left yesterday evening for her home in Ottawa after learning that her father, Emel Johnson, 42, had been killed by lightning while driving a tractor on his farm north of Ottawa.

Mr. Johnson, who was active in farm organization and church work, is survived also by his widow and a son, Harold, a student at Ottawa university.

The daughter resides here at 351 North Fifteenth.

LOYAL ROOTERS RALLY TONIGHT FOR GRID FRAY

DR. H. H. KING WILL PRESIDE OVER PEP MEETING IN AUDITORIUM—BEGINS AT 7:30.

BO HEADS SPEAKERS' LIST

Band Will be There as Well as Wampus Cats, Purple Pepsters, and Friars—No Free Show After Rally.

The lid of a great 1932 gridiron season will be blown off with a bang tonight as a seething, surging mob of fighting Kansas State Wildcats will let loose all their pent-up enthusiasm in the first pep meeting of the season in the auditorium at 7:30 o'clock.

With the inimitable Dr. H. H. King presiding, a hilarious evening is in store for all the loyal K-Aggie boosters who will turn out to send the latest edition of the Purple Horde out on the field of battle with the traditional spirit of the Wildcat.

Head Coach A. N. "Bo" McMillin will have his fighting team out in front where everyone can get a good look at them. "Bo" will also headline the list of speakers, including the various members of his coaching staff and others interested in promoting Kansas State sports. In addition to these, the entire coaching staff of the athletic department will be introduced to the student body.

Prof. Lyle Downey's 105-piece band will do its bit with shining horns blaring out the throbbing rhythm of snappy marches. Wampus Cats, Purple Pepsters, Friars, and what have you, will make their first appearance with rousing cheers and mighty yells. All the old yells and possibly a few new ones will be rehearsed, giving everyone a chance to loosen up their vocal chords. The newly selected cheer leaders will have an excellent time to practice leading songs and yells and keeping the crowd amused with their antics. The freshmen will also have a great chance to learn all the regulation songs and yells of Kansas State.

In order to satisfy the curiosity of some, it is announced that there will not be a free show following the pep rally.

WE THANK YOU

The second and final portion of the student directory appears in this issue of the Collegian. It has been brought to Collegian readers within the approximate time of one and one-half weeks after enrollment; the quickest the list has ever been published.

At this time the Collegian wishes to extend its sincere appreciation to Miss Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar, members of the student council, and to the college printing department for their wholehearted cooperation, which made publication of the directory possible. Its publication has met with most favorable comment on the parts of both students and faculty, as well as townspeople and Manhattan merchants.

WHY NOT COOPERATE?

Kansas State has an old tradition concerning caps. According to the tradition all freshmen are supposed to wear a queer shaped cap and upperclassmen are supposed to enforce it. Last year the Wampus Cats and K fraternity attempted to do so but without cooperation from anyone outside the organization so the matter was finally dropped and the innocent freshmen went bareheaded.

This year the tradition has been carried out to the extent that many of the new men had to buy a new cap but so far neither the Wampus cats nor K fraternity have been able to get any of the board-swinging upperclassmen to help force them to wear them.

A proposition of this sort is relative to membership in any organized group. There must be a certain amount of effort put forth in order to make the organization a success. However, in every group will be found laggards, sitting on the outer edges offering advice but never lifting a hand to aid. Such a situation has arisen at Kansas State, it seems, and on a much larger scale. It is not possible for the two groups of men comprising the Wampus Cat and K fraternity organizations to protect this old tradition which has come down to us from the foundation of the institution.

THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS

The last of the Pluetzes has assumed his position in the ranks of Kansas State cheerleaders. At the beginning of the line stood the venerable Paul, who rose to fame by introducing the now equally venerable "jay rah" yell way back in the days when dollar bills were a familiar sight. Then came Karl, who deserted the purple megaphone for the red and blue of K. Next was Hans, who turned out this fall to be equally as traitorous. He went down the river, too. Now Fritz has stepped into the harness and will strain to his utmost to spur Kansas State rooters to inspire the athletes of the institution.

The Snooper

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up the other day in the Palace discussing brood sows, the hot winds, the timothy, and why the hogs wouldn't feed, when who should saunter in but the flower of Riley, Butler, Rooks, Seneca, Phillips, and Thomas counties respectively. He was a freshman and a pledge. "Say," he piped, "what are those cylindrical whatcha-muh-callits standing around the auditorium? Are they silos or clothes chutes?" Someone dug him a shallow grave.

In order to avert tragedies like the above we are going to offer for the benefit of inquisitive freshmen the first of what will probably NOT be a series of simple explanations for some of the wonders which anyone (even you and you and you) might encounter upon this campus.

For one thing, off and on during the winter months you will probably notice flags of various hues and bearing various insignias flapping in the wind which hangs around the uppermost cupolas on Anderson Hall. They are not the custodian's ingenius method of signalling Mrs. Riffenhouse on third street, as you have probably decided, but they pertain to the weather which we usually have lots of.

The Snooper's own very thorough survey of the whole messy business and numerous inquiries among the intelligencia disclosed a fact which would clabber the blood of an ordinary man. It is this: out of a large number, seven scholarly old gentlemen (with grey suits and beards to match) thought it was the janitor's wet wash, seven thought they were American flags, and seven more had never seen them and when an explanation filled with irony, satire, and no small amount of disdain was made disclosing the fact that there WERE flags on uppermost Anderson, they looked at one another in awe and pointing at the Snooper, twirled their fingers around on the side of their heads indicating that his (the Snooper's) cerebral hemispheres were off center.

However, one man knew what they meant. Professor Amos of Kedzie, of typography fame. He can explain, with gestures and illustrations, to any number of persons from one to 50, everything you or anyone else might ask regarding flags, and if you press him he may give you a recipe for kippered twirps, but I doubt it.

Due to the minute detail of the above explanation of the flags which other than being lengthy, is both widthy and breadthy, we will stop at this. But you may look forward, most probably with some misgivings, to the explanation of other campus oddities.

The annual walk-outs started Wednesday night with the youngsters of Sigma Nu holding the sack, to use an old Chinese proverb. It seems that the oldsters of Sigma Nu had all of their young worked up into nervous twitchings over the ultimate result of the traditional walkout. The Tri Deltas in the meantime awaited their dates at the Rexall. They awaited and awaited and awaited. Suddenly a score of handsome young Delta Tau pledges strode in and in exactly one and one-half strides found themselves knee deep among Tri Deltas. "Cripes," said the three D's in a body, "Time, Tri Deltas, and the bottling point of a batch of brew waits for no man and although these mugs are poor imitations of Sigma Nus we can't have the proverbial wool stretched over our eyes." So off they went to a notorious place west of the city.

Sigma Nu in the meantime showed up at the Rexall. All they found was a sack, which they were left holding, so not to be outdone by a bunch of scrubs (as they sweetly termed the sisters) they plead their case to some of the older, more seasoned, Tri Deltas who consented to take them out and console them. They filed out into the night air. Bill Maxwell swept up the fileings.

P. S. Say, if anybody happens to find out what those cylindrical whatcha-muh-callits around the auditorium are, please forward the information to the editorial office.

On Other Hills

An absent minded Harvard law professor was recently arrested on a charge of driving on the wrong side of the road. The a. m. p. told officers he had just returned from England, where he had been driving on the left side, and that he was not accustomed to the change. The case was dismissed.

Girls who go through college have less chance of acquiring a husband than girls who stay home, attend to their knitting and wait for Prince Charming to come along, according to Columbia university authorities. In other words, girls, you can't have a husband and a career at the same time.

HASTEN TO COMPLETE TELEVISION STATION

Tests Will Be Made by Government for Frequency Stability October 14.

The television transmitting station under construction by the department of electrical engineering is being pushed to completion by L. C. Paslay, H. H. Higginbottom and W. R. Mitchell, men in charge of the work.

The aerial which will extend from the water tower to the engineering building, and a few finishing touches are all that is lacking to put signals on the air. This will be the first television station in Kansas. The call letters are W9XAK operating on a frequency of 2150 kilocycles which is equal to 142.5 meters.

"The station will cover all of Kansas west of Manhattan particularly rather than east of here," L. C. Paslay stated.

AT THE VARSITY

Mrs. Winchell's boy, Walter, wouldn't have the nerve to spill all the dirt in his column that Lee Tracy does when he forecasts "Blessed Events." There's not a newspaper, and probably not a tabloid, which would dare, print the stuff Lee Tracy, the columnist in this clever show, dictates to his steno. But it's all a part of the great game of show-making to portray journalism as yellow, and in this case, even orange.

Lee Tracy rides, in his column, Dick Powell, who sings and acts as sappy as Rudy Vallee. He tells the public what doors the stork is going to walk in, and even gives the low-down on the private lives of gangsters.

His own little woman, Mary Brian, hates the stuff he writes. She wants him to give up the column, but Tracy loves his job next to nothing.

Then he slips. He says more about one unfortunate woman than he intended to, and in trying to square himself, gets in a jam.

In the meantime, circ figures on his paper grow mud is slung thicker. Tracy town's curiosity. Powell night club and dares show his face.

Oh, go see it. Honest, a kick out of the lines. very well done. And what's the show's different from you've seen.—ed.

ERIC THE RED
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Harland Frazer . . . inspired by that marauding Viking chieftain whose vandalism branded him as the "Terror of the North" (975-1000 A. D.).

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

AT THE DICKINSON

Talk about your entertaining shows—say listen, you ought to see "Blondie of the Follies."

Marion Davies, that clever little blonde trick, really does her stuff as she hops from a flat to a pent house, and lands herself in the big time.

But it's at the apartment of her old girl friend, none other than Billie Dove, the original Hollywood beauty, that Marion meets some of the richer men about town who pull ropes to place Marion in a Follies specialty. But the man that does most of the pulling is Robert Montgomery, the soft spot in the hardened Billie's life. The plot thickens as Robert falls for Marion, and Billie's jealousy grows.

The rest of the story can be worked out through the process of elimination if you believe in the old gag about men preferring blondes. In this case the choosing should be difficult, since both of the women concerned are two of the screen's best looking.

The scenes are grand, the clothes awfully smart, and the comedy good. And there's three good reasons why you ought to see it—Marion Davies, Billie Dove, and Robert Montgomery.—ed.

Just enough Turkish—that's another reason you Enjoy them more

Turkish tobacco is the "seasoning" in Cigarettes

THE difference between food that tastes just right and food that doesn't is often a matter of proper seasoning.

It's the same with a cigarette. Too much Turkish tobacco like too little will often spoil the fine balance of mildness and flavor you want in your smoke.

Chesterfield's milder, better taste is the result of blending and cross-blending high-grade Domestic tobaccos with just the right amount of spicy aromatic Turkish. That's why Chesterfields are milder, why they taste better.

KAPPA PHI HOSTESS AT NUTTING PARTY

Games, Guessing Contests and Stunts Formed Evening Entertainment.

Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' club, was hostess to 80 girls at a "nutting" party at the Wesley foundation room, 1630 Osage, Tuesday evening from 7:30 till 10 o'clock. Various nut games in the form of relays, guessing contests, and stunts formed the evening's entertainment. Alice and Velma Wilsey, Washington; Myrtle Hayes, Alta Vista, and Olga Larsen Vesper, were in charge.

As a special feature, the girls who attended the national Kappa Kappa council at Montreat, N. C., in June, presented the Kora stunt, entitled "The Magnificent Decision," they gave there. These were Mary Elizabeth Allman and Margaret Kerr, Manhattan; Olga Larsen Vesper; and LaFaun Astle, Hutchinson. They were assisted by a chorus.

The Kapa Phi cabinet is having a treasure hunt for new girls next Tuesday evening on the campus.

ETCHINGS ARE ON EXHIBIT

Foreign Artists Join Americans to Show Collection of Studies in Architectural Galleries.

An exhibition of etchings from John Grant, dealer in Edinburgh, Scotland, are on display in the department of architecture on the third floor of the engineering building. The exhibition which is sponsored by John Helm, jr., of the department of architecture, includes mostly English and Scotch, a few American and one or two French etchers. Forty prints are in the exhibition.

Some of the artists whose work is included are: English—Anderson, Lumsden, Wolcott; American — Louie Rosenberg, Samuel Chamberlin, John Kinkler. Rosenberg and Chamberlin are two of the foremost American architectural etchers.

These etchings are for sale, and Mr. Helm believes this represents an exceptional opportunity to buy etchings as foreign market price is very low due to the depreciation of the English pound.

The subjects include architectural works, landscapes, figure studies and two portraits. The work consists of the more conservative English type which Mr. Helm believes will be very pleasing to the majority of people.

The exhibition will be on display until September 31.

Sport Slants

A Canadian, C. Ross Somerville, won the national amateur golf tournament last Friday. He is the only Canadian to ever win the classic. . . .no Canadian has won the Canadian open in years.

Two castoffs are battling for the National league batting honors. Lefty O'Doul and Dale Alexander . . . both are near the .370 mark.

Francis Ouimet, defending champion in the national amateur was eliminated by a youngster, Maurice McCarthy. . . and his name is pronounced "Weemay."

Coach Hardage of the Oklahoma Sooners has designed his own type of uniform for his charges, it weighs but 7¾ pounds in contrast with the 1932 equipment of 13½ pounds.

E. C. Wiseman, first Wildcat casualty, his returned to the squad. An infected foot put him in the hospital. George Maddox, line asphrant, had a knee twisted in blocking practice, but it is responding to treatment and will be in shape for the Wichita game.

More applicants for World Series ducats than ever before have poured into the offices of the Yankees and the Cubs this fall. . . . Box seats at $6.60 and three must be bought in a block.

Babe Ruth holds ten World Series records, including one which you did not know about, that of strikeouts, 27 in a single series.

Many Salmon, But Few Eskimos, Says Saldador B. Della

"Alaska is a pretty mild country during the summer months," explained Salvador B. Della, graduate student in agricultural economics "But a person who expects to see Eskimos all over the country is mistaken. At least, there were non in Ketchikan, Alaska, where I worked for the Ward's Cove Packing company. There were plenty Indian natives, though."

Della, a Filipino student, was bookkeeper for the company last summer. He said Ketchikan is in the southwestern part of Alaska, having a population of eight to ten thousand people. The town is surrounded by mountains which are nearly impassable.

"There were other Filipino students working for the company and we all had a good time July 4. There were boat races and parades in town. I attended a baseball game and some boxing matches also, but by July 6, everyone was busy.

"The working hours for the packing men were from six o'clock in the morning to six in the afternoon during the fishing season, in which 112,000 cases of salmon were packed from July 6, to August 30."

"I liked it there as a vacation but one can't stay there all year round because the salmon season doesn't last that long," he concluded.

Della was in Ketchikan, Alaska in 1927, and in Tyee, Alaska, in 1928. Ketchikan produces the most salmon of any city in the world according to the newspapers there he said.

MANY ARE SELF-SUPPORTING

Approximately 62 Per Cent of Student Body Make Own Way.

There may be some students who come to school in their large automobiles and richly furnished wardrobes, but according to a recent count taken in A. A. "Doc" Holtz's office approximately sixty-two per cent of the student body are self-supporting.

Taking into consideration the hard times induced by the election year and the country wide depression, Kansas State's number of self-supporting students have not decreased. Last year's and year before last's figures were in the sixties. Although the enrollment was just a little under par, the per cent of self-supporting students has remained even above standard, especially when one takes into consideration the influence of the times.

Among The Ags

How the shades of the old warriers who were ags here when the school was a true "Cow College" would turn over in their graves if they could see the numerous engineers now attending class in rooms left vacant in the ag buildings! Plenty of those engineers, by the way, get all mixed up and exasperated while trying to ascertain in which building a desired room may be located. The two buildings have their rooms numbered with one series of numbers, part of each hundred being in one building and part in the other.

"Business," says the man at the dairy products retail counter, "isn't so good." But plenty of boys are spending those few precious dimes left after enrolment for chocolate milk, ice cream, sherbet, etc. Products sold the the counter are produced in the college creamery where the dairy students work.

With a great number of Profs seeing the fair in Hutchinson the offices around the division have seemed pretty empty, but classes have kept right on meeting with terrible regularity.

This is the time of year when those students taking elements of horticulture go to the orchard and eat apples on lazy afternoons without a thought to the tortures of the second-semester dubs who have to go to the orchard and prune trees for three hours at a time in a high March wind. And there are apples aplenty at the hort farm this fall!

It seems to us fortunate that the powers that be issued the customary new catalogue this year, for behold what the old and dilapitated model says about the Horticultural club: "Students of the college interested in horticulture and faculty members are cligible for membership."

Kansas State Ag men fairly walked away with the bacon down at Topeka when they took the first five places in the livestock judging contest for college students. Earl Coulter, who won first, had an encounter with a train last summer and was rather disastrously defeated there. Evidently the wreck didn't spoil his eyes or his judgment even if it did rearrange a few parts of his anatomy.

TALKS ABOUT HAY FEVER

Elsa Horn Reviews Summer Research Work Over Station KSAC.

Miss Elsa Horn, botany instructor, who has completed the field work of a census of hay fever plants in Manhattan, this summer will give two radio talks over station KSAC concerning hay fever "The Causes of Hey Fever" will be presented Friday, September 23. and "Plants and Hay Fever," Friday, September 30.

"Every breath one breathes and every mouthful of food one eats contain bacteria and foreign proteins." Miss Horn explained. "About two per cent of the population of the United States have hay fever, while ten per cent have asthma hives, and some form of digestional disturbance. The majority of the foreign proteins in the air are in form of plant pollens. distributed byb the wind."

Her home is in Iowa and she is a graduate of Iowa State college.

WILL HOLD MANHATTAN THEATRE TRYOUTS SOON

To Pick Characters Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Nights.

Tryouts for the first three Manhattan Theatre productions will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, September 26, 27, 28, according to H. Miles Heberer of the public speaking department.

Formerly a tryout for each production has been held but this year those who are chosen next week will take parts in the first three plays. Appointments for tryouts may be made by consulting Heberer at his office in education hall. Only students will be used in these plays.

Only two of the three plays have been chosen. The first, a farce. "Easy Come, Easy Go" by Owen Davis, and the other, "Green Fire," a melodrama by Glen Hughes, will be presented with a single admission price of 50 cents, or a season ticket may be purchased for $2.00. All organizations are urged to send their freshmen dramatic students to tryouts.

HOLD METHODIST MIXER.

Approximately 250 students attended the mixer, which took the form of a political roundup, at the Methodist church Monday evening. The crowd was divided into seven political parties, and the evening was spent with games, contests, and relays among the groups.

The big event of the evening was the straw vote taken on the political candidates for president. After some heated electionneering Herbert Hoover succeeded in polling seven more votes than J. R. Brinkley.

Plebes Envy the Aristocrats of The Press Box

So few of us have ever trespassed the sacred regions of the press box—the small cupola at the top of the west stadium—that the goings-on have often piqued the curiosity of the great middle class, the students.

We, of the outside realm, watch with envy as guests, members of the administrative staff, and prominent Kansas journalists file past us, up to the seats of sheltered privacy.

At the half, the sweet escense of coffee and doughnuts is wafted down over the grandstand to further whet the interest of the common folk. And who, we ask our neighbor, are those lucky fellows? How do they get passes to the party?

Tickets for the press row or working row in the box are given out by Professor R. I. Thackrey of the journalism department. The second row or deck is occupied by guests of the athletic council whom Mike Ahearn invites, and also the administration officials.

Guests in the press box for the game with Wichita last Saturday were: Jack Copeland, sports editor of the Wichita Beacon; Debs Myers of the Wichita Evening Eagle; Lillard McGee of the Topeka Daily Capital and Mrs. McGee; Carlos Hobbs, sports editor of the Topeka State Journal and Mrs. Ed Cochran, wife of the sports editor of the Kansas City Journal Post.

Sargeant Pugh was the man with the telephone who dashed along the side line accompanied by a small boy with wire in tow. His messages weer sent to the score board.

Helping with the telephone from the side lines to the press box and keeping a summary of the game as a courtesy to visiting press men were: Milford Peters, Bus Boyd, Don Wyatt, and Ward Colwell.

KSAC and KFBI both broadcast the Wichita-Aggie game from the box. According to R. I. Thackrey, WDAF, the Kansas City Star, will also broadcast the Missouri-Aggie games.

FIRST YEAR GRIDSTERS LEARN M'CMILLIN PLAYS

Fewer Frosh Out Since They Do Not Escape Physical Education Classes.

With a week of light though profitable practice sessions over, freshman football will settle down to a stiff grind with vigorous drills scheduled for this week, according to Carl "Swede" Anderson, head frosh grid mentor.

The first year men will be put through their paces running off plays as they would be under actual playing conditions, giving the frosh their first taste of college football work. This will be the first week they will get actual body contact, putting the fundamentals drilled into them the past week into practice.

Last week was spent in getting acquainted with the players, learning what type of player each man is, and determining how they may fit into the varsity grid machine in the next three years. No practice scrimmages have been held yet, as the coaches desire to bring the men along easily. As the men get into better condition, the practice drills will become harder. Much of the time has been spent in passing the pigskin about to get the feel of it, learning the famous McMillin system, and practicing the style of offense used by the varsity.

A much smaller squad than usual is in evidence this year, approximately 50 frosh answering the grid call last Monday. This decrease in the number out does not worry the freshman mentor, however, as nearly all the men are interested in football and are out for the love of the game. Prior to this year it was possible for freshmen desiring to escape required physical education to do so by reporting for football. This year all first year men are required to take physical education, the result being a cut in the size of the frosh squad. In weight, the backfield men average 160 pounds, and the linemen 175.

"Swede" is again assisted in his coaching by Dr. A. A. Holtz and Prof. H. H. Haymaker.

Pearce, Miltonvale, recording secretary; and W. N. Page, Detroit, corresponding secretary.

BIDS FOR DAIRY BARN TOO HIGH, SAYS COMMITTEE

ALL SUBMITTED FIGURES MORE THAN AVAILABLE FUNDS ALLOW.

MAKE CHANGES IN PLANS

Will Attempt to Bring Cost of Construction Down Where Present Funds Will Be Sufficient.

Bids for the construction and equipment of Kansas State's new dairy barn were received Friday, according to Dean R. A. Seaton of the division of engineering, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the barn. Contracts will probably be let soon, he said.

The bids ran slightly over the amount of money available for the building, Seaton said, but the architect is making some minor changes which it is hoped will bring the cost of construction down to a point where the present funds will be sufficient.

Bids were asked on the basis of general contract, heating and wiring. Bids on the actual dairy equipment of the barn have not been asked.

The Blazer Vollmer company of Wichita was low bidder on general contract. The low bidder on heating and plumbing was the Lyon Plumbing of Salina, and the low bidder on wiring was the Overton Electric company of Topeka.

Construction on the barn will start soon after the contracts are let, Dean Seaton said.

The dairy department had planned to have the new barn completed by September of this year, Dean Seaton explained, but the appropriation for its construction was not approved by the board of regents until July and then only with the provision that the building cost not more than $45,000 instead of $60,000 originally appropriated by the legislature.

Since the silos in the old barn are already filled and since the new building will not be finished before cold weather the dairy cows will be kept in the old barn through the winter.

The new barn, a two story stone building, will be located northeast of the J. J. Smiley house on the college farm. The front of the central part of the building will be used as a milk house and the rear as a feed room. The second story will be used for hay storage. The cows will be kept in two wings attached to the central axis of the building.

BOARD PUBLISHES THESIS

Manuscript Involves Training High School Girls for Cafeteria Work.

"Vocational Training in the Institutional Field for Kansas High School Girls," the thesis written by Virginia Chambers for her master's degree last year, has been published as a bulletin by the Kansas state board for vocational education at Topeka. Miss Chambers was an assistant in the department of institutional economics at this college.

In answer to a request made to the state board for vocational education to organize classes for girls employed as waitresses and counter girls in cafeterias, restaurants, tea shops, and hotel dining rooms, a cooperative arrangement was made whereby a group of high school girls could use the Manhattan high school cafeteria as a laboratory and take this training for two years. Until this time, no organized attempt had been made by the public schools to provide training for entrance into these occupations.

Miss Chambers was instructor of this class. The study was made under the direction of Mrs. Lucile Rust, professor of home economics education, and Mrs. Bessie Brooks West, professor of institutional economics.

A picture of the class on which the experiment was made at Manhattan high school appears on the cover of the bulletin.

NO DEFINITE STEP IN TAX HEARING UNTIL NOVEMBER

BRIEFS WILL BE READ BY BOTH STATE AND GREEKS AT OCTOBER 3 SESSION.

WILL PROBABLY INFLICT TAX

Referee Vance of Supreme Court Held That Real Estate Should Be Taxed—Decision Usually Stands According to Local Lawyers.

Although the fraternity tax hearing is scheduled in the supreme court for Monday, October 3, the final decision of the court probably will not be made until the November term, former district judge, F. R. Smith, one of Riley county's attorney's in the case, said yesterday. Former Judge Smith, his two sons of the law firm, Smith, Smith, and Smith, and A. R. Springer, confererd last night, and drew up final briefs which they will present to the court. Evans and Clammer, representing the local fraternities, also are ready to present their case.

Early this summer, C. R. Vance, Garden City lawyer, was appointed as referee of the case by the supreme court. Hearings were held both here and in Douglas county where lawyers pleaded for Kansas university and Baker Greeks. Vance held that the real estate should be taxed, while the personal property should remain untaxed.

Acording to local lawyers, the decision of the supreme court referee usually holds. If such should prove the case in the fraternity tax hearing, the local Greeks' property will go on the tax rolls of Riley county.

The local lawyers believe most of the case will not be argued orally, since the Douglas county lawyers are presenting practically the same evidence as that given here.

In looking over the county tax rolls, it is evident local Greeks were not dealt with harshly in the assessment of property. Only $21,686.-30 is owed on real estate and personal property for 1930 and 1931. With the addition of five new houses on the campus here, each costing well into the thousands, the assessments are less than they would be were the assessors considering private property.

TO HOLD ANNUAL ALL SCHOOL MIXER FRIDAY

Arrangements Practically Complete for More Than One Thousand Students.

The annual all-school mixer, in which the S. G. A., Y. M. C. A. Y. W. C. A., and faculty council on student affairs co-operate to provide a good time for all students, will be held Friday evening, September 30. It was originally scheduled for last Friday night, but the need for a pep meeting on that evening caused the change in plans.

C. S. Moll, chairman of the committee working out plans for the mixer, said yesterday that arrangements are practicaly complete for entertaining the crowd of more than a thousand students who are expected to appear at the gymnasium Friday evening.

INSTALL NEW CABINET

A new visible filing cabinet acquired by the alumni offict last summer requires the retyping of 9,000 cards by the office workers. With the finishing of the C's this morning, about 1,500 cards have been done so far.

The cabinet holds an alphabetical file for all alumni. A new type of card gives the information of the person, with his name printed at the bottom of the card and the information above.

HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Fifty members of the Franklin literary society were present at the open house held in the organization's hall Saturday night. The program included a piano solo by Prof. Charles Stratton of the department of music. Miss Iola Meier, Abilene, gave a reading and devotional exercises were conducted by Bertha Cook, Effingham. The organization paper, The Spec-Minneapolis. Pauline Smith, Taltator, was read by Arlie Paige, mage, conducted a group of games.

Prof. A. D. Weber of the department of animal husbandry will go to Muskogee, Okla., Monday, to judge sheep and hogs at the Oklahoma free state fair.

Mere Football of Little Consequence At Saturday's Game

Kansas State, 26—Wichita, 0. There, that disposes of the football end of Saturday's game. And now for the stands—

Front row co-ed contingent: "Gee, look at that uniform coming down this way!—Snitzy? Yes!"—The uniform and contents strode by the worshipping group—but exploded into blue phrases as some jealous male student tripped him. A brother officer sitting not far away rocked will ill concealed delight as the army displayed his vocabulary.

Food—miscellaneous bits such as popcorn, hot dogs, candy, peanuts, apples, eskimo pies—remained the center of interest during the course of the game.

Freshman section: yelling unbecoming caps, terrified anticipation and painful realization, marked the first game of the year for the freshmen men. Universal shortage of funds seemed to curtail eating, if not appetites, in the freshmen section.

Press box: "all quiet along the Potomac."

The remaining horde: more dates were resent than in any previous year.—Activity books are pretty handy things, aren't they! Bright, modish clothes with brazenly impudent hats were conspicuously scattered thro the stands. Everyone seemed to get the jitters after the middle of the second quarter. The Chi Omegas in particular seemed nervous.. Three of them climbed over other spectators between them and the isle eight separate and distinct times during the course of forty-five minutes.

The summer seems to have done much for the store of wise cracks of Kansas State students, judging from the conversation during the game. The best bit, however, was overheard Sunday night. One of the husky varsity men kissed his girl goodnight—and was told, "you're a great football player, all right—but you surely did get off sides then!"

CLASSES IN PIANO AND VOICE THIS SEMESTER

Movement For This Instruction Has Come as Result of Social and Economic Pressure.

The music department will offer classes in piano and voice this semester as it did in summer school, according to an announcement made by Prof. William Lindquist, head of the department. Persons desiring to enroll in the classes may do so at the office of the department in the auditorium, room 33. Not more than four persons may be in a class.

The idea is not a new one, for during the past few years, a number of the larger colleges, universities, and conservatories in the United States have found it a satisfactory method of teaching. Similar work has been offered for some years in many of the conservatories of music in France and Germany.

"People have been very enthusiastic over it, since it is so very economical of the teacher's time and of the student's money and yet involves no slowing up of the student's progress," said Professor Lindquist.

"This movement for class instruction in music has come partly as a result of social and economic pressure," he declared. "Parents realize the value of music as an outlet for the energies of restless youth, as an emotional stabilizer. Most of them do not think of music as a career for their sons and daughters, but as a wholesome diversion, something with which they can amuse themselves and their friends. The nominal cost of class music instruction makes this possible of attainment for students from practically al financial levels.

TEN LOCATE POSITIONS

Ten of the forty-eight graduates from electrical engineering this past year have been among the fortunate in locating positions. Those in teaching jobs are J. W. Massey, Manhattan; L. R. Schruben, Dresden; C. D. Sides, Manhattan; F. G. Powell, Frankfort. Other positions are as follows: N. J. Klinge, Topeka, with the Southwestern Bell Telephone in Topeka; Carl W. Dimmitt, Manhattan, with Phillips Petroleum Co. at Bartlesville, Okla.; Merle Bergim with the American Electric Co., St. Joseph, Missouri; and Eugene Peterson, St. Marys, instructor in science in Sterling Junior college.

COLLEGIAN TO DELIVER

Commencing with Friday's issue of the Collegian, the college paper will be delivered to each fraternity and sorority house immediately after the paper comes off the press if present plans materialize. Most of the organizations have been approached on the proposition of subscribing to ten issues of the Collegian in each house, and at the present time they have been supporting the idea 100 per cent.

A survey of the circulation shows that the majority of the subscribers are women students while the student body is approximately two-thirds men students. This situation will be greatly modified if the remaining fraternities cooperate as expected.

It is more than likely that much interest will be shown in the future during the election of the Collegian board which not only has control of the publication but appoints the editor and business manager. Each organization will hold ten votes and the reorganization of the political parties, that have been dormant since the cancelling of class elections for the spring semester, will inevitably be the next issue.

The increased circulation will also be very advantageous to the advertisers as the students will have their papers in the morning before time to start to classes and will have time to read the entire paper and not glance hurriedly over a few of the main stories as they try to make their first hour.

The proposed plan will mean additional work for the staff as its members will have to stay until the paper is published, then deliver it to the houses with the added enthusiasm that should follow the acquiring of a new paper route.

DOES THE REFEREE WIN?

If that aged and time-honored legal precedence can still be relied upon, heretofore tax-exempt fraternities and sororities of Kansas will find it necessary to provide funds for the payment of real estate taxes. According to local lawyers, there has never been an instance in the state in which the decision held by a referee of the supreme court has been reversed.

It is deemed inexpedient by authorities for argument of the case to take place at the hearing to be held in Topeka October 3. The cases of all the schools involved will be presented and the decision handed down during the November term of the court.

If it has always been the case that decisions held by supreme court referees are never argued during the court session it is no wonder that they are never reversed. Although it has been considered inadvisable to argue the case again, it seems much more inadvisable to allow a case involving such a great amount of capital to rest upon the decision of only one individual.

However, since the powers that be have arranged for a purely recitation hearing, it is well that Kansas Greeks cross out all expenditures not absolutely necessary and juggle budgets to meet the apparently inevitable tax.

STRICTLY OPPOSITE TO RULES

In a few weeks the golfing editors of Kansas will descend upon Manhattan to loudly proclaim their skill before, during and after the proposed flights of their tournament. In all previous editorial golf tourneys the actual playing has turned out somewhat differently than their confident predictions foretold.

It usually develops that the hecklers one hears so much about during political campaigns arrive in concentrated hordes to an editorial golf convention. Never do the visiting newspapermen obey the "not-even-a-cough" rule while various drives are being attempted. In fact, the greatest heckler is usually the hero of the affair.

Interest in the event to be held in Manhattan soon has laready reached a sizable height, if the number of comments by paragraphers can be interpreted to insure the presence of their respective authors.

The Snooper

We have a custom at Kansas State which is ripening and perhaps slightly rottening into tradition. It is the idea that freshmen should wear caps in order to forget them at football games. At the track meet Saturday only one freshman forgot his thatch piece. Of course this necessitated a sound thrashing administered by those big rough and ready Wampus Cats. (Don't they look ducky in their dirty sashes, dearie?) What we are earnestly trying to get at is: why doesn't the freshman student body see that unless somebody forgets his cap those big tough looking fellows of the Order of Wampus can't make the rest of us believe that they are doing anything to promote that which is laughingly called school spirit? Where is the absent minded freshman of yesterday, or if you want to argue, where was he the day before yesterday? Some of the village graybeards can remember 'way back when Scrooge Martin first came to school and a freshman without a cap on the campus was like ham without eggs, or Bell without Lutz, or Ebling without Prentup. But in those days all the freshmen showed up at the croquet tourneys (football not having been invented yet; refer back to our mention of Scrooge Martin) without their caps. For this they were conked on the head with small sacks filled with scrap iron, and he who received the most severe conking, aye and verily, was the hero of the hour.

Personal:

Will the party who called on Roy Miller at the II K. A. house the other night for her blanket please come again any night at the same hour? Was it the one with the Greek letters Alpha, Delta, and Pi written in one corner?

Bob Spiker, burnt out cheerleader, and as hale a man as ever stomached an A. T. O. stew, is going into the orchestra-directing business. At the varsity Saturday night his manly hulk garnished the platform from which June Layton and his Nose Pickers were rendering their celestial music. Of course the crowd all pushed "our Bob" forward with enthusiastic cries of "stout fellow," but "our Bob" hung back shyly, blushing like a youngster and twisting the buttons of his smart tweed suit. Given the baton no man dares say to what heights "our Bob's" great spirit will carry him. When the band played Saint Louis Blues "our Bob" was like a mad man, the rythm of the old hymn seeping into his supple body. The crowd lifted him to it's shoulders and carried him about in delirious frenzy and finally (we think) tossed him out of a window to the alley two floors below.

(My all.)

Authorities of radio station KSAC have displayed a great amount of sportsmanship when they decided to refrain from broadcasting while the world series are in progress in order not to interfere with radio reception in the vicinity of the college.

On Other Hills

The sophomore edict recently issued to all freshmen at New Mexico State college provides that no freshmen shall be allowed to queen on the campus at any time except college dances. (Note: Queening is defined as talking or in any way communicating with any freshmen woman, or in any inflicting his presence upon said freshmen women.)

Doing nearly everything from leading singing schools to taking charge of children at night, 1100 men students of Oklahoma university are working their way through college.

Journalism students at Columbia university got a real scoop recently when fire broke out in the basement of the school of journalism where they were studying.

The nickname that criminals use in referring to any policeman — "John Law" — is the real name of the man who'll coach this year's Sing Sing penitentiary football team.

No soft glove is being used by the city in dealing with Oklahoma A. & M. students found in speakeasies. City officials of Stillwater, who have already raided four "beer places" have promised their wholehearted co-operation in eliminating drinking among carousing students.

Now comes the "Depression college." Forty students are enrolled in the institution located at Natrona, Pa. The "college" consists of a single classroom and no campus.

After enrollment at Emporia State Teachers' college increased this year, the president of the institution made a hurried trip to Chicago for additional teachers.

Intelligence among freshmen students at the College of Emporia is above normal this year. Thirty-three made a score of more than 200 this year as against 12 last year.

Washburn co-eds think the silly dressed men of the campus with their terrible collars, ill shaped coats, peculiarly parked hats, and atrocious ties, should be ashamed. "Most of them wear coats with especially shaped shoulders, built to make them look athletic," one girl said. "They think it gives them an Apollo Belvedere appearance, when as a matter of fact, we can guess them for what they are—angleworms."

A new law instructor at Washburn is entitled to write 16 letters after his name. They are A.B., Ll.B., Mus.B., M., A., and M.S., Mus.

A sneak thief who posed as a collegiate recently stole four purses at Wichita university.

Thirty-two hundred students are enrolled at K. U. this year, 20 per cent less than last year.

Nick Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, has a new plan for state liquor traffic control, if and when the eighteenth amendment is repealed. When, may me rise to inquire, does Nick Murray find the time to do any presidenting at Columbia university? — Pittsburg Headlight.

AT THE DICKINSON

The motion picture industry capitalizes on everything. Taking advantage of the great dramatic possibilities the Lindberg kidnapping case offered, a mighty story was made in "Okey America."

But the producers wove even a bigger drama around America's disgrace, when they added the Al Capone touch.

Lew Ayers, as Larry Wayne, a newspaper columnist, was given a tip on the kidnapers of Ruth Drake, daughter of one of the president's personal friends, and member of the cabinet. He agreed to act as a negotiator between the kidnapers and the Drakes, thereby giving his paper scopes on every new slant on the kidnaping. He followed the gangsters instructions, handed over the money, but the kidnapers failed to keep their end of the bargain. And the reason was a convincing one. The big gun in the game, known to the public as Chicago's former ruler, interferred. He called Wayne in and told him Ruth Drake would be returned safely after the president of the United States agreed to drop some of the indictments against him. Wayne saw the president, but what he said you'll never know unless you see this picture.

Ayers played another grand performance, matching the good work he has done in "All Quiet on the Western Front," and others. Maureen O'Sullivan is a little dear with nice eyes.

Ayers did a neat job of Walter Winchelling on the radio.

Better see the show.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM

Going to the Wareham yesterday was just like going into a drug store, ordering a malt, and not only getting what you ordered, but the container holding another glass full of the nourishing drink—all for the same amount.

Wynne Gibson, beautiful as a young girl, and convincing as an old woman, made "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," one of these shows that touches your tender feelings and makes you weep all over the place. She not only married a man "who done her wrong," but who, in his wrong doings, sent her up the river. She was forced to sign adoption papers for her little girl. When she came out of the prison, a faded broken woman, she could learn nothing of her daughter's whereabouts.

She finds her daughter. Then her worthless husband comes back from serving his stretch. Learning through chance of his daughter's coming marriage to a rich boy, he decides to interfere. But Clara Deane (Miss Gibson) thinks otherwise, and acts accordingly.

That's feature number one, and a good enough show for any afternoon. The ending is happy enough to dry all the tears shed during the drama.

But the curtain doesn't drop. Another show is on. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., as a Broadway columnist, comes on the screen, very ably supported by Lee Tracy, Frances Dee, and Ann Dvorak in "Love Is a Racket."

Young Doug, who knows and writes all the low-down, is in love with charming dark-haired Miss Dee, aspiring young actress. This beautiful but dumb Miss Dee writes checks on a bank account which does not exist.

While young Doug is busy handling all his love affairs, Ann Dvorak does her silent worshipping, accepting Lee Tracy's company since Doug doesn't offer his.

And so it goes, until the menace is done away with. You'd never guess who pulled the trigger unless you see the show.

Miss Dee also does a fade-out, leaving Douglass with bitter memories, and in the act of acquiring a nice hang over for morning.

The lines are clever.

Better grab at the bargain.—ed.

AT THE VARSITY

The romantic life of an army post is all in "This Sporting Age." Polo plays a big part in the life of a cavalry officer, Jack Holt, while the action follows him from an army post in the west to an exclusive eastern polo club where the smart set gather to watch the champion polo games.

Jack Holt portrays the father, bringing up his tom-boy daughter, Evelyn Knapp. Their comrade-ship is beautiful to watch, but is later broken up while they are in the east. The vamp gets the father and the villain is after the daughter, but their former life in the army helps them out of their difficulties and brings them back together again. Hardie Albright plays the part of the daughter's lover.

The fans of the Jack "he-man" Holt will not be disappointed in his latest picture which carries good characterization and swift moving action.—SS

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

OVERWHELMING DEFEAT DEALT TO WICHITA SHOCKERS

FOUR TOUCHDOWNS AND ADDITION OF EXTRA POINT GIVES HIM 25 POINTS.

TWO TALLIES FIRST PERIOD

Russell, Hasler, Breen, and Bushby Aid Greatly in Placing Ball in Scoring Distance—Sophomores Perform Well.

Ralph "The Rammer" Graham, star Kansas State fullback, showed no effects of the knee injury that he received in the West Virginia game last fall as he plunged through the Wichita university forward wall four times here Saturday to play the important role in a 26-0 victory. He also kicked a goal from placement for an extra point which gave him a total of 25 points. Weybrew's toe was desponsible for the other point.

The end running of Dougal Russell, speedy sophomore back, the line plunging of Tom Bushby and the long passes from Breen to Hasler and Dalton kept the Shocker goal line in constant danger but when they came within scoring distance Graham took charge and added the final yards on every attempt.

Seven Plays to Score.

It took just seven consecutive plays after the Wildcats received the Shocker kick-off on their own 20 yard line in the first quarter for Graham to go over for his first touchdown. Russell, Breen, and Graham caried the ball to the Wichtia 4 yard line on the first three plays and the remaining four plays were used in punching the Shocker line. Russell and Graham accounted for the second touchdown within a few minutes after the first when the Shockers were forced to punt from their own 10 yard line and Russell returned to the Wichita 38 yard line. A long run by Russell around the Wichita right end put the ball on the 12 yard line and Graham drove off right tackle for the remaining distance on the next play.

Numerous substitutions in both lineups during the second and third quarters slowed the ground gaining attacks of both teams and until most of the starting Wildcat eleven was inserted in the fourth quarter only one scoring threat was made. That was in the first few minutes of play in the second quarter when long gains by Bushby and Going and a pass, Breen to Hasler, were followed by plunges that put the ball on the Shocker 4 yard line and Bushby who made the final attempt missed a first down by inches.

Russell Leads Attack.

After the insertion of Aggie starters in the fourth quarter, they again opened a scoring attack that resulted in Graham plunging the Shocker line for two more touchdowns and the game ended with the ball on the Wichita 38 yard line in possession of the Wildcats. Dougal Russell led the attack that scored the first touchdown in the fourth quarter when he returned a Wichita punt from the Aggie 40 yard line to the Wichita 36 yard line and on the next play skirted the Shocker right end to put the ball on the three yard line where Graham again took it through for a touchdown.

Breen intercepted a pass to provide the opportunity for the fourth touchdown. He was downed on the Wichita 44 yard line and gains by McAtee and Graham and a pass, Breen to Dalton, that netted 11 yards took the ball to the 4 yard line and Graham plunged over in two plays.

Wichita got only one earned first down through the strong Kansas Aggie defense. In the Shocker line Shadoan and Pechin, playing side by side, were the most effective in stopping the plunging charges of Graham and Bushby. McLaughlin's toe brought his team out of dangerous positions several times when he placed well directed punts deep into Wildcat territory.

Sports Hi-Cups

Ox Cowan, the football player from Texas, now seems to be giving a few nights to study. The other day in a current history class he expressed an opinion.

The name of Ralph Graham as the rambler will have to be changed. The Topeka Daily Capital classes him a rusher Ralph.

Who would ever think that T-T-Tom Bushby could talk so fast and furious on a football field?

The first pep meeting of the year almost turned into a slam throwing contest. They even became peeved at the head football coach for being late to his own party.

The two most consistent spectators at the stadium during practice sessions are the Mercury-Chronicle reporters. Newspaperdom has some ambition in life.

Swede Anderson's new suit seems to be drawing a lot of attention on the hill. Swede even lets his freshman football men off early so that he may get back to his new suit.

Lloyd Michael, in his old age, seems to be getting faster; last night he won the sprint session, held after practice, for the first time in his college career.

Who would ever have thought that Coach Bo McMillin had not slept for a couple of years? Our friends down the Kaw think that he has no bed in his home.

INTRAMURAL SPORT COMPETITION BEGINS

First Contests Held in 1921 With Basketball As Only Sport—11 Events Added Since.

According to Professor Washburn, director of intramurals at the college, the 1932-33 intramural sport season will start Monday, October 3. Owing to the fact the entry blanks of the organizations have not been returned, the schedule for the coming events is not obtainable at this time.

For the benefit of the new students who have never taken part in intramural athletics, a brief history of intramurals as carried on at this institution will be given.

Intramural athletics have been in existence at this college for 11 years. The work was first started in 1921 by Mr. E. A. Knoth. During this year the only sport taken part in was basketball. This was followed by baseball and tennis in the spring of 1922. Each year since then has seen a growth until a total of 12 types of activities are offered now.

The purpose of intramural athletics is to meet the needs and requirements of that large number of students who do not take part in varsity athletics through lack of time, ability, or inclination. The aim is to furnish recreation, exercise, social contacts and the development of good sportsmanship.

The background of the intramural association is a group of fraternities which form the principal membership. However, independent clubs, teams, and individuals are urged and welcomed in the membership of the association. It is the aim of the department of intramural athletics to have every student in college take part in some kind of competitive athletics.

Each year a large trophy is given to the organization winning the largest number of points during the year. This trophy will become the permanent property of the organization that wins it three years in a row. In each branch of sport individual and team awards are given to the winners. Also sweaters and intramural emblems are given to the 10 men who score the greatest number of points during the year.

SUBMITS PLANTING PLANS

Prof. L. R. Quinlan Advocates Changes Near Kedzie and Dickens Halls.

New terraces north of the old ones east of Dickens hall, and a new planting plan for the grounds in front of Kedzie hall are two of the landscaping plans made by Prof. L. R. Quinlan of the department of horticulture.

The new terraces have been completed and will be used as a location for the iris test garden started last year as a problem in horticulture by Arthur J. Howard, graduate student.

Part of the old hedge in front of Kedzie hall has been torn out and bluegrass seeded in its place. About the first of November, the proper planting time for shrubs, a new hedge will be planted. This hedge will be curved in a semi-circle from the end of the hedge remaining to the corner of Kedzie. The change was one of the first to be advocated when Professor Quinlan was put in charge of landscaping. The old hedge was built primarily as a dust screen from the driveway that occupied the present site of the sidewalk between Kedzie and Fairchild.

With the road gone, officials in charge of landscaping could see no reason for the hedge to occupy its former place. The new hedge will cut off the nursery school playground from the rest of the campus, and at the same time provide a much better setting for Kedzie hall than was possible under the old planting.

PURDUE GAME SATURDAY MAY BE YEAR'S HARDEST

Co-Champions of Big Ten Last Year Not Badly Damaged by Graduation.

Facing perhaps the hardest test of the season, Bo McMillin's Wildcats will leave Thursday for Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., where they meet the Purdue Boilermakers in the first inter-sectional game of the season, Saturday, October 1.

Last year Purdue won a three-way tie for the championship of the Big Ten conference by defeating Northwestern. This year the eleven is one of the three teams expected to be in the running for the championship of the Big Ten. Many followers of the Boilermakers give them the edge in the race.

"We have a chance to win from Purdue and hope to make the most of it," Coach McMillin told a crowd at the first pep rally of the season last Friday night. "We don't play games if we do not think that we can beat them."

Reports from Purdue indicate that the two teams will be rather evenly matched in weight with Purdue having a slight edge in the starting line-up.

The K-Aggie team will leave at 5:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon, passing through Chicago Friday morning and arriving in Lafayette in time for a practice Friday afternoon.

Last night the Wildcats were put through a long signal practice in preparation for the battle. Coach McMillin is giving the team several new plays in order to finish out the K-Aggies for the battle.

Everyone of the players should be in perfect condition for the game except Oren Stoner, Sabetha. Stoner received a broken ankle in the light practice held last Friday night before the Wichita University contest. Stoner, who was running signals, stepped in a hole and had to be taken from the field because of the injury.

DAIRY JUDGING TEAM TO IOWA SEPTEMBER 30

Will Judge at Dairy Cattle Congress at Waterloo—Won First Place Last Year.

The squad from which the dairy judging team to represent Kansas State at Waterloo, Iowa, will be picked was reduced to eight men Monday. The team will probably be announced Wednesday night, according to Prof. H. W. Cave, coach.

The eight men competing for places on the team are C. C. Conger, Iola; F. W. Castello, McCune; H. L. Kugler, Abilene; Raymond Cohorst, Marysville; Pius Hostetler, Harper; Wayne Jacobs, Harper; Orville Denton, Denton; and C. G. Page, Norton.

Last year the Kansas State team won first place at the Dairy Cattle congress at Waterloo and won third at the National Dairy show at St. Louis, Mo., which will not be held this year.

Professor Cave and his team will leave Manhattan Friday, Sept. 30, and will stop off at Fort Dodge, Iowa for some practice before the Waterloo show on Monday.

Y. W. C. A. cabinet members met in the Calvin lounge last night at 7:15 o'clock. After a business session Barbara Lautz, La Junta, Colo., gave a talk on her student pilgrimage to Europe this summer.

RIDING, ARCHERY AND TENIKOIT OPEN SPORTS

Volley Ball and Dancing Will be Featured Last Half of Semester.

Horseback riding, archery, and tenikoit will open the women's intramurals for the first half of the first semester. Volley ball and dancing will be featured the second half while basketball, swimming and the track field meet will take place the second semester.

Two members from each organization will represent its archery team. One woman chosen from each group for her ability to handle a horse will be eligible to carry the colors of her organization in intramural horseback riding at the city park on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon. The definite date for beginning has not yet been set. No beginning rider may enter this intramural event. If others in the group are experienced in riding or wish to enter archery, they may compete as an independent and the points earned will count toward the winning of the intramural cup for her group. This cup will be awarded at the end of all the events in the spring and has to be won three consecutive years before it is the permanent property of any organization.

Five demonstration points will be given for mounting and five for dismounting a horse. Ten points each can be earned by riding the "walk," the "trot," and the "canter" in form which is confidence, body position, reins, and balance. Another ten points will be awarded for the ability to guide a horse in and out and directing it around obstacles.

Miss K. Geyer will sponsor the archery events and Miss H. Saum the horseback riding. The Baum stables will furnish the horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Mentor Marty and daughter Nadine, Mr. and Mrs. G W. Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Johnson of Courtland and Mrs. N. A. Johnson of Jamestown were here Sunday visiting Elva Marty.

The Browning literary society will have open house Saturday, October 1, at 1:30 o'clock. Following house there will be a hike Browning and Athenian All those who wish to go hike are to meet at the trance of the gymnasium o'clock.

MCMILLINMEN BROADCAST

KSAC Radio Hookup at Depot Provided Entertainment for Crowd and Radio Listeners —25 Players Make Trip.

Several hundred enthusiastic Kansas Aggie football fans, both from the college and Manhattan, gathered at the Union Pacific station yesterday evening at 5 o'clock to cheer the 23 Wildcat gridsters as they boarded the special coach that will take them to Lafayette, Indiana where they will meet Purdue university, co-champions of the Big Ten, Saturday.

Bo McMillin, head coach; Oss Maddox, line coach; Frank Root, assistant coach; and Russell Thackrey, publicity man, were also on the special coach. Thackrey will make a play by play report of the game over the Sigma Delta Chi grid-graph.

When the football players were asked to say a few words over station KSAC, which was connected with a microphone at the station, Captain Walter Zeckser lost little time in telling everyone that they were going to hand the Boilermakers a defeat. Dan Blaine, following the example of Walter Winchell, stepped to the "mike" and shouted Okay ElDorado. "Bullet Joe" Hasler was then called up and he gave radio fans some interesting information before he learned that it was actually hooked up.

The entire send-off was broadcast with Fred Seaton and Maurice DuMars giving the names of the players and telling of the different activities that were being carried on.

Those making the trip were: Dan Blaine, end; Emmett Breen, half; Tom Bushby, half; Lloyd Dalton, end; Blair Forbes, tackle; Jack Going, back; Ralph Graham, back; Homer Hanson, guard; Harry Hasler, end; Kenneth Harter, center; Henry Kirk, back; Ralph McAtee, back; George Maddox, tackle; Ralph Marshall, end; Lee Morgan, back; Lloyd Michael, center; Shelby Neely, end; Dougal Russell, back; Leland Shaffer, back; Melvon Wertzberger, tackle; Neil Weybrew, tackle; Eugene Wiseman, center, and Walter Zeckser, guard.

The appointed staff members, which will be announced in about a week, will not receive pay.

"The Brownie Studios will start taking pictures of fraternities and sororities next Monday, October 3," explained Franklin Thackrey. "A. O. Browne is offering a free finished print to each photo editor who complies with his requests.

The annual staff hopes to include more snapshots, more pictures of faculty members and individuals in this year's book.

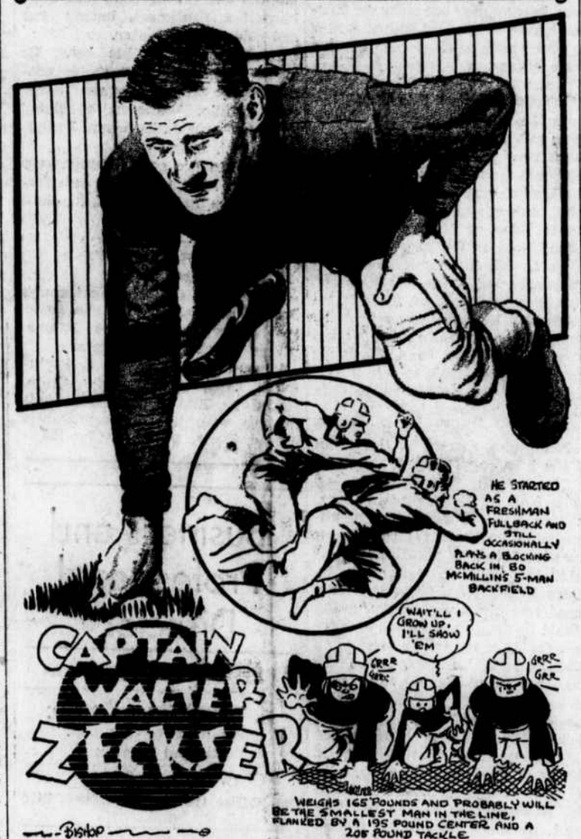

WILL READ PLAYS

The play reading club, comprised of students, faculty members and people in the community who are interested in drama, will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Allman, Friday evening. The club was organized last year and now has 50 members.

AIKINS TO IOWA

Glenn S. Aikins, who received his B. S. degree from K. S. C. in '24 and his M. S. in '31, left September 20, to take up work at the Iowa State college where he will work on a two year fellowship. Aikins taught in the department of bacteriology here last year.

Captain Zeckser of Kansas State

Kansas State football players compromised between a lineman and back when they chose Walter Zeckser of Alma to lead the 1932 edition of the Purple Powerhouse. Zeckser started his football as a fullback, and though he has won two letters as a regular Kansas State guard, he frequently shifts to the backfield under Bo McMillin's "5-man back" system. Though Zeckser weighs only 165 pounds and is flanked by 200-pounders, he more than holds his own and is never on the casualty list.

THOMAS DEFENDS MACHINES

Chapel Speaker Mainiains That the Machine Has Provided Time to Think.

"The intelligencia is that interesting class of people which spends so much time forming a philosophy that it has no time for anything else," Dr. Thomas S. Thomas, public utility economist of Alabama, told students and faculty members in assembly, Tuesday morning.

"And it is the intelligencia who tell us that machines create no beauty and tear down culture," Doctor Thomas was speaking on the subject, "What the Machine is Doing to Mankind."

"But the machine of today has made possible all the advancement and progress in our present day culture, art, and refinement. Why, there was better farming carried on along the Nile than in Kansas before machinery was introduced," he continued.

Doctor Thomas stated that a century ago artists and poets considered a flying bird, a sailing ship and a dancing woman the three most beautiful subjects. Then he compared them to the machine made "beauties" of today.

"Machines have brought about a leisure in which man may think and expand. Culture follows business and business follows the advanced civilization made possible by machinery," Doctor Thomas pointed out, "America has the only industrial civilization the world has ever seen, that is why it is the most interesting nation in the world. And our problem now is not to make enough to live on, but live on what we have."

"The only trouble with this machine age is that it has made neighbors of the world and threw us into each others laps before we had become acquainted," Doctor Thomas concluded.

GRIMES ADDRESSES AG CLUB

Discusses Aims and Benefits of Organization.

A talk by Dr. W. E. Grimes on the aims and benefits of the agricultural economics club was a main feature of the club's first meeting of the year held in ag 352 Tuesday night.

Members of the club gave short impromptu talks telling how they spent the summer vacation. A membership committee was appointed consisting of Harold Kugler, Abilene, chairman; Joyce Miller, Sycamore; and Clarence Keith Ottawa.

CHANGE TIME OF AUDITION

Program Will Be Presented at 6:45, September 30, Instead of 8 o'Clock.

The time of the Atwater Kent radio audition has been changed to 6:45 o'clock Friday, Septemmber 30, instead of 8 o'clock as previously announced. Contuction with a football broadcast over static WIBW caused the change. Richard Jesson of the music department will have charge of the audition here.

The names of the judges for the local audition are: Mrs. M. S. Spencer, Mrs. R. H. Brown, and Dr. J. E. Ackert. The votes of the judges will count two-thirds, while the votes of the general public over the state will make up the other third.

Professor Jesson announced that the general public is invited to send in their votes. Votes should be in the mail before October 2, and addressed to station KSAC.

"There is an unusual situation in regard to entries this year," said Professor Jesson. "in that there are a great number more men than women entrants."

There is a large number of students enrolled now and more are expected.

FINISH TRYOUTS FOR MANHATTAN THEATRE PLAYS

SEVENTY-ONE STUDENTS ARE CHOSEN TO BE CONSIDERED IN PRODUCTIONS.

'EASY COME, EASY GO" FIRST

Cast for Initial Production Will Be Announced Tuesday—Freshmen Not Included in List Surviving Tryouts.

Manhattan Theatre tryouts have been completed during the last three days. The task now left to Production Director H. Miles Heberer is to select from this group the players for his first production, "Easy Come, Easy Go."

Different from other years, the cast of players for the first semester's work has been chosen in one tryout, instead of holding one for each production. Last night Heberer held the final tryouts for "Easy Come, Easy Go," a farce by Owen Davis. Those who did not receive parts will probably be used in other plays to be presented this semester. The cast of characters for the first play will be announced in Tuesday's Collegian.

A list of the students, not including freshmen, who survived the tryouts and who will be considered in the plays this semester follows:

SEEKS CONTROL METHOD

The college experiment station has commenced work on the black rot of apple, a disease which has become serious in the apple growing sections because there are no methods of control. At present the station is working on the biology of the organism to determine the stage in its life history when it may be most easily controlled. The disease is especially serious in Jonathan and Deliciouus varieties.

TO HOLD PRESS PARTY

Women in the department of journalism will be the guests of Theta Sigma Phi at a press party Tuesday evening at the home of Prof. and Mrs. C. E. Rogers, 1740 Fairview. Approximately 100 guests will drop in and out of the "press box" duuring the evening. Local alumna of the fraternity will also be guests of the active chapter at the party.

ROUMANIAN ENROLLS

Irmic D. Staicu Is Teacher in Academy in Bucarest.

Irmic D. Staicu, Bucarest, Roumania, arrived in Manhattan yesterday and has enrolled in the college. He is a teacher in agrology in an agricultural and science academy in Bucarest from which he is also a graduate. The [illegible] has given him a leave of absence to study here along with [illegible] establishing closer relationships with colleges of agriculture in this country.

Mr. Staicu expects to do work in soils and bacteriology toward an advanced degree. He has considerable dificulty with English but is familiar with German and French in addition to his native Roumanian.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom McClury and Richard Jesson, assistant professor in the department of music, were dinner guests of Lois Lewellyn, Newton, and Emma Ann Stover, Muncie, last evening. Arless Honstead, Waterville, will spend the week end at her home.

COUNCIL'S DIRECTORY OUT WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Concentrate Present Work Upon Compiling Faculty Address Cards.

According to Glenn Fox, vice-president of the student council, work on the 1932-1933 directory is rapidly progressing and the directories will probably be out within the next two weeks. All the student directory is complete and work at the present time is being concentrated on the compiling of the faculty cards.

The Kansas State college directory is published annually with the compliments of the student governing association, in addition to the addresses and telephone numbers of the faculty and students, the directory will contain the officers of the student council, the state board of regents, the administration officials, and the college telephones. Abbreviations of the different departments will also be listed.

Other important information which the directory will contain will be the student governing association constitution, regulations governing social functions, student residences, and typical cases which will come under the student council jurisdiction. Big Six conference athletic and eligibility rules, senior men's and women's Pan-hellenic rules for initiation into fraternities and sororities, student loan funds, Kansas State traditions and ideals, college songs, information concerning honorary local, and unclassified professional national fraternities and their presidents, literary societies, fraternity and sorority presidents, and all other organizations and their presidents are also listed.

HILL TO SPEAK AT Y. M. MEMBERSHIP RALLY

Program Will Include Special Music and Outline Work of the Organization.

Dr. Howard T. Hill of the department of public speaking will be the principal speaker at a membership rally of the Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in recreation center. The program will also include special music and an outline of the work of the "Y".

This year the organization has been continuing its get-acquainted work with new students. This is done largely through its information bureau, K books, employment bureau, and room-renting agency. Freshman commission for freshman men affords an orientation group and in order to provide adequate social life for students, the Y.M.C.A. sponsors numerous parties during each semester.

The first of a series of student forums will be held next Wednesday at the college cafeteria when Alf Landon, republican candidate for governor will speak. Well known speakers will be brought to the campus for these noon luncheons throughout the year.

Various religious work and monthly meetings of members are also a part of the fall program. "The Y.M.C.A. is a democratic organization," Dr. A. A. Holtz, secretary said, "and every member has final authority through the ballot box."

LANDON TO SPEAK

Alf. M. Landon, Republican candidate for governor of Kansas, will speak at the student forum Wednesday noon in the cafeteria.

MIXER TONIGHT TO FORM MANY ACQUAINTANCES

FRESHMEN AND NEW STUDENTS GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO MEET CLASSMATES.

STUNTS, DANCING FEATURES

Will Conduct Get-Acquainted Games, Present Dramatic Stunts and Songs—There Will Be Dancing Until 11:30 o'Clock.

Have you met your favorite instructor's wife? Do you know how your Chemistry partner looks outside of his apron? Have you had an opportunity to meet that good looking girl that sits in the front row of your rhetoric class?

For these and other reasons freshmen, new students, and others not too well acquainted with campus people (including faculty members) will attend the all college mixer tonight at Nichols gymnasium to meet each other and get a new slant on campus personalities.

Rev. W. U. Guerrant, student pastor of the Presbyterian church, Miss Lorrraine Maytum, of the physical education department and women students in the same department will conduct get-acquainted games at the mixer which will begin at 8 o'clock. Chester Guthrie will lead community singing.

Other features of the program will be a stunt directed by Prof. H. Miles Heberer of the department of public speaking; a harmony quartet composed of Dr. C. O. LaShelle, Paul Dooley, Clifford George, and Tom McClung, [illegible] news will be shown.

The Mason dancing school will present five acts including juvenile performers as well as adults. There will be dancing until 11:30 o'clock.

Hosts and hostesses from the faculty as well as from the student body will assist at the mixer. The committee on arangements includes C. S. Moll of the physical education department, chairman; Velma Capper of the Y.W.C.A.; Fred Hill of Buffalo, N. Y., of the Y.M.C.A., and Ralph Van Camp, Council Grove, student council appointee.

STUDENTS FROM 26 STATES ENROLL HERE

Every County in Kansas but Three Are Represented; Riley Leads.

Students at Kansas State college this year come from every county in Kansas except three, and from 26 of the states in the union, according to a recent survey made in the office of the registrar. The three counties not represented are Grant, Stanton and Trego.

Riley county, as usual, heads the list with 664 students, almost one fourth the total enrollment for this semester. Shawnee county, which includes Topeka and neighboring towns, has an enrollment of 90, Wyandotte county comes next with 55, Sedgwick has 54, Geary 53 and Reno 52. Other counties range in enrollment all the way from 50 to 1.

The 26 states and the number of students from each one are as follows: Missouri 40; Nebraska 10; Colorado and New York 9; Illinois 8; California 6; Oklahoma and Texas 5; Arizona, Ohio and West Virginia 3; Georgia, Montana and South Dakota 2; and Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming 1. One of the reasons for the increased enrollment from the eastern states this year was the closing of the General Electric school at Schenectady, N. Y., and the adoption of Kansas State as a finishing school for these electrical engineering students.

These out of state figures do not include students who live out of Kansas but have an affidavit of residence here.

Y. W. COMMISSION MEETS

Members of the Freshman commission of the Y. W. C. A. held their get-to-gether meeting last night from 8 to 8:30 in Calvin hall rest room with Frances Bell, Marysville, upper classman advisor, in charge. A short business meeting was held which included the election of a nominating committee and the making election plans.

IT'S AN ELECTION YEAR

In this year of campaigns, stump speeches, and political effervescence in general, there will be held on November 8 a general election. It will become the duty on that date for each United States citizen more than 21 years old to go to the polls and vote, and it is especially important that they understand the issues involved in order that they may vote intelligently.

The Kansas State Collegian is the official student newspaper reflecting the attitudes of all the students on the campus, and consequently, it is impossible that it become partisan to any particular candidates. However, since approximately one-third of the student body is of voting age, it is unwise for the Collegian to ignore the political situation entirely.

The students of all the colleges in the country constitute what is known as the "coming" generation and it will be necessary in a short time that they have a working knowledge of government in general and the ability to comprehend the political activities in election years.

The Collegian in the near future will conduct a one-day stand in Anderson hall at which Kansas State students may make known their political preferences. The Collegian will then present to interested persons political information which will be of assistance in forming opinions regarding the various campaigns. Owing to the fact that much of the political information available is sent from party headquarters and is partisan in nature it is impossible to publish it in the Collegian.

Regardless of the fact that much of the information furnished will be partisan the Collegian feels that it will be of certain assistance to students who are not familiar with the political situation in Kansas.

Expression of political feeling at Kansas State has been modest, to say the least, on the part of students. It is problematic whether the Collegian's idea will be considered worthwhile by the student body. The fact that political interest is at a low ebb on the campus may bring about few responses. However, the Collegian will attempt to stimulate that interest in the present campaign.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

The fall of the year is upon us; school is in full swing and off to an apparently successful year; football has become the gist of the general talk among Hill students; parties are being planned; everyone is cursing the depression, giving reasons for its beginning and advancing plas for its curtailment, and in the midst of our troubles and joys comes the announcement of the annual Rhodes scholarship awards.

This award, which was made possible by Cecil Rhodes, eminent British explorer, entitles the successful candidates to three years of study at Oxford university, with an annual stipend of 400 pounds. The candidates are chosen by competitive examination. Each year thirty-two young men from the United States are selected to receive this reward, from among the thousands who try.

To study at Oxford is the dream of nearly every university graduate, for it is one of the world's finest schools. A Rhodes scholarship is a thing much sought after by undergraduates, and one that is worth far more than the amount of time and energy expended to attain it. It is a mark of distinction to be known as a Rhodes scholar, and it has been brought about by the generosity of Cecil Rhodes.—University Daily Kansan.

The law schools of the colleges of the state are showing a good hold up in enrollment. The students probably look ahead and feel that there will always be plenty of law practice in the gas rate cases and the law suits over the Arkansas river water at the Colorado line.—Abilene Reflector.

Newspapers recently carried dispatches that "Jarring Jim" Bausch had been posing for pictures which bear indication that he would go after Johnny Weismuller's position as portrayer of jungle strong men. Could it be that Jim might go to the jungle to practice a while and give Kansas paragraphers something else to talk about?

Fifty-three members of the University of Missouri faculty are included in the 1932-33 "Who's Who in America."

The Snooper

"Thick and fast they came at last, and more and more and more. . ." Have you noticed during the last few days a vast aggregation trudging about on the campus? Don't you sleep well? Do your windows rattle on warm afternoons? Blame it on the college band.

The college band is composed of several hundreds of members of the student body from flushed youngsters to old men in wheel chairs whose talent ranges from mediocrity on down to bed rock. No instrument is lacking in the college band: sousaphones, saxophones, mellophones, trombaphones, there are scores of each.

However you would be surprised at the number of musicians that are turned down upon trying to get into the band. (NOBODY is turned down, now arent'cha surprised?) Evidently it is an honor to wear a wrinkled blue suit with a couple of strands of spaghetti tied across the chest.

The present problem of the authorities is how to get the whole band into the stadium grounds. It has been suggested that the band sit in the bleachers and have the fans occupy what is now the bandstand. The plan has not yet materialized, however. Last week they say one youngster spent the whole of one afternoon trying to find his way out of the reed section. We will not swear to the veracity of that statement.

Understand, this is not to make fun of a great organization. At least it gives us something to throw sour apple cores at. The children enjoy Major Ossman so much too. (the Maj. is the man with the head bandaged up like a wounded thumb.) As he minces along at the head of the band we almost expect him to start making gear-box-noises with his mouth and occasionally reaching up and pulling an imaginary cord and whistling like a steam engine, but he never does.

Haw! Haw! and chuckle! We are expressing merriment at the antics of the Sig Ep pledges on the day before yesterday's eve. It seems that as the cook was called out of the scullery several of the young rogues purloined the evening allotment of steaks and ice cream and snuk out in the woods with the Alpha Delts. This left nothing with which to fill the hungry maws of the actives. However, the cook displayed her culinary abilities by preparing a makeshift meal with such rapidity that the grocery gong was delayed no more than fifteen minutes. Three rousing huzzas for cookie!

On Other Hills

A grandson of "Buffalo Bill" is a freshman at the University of Nebraska this year.

Fourteen states are represented in the enrollment at the Panhandle A. and M. college.

Men living outside fraternity houses do the best academic work according to Dr. H. L. Dodge in a survey for the association of University Professors. Women do about the same amount of work regardless of where they are housed.

After Washington university announced courses would be provided without charge to unemployed men and women in junior and senior work, more than 400 applications for free tuition were received by the college.

Forty-three states and 11 foreign countries are represented in the rolls of the University of Missouri. Students from the Philippines, Japan, Canada, Cuba, Turkey, Palestine, and Korea are included.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity took first place in scholarship at the University of Oklahoma last semester. Alpha Sigma Phi ranked last in the list.

Two University of Nebraska students hitchhiked to Washington last summer to shake hands with President Hoover. Covering the 6,000 miles in one month at a cost of about $30 apiece, they estimated the total hiking distance was about 15 miles.

Permanent employment among K. U. students this year include such jobs as waiting tables, washing dishes, soda "jerking," clerking at grocery stores, janitor work, accounting, cashier at bank, truck driving, house work, poster painting, clerking in dry goods stores, house to house canvassing, and selling coupons for various enterprises.

Two Oregon State co-eds were recently injured when two parties of students, who hired "hacks" met on a street and raced. One of the horses shied and there was a crash. The state board of education issued a decree against student-operated cars, hence the revised custom of the "gay nineties."

THE PERMANENT CHANGE

A philosopher of the modern age gives us the thought, "the only permanent thing in this universe of ours is change." Students in colleges and universities of America are passing through an unprecedented period of social and economic progression.

We have seen the so-called radical of yesterday flogged by public opinion and have lived to see his ideas and principles accepted as orthodox and proper by the same generation. The mad whirl of the great demand for speed, efficiency and original thought has left many of us gasping for the breath of realization of what is happening.—Indiana Daily Student.

STUDENT FROM INDIA AIRS VIEWS ON NATIVE LAND

Stephen Das, India, Maintains Intelectual Differences Cause Trouble.

"I have been away from India for quite a while," Stephen P. Das, Bangalore, India, said. "And I can't give you my opinion on this matter of Mahatma Gandhi's fast."

Das who is majoring in Agriculture here, spent one year in Europe before coming to United States to enter as a student at Kansas State college.

"According to what I have learned, Gandhi started this fast because he believed that the lower caste called the 'untouchables' were being done a moral and political injustice. According to the laws laid out by England," Das continued, "the 'untouchables' were to vote twice: Once as Hindus and the second time as the depressed class.

"To anyone this would seem quite reasonable, but if one were familiar with the timidness of these 'untouchables' he would know that in areas where the majority of people were of the higher class, the lower caste would be afraid to vote in opposition to them. Only in districts where the 'untouchables' were in the majority might they vote freely, without being swayed by the power of the high caste people.

"The British, according to a law made by the Donoughmore commission, tried to separate the 'untouchables' politically after having the satisfaction of separating them in their economic, social, and religious lives. What Gandhi proposed recently was that the voting should be done by the joint electorates for al communities and all classes should be represented on some agreed platform. Still, even though some of the British commissions reported favorably and backed Gandhi on his stand against the government, Great Britain did not heed them and when Gandhi heard of this, he devised this death fast in opposition to the government. He knew that if the British government would let him die, they would have to deal with the whole of India.

"Great Britain, forced to take quick action, presented a compromise on the privileges of the 'untouchables' in legislative elections. This caused Mahatma Gandhi to break his fast."

There are about fifty million "untouchables" in India, according to Das.

Doris Paulson spent Tuesday visiting with her mother in a Newton hospital. Ellen Warren accompanied her.

AT THE DICKINSON

College men and women, no matter how sophisticated, will enjoy, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe." For in every man and woman there breaths that spirit of adventure, that longing to get away from civilization and go native.

Douglas Fairbanks makes a bet with a friend that he can live on an uninhabited island for several months and during that time build himself a penthouse, having hot and cold running water.

Doug lives up to his bet. He makes everything man could possibly make with a human hand, even a radio. While on the island, Doug not only finds a man Friday, but a girl, Saturday.

The lines are good. Doug hops around a little too much considering his age, but all in all, its okey. —ed.

"Tiger Shark"

Big, cruel fish, swishing through Pacific waters, supply the background for this intense drama, "Tiger Shark," at the Varsity.

Edward G. Robinson, a Portuguese fisherman, marries Quita, played by Zita Johann who falls in love with her husband's best friend Pipes, portrayed by Richard Arlen. Quita and Pipes, who both are grateful for having their lives saved by this man at different times, keep the knowledge of their love from him until they all are out in the shark-infested waters of Mexico fishing for tuna. The man-eating sharks finally preside as judges in this most thrilling sea romance.

The photography under water and of the toiling crew catching tuna is unusuual. All Edward G. Robinson fans will enjoy his new character role as a fisherman, which carries with it love, thrills, and lots of excitement.—S.S.

Misses Maxine Morehead, Georgia Apple and Marie Apple were dinner guests at Clovia Tuesday evening.

The Franklin literary society will have its annual fall hike Saturday, October 1. The meeting place will be at the east door of Nichols gymnasium at 4:30 o'clock.

Dean Justin and Miss Margaret Ahlborn, assistant dean of home economics, left Monday on a business trip to Kansas City.

The course, radio speaking and announcing, is offered by the department of public speaking with Prof. H. B. Summers as instructor. The other schools that give training are Iowa university, Wisconsin university, and Washington State college.

Actual responsibility and experience of radio program broadcasting is given some of the students for a period of six to eight weeks over station KSAC. "College News in General," at the present time; Wednesday Ed Stone sponsors a "National Affairs" program; Thursday is an "International Affairs" program by Bernice Mosser, and Friday is "Weekly Sports" by Eugene Summerville.

The class deals primarily with radio speaking and secondly with announcing. Various faculty members on the hill talk, as part of the work, of the connection of radio and their different departments. Advertising, finance of radio corporations, backgrounds, radio organization, general rules and regulations, and chain systems are all included in the course.

During the semester Professor Summers expects to have four or five directors of stations in this part of the country talk to his class. They will represent as many different types of stations as can be arranged so as to give the students the best background and practical up-to-date knowledge possible.

PARTY slippers are more important than ever this season. The accepted instep-length evening wear bars shabby footgear. With only the tops of the toes, and the slender high heels showing beneath the frock, much concentration must be placed on correct slippers. T-strapped sandals of crinkly white crepe are being shown at Nygren's Shoe store, Manhattan's most exclusive shoe shop. These silver trimmed sandals may be tinted the color of your party dress, or of you like, a contrasting color. And they're only $5.50.

The sweet is paying for the sneak. Pi Phi pledges at meeting the other night presented to each active a box of chocolates.

AGGIEVILLE has the best new place to eat. The Canary Cottage, just across from the campus. Two young women who really know what college students and faculty like to eat manage the Canary Cottage where nice hot and cold luncheons are served. Lovely dinners, with special salads are arranged attractively. Two meals are served on Sunday. Organizations desiring an unusually good luncheon or dinner should make reservations at the Cottage. Why be satisfied with the mediocre when the Canary Cottage's excellence may be enjoyed at really moderate prices.

Dan Blaine, the red-haired football hero, is so much in demand that co-ed classmates are asking him for his phone number.

BO McMILLIN'S charges aren't the only ones going into huddles these days. Smart co-eds who are up on their fashions, gather around, and come out with a verdict—Huddle Hats.

And aren't they the dearest things? The Wareham Hat Shop in the Wareham building is the one place in town where you're sure to find just the right hat for the right occasion. Huddle-Hats are those clever little hats all the better-dressed girls are wearing. But if you want a pull-on of a slightly different type, the Wareham Hat shop advocates a "Handicap." And they're just that.

Jane Kahl's smart brown swagger suit brought many comments from the admiring co-eds at the game Saturday.

IF it's a coke and a smoke you want, drop into the College Canteen, the campus hang-out. All the Hill's elite gather in this most conveniently located Canteen, where thirst is quenched with the iced-drinks we all crave between classes. And if you've acquired that tea habit so many of us have, you'll find that English refreshment being served at the Canteen. The private booths are an excellent place to cram for those quizzes, or to enjoy a rendezvous with the latest interest. Meet your friends at the College Canteen.

Elden Auker, the triple threat man who made last year's football games, classics, sat in the stadium here last Saturday for the first time. He was accompanied by none other than Mildred Purcell, former campus social light, who now teaches in Hutchinson.

COOL days mean departure from that old summer suit. And there's nothing that will fill the hole in your wardrobe quite so well as a pair of warm corduroy trousers and a soft suede or corduroy jacket. The Varsity Clothing Store has a recent shipment of this most suitable of campus wear. Smart new ties in all the latest colors can be found at the Varsity. The popular Manhattan shirts, noted for well-fitting collars, are priced for you. You're always sure to have on the right clothes if they come from the Varsity.

Graham will be carrying a light bulb across the goal line tomorrow afternoon when Kansas State meets Purdue. At least he'll be doing that in the college auditorium, where that grand old institution, the Gridgraph, will be again in operation.

SAY what you want to, it's impossible to wear one of those new hats if your hair isn't just right. Perfect waves, ending in crisp ringlets, add so much towards the achievement of smartness. The Varsity Beauty Shop, conveniently located at 615 North Manhattan Avenue, has the best offer on permanents. Only $2.00 for the spiffiest of waves. And the sweet part of it all is the fact that with one of those nice permanents, your hair problem is solved for several months. Call 3135 for an appointment.

One of the smarter co-eds, upon hearing that D. Lynch, who operates an elevator in western Kansas, and Georgia McNickle, '31, were to be married, remarked, "I don't see how they could get married on an elevator boy's salary."

TWELVE MEN OUT FOR THE TWO-MILE TEAM

Nucleus Will be Formed Around Four Lettermen, According to Haylett.

With fall track practice in full swing, approximately 40 men are reporting to Coach Ward Haylett for workouts for the two-mile team and other track events.

As 12 of these men out for the two-mile, Kansas State has an excellent chance to develop a good two-mile team this year. Four of these are lettermen, providing a veteran nucleus for the team. The lettermen are: Don Landon, M. W. Pearce, M. E. Nixon, and L. R. Daniels. These men played an important part in placing the K-Aggies second in the conference last year, and will probably go a long ways in producing a winning team this year.

Instead of holding two-mile races between halves of football games this year, an all-conference meet will be held at Lawrence, November 5. This change was made in the interests of economy. However, telegraphic two-mile races will be held between schools, keeping up the interest in two-mile running.

The other men out for the two-mile tea mare: Kenneth Phelps, Joe McNay, H. H. Harris, M. P. Rogers, Donald Cristy, H. C. Getty, N. E. Miller, and W. C. Covington.

Of the group of men out for fall training in other events, six are lettermen These men are: L. R. Schmutz, W. A. Laird, E. R. Kennedy, N. E. Miller, M. G. Bliss, and J. E. Veatch. Others putting in time around the oval are: N C. Booth, Joe Knappenberger, George Bell, Stephenson, E. Herkowitz, R. M. Dill, A. D. Tindoll, W. L. Wheelock, Raymond Murray, W. V. Dexter, Walter Herrmann, W. P. Hackney, A. R. Duree, Ralston Clause, J. W. Coate.

Doctor Winge, who holds the chair of genetics in the Royal Veterinary and Agricultural college in Copenhagen, is one of the most widely known European geneticists, according to Dr. John H. Parker of the department of agronomy. He is also especially noted for his experiments in hereditary characteristics of sex, having done a great deal of cross-breeding fish to determine pattern inheritance in relation to sex.

The Danish geneticist came to the United tSates to attend the sixth annual congress of genetics held at Cornell University the last week of August. He is stopping at Kansas State on his way back to the east coast after a trip to California. He will go from here to the University of Iowa at Ames and then to the University of Minnesota.

Among The Ags

If you call 36182 and someone at the other end answers, "Chicken Roost," you needn't feel that you have called the asylum by mistake. The six boys who stay in the stone house up at the north end of the poultry farm have organized the Chicken Roost club, a sort of a fowl organization.

Those new custom-made cords of Porky Wilhelm's are just too interesting in their capaciousness to be passed by without comment. Wilhelm, hefty graduate student in the poultry department, has an 18-inch knee and a forty-something waist which necessitates special clothes. "I have to order everything at least a month before I think I'll want it," he explains.

I had always had a bit of curiosity concerning the actual position and use of the wishbone in a chicken, but now I think I understand—thanks to the exhibit of chicken skeletons in the poultry reading room. It seems that the frequently-pulled bone holds the chicken's shoulders together and keeps his neck from dropping too low, but you're welcome to your own opinion.

The dairy department retail sales room is getting a new coat of paint, and the dairy department is getting a new barn. Who said there was a depression?

And we'll bet that the bluest boys in town Saturday afternoon were the members of a judging class who sold their tickets because their professor insisted on holding class, and then he dismissed the boys in time for the game.

Dr. John H. Parker is a problem for the stenos in the east ag building. It seems that he is prone to make appointments to meet various officials which he either forgets entirely or wishes to change. The stenos have to make all the arrangements.

And in the Block and Bridle reading room on the lower floor of the east ag building is an exhibit of horseshoes which is an education in this tractor age. Everything is their from balanced racing shoes to an extra-heavy monster that looks like it was made for the "daddy of them all."

WILL HOLD TRYOUTS FOR SWIMMING CLUB

Tryouts for membership into the club are held each fall and any girl in college is eligible to take the swimming test which will consist of good swimming formation, side, back, and crawl stroke, a speed of swimming the length of the pool in sixteen seconds, three dives, the standing, running front, and one optional, and endurance to swim the length of the pool three times.

No girl will be expected to pass every part of the test in perfert form, and everyone is invited to try out for eligibility into the club. Further requirements for actual membership at a later date will be perfection of certain life-saving tests. Members of the club will demonstrate their work with a swimming pageant which will be presented in a few months.

Final Selections for Team Made by Professor Cave Wednesday.

Members of the dairy cattle judging team which will represent Kansas State at the Waterloo Dairy Cattle congress at Waterloo, Iowa, next week were announced Wednesday by Prof. H. W. Cave of the department of dairy husbandry. The team left this morning.

The four men picked from an original squad of ten are Pius Hostetler, Harper; Wayne Jacobs, Harper; Orville Denton, Norton; and C. G. Page, Norton.

Team members will work out on dairy cattle belonging to Nebraska university later in the day. The boys will also work on several Iowa herds, including a herd of Brown Swiss cattle at Fort Dodge, before the contest Monday, according to their coach.

Last year the Kansas State team won first place in the college teams judging contest at the Waterloo show, making almost a clean sweep of the trophies offered. Some 25 different kinds of prizes ranging from brief cases to book ends were brought home by Kansas State judges.

The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". GRID-GRAPH TO PRESENT PURDUE GAME TOMORROW

PLAY-BY-PLAY PRESENTATION WILL COMMENCE AT 2 O'CLOCK IN AUDITORIUM.

GIVE SERIES REPORT TOO

Will Be Impossible to Get Game on Radio, Say Purdue Officials in Letter— College Band Will Play.

It takes upwards of 20 hours and $20 to follow the K-Aggies by train to Lafayette, Ind., where they will meet the Purdue university team in inter-sectional football Saturday afternoon, and for loyal fans who can't manage that trip the next best thing is to watch the game as played on the grid-graph here at the college auditorium—this method requiring only a jaunt to the auditorium and 25 cents for admission.

The grid-graph is a mechanical contrivance in the form of a small size playing field, upon which is reproduced the game in exact detail. The board can be relied upon to re-enact everything but the huddles, and the announcers will tell about those. When Weybrew punts the pigskin to Purdue at Lafayette, the miniature football on the gridgraph here will follow the same course faithfully and almost simultaneously. When Russell is away on one of those nifty end runs, the grid-graph will reproduce his path, his speed and his gain. The loudspeaker supplementing the grid-graph is depended upon to pick up the moans of the Purdue Boilermakers when "Ramming" Ralph Grahamin performs.

Every Aggie backer knows what this game means to Kansas State. The Boilermakers are the hardest test the Wildcats will have before their Big Six competition begins. A Kansas State victory at Lafayette tomorrow will make the other five-sixths of the Big Six quite uncomfortable. And Coach "Bo" McMillin says, "We have a chance to win."

The fans here can see it all on the grid-graph. There'll be band music and world series bulletins as sidelines. The grid-graph will be operated by members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalistic fraternity. The game starts at 2 o'clock.

A letter received recently from Purdue radio officials at Lafayette stated that it will be virtually impossible to obtain successful radio reception because of the low power of the Lafayette station.

A direct loop from the Purdue stadium to the auditorium will be maintained.

MONKEYS TAKE A TRIP

"Winter is here," according to Dr. E. J. Frick of the veterinary hospital, the monkeys are now in their winter home at the hospital. They left Sunset park yesterday, and to all appearances are enjoying their new quarters as much as they did their outdoor home at the park. Visitors are welcome to call at any time. There is also a parrot being boarded at the hospital that is a fluent talker.

ORCHESIS HOLDS MEETING

Dancing Organization Will Attend Wichita Convention.

Orchesis, national honorary dancing organization, held its first meeting last Tuesday night in the women's gymnasium. Luella Graham, Topeka, was elected secretary for the coming year. Work was started on the dances, which Orchesis will represent Kansas State at the American physical education convention at Wichita sometime in March. It was necessary to start early because the girls meet only once a week.

CHEERING CROWD SENDS WILDCATS OFF TO PURDUE

TEAM LEFT AT 5:25 LAST NIGHT TO WAGE NON-CONFERENCE GRID BATTLE.

McMILLINMEN BROADCAST

KSAC Radio Hookup at Depot Provided Entertainment for Crowd and Radio Listeners —25 Players Make Trip.

Several hundred enthusiastic Kansas' Aggie football fans, both from the college and Manhattan, gathered at the Union Pacific station yesterday evening at 5 o'clock to cheer the 23 Wildcat gridsters as they boarded the special coach that will take them to Lafayette, Indiana where they will meet Purdue university, co-champions of the Big Ten, Saturday.

Bo McMillin, head coach; Oss Maddox, line coach; Frank Root, assistant coach; and Russell Thackrey, publicity man, were also on the special coach. Thackrey will make a play by play report of the game over the Sigma Delta Chi grid-graph.

When the football players were asked to say a few words over station KSAC, which was connected with a microphone at the station, Captain Walter Zeckser lost little time in telling everyone that they were going to hand the Boilermakers a defeat. Dan Blaine, following the example of Walter Winchell, stepped to the "mike" and shouted Okay ElDorado. "Bullet Joe" Hasler was then called up and he gave radio fans some interesting information before he learned that it was actually hooked up.

The entire send-off was broadcast with Fred Seaton and Maurice DuMars giving the names of the players and telling of the different activities that were being carried on.

Those making the trip were: Dan Blaine, end; Emmett Breen, half; Tom Bushby, half; Lloyd Dalton, end; Blair Forbes, tackle; Jack Going, back; Ralph Graham, back; Homer Hanson, guard; Harry Hasler, end; Kenneth Harter, center; Henry Kirk, back; Ralph McAtee back; George Maddox, tackle; Ralph Marshall, end; Lee Morgan, back; Lloyd Michael, center; Shelby Neely, end; Dougal Russell, back; Leland Shaffer, back; Melvon Wertzberger, tackle; Neil Weybrew, tackle; Eugene Wiseman, center, and Walter Zeckser, guard.

The squad will return Sunday afternoon.

AIKINS TO IOWA

Glenn S. Aikins, who received his B. S. degree from K. S. C. in '24 and his M. S. in '31, left September 20, to take up work at the Iowa State college where he will work on a two year fellowship. Aikins taught in the department of bacteriology here last year.

Captain Zeckser of Kansas State

Kansas State football players compromised between a lineman and back when they chose Walter Zeckser of Alma to lead the 1932 edition of the Purple Powerhouse. Zeckser started his football as a fullback, and though he has won two letters as a regular Kansas State guard, he frequently shifts to the backfield under Bo McMillin's "5-man back" system. Though Zeckser weighs only 165 pounds and is flanked by 200-pounders, he more than holds his own and is never on the casualty list.

THOMAS DEFENDS MACHINES

Chapel Speaker Maintains That the Machine Has Provided Time to Think.

"The intelligencia is that interesting class of people which spends so much time forming a philosophy that it has no time for anything else," Dr. Thomas S. Thomas, public utility economist of Alabama, told students and faculty members in assembly, Tuesday morning.

"And it is the intelligencia who tell us that machines create no beauty and tear down culture," Doctor Thomas was speaking on the subject "What the Machine is Doing to Mankind."

"But the machine of today has made possible all the advancement and progress in our present day culture, art, and refinement. Why, there was better farming carried on along the Nile than in Kansas before machinery was introduced," he continued.

Doctor Thomas stated that a century ago artists and poets considered a flying bird, a sailing ship and a dancing woman the three most beautiful subjects. Then he compared them to the machine made "beauties" of today.

"Machines have brought about a leisure in which man may think and expand. Culture follows business and business follows the advanced civilization made possible by machinery," Doctor Thomas pointed out, "America has the only industrial civilization the world has ever seen, that is why it is the most interesting nation in the world. And our problem now is not to make enough to live on, but live on what we have."

"The only trouble with this machine age is that it has made neighbors of the world and threw us into each others laps before we had become acquainted," Doctor Thomas concluded.

CHANGE TIME OF AUDITION

Program Will Be Presented at 6:45, September 30, Instead of 8 o'Clock.

The time of the Atwater Kent radio audition has been changed to 6:45 o'clock Friday, Septemmber 30, instead of 8 o'clock as previously announced. Connection with a football broadcast over static WIBW caused the change. Richard Jesson of the music department will have charge of the audition here.

The names of the judges for the local audition are: Mrs. M. S. Spencer, Mrs. R. H. Brown, and Dr. J. E. Ackert. The votes of the judges will count two-thirds, while the votes of the general public over the state will make up the other third.

Professor Jesson announced that the general public is invited to send in their votes. Votes should be in the mail before October 2, and addressed to station KSAC.

"There is an unusual situation in regard to entries this year," said Professor Jesson. "in that there are a great number more men than women entrants."

There is a large number of students enrolled now and more are expected.

At present the station is working on the biology of the organism to determine the stage in its life history when it may be most easily controlled. The disease is especially serious in Jonathan and Deliciouus varieties.

ROUMANIAN ENROLLS

Irmic D. Staicu Is Teacher in Academy in Bucarest.

Irmic D. Staicu, Bucarest, Roumania, arrived in Manhattan yesterday and has enrolled in the college. He is a teacher in agrology in an agricultural and science academy in Bucarest from which he is also a graduate. The institution has given him a leave of absence to study here along with its policy of establishing closer relationships with colleges of agriculture in this country.

Mr. Staicu expects to do work in soils and bacteriology toward an advanced degree. He has considerable dificulty with English but is familiar with German and French in addition to his native Roumanian.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom McClury and Richard Jesson, assistant professor in the department of music, were dinner guests of Lois Lewellyn, Newton, and Emma Ann Storer, Muncie, last evening. Arless Honstead, Waterville, will spend the week end at her home.

COUNCIL'S DIRECTORY OUT WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Concentrate Present Work Upon Compiling Faculty Address Cards.

According to Glenn Fox, vice-president of the student council, work on the 1932-1933 directory is rapidly progressing and the directories will probably be out within the next two weeks. All the student directory is complete and work at the present time is being concentrated on the compiling of the faculty cards.

The Kansas State college directory is published annually with the compliments of the student governing association, in addition to the addresses and telephone numbers of the faculty and students, the directory will contain the officers of the student council, the state board of regents, the administration officials, and the college telephones. Abbreviations of the different departments will also be listed.

Other important information which the directory will contain will be the student governing association constitution, regulations governing social functions, student residences, and typical cases which will come under the student council jurisdiction. Big Six conference athletic and eligibility rules, senior men's and women's Pan-hellenic rules for initiation into fraternities and sororities, student loan funds, Kansas State traditions and ideals, college songs, information concerning honorary local, and unclassified professional national fraternities and their presidents, literary societies, fraternity and sorority presidents, and all other organizations and their presidents are also listed.

HILL TO SPEAK AT Y. M. MEMBERSHIP RALLY

Program Will Include Special Music and Outline Work of the Organization.

Dr. Howard T. Hill of the department of public speaking will be the principal speaker at a membership rally of the Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in recreation center. The program will also include special music and an outline of the work of the "Y".

This year the organization has been continuing its get-acquainted work with new students. This is done largely through its information bureau, K books, employment bureau, and room-renting agency. Freshman commission for freshman men affords an orientation group and in order to provide adequate social life for students, the Y.M.C.A. sponsors numerous parties during each semester.

The first of a series of student forums will be held next Wednesday at the college cafeteria when Alf Landon, republican candidate for governor will speak. Well known speakers will be brought to the campus for these noon luncheons throughout the year.

Various religious work and monthly meetings of members are also a part of the fall program. "The Y.M.C.A. is a democratic organization," Dr. A. A. Holtz, secretary said, "and every member has final authority through the ballot box."

LANDON TO SPEAK

Alf. M. Landon, Republican candidate for governor of Kansas, will speak at the student forum Wednesday noon in the cafeteria.

FRESHMEN AND NEW STUDENTS GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO MEET CLASSMATES.

STUNTS, DANCING FEATURES

Will Conduct Get-Acquainted Games, Present Dramatic Stunts and Songs—There Will Be Dancing Until 11:30 o'Clock.

Have you met your favorite instructor's wife? Do you know how your Chemistry partner looks outside of his apron? Have you had an opportunity to meet that good looking girl that sits in the front row of your rhetoric class?

For these and other reasons freshmen, new students, and others not too well acquainted with campus people (including faculty members) will attend the all college mixer tonight at Nichols gymnasium to meet each other and get a new slant on campus personalities.

Rev. W. U. Guerrant, student pastor of the Presbyterian church, Miss Lorraine Maytum, of the physical education department and women students in the same department will conduct get-acquainted games at the mixer which will begin at 8 o'clock. Chester Guthrie will lead community singing.

Other features of the program will be a stunt directed by Prof. H. Miles Heberer of the department of public speaking; a harmony quartet composed of Dr. C. O. LaShelle, Paul Dooley, Clifford George, and Tom McClung, Manhattan business men. A film of Kansas State news will be shown.

Students at Kansas State college this year come from every county in Kansas except three, and from 28 of the states in the union, according to a recent survey made in the office of the registrar. The three counties not represented are Grant, Stanton and Trego.

Riley county, as usual, heads the list with 664 students, almost one-fourth the total enrollment for this semester. Shawnee county, which includes Topeka and neighboring towns, has an enrollment of 90, Wyandotte county comes next with 55, Sedgwick has 54, Geary 53 and Reno 52. Other counties range in enrollment all the way from 50 to 1.

The 28 states and the number of students from each one are as follows: Missouri 40; Nebraska 10; Colorado and New York 9; Illinois 8; California 6; Oklahoma and Texas 5; Arizona, Ohio and West Virginia 3; Georgia, Montana and South Dakota 2; and Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming 1. One of the reasons for the increased enrollment from the eastern states this year was the closing of the General Electric school at Schenectady, N. Y., and the adoption of Kansas State as a finishing school for these electrical engineering students.

These out of state figures do not include students who live out of Kansas but have an affidavit of residence here.

Y. W. COMMISSION MEETS

Members of the Freshman commission of the Y. W. C. A. held their get-to-gether meeting last night from 8 to 8:30 in Calvin hall rest room with Frances Bell, Marysville, upper classman advisor, in charge. A short business meeting was held which included the election of a nominating committee and the making election plans.

IT'S AN ELECTION YEAR

In this year of campaigns, stump speeches, and political effervescence in general, there will be held on November 8 a general election. It will become the duty on that date for each United States citizen more than 21 years old to go to the polls and vote, and it is especially important that they understand the issues involved in order that they may vote intelligently.

The Kansas State Collegian is the official student newspaper reflecting the attitudes of all the students on the campus, and consequently, it is impossible that it become partisan to any particular candidates. However, since approximately one-third of the student body is of voting age, it is unwise for the Collegian to ignore the political situation entirely.

The students of all the colleges in the country constitute what is known as the "coming" generation and it will be necessary in a short time that they have a working knowledge of government in general and the ability to comprehend the political activities in election years.

The Collegian in the near future will conduct a one-day stand in Anderson hall at which Kansas State students may make known their political preferences. The Collegian will then present to interested persons political information which will be of assistance in forming opinions regarding the various campaigns. Owing to the fact that much of the political information available is sent from party headquarters and is partisan in nature it is impossible to publish it in the Collegian.

Regardless of the fact that much of the information furnished will be partisan the Collegian feels that it will be of certain assistance to students who are not familiar with the political situation in Kansas.

Expression of political feeling at Kansas State has been modest, to say the least, on the part of students. It is problematic whether the Collegian's idea will be considered worthwhile by the student body. The fact that political interest is at a low ebb on the campus may bring about few responses. However, the Collegian will attempt to stimulate that interest in the present campaign.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

The fall of the year is upon us; school is in full swing and off to an apparently successful year; football has become the gist of the general talk among frat students; parties are being planned; everyone is cursing the depression, giving reasons for its beginning and advancing plea for its curtailment, and in the midst of our troubles and joys comes the announcement of the annual Rhodes scholarship awards.

This award, which was made possible by Cecil Rhodes, eminent British explorer, entitles the successful candidates to three years of study at Oxford university, with an annual stipend of 400 pounds. The candidates are chosen by competitive examination. Each year thirty-two young men from the United States are selected to receive this reward, from among the thousands who try.

To study at Oxford is the dream of nearly every university graduate, for it is one of the world's finest schools. A Rhodes scholarship is a thing much sought after by undergraduates, and one that is worth far more than the amount of time and energy expended to attain it. It is a mark of distinction to be known as a Rhodes scholar, and it has been brought about by the generosity of Cecil Rhodes.—University Daily Kansan.

The law schools of the colleges of the state are showing a good hold up in enrollment. The students probably look ahead and feel that there will always be plenty of law practice in the gas rate cases and the law suits over the Arkansas river water at the Colorado line.—Abilene Reflector.

Newspapers recently carried dispatches that "Jarring Jim" Bausch had been posing for pictures which bear indication that he would go after Johnny Weismuller's position as portrayer of jungle strong men. Could it be that Jim might go to the jungle to practice a while and give Kansas paragraphers something else to talk about?

Fifty-three members of the University of Missouri faculty are included in the 1932-33 "Who's Who in America."

The Snooper

"Thick and fast they came at last, and more and more and more. . ." Have you noticed during the last few days a vast aggregation trudging about on the campus? Don't you sleep well? Do your windows rattle on warm afternoons? Blame it on the college band.

The college band is composed of several hundreds of members of the student body from flushed youngsters to old men in wheel chairs whose talent ranges from mediocrity on down to bed rock. No instrument is lacking in the college band: sousaphones, saxophones, mellophones, trombaphones, there are scores of each.

However you would be surprised at the number of musicians that are turned down upon trying to get into the band. (NOBODY is turned down, now arent'cha surprised?) Evidently it is an honor to wear a wrinkled blue suit with a couple of strands of spaghetti tied across the chest.

The present problem of the authorities is how to get the whole band into the stadium grounds. It has been suggested that the band sit in the bleachers and have the fans occupy what is now the bandstand. The plan has not yet materialized, however. Last week they say one youngster spent the whole of one afternoon trying to find his way out of the reed section. We will not swear to the veracity of that statement.

Understand, this is not to make fun of a great organization. At least it gives us something to throw sour apple cores at. The children enjoy Major Ossman so much too. (the Maj. is the man with the head bandaged up like a wounded thumb.) As he minces along at the head of the band we almost expect him to start making gear-box noises with his mouth and occasionally reaching up and pulling an imaginary cord and whistling like a steam engine, but he never does.

Haw! Haw! and chuckle! We are expressing merriment at the antics of the Sig Ep pledges on the day before yesterday's eve. It seems that as the cook was called out of the scullery several of the young rogues purloined the evening allotment of steaks and ice cream and snuk out in the woods with the Alpha Delts. This left nothing with which to fill the hungry maws of the actives. However, the cook displayed her culinary abilities by preparing a makeshift meal with such rapidity that the grocery gong was delayed no more than fifteen minutes. Three rousing huzzas for cookie!

On Other Hills

A grandson of "Buffalo Bill" is a freshman at the University of Nebraska this year.

Fourteen states are represented in the enrollment at the Panhandle A. and M. college.

Men living outside fraternity houses do the best academic work according to Dr. H. L. Dodge in a survey for the association of University Professors. Women do about the same amount of work regardless of where they are housed.

After Washington university announced courses would be provided without charge to unemployed men and women in junior and senior work, more than 400 applications for free tuition were received by the college.

Forty-three states and 11 foreign countries are represented in the rolls of the University of Missouri. Students from the Philippines, Japan, Canada, Cuba, Turkey, Palestine, and Korea are included.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity took first place in scholarship at the University of Oklahoma last semester. Alpha Sigma Phi ranked last in the list.

Two University of Nebraska students hitchhiked to Washington last summer to shake hands with President Hoover. Covering the 6,000 miles in one month at a cost of about $30 apiece, they estimated the total hiking distance was about 15 miles.

Permanent employment among K. U. students this year include such jobs as waiting tables, washing dishes, soda "jerking," clerking at grocery stores, janitor work, accounting, cashier at bank, truck driving, house work, poster painting, clerking in dry goods stores, house to house canvassing, and selling coupons for various enterprises.

Two Oregon State co-eds were recently injured when two parties of students, who hired "hacks" met on a street and raced. One of the horses shied and there was a crash. The state board of education issued a decree against student-operated cars, hence the revised custom of the "gay nineties."

A philosopher of the modern age gives us the thought, "the only permanent thing in this universe of ours is change." Students in colleges and universities of America are passing through an unprecedented period of social and economic progression.

We have seen the so-called radical of yesterday flogged by public opinion and have lived to see his ideas and principles accepted as orthodox and proper by the same generation. The mad whirl of the great demand for speed, efficiency and original thought has left many of us gasping for the breath of realization of what is happening.—Indiana Daily Student.

STUDENT FROM INDIA AIRS VIEWS ON NATIVE LAND

Stephen Das, India, Maintains Intelectual Differences Cause Trouble.

"I have been away from India for quite a while," Stephen P. Das, Bangalore, India, said. "And I can't give you my opinion on this matter of Mahatma Gandhi's fast."

Das who is majoring in Agriculture here, spent one year in Europe before coming to United States to enter as a student at Kansas State college.

"According to what I have learned, Gandhi started this fast because he believed that the lower caste called the 'untouchables' were being done a moral and political injustice. According to the laws laid out by England," Das continued, "the 'untouchables' were to vote twice: Once as Hindus and the second time as the depressed class.

"To anyone this would seem quite reasonable, but if one were familiar with the timidness of these 'untouchables' he would know that in areas where the majority of people were of the higher class, the lower caste would be afraid to vote in opposition to them. Only in districts where the 'untouchables' were in the majority might they vote freely, without being swayed by the power of the high caste people.

"The British, according to a law made by the Donoughmore commission, tried to separate the 'untouchables' politically after having the satisfaction of separating them in their economic, social, and religious lives. What Gandhi proposed recently was that the voting should be done by the joint electorates for al communities and all classes should be represented on some agreed platform. Still, even though some of the British commissions reported favorably and backed Gandhi on his stand against the government, Great Britain did not heed them and when Gandhi heard of this, he devised this death fast in opposition to the government. He knew that if the British government would let him die, they would have to deal with the whole of India.

"Great Britain, forced to take quick action, presented a compromise on the privileges of the 'untouchables' in legislative elections. This caused Mahatma Gandhi to break his fast."

There are about fifty million "untouchables" in India, according to Das.

TIGER SHARK

Mon—Tues—Wed

The Star of Blessed Event

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON

College men and women, no matter how sophisticated, will enjoy, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe." For in every man and woman there breaths that spirit of adventure, that longing to get away from civilization and go native.

Douglas Fairbanks makes a bet with a friend that he can live on an uninhabited island for several months and during that time build himself a penthouse, having hot and cold running water.

Doug lives up to his bet. He makes everything man could possibly make with a human hand, even a radio. While on the island, Doug not only finds a man Friday, but a girl, Saturday.

The lines are good. Doug hops around a little too much considering his age, but all in all, its okey. —ed.

AT THE VARSITY
"Tiger Shark"

Big, cruel fish, swishing through Pacific waters, supply the background for this intense drama, "Tiger Shark," at the Varsity.

Edward G. Robinson, a Portuguese fisherman, marries Quita, played by Zita Johann who falls in love with her husband's best friend Pipes, portrayed by Richard Arlen. Quita and Pipes, who both are grateful for having their lives saved by this man at different times, keep the knowledge of their love from him until they all are out in the shark-infested waters of Mexico fishing for tuna. The man-eating sharks finally preside as judges in this most thrilling sea romance.

The photography under water and of the toiling crew catching tuna is unusuual. All Edward G. Robinson fans will enjoy his new character role as a fisherman, which carries with it love, thrills, and lots of excitement.—S.S.

Misses Maxine Morehead, Georgia Apple and Marie Apple were dinner guests at Clovia Tuesday evening.

The Franklin literary society will have its annual fall hike Saturday, October 1. The meeting place will be at the east door of Nichols gymnasium at 4:30 o'clock.

Dean Justin and Miss Margaret Ahlborn, assistant dean of home economics, left Monday on a business trip to Kansas City.

PARTY slippers are more important than ever this season. The accepted instep-length evening wear bars shabby footgear. With only the tops of the toes, and the slender high heels showing beneath the frock, much concentration must be placed on correct slippers. T-strapped sandals of crinkly white crepe are being shown at Nygren's Shoe store, Manhattan's most exclusive shoe shop. These silver trimmed sandals may be tinted the color of your party dress, or of you like, a contrasting color. And they're only $5.50.

IF it's a coke and a smoke you want, drop into the College Canteen, the campus hang-out. All the Hill's elite gather in this most conveniently located Canteen, where thirst is quenched with the iced-drinks we all crave between classes. And if you've acquired that tea habit so many of us have, you'll find that English refreshment being served at the Canteen. The private booths are an excellent place to cram for those quizzes, or to enjoy a rendezvous with the latest interest. Meet your friends at the College Canteen.

The sweet is paying for the sneak. Pi Phi pledges at meeting the other night presented to each active a box of chocolates.

Elden Auker, the triple threat man who made last year's football games, classics, sat in the stadium here last Saturday for the first time. He was accompanied by none other than Mildred Purcell, former campus social light, who now teaches in Hutchinson.

AGGIEVILLE has the best new place to eat. The Canary Cottage, just across from the campus. Two young women who really know what college students and faculty like to eat manage the Canary Cottage where nice hot and cold luncheons are served. Lovely dinners, with special salads are arranged attractively. Two meals are served on Sunday. Organizations desiring an unusually good luncheon or dinner should make reservations at the Cottage. Why be satisfied with the mediocre when the Canary Cottage's excellence may be enjoyed at really moderate prices.

Dan Blaine, the red-haired football hero, is so much in demand that co-ed classmates are asking him for his phone number.

And aren't they the dearest things? The Wareham Hat Shop in the Wareham building is the one place in town where you're sure to find just the right hat for the right occasion. Huddle-Hats are those clever little hats all the better-dressed girls are wearing. But if you want a pull-on of a slightly different type, the Wareham Hat shop advocates a "Handicap." And they're just that.

Jane Kahl's smart brown swagger suit brought many comments from the admiring co-eds at the game Saturday.

COOL days mean departure from that old summer suit. And there's nothing that will fill the hole in your wardrobe quite so well as a pair of warm corduroy trousers and a soft suede or corduroy jacket. The Varsity Clothing Store has a recent shipment of this most suitable of campus wear. Smart new ties in all the latest colors can be found at the Varsity. The popular Manhattan shirts, noted for well-fitting collars, are priced for you. You're always sure to have on the right clothes if they come from the Varsity.

Graham will be carrying a light bulb across the goal line tomorrow afternoon when Kansas State meets Purdue. At least he'll be doing that in the college auditorium, where that grand old institution, the Gridgraph, will be again in operation.

SAY what you want to, it's impossible to wear one of those new hats if your hair isn't just right. Perfect waves, ending in crisp ringlets, add so much towards the achievement of smartness. The Varsity Beauty Shop, conveniently located at 615 North Manhattan Avenue, has the best offer on permanents. Only $2.00 for the spiffiest of waves. And the sweet part of it all is the fact that with one of those nice permanents, your hair problem is solved for several months. Call 3135 for an appointment.

One of the smarter co-eds, upon hearing that D. Lynch, who operates an elevator in western Kansas, and Georgia McNickle, '31, were to be married, remarked, "I don't see how they could get married on an elevator boy's salary."

TWELVE MEN OUT FOR THE TWO-MILE TEAM

Nucleus Will be Formed Around Four Lettermen, According to Haylett.

With fall track practice in full swing, approximately 40 men are reporting to Coach Ward Haylett for workouts for the two-mile team and other track events.

As 12 of these men out for the two-mile, Kansas State has an excellent chance to develop a good two-mile team this year. Four of these are lettermen, providing a veteran nucleus for the team. The lettermen are: Don Landon, M. W. Pearce, M. E. Nixon, and L. R. Daniels. These men played an important part in placing the K-Aggies second in the conference last year, and will probably go a long ways in producing a winning team this year.

Instead of holding two-mile races between halves of football games this year, an all-conference meet will be held at Lawrence, November 5. This change was made in the interests of economy. However, telegraphic two-mile races will be held between schools, keeping up the interest in two-mile running.

The other men out for the two-mile tea mare: Kenneth Phelps, Joe McNay, H. H. Harris, M. P. Rogers, Donald Cristy, H. C. Getty, N. E. Miller, and W. C. Covington.

Of the group of men out for fall training in other events, six are lettermen These men are: L. R. Schmutz, W. A. Laird, E. R. Kennedy, N. E. Miller, M. G. Bliss. and J. E. Veatch. Others putting in time around the oval are: N C. Booth, Joe Knappenberger, George Bell, Stephenson, E. Herkowitz, R. M. Dill, A. D. Tindoll, W. L. Wheelock, Raymond Murray, W. V. Dexter, Walter Herrmann, W. P. Hackney, A. R. Duree, Ralston Clause, J. W. Coate.

Among The Ags

If you call 36182 and someone at the other end answers, "Chicken Roost," you needn't feel that you have called the asylum by mistake. The six boys who stay in the stone house up at the north end of the poultry farm have organized the Chicken Roost club, a sort of a fowl organization.

Those new custom-made cords of Porky Wilhelm's are just too interesting in their capaciousness to be passed by without comment. Wilhelm, hefty graduate student in the poultry department, has an 18-inch knee and a forty-something waist which necessitates special clothes. "I have to order everything at least a month before I think I'll want it," he explains.

I had always had a bit of curiosity concerning the actual position and use of the wishbone in a chicken, but now I think I understand—thanks to the exhibit of chicken skeletons in the poultry reading room. It seems that the frequently-pulled bone holds the chicken's shoulders together and keeps his neck from dropping too low, but you're welcome to your own opinion.

The dairy department retail sales room is getting a new coat of paint, and the dairy department is getting a new barn. Who said there was a depression?

And we'll bet that the bluest boys in town Saturday afternoon were the members of a judging class who sold their tickets because their professor insisted on holding class, and then he dismissed the boys in time for the game.

Dr. John H. Parker is a problem for the stenos in the east ag building. It seems that he is prone to make appointments to meet various officials which he either forgets entirely or wishes to change. The stenos have to make all the arrangements.

And in the Block and Bridle reading room on the lower floor of the east ag building is an exhibit of horseshoes which is an education in this tractor age. Everything is their from balanced racing shoes to an extra-heavy monster that looks like it was made for the "daddy of them all."

WILL HOLD TRYOUTS FOR SWIMMING CLUB

Test Will Consist of Good Formation, Speed, Dives, and Endurance.

Tests for the "Frog" club, women's swimming club, will be held next Tuesday, October 4, and Thursday, October 13, at the women's swimming pool in Nichols gymnasium, under the supervision of Miss Helen Saum, head of the women's physical education department.

Tryouts for membership into the club are held each fall and any girl in college is eligible to take the swimming test which will consist of good swimming formation, side, back, and crawl stroke, a speed of swimming the length of the pool in sixteen seconds, three dives, the standing, running front, and one optional, and endurance to swim the length of the pool three times.

No girl will be expected to pass every part of the test in perfert form, and everyone is invited to try out for eligibility into the club. Further requirements for actual membership at a later date will be perfection of certain life-saving tests. Members of the club will demonstrate their work with a swimming pageant which will be presented in a few months.

DAIRY JUDGING TEAM TO WATERLOO TODAY

Final Selections for Team Made by Professor Cave Wednesday.

Members of the dairy cattle judging team which will represent Kansas State at the Waterloo Dairy Cattle congress at Waterloo, Iowa, next week were announced Wednesday by Prof. H. W. Cave of the department of dairy husbandry. The team left this morning.

The four men picked from an original squad of ten are Pius Hostetler, Harper; Wayne Jacobs, Harper; Orville Denton, Norton; and C. G. Page, Norton.

Team members will work out on dairy cattle belonging to Nebraska university later in the day. The boys will also work on several Iowa herds, including a herd of Brown Swiss cattle at Fort Dodge, before the contest Monday, according to their coach.

Last year the Kansas State team won first place in the college teams judging contest at the Waterloo show, making almost a clean sweep of the trophies offered. Some 25 different kinds of prizes ranging from brief cases to book ends were brought home by Kansas State judges.

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

Y.W.C.A. PILOTS HOP OFF IN DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

DRIVE TO BE CARRIED IN MANNER OF AIR DERBY—$700 IS FINANCE GOAL.

DERBY ENDS ON THURSDAY

Every Woman Student Will Be Contacted in Next Three Days—Organization Carries on Various Activities for Members.

Wearing figurative flying suits, goggles, parachutes and the like, 11 Y. W. C. A. airplanes, likewise figurative, hopped off last night at 7:30 o'clock from recreation center airport to compete in the third annual membership and finance air derby. Until next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock planes will make refueling stops at the home of each woman student of Kansas State college.

Contacts will be made with every woman student and the planes will attempt to set a new finance altitude record of $700 for the student unit, according to Dorothy MacLeod, general secretary. At the end of the trans-campus flight Thursday the planes will land in the Y. W. C. A. office in Anderson hall where pilots and mechanics will recount stirring tales of their flights and hand over membership and finance log books to Miss MacLeod for tabulation of results.

Began 59 Years Ago.

From its beginning 59 years ago at a small college in Iowa to its present position of world-wide membership and influence, the Y. W. C. A. has devoted itself to the practical expression of an ideal. Not to preach platitudes, but to mold personalities—"Girls are made, not [illegible]," is a significant part of the creed of the Young Women's Christian Association.

That its program may not become stereotyped and standardized, the student Y. W. C. A. seeks to provide practical answers to the different problems of college women on diferent campuses. The organization's leadership at each institution is made up of faculty members, students and townswomen who study the needs of women at that institution, then plan activities that will meet those needs.

At Kansas State college, Y. W. C. A. activities which are best known are: the "college sisters"—every new girl in college is assigned a "sister" who helps her get acquainted here; the student forums which consist of talks by nationally-known persons—Norman Thomas, Ruth Bryan Owen, and Afred M. Landon are among those to be here soon; and the all-school parties and other affairs it helps sponsor to promote friendliness among all the students.

Maintains Interest Groups.

The Y. W. C. A. membership is divided into various groups according to the members' interests—there is a group which studies dramatics, another which is interested chiefly in modern social problems, another which seeks to train young women as leaders. New this year is the orientation group, which seeks a general answer to problems encountered when one comes to college, such as where one's money goes, and how to make and keep new friends. These smaller groups are especially advantageous when the association membership is large, as at Kansas State where last year 650 women of the 950 in college, belonged to the Y. W. C. A.

New members are asked to contribute $2 when they join the organization, this being about the average contribution from all members. The organization budgets its finances, the amount sought here this year being $350 less than last year's budget. Contributions from student members, the college faculty, and townspeople are to be sought in the campaign next week, in order that the organization may carry out its program at Kansas State during the ensuing year.

PHOTOS BEING TAKEN

Organization pictures are now being taken by the Browne-Sparr studios for the 1933 Royal Purple. Stephen Vesecky, business manager, announced that the photo-editors from most of the organizations are giving favorable response to the staff's requests.

All organization pictures will be finished by the end of October.

MAKE PERSONAL TALKS

Members of Aggie Pop Committee Interest Fraternities.

Members of the Aggie Pop committee are making personal talks Tuesday and Wednesday night to each fraternity and sorority to interest them in entering Aggie Pop, annual stunt night sponsored by the Young Women's Christian association, which will be presented December 2 and 3.

This year the five long stunts will be given by women's organizations and the five short stunts by men's organizations instead of allowing fraternities and sororities to enter either length stunt as has been done previously. The purpose of this is to allow men to compete with men and women with women.

Manuscripts are due October 26 and the final acts will be chosen by a student-faculty committee which has not yet been chosen.

INVITES FRATERNITIES TO BE VARSITY GUESTS

Each Fraternity Will Be Allowed to Attend One Free Dance During Year.

An inovation in varsity dance procedure will commence next Saturday night when Delta Tau Delta fraternity will be the guests of Blake Wareham, manager, and June Layton, orchestra leader. Through cooperation with the senior men's Pan-Hellenic council, the management of varsities has agreed to extend invitations to Kansas State fraternities to attend one varsity dance free of charge during the school year.

On each Monday night names of Greek letter organizations are to be drawn to determine the fraternity which will be favored the following week end. Announcement of the drawings will eppear in Tuesday issues of the Collegian. The plan has been adopted to stimulate Pan-Helenic activities and assist in promoting friendships and acquaintances among members of the student body.

Fraternities will be given the opportunity to make their special night unique in any respect the members choose, according to Manager Wareham. It has been suggested that the electric badges of the guest fraternity be placed in the balroom and lighted during the affair. June Layton has offered to cooperate with the various organizations by arranging their respective songs for orchestra presentation provided the musical numbers are submitted to him in sufficient time.

Cooking, Washing and Pressing Help Students Make Way in School

The table is spread! Odors of steaming coffee pour across a spotless kitchen. Fried potatoes, meat and fruit are piled high on the plates. Bread, butter, and jelly are ready to be eaten. The dinner bell rings. Eight students are ready to eat the meal which they have prepared for themselves in domestic fashion.

On the second floor of the old Alpha Gamma Rho house, 1126 Bluemont, these freshmen men are literally "working their way through college" by doing their own cooking, washing their own clothes, and pressing their own suits. They have organized themselves into the Leavenworth County club, and have joined hands in working and keeping down expenses.

Before school started the students brought a truck-load of vegetables, fruits, and canned goods from their homes in Leavenworth county to their rooms. The supplies, now stored in the basement of the house, include such items as corn, beans, potatoes, peas, carrots, lard, good home-made jelly, and several varieties of fruit.

All members of the club are from Leavenworth county. Richard New is president of the organization and Alvin Mistler is secretary-treasurer. Other members of the club are Walter Wolfarth, Drake Spencer, Frank Stuckey, Horace Lamborn, and Vincent Blanche. Donald Lorig, Neodesha, also stays at the club, although he is not a member.

Room and board bills probably do not cost the students over $10 per month, and if present plans work out, they believe expenses will be much cheaper. Walter Wolfarth is head chef at the house. "A lot of work," says Walter, "but plenty of fun and experience."

The old undesirable job of dishwashing has been arranged among the students so that each one will have a daily chance to show his skill in washing and wiping dishes. Immediately after the meal two students are scheduled to clear the table and polish the pots and pans.

Plenty of fresh meat and other products will be on hand this winter when families of the students contribute pork and beef from their farms. And of course, there will be pumpkins and squashes from the late fall gardens.

Once a week the students forget their duties in the kitchen and set to work washing their clothes. A single wash-board serves as a washing machine. Plenty of action here when these students roll up their sleeves and do their laundry, which will soon find its way to an ironing board on the second floor of the Leavenworth County club.

PIANO RECITAL IN ASSEMBLY

Miss Helen May Martin, Noted Deaf and Blind Artist, Will Play.

Miss Helen May Martin, noted deaf and blind artist, will give a piano recital at student assembly to be held Wednesday, at 10:15 o'clock.

MANY ATTEND MIXER IN GYM FRIDAY NIGHT

Several Hundred Students and Townspeople Were Present at Annual Affair.

Now that you have met that elusive good looking girl you've tried to bump into since the first of school, and now that you have met your favorite instructor's wife and have seen how your chemistry partner looks without his apron, you are assured of a more enjoyable year at Kansas State.

Many new acquaintances were formed and a wonderful time was had by the several hundred students, faculty members and Manhattan business people who attended the all-college mixer Friday night in Nichols gymnasium.

Rev. W. U. Guerrant, student pastor of the Presbyterian church, Miss Lorraine Maytum, of the physical education department and assisted by women students of the same department, conducted get-together games which were enjoyed by everyone there. The Harmony quartet, composed of Dr. C. O. LaShelle, Paul Dooley, Clifford George and Tom McClung, Manhattan business men, sang several numbers which were greatly enjoyed and appreciated. Community singing was then led by Chester Guthrie.

Prof. H. Miles Heberer, of the department of public speaking, directed a short dramatic skit which was greatly enjoyed. News films of Kansas State campus were shown after which the Mason dancing school presented five entertaining dancing acts. There was dancing until 11:30 o'clock.

STATE OFFICIALS LET CONTRACT FOR NEW DAIRY BARN

THREE BIDS TOTAL $43,909.50 TO LEAVE SURPLUS OF $1,100 IN FUND.

WORK STARTS IMMEDIATELY

Blazer Vollmer of Wichita Wins General Building Contract—Necessary to Change Plans to Keep Within Regents Limits.

The contract for the new $43,909.50 dairy barn and equipment was let yesterday in the State Business Office in Topeka. The Blazer Vollmer company of Wichita received the contract on the general construction for $39,975; the Lyon Plumbing company of Salina will do the heating and plumbing work for $2,835 and the wiring went to the Overton company of Topeka at $1,099.50. There is a $1,100 surplus.

It was necessary to make certain changes in the plans for the dairy barn in order to keep the contract price within the limits set by the state board of regents. The tips which were designed to include the judging pavilion and the calf pen were, left off the two east wings.

The barn will be U-shaped and wil face west on the road that runs north back of the college stadium. It will be located northwest of the present college dairy barn.

The building will be 210-feet long and 40-feet wide, acording to Prof. F. C. Fenton head of the agricultural engineering dept. The main part of the building will be large enough to house 70 cows. In the wings wil be pens and box stalls. There will also be a feed room with storage space above. Four silos are included in the plans. The milk houses will be located in the front and attached to the main building. The outside of the wal will be of native limestone.

Work will start right away and the barn is to be finished in four or five months. The water line is being laid at the present time from the power plant to the place where the dairy barn wil be located.

Those from the college attending the session were Dean L. E. Call, Dean Seaton, Prof. J. B. Fitch, G. R. Pauling and F. C. Fenton.

WILDCAT CROWD MOVES ON SALINA

Many Students and Ninety-Piece Band Will Accompany Team on Trip.

Several hundred students and fans along with the K-Aggie 90-piece band will accompany the McMillinmen to Salina Friday night where they tangle with Kansas Wesleyan at 7:45 under the lights.

Tickets are on sale at the gymnasium until Friday noon. The general admission will be $1.00 or $1.50 for reserved seats.

The Union Pacific is running a special train, leaving at 1:50 o'clock Friday afternoon and will return immediately after the game.

The game which is not considered as tough as the rest of the K-Aggie schedule, will give the crowd many thrills. Kansas Wesleyan is ranked as the roughest, toughest light team in Kansas football circles.

This week the K-Aggie football squad will probably drill entirely on offense. Last night Bo McMillin scrimmaged all the varsity men who did not get in the Purdue game Saturday, and a few who did, against the freshmen. Probably something new in a football lineup will be seen Friday.

FARRELL TO WASHINGTON

Pres. F. D. Farrell has gone to Washington, D. C., to attend a meeting of President Hoover's land use planning committee. This committee is composed of 15 prominent agriculturists and meets several times each year to discuss the use of marginal land.

The scouts from the Central Field of the Jayhawk area, which includes Abilene, Concordia, Junction City, Salina, and Manhattan, will arrive about noon to be guests of Alpha Phi Omega, the national honorary scouting fraternity. HEAR GREEK TAX CASE

The Kansas supreme court, sitting yesterday in its first session since July, heard arguments in the suit introduced by college fraternities at Kansas State college, Kansas university, and Baker university claiming tax exemption for their houses and other property, according to an Associated Press dispatch received here last night.

Robert Stone and Ralph Oman of Topeka appeared in behalf of the K. U. and Baker fraternities, while Henry H. Asher of Lawrence represented the Douglas county commissioners. Attorneys for the Manhattan fraternities and Riley county commissioners made no oral arguments.

The arguments were on the finding and recommendations of Commissioner C. E. Vance of Garden City who found the real estate and ritualistic apparatus of the fraternities was subject to taxation.

KAPPA SIGMA VOTED OUT OF PAN-HELLENIC

FRATERNITY SUSPENDED FROM MEMBERSHIP IN COUNCIL FOR INDEFINITE TIME.

DECIDED BY VOTE OF 18-3

Charged With Violating Ruling—Organizations May Expect Refund on Greek Tax Subscriptions.

Kappa Sigma fraternity was indefinitely suspended from membership in the men's Pan-Hellenic council by a vote of 18 to 3 at the council's second meeting of the year last night, as a result of charges brought previously by the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

It was charged that Kappa Sigma had kept a rushee in its house the night of Monday, September 12, in violation of the council ruling that no rushee shall be kept in a member fraternity's house during rush week. E. E. Criner, Wichita, Alpha Tau Omega representative, and C. W. Ater, Fort Scott, Sigma Alpha Epsilon representative, who compose the disciplinary committee, investigated the charges and presented the facts to the council.

The suspension will result in Kappa Sigma withdrawing from any activities carried on by the Pan-Hellenic council, such as meetings, scholarship and activity awards, parties, and fare-wells. It is impossible to tell now when the organization will be re-admitted, according to Ater.

Suspension or such penalty as the council may deem fitting is provided by the constitution of the organization for breaking Pan-Hellenic rules. The suspended fraternity may be re-admitted at the discretion of the council.

Theta Xi fraternity submitted letters regarding Kappa Sigma's breaking of a rushee's first date without mutual consent of the parties involved, but no action was taken in this matter.

Fraternities and sororities organized against the pending fraternity taxation are expected to be refunded part of the $50 subscribed by each, since not all of the money colected will be used, it was brought out at the meeting. It was also revealed that several fraternities and sororities have either paid only part or none at all of their share. Sigma Phi Sigma, Omega Tau Epsilon, and Delta Zeta, organizations not now active, would share in the refund in case it is made.

TURN OUT THE LIGHTS!

One effective method of lowering current expenses and ultimate calamity howling on the part of various Kansas State fraternities may be achieved by simply turning out lights.

Last Friday morning as Collegians were being delivered to fraternities at 3:30 o'clock it was noticed that only four houses of the 22 were entirely dark. Porch lights were burning at nearly all the organizations and at some various inside lights were on. The change in procedure would bring about a noticeable reduction in electricity bills which must be paid each month.

The situation boils down to a mere flip of the wrist, so to speak, by the last member of the organization to enter the house at night. On week nights that would ordinarily mean than nearly all downstairs lights could be turned off at approximately 10 o'clock. Upstairs lights are usually taken care of adequately.

Complaints of excessive dues and special assessments could be considerably lessened in volume by extinguishing a few unnecessary lights.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE—SOPHISTICATED

College students are liable to the error of cultivating sophistication. Especially is this true of the first year men and women, who are frequently mistaken in the values which confound them upon entrance into a new world. The gulf between high school and college is too wide.

As a vaccine against such an error one might consider the doctor who discovered the cure for the incurably insane, and whose discovery was admittedly possible only because "he lacked sophistication."

A phenomenon among scientists who had struggled for years with the problem, Julius Wagner-Jauregg was so unsophisticated that he believed what he saw regardless of the fact that it did not tally with what he had learned.

He was so unsophisticated that he was not afraid to say that he believed it.

He was innocent enough to infect insane persons with a deadly malaria fever germ, and—cure them of both diseases.

Wagner-Jauregg was an educated man, to be sure, but he was not sophisticated.

He had no false notions to stand before his judgment and twist it into a semblance of itself. He was innocent enough to see what was happening. He was not afraid to admit that the many could be wrong, and the unbelievable possible.—Oklahoma Daily.

MACHINE-MADE EDUCATION

An editorial writer on a west coast student daily, seized by a fit of imagination, draws back the purple curtain of the future and sees the time when the talking movie will replace the lecturer in the classrooms of the nation's up-to-date universities. May the goddess who watches over students guard us from that day!

Large scale production methods which are taking the living out of life in every department in this age of the machine have already made serious conquests in the realm of educational methods. We go to class at the sound of the gong, study by the clock and, to a great extent, learn by rote like so many trick animals jumping at the crack of the trainer's whip. To go much further in this direction would mean the absolute end of genuine scholarship which is finding it hard to survive even now.

The handful of facts which the student carries away after four years from the classroom is poor equipment wrestling with the realities of the life he is thrust into. It is not the learning poured into him with a funnel, but that which he goes out and gets on his own initiative, that is whatever education worthy of the name he may manage to glean out of a college career.

The most valuable benefit of attending university is the opportunity it gives the student to associate with and personally contact and become acquainted with men and women who out of their own fine scholarship may impart to him a respect and desire for knowledge.

This principle is still recognized as the fundamental thing in educating young men and women in England. In America, sight of it is steadily being lost.

Many students, moreover, fail to avail themselves of the benefits of getting acquainted with their instructors. They go through four years and never know a teacher outside the classroom. They are thus losing the most valuable part of their education. Mostly they are afraid of being accused of "sucking" for a grade. Foolish attitude!

Get acquainted with your prof. He isn't a bad sort of guy.—Daily Nebraskan.

The Snooper

Great hue and cry was raised at the auditorium Saturday after the game when it was found after much grunting and pushing that Clay Reppert's head and a 300 lb. piece of grid-graph could not be forced through the same door all at one time. Clay was saved from possible annihilation by a timely remark from his brother Nelson who rationalized in this manner, "Clay, if your BACK was in there you might be getting hurt." Clay's answer was a series of queer gurgling noises. Time out was taken to scrape Clay's ears, adam's apple, and other connective tissues out of the wood work with a putty knife.

Some big, husky, hungry looking Betas are looking for the guy who started the rumor that their social privileges were taken away from them when the housemother found a MAN on the second floor.

Hear ye! Hear ye! The prize story of the week is the one about the Kappa's college complex, i. e., Miss Jane "head ache" Harman. She was overheard to say that although she was dated up every week end from now until June, she does have a few choice 7 'till 8 dates during the latter part of February which are open to a choice few whom she will consider if the proper credentials are submitted to her on or before November 1. We understand that most of the boys have thrown their Garbo pictures away and now wander around on quiet evenings in groups of five, discussing the attributes of this comely Kappa.

Some vet from Wisconsin whose name is not Johnson is going to show Frank Prentup a thing or three in the boxing class. "I've nevva fought inna ring," the vet said, snapping his kaleidescopic mail order suspenders, "but I've done plenny of it onna dance floor." We don't know the mug's name.

"Brick" Garrison lost a friendly fistic and muscular encounter to Horace Toll Saturday evening around varsity time when some unknown wastrel inserted a goodly portion of cleaner's soap in his mouth when he wasn't looking. "Brick" parted his maxillary and mandibular processes in order to sink his molars further into his opponent's back when the unknown third person administered the soap, putting it well back toward the adenoids. This, of course, rendered "Brick" unfit for further exchange of fisticuffs and Toll won the bout.

If you haven't noticed the sour-jowled cardboard wenches standing in the window of the College Book store, you have missed part of your college education. They look something like a couple of lady piano movers bothered with summer complaint, and must have been modeled from same. They advertise ladies gym wear which is four sizes too big for them. Maybe that is why they are looking so tough, we don't know.

On Other Hills

Seniors at Connecticut college have reserved exclusively for themselves the daily use of rouge or lipstick. Underclassmen may use these cosmetics only on week ends. Seniors also issued a proclamation that they alone may use roller skates on the campus.

Six brothers and sisters are enrolled as students at Kansas State Teachers' college. Two other members of the family are graduates of the college.

Books for Washburn students will cost them around $3,000 this year. There are nearly 750 students, alloting each approximately $4 for new books.

Students driving cars at the University of Oregon are required to pay a fee of one dollar for a license plate.

One of the most important traditions originating at Iowa State college in 1869 was the wearing of the red cap by all freshmen. On each cap is a button, the color of which designates the course of study in which the wearer is registered.

Needy students at Northwestern university were granted $30,000 in loans and $20,000 in scholarship awards this year to help them continue their college work. Three hundred students of the 500 who applied were given loans.

University of Alabama students who are outstanding in the study of Italian and Latin this year will be presented medals by the Italian government.

In a straw vote conducted by the college paper, the student body at the University of Indiana emphatically expressed itself in favor of opening the university library on Sunday afternoon.

Recommendations restricting athletes in training from entering campus politics were presented to students of the University of Indiana by Sigma Delta Chi and Mortar Board after it became evident that politicians benefitted by the use of an athlete's name.

The real reason why college cheers so frequently contain the word "rah" is because men ordinarily speak this sound louder than any other vowel, according to a professor of the University of Minnesota.

Mother and Dad will Be Guests of Honor At M. U. Grid Game

"Be sure to write and ask mother and dad to come down on Parents' day," is the admonition of the general committee headed by Pete Fairbank in preparing for the celebration Oct. 15, the date of the football game with Missouri university.

A program appealing to paternal fancies will be finished off in the evening after the game with an annual Parents' banquet in Thompson hall at six o'clock. Pres. F. D. Farrell, one parent, and one or two students will speak on the short program.

A military parade will be held at 11:15 o'clock in the morning. Preceding this, visiting of classes will be the order of the day. Laboratories will also be open for inspection.

"Everyone is welcome to the banquet," Kanney L. Ford, alumni secretary said, "especially students and their parents." Tickets will be on sale in Anderson hall a few days before the event.

Fairbank will be assisted by one representative from each of the following organizations: Y. W. C. A., women's pan-hellenic, men's pan-hellenic, and Van Zile hall. Fairbank represents the Y. M. C. A.

Prof. F. W. Bell of the department of animal husbandry, who has recently returned from Oklahoma City, Okla., where he judged livestock at the Oklahoma City state fair, left Monday for Stafford, where he will judge livestock at the Stafford county fair.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON

If you like Marlene Dietrich, you'll love her as the "Blonde Venus." This exotic star, playing the role of an American woman for the first time in her stage career, is as beautiful in the rags she wears, as in the creations designed by French coutures.

The story is rather trite. Miss Dietrick marries, has a child, sacrifices herself in order that her husband may have the medical care he needs, only to be thrown from her home when he learns she has violated the marriage vows. Miss Dietrich escapes with her son, and so they might eat, walks the streets. The son is finally found by the father, Miss Dietrich goes to Europe and stages a comeback in musical comedy. She returns to America with the man who broke up her home. Home ties call. In a sweet scene, the romance of Dietrich and her husband's romance is relived, and all is happy.

Herbert Marshall, as the husband, and Cary Grant, as the lover, are perfectly cast. Marshall has a very pleasing voice.—ed.

AT THE WAREHAM
"The Jewel Robbery"

Glittering jewels, smare clothes, and a Robin Hood-like romance for the background of this entertaining picture.

William Powell is a gallant burglar who finds romance when he tries to force a baroness, Kay Francis, into a vault while robbing a jewelry shop. The victim, a person who must have her romance, finds excitement and entertainment in this smooth bit of thievery. You'll enjoy the clock-like working of the finished plot.

The talkie ends with Kay leaving for Nice on a much needed vacation and William Powell following her with a strong inclination for the same place.—S.S.

AT THE VARSITY
"Night Mayor"

Movie-goers who saw Lee Tracy in "Blessed Event" were let down a bit by the picture Tracy is playing in at the Varsity. But that isn't Tracy's fault. He does an excellent portrayal of what sort of a life we of the province believe "Jimmy" Walker, New York's famous playboy ex-mayor, led.

Dedications, investigating committees, a Follies girl (yes, the "love element"), inquisitive reporters, et cetera, et cetera and et cetera, consume reel after reel of film just for the purpose of showing one that after all the mayor is only human.

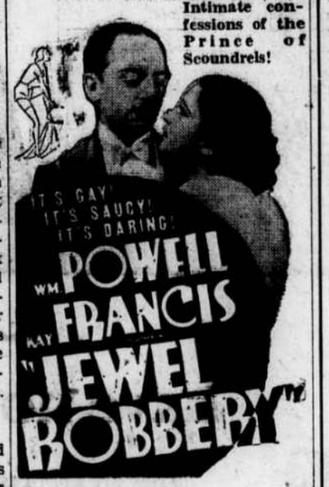

You'll like it. There are clever lines, plenty of action, (not one person is killed, however) and a plenty good supporting cast including Evalyn Knapp, and Eugene Palette.

The ending has that "O. Henry twist" to it, if you like your endings that way.—P. D.

KANSAS STATE OUTSCORED BUT NOT OUTPLAYED

M'MILLINMEN GO DOWN TO DEFEAT AT HANDS OF PURDUE.

RUSSELL SCORES 12 POINTS

Graham Kept From Usual Stride By Special Defense Arranged by Noble Kizer.

Outscored but not outplayed, Bo McMillin's powerful Kansas State eleven went down to defeat Saturday at the hands of the Purdue Boilermakers at Lafayette, Ind., 29 to 13.

Both teams made 13 first downs but the Boilermakers outgained the McMillinmen in scrimmage 304 yards to Kansas State's 281.

After being in a hole, due to the perfect kicking of Moss, left end for Purdue, during the entire first quarter, Kansas State came back in the second period and scored on a pass, Breen to Russell. Graham kicked the extra point.

Purdue scored early in the first period by blocking Russell's attempted punt back of his own goal line, for a safety. A touchdown followed a long pass, Hecker to Purvis, for Purdue, the latter catching the ball on the two yard line. Pardonner kicked the extra point. The score at half time, Purdue 9; K-Aggies 7.

Kansas State Outplayed.

During the third period the Kansas State men were completely outplayed but again in the last 15 minutes they came back and scored bringing the total to 13 counts. The Boilermakers scored 20 points in the last half.

In the last half three complete teams played against the Wildcats. Due to the unestimatable amount of reserve material, the K-Aggies were completely outclassed during the latter periods of the game. Seven complete teams suited up for Purdue.

Never until the last few minutes of the game did the McMillin men lose their fight and threat. It was a pass, Breen to Russell, in the final period that gave the K-Aggies their last 6 counts.

Doug Russell, sophomore back, McDonald, Pa., was the outstanding player of the day. Russell scored both touchdowns and made several fine runs around the Boilermaker's ends.

Graham Held Back.

Ralph Graham, fullback, was kept from his usual stride due to a special defense arranged by the Purdue coach, Noble Kizer, for his benefit.

Captain Walter Zeckser, guard, Alma, was the outstanding lineman on the defensive. Zeckser had to be taken from the game late in the last quarter due to a leg injury received while blocking.

Harry Hasler, end, ElDorado, could not re-enter the second half because of a shoulder injury. The injury proved to be more serious than was expected and he will probably be kept from practice for several weeks.

A summary of the game is as follows:

Sports Hi-Cups

Besides learning a lot of football last Saturday, the younger K-Aggies also learned some social strata. Jack Wiseman, after a Red cap had caried his luggage across the station in Chicago, merely said "thank you."

The Purdue seniors all buy derbys to wear to the games. Every derby is thrown in the air at least 7 hundred times during the game.

All the football men came back to Kansas wearing turtle necked jersies and derbys, the result of Purdue the game.

About 38 former K-Aggie graduates are now one the teaching staff of Purdue.

The three hitch-hikers, who went to the game last Saturday have set a new record. They left on Thursday and returned Sunday. Not one of the three paid a cent for rides.

Dean MacNeal: "Boy while I was gone I got the fastest free ride in the world. Just out of Chicago a fellow picked us up in a new Ford. V-eight. We rode 95 miles in 87 minutes.

Ask Tom Bushby about the game .... just out of Kansas City.

POPULAR DANCE BANDS OPEN WINTER POSTS

Guy Lombardo, Ozzie Nelson, and Isham Jones Appear in New York.

Activity among the dance bands finds several popular maestros opening at their winter posts. Among the current New York openings of interest are those of Guy Lombardo, whose melodies are again heard at the Roosevelt grill for the fourth consecutive winter (Sept. 28), Ozzie (crooning lawyer-quarterback) Nelson at the Paramount grill (Oct. 5), and Isham Jones at the Hollywood restaurant (Sept. 30). Several others, such as Eddie (pharmacist) Duchin of the tall-hat Central Park casino and Don ("How'm I Doin'?") Redman of Connie's Inn, are holding their current fortresses of terpsichore.

A late bulletin brings welcome news to Morton Downey's followers. At this writing a Woodbury Soap contract lies on the pink-cheeked Irish tenor's desk. Should he sign he will be heard on "To the Ladies" starting October 7 (WABC-Columbia, 9:30 to 10:00 P. M., EST, Fridays), with Leon Belasco, polylingual Russian violinist-conductor, who sings in seven languages. This is the combination which furnished New York's supper club sensation two winters ago at the Club Delmonico, whence Downey's vocalizing was first aired when he was starting his soaring career as a Columbia star.

IOWA STATE "B" MEN PLAY REGULAR GAMES

Have Two More Games Scheduled—Harry Johnson, Former Cyclone Star, Is Coach.

Ames, Iowa, Sept. 28—In order to give the entire squad of Cyclone football candidates a chance at regular competitive games, T. N. Metcalf, director of athletics, has scheduled three games for a "B" team.

The "B" team, composed of varsity reserves, will match strength with the Simpson reserves at Indianola Oct. 28, Fort Dodge Junior Colege of Fort Dodge Nov. 11, and the Drake freshmen at Des Moines Nov. 18. The games at Fort Dodge and Des Moines will be played under the lights at night. There is a possibility that two more games will be arranged.

Harry Johnson, end and acting captain of the Cyclone team in 1929, will coach the "B" eleven.

By arranging games for a "B" team the coaches are afforded an opportunity to observe all men out for football "under fire," and thus can gauge each man's real ability, Metcalf says. As the season progresses capable men will be transferred from the "B" squad to the varsity. Likewise, those who lag on the varsity squad may be demoted to the "B" squad.

Because so many employes of a Greenville, S. C., bleachery wanted a day off to campaign for a fellow worker who was running for sheriff the management closed the plant on primary day.

Among The Ags

The division has been getting more than its share of geneticists as visitors lately. They've come from everywhere—China, Hawaii, U. S. S. R. (Russia), and now—Denmark.

We had awaited this last man with a great deal of interest, partly because his publicity had been so excellent and extensive, and partially because we wanted to know just how his name was pronounced—whether the "w" in Winge was pronounced that way or like a "v."

According to the most accurate information it is in Danish a "v," but that doesn't keep the Doctor from being a most interesting man. Rather sharp-featured, medium tall, with snapping blue eyes he seems to grasp whatever is said to him almost before a sentence is finished.

It's a great life these geneticists have, crossing fishes, mice, sorghums, grasshoppers, counting chromosomes, estimating haploids, diploids, etc., ad finitum. Very simple, they say, just a matter of mathematics and the law of averages plus all the experimental knowledge that man has gained and whatever ingenuity any individual experimenter may have. Very simple.

A hatchery operators' school is to be held by the poultry department next week with "progressive hatcheries" as the theme, which makes us think of that reminder "don't count your chickens before they're hatched." But we see that the program doesn't mention anything of that sort or any method of determining whether the chick is to be a pullet or rooster. Shucks. Perhaps the geneticists could help them.

Bits of rumor are floating around about the ancient, honorable, and exclusive rite of the division commonly called the "Ag Barnwarmer." Nominations for queen are being solicited; so are free offers of baled hay. It seems that the animal husbandry department isn't furnishing the fixings so readily this year because of the rough treatment some of the hay received last year.

We believe that the boys working for the dairy products judging team deserve a hand. Anybody who wishes to taste and estimate the grade of butter, milk, and cheese (especially some kinds) deserves martydom—and gets a medal.

FROG CLUB TO HOLD FIRST TRYOUT TONIGHT

Girls who have signed up for Frog club are Lucille Jontz, Abilene; Wilma Womer, Topeka, Ernestine Young, Arkansas City; Betty Wagstaff, Topeka, Lucille Allman, Manhattan; Mary Kendall, Great Bend; Cora Oliphant, Offerle; Elsie Gottschalk, Wichita; Evelyn Young, Arkansas City; Alice Wilsey, Washington; Myrtle Andres, Alta Vista; Mabel Hall, Kensington; Erma Jean Miller, Manhattan; Wilma Cook, Ash Valley; Dorothy Cortelyou, Manhattan; Jane Swenson, Phoenix, Ariz.; Rita Brown, Edmond; Arlene Smith, Topeka; Ruth DeBaum, Topeka; Ona Lee Burson, Lucinne Hudson, and Maxine McKinley, all of Manhattan.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

EXHIBIT WATER COLORS IN ARCHITECTURE DEPT.

Summer Work of Prof. L. Burr Smith On Display for Two Weeks.

Water colors of L. Burr Smith, assistant professor in the department of architecture, will be shown in the department galleries for two weeks, beginning Monday, October 10. Most of the 24 pictures represent the past summer's work, and were done here and in New Mexico. The campus scenes will be of particular interest to students.

Concerning this first Manhattan exhibition of Professor Smith's work Prof. John F. Helm of the architecture department says, "We are delighted that students and Manhattan people are to have an opportunity to view these fine water-colors."

Professor Smith was graduated from Kansas State in 1926, and has studied at Harvard university.

LANDON GIVES VIEWS OF PARTY PLATFORM

Says No Governor Can Succeed Without Aid From the Legislature.

After being introduced as the next governor of Kansas at student forum Wednesday noon, Alf. M. Landon, Republican nominee for governor launched a forceful and straight-from-the-shoulder campaign speech. He gave his views on the proposed tax amendments and discussed the Republican platform in general.

Then into his political speech Mr. Landon said, "the Republican state platform is a pledge to lower tax levies whether or not the tax limitation amendment is voted for in the November election." Stating the want for greater economy in state government and a more equitable distribution of the burden, he said, "we are continually fighting for a better and more economical government. I am not a miracle man, the ills will not disappear entirely with my election, for no governor can succeed without a great deal of aid and especially from the legislature."

Mr. Landon said the country must do two things. "We simply must slow up in spending so much money, no matter how it is made or spent. Taxes must be reduced so people can use their money to build up business and agriculture. Now we are all of us spending money for just the things we must have, not for the things we want. There must be more fair and equitable tax apportionment."

Agricultural conditions must be improved in order to revive business generally and a more equitable relationship between the farm prices and goods and services which the farmer must buy should be brought about.

Of the tariff Mr. Landon said, "I favor a tariff on oil. Kansas has the greatest combination of fuel and transportation resources from her east to her west boundary of any state in the Mississippi valley. An intelligent leadership is necessary so that Kansas may be a great industrial as well as an agricultural state."

He lauded Hoover's Des Moines speech as drawing many new votes from the middle west and putting a new fight into the Republican ranks. Of Governor Woodring and Franklin D. Roosevelt he said, "They are good friends and even advisers, and they both admit it. Do you want a governor who is wet in Albany and dry in Kansas?"

Mr. Landon concluded by reminding that Kansas is facing a great responsibility, more than an ordinary campaign is at hand and we must fight our way out together. From the 70's on, people of Kansas have fought and won over grasshoppers, floods, droughts, prohibition, and war and we must continue to fight.

Dorothy Barlow, Manhattan, B. S. '32, has recently gone to Dayton, Ohio, to accept a position in the Sweet Shop there. She received her bachelor's degree in institutional economics at the end of summer school.

Helen Durham and Richard Herzig Place First in Radio Contest.

District radio audition winners were announced late Tuesday evening by Prof. Richard Jesson of the music department, who was chairman of the contest broadcast over station KSAC. The contest was held last week but it was necessary to await the return of radio listeners' votes, which counted one-third in the contest before winners could be announced.

Miss Helen Durham, a graduate of the Kansas State music department, who is doing graduate work here was first place winner in the women's contest. Each contestant was designated by number instead of by name. Miss Durham was number two in the contest. Miss Katherine Peterson, whose number was one, placed second in the women's contest.

Richard Herzig, Salina, a junior in music education here placed first in the men's class. E. L. Stevens, Manhattan, a graduate of Kansas State, was second.

The Manhattan district will be represented by the local winners of the men's and women's contests in the state contest at Wichita, the time of which has not been officially announced. Each winner of the district audition will receive a certificate.

NAMES PRODUCTS JUDGES

Dairy Team Will Represent Kansas State at Detroit.

The four men who will represent Kansas State at the student's national contest in judging dairy products at Detroit, Mich., October 17, were selected by Prof. W. H. Martin, team coach, last night.

Members of the team are Harry Coberly, Gove; F. E. Davidson, Madison; Nevlyn R. Nelson, Belle Plaine; and Wilfred Pine, Lawrence. Three men constitute a team, Professor Martin said, but he has not as yet selected an alternate.

Butter, milk, cheese, and ice cream are the four dairy products judged in the contest. Seven samples of each product are used. Last year at Atlantic City, New Jersey, the Kansas State team placed seventh in this contest.

STADIUM BOARD PICKS MANAGERS FOR DRIVE

Students Will Be Solicited for Pledges of Five Dollars for Each Semester.

Don Johnston, Manhattan, and Dick McCord, Manhattan have been chosen by the stadium board to conduct the 1932-33 stadium drive which will commence Monday, according to Prof. J. V. Cortelyou, secretary of the board.

The advertising program for the drive for funds for completion of the stadium has been outlined, and it is planned to cover a period of four weeks this year. Six weeks has been the time-allotment in past years. This year there are two managers instead of one.

Students will be solicited for pledges of five dollars for each semester in college here; that is, $40 if a student attends school here eight semesters. In the past all students have been asked for $10 cash and three successive payments of $10 each after leaving school.

The old plan of pledging was adopted in 1922 and is now regarded as out of date by the board, Professor Cortelyou said. This year $40 will be the maximum pledge accepted from students. This same amount was formerly the usual minimum.

No cash will be expected from students this year, according to the new plan, and students may place the time of payment for the pledges as far in advance as they wish.

The stadium board is composed of representatives of the Manhattan clearing house, the chamber of commerce, the city commission, and alumni asociation, and three members appointed by the president of the college. The personnel is as follows:

Dr. H. H. King, chairman; Prof. J. V. Cortelyou, secretary; Prof. M. F. Ahearn; Dr. J. T. Willard; Dean R. A. Seaton; H. W. Brewer; J. W. Berry; H. S. Ramey; and Carl Floersch. The first five mentioned, who are faculty members, chose the managers for this year's drive.

Ingrid Jernberg, Lindsborg, M.S. '32, has received a position teaching home economics in the high school at Falun, Kansas. She received her master's degree at the end of summer school.

Tonight's Grid Battle Will Attract Kansas State Fans

WILDCATS WORK PASS DEFENSE IN LAST PRACTICE

BO SPENDS MUCH TIME WORKING ON RESERVE MATERIAL LAST NIGHT.

35 PLAYERS TO WESLEYAN

Squad Will Leave on Special Train at 1:50 This Afternoon—Opponents Ready for "Rammer" Graham.

Working most on reserve material, the K-Aggie football squad was put through a long "dummy" scrimmage last night in preparation for the Wesleyan-Kansas State grid battle tonight at 7:45 o'clock.

Coach McMillin spent much time in perfecting plays and pass defense. A small amount of time was used in preparing the K-Aggie passing attack, which seemed almost at a stand still last week in the Kansas State-Purdue battle at Lafayette, Ind.

The squad will leave on the special Union Pacific train this afternoon at 1:50 which will carry several hundred students to Salina to see the Kansas State Wildcats in their first night appearance. About 35 men will make the trip.

Not much is known about the Kansas Wesleyan eleven, except that they are practicing on a defensive combination which will stop "Rammer" Ralph Graham and at the same time throw a wrench in the works of the Breen-Russel passing combination.

Harry Hasler, end, ElDorado whose shoulder was injured in the Purdue game, will not be in the starting line-up. Shelby Neely, letterman, has been assigned to his post.

Ralph McAtee, sophomore back who was injured in the freshman-reserve battle Monday night, will not be in suit tomorrow night owing to a severe ankle injury.

Raymond Doll, Ellinwood, letterman, is still kept from practice due to a leg injury which became infected after the Wichita university-K-Aggie battle.

L. B. Pilcher, Glasco, guard, is back in suit and will probably see action tonight against Salina. Pilcher received an ankle injury during the last practice before the squad left for Lafayette last week.

The probable starting line-up includes Neely and Shaffer, ends; Weybrew and Dalton, tackles. Captain Zeckser and Blaine, guards; Michael, center; and Breen, Bushby, Graham and Russel in the backfield.

JUNIORS AND SENIORS AIDED

Eighty-Four Upperclassmen Helped With Alumni Loan Fund.

Only juniors and seniors are being aided by the $44,000 in the alumni loan fund which as now all been put to use. Out of a sum of $10,000 loaned to students since August 1, 84 upper classmen have been aided with an average of $130 each.

This fund which is administered by a committee of five is kept up in the main by graduates who secure a life membership in the alumni association by paying $50. This money is loaned to worthy students at the rate of six per cent interest a year. The alumnus is then relieved of paying yearly dues of $3 and has this living memorial to his memory after he is gone.

When the husband and wife are both members they only pay $75. The Kansas Industrialist is sent to all life members.

ENROLLMENT NOW 2,467

Official Tabulation Shows Freshman Class Is Largest With More Than Six Hundred Students.

The noses are all counted and the official tabulation from the office of the registrar now shows a total enrollment of 2,467 since September 13. Of this number 1,655 are men as compared with 812 women. The total number enrolled for the first semester last year was 2,900.

As usual the freshmen far exceed in numbers with 420 men and 220 women. Of this number 82 are in Agriculture, 30 in Veterinary Medicine (including preparatory students), 115 in Home Economics, 260 in General Science and 153 in Engineering.

The division of General Science has the largest enrolment with a total of 915, of which 524 are men and 391 women. Engineering comes in second with 682, including 11 women. The third largest division is Home Economics, with a total of 408. Agriculture ranks fourth with a total of 303, including 2 women, and Veterinary Medicine is fifth with an enrollment of 160, including one woman.

The exact distribution of upper classmen as to division and classification is as follows: Agriculture sophomore men 62; junior men 57, women 1; senior men 67; special students, men, 5; graduates, men 28, women 1. Veterinary Medicine sophomore men 50; junior men 36, women 1; senior men 2; men special students 2; men graduate students 1. Home Economics sophomores 97; juniors 85; seniors 67; specials 4; and graduates 40. In the General Science division there are 120 sophomore men, 84 women; 83 junior men, 81 women; 87 senior men, 78 women; 21 men special students and 17 women; 58 men in graduate work and 25 women. The division of Engineering has 189 sophomore men, 1 woman; 149 junior men, 1 woman; 156 senior men, 6 women; 4 men special students, 1 woman; 29 men in graduate work, and 2 women.

The totals for each class is as follows: freshmen, 420 men, 220 women; sopohmores, 421 men, 182 women; juniors, 325 men, 169 women; seniors, 350 men, 151 women; specials, 32 men, 22 women; and graduates, 107 men and 68 women.

BUSINESS MEN TAKE BAND TO GAME TONIGHT

MERCHANTS COOPERATE WITH ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT TO PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION.

MANY WILL ATTEND CONTEST

Wildcat-Wesleyan Tilt Not Considered Dangerous Hurdle But Will Give Indication of Condition of Team.

Twenty-seven Manhattan business men are cooperating with the athletic department to take the Kansas State band to Salina for the Wesleyan game tonight. The band this year is one of the best to ever represent Kansas State college and it will lend a lot of color to the large group of Wildcat followers who will make the trip to cheer for the team that lost to Purdue, co-champions of the Big Ten last season, 29-13, Saturday.

Enthusiasm among students and townspeople over Bo McMillin's eleven this year is high because of the showing made in their two games and although the game with Salina is not looked upon as a dangerous hurdle, the added interest of an out of town game that will provide many of the fans a chance to see their first gridiron game under flood lights, will attract many. The game will also give an indication as to the condition of the squad before they make their Big Six debut against Missouri university here next Saturday.

Salina was winner of their conference last season and is recognized as being one of the best small college teams in the state which should insure the spectators of plenty of thrills even though the score should go one-sided.

In addition the large number that will drive to the game, several will more than likely make the trip on the special train that is being run by the Union Pacific.

REQUEST STUDENTS TO INVITE PARENTS

College Will Not Issue Invitations This Year—Usual Prizes to Be Given.

The request that all students write to their parents inviting them to the banquet on Parents' day, October 15, is again being voiced by the alumni office, since for the first time the college is not issuing invitations.

Prizes to the parents coming the greatest distance and to the fraternity, sorority, and literary society having the greatest representation at the banquet to be held after the football game with Missouri university, are to be awarded by Prof. M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics.

The parents having the most children in school are also to be awarded a prize. Handsome silver plaques are the form of the prizes according to Kenney L. Ford, alumni secretary.

Phi Delta Theta and Delta Delta Delta received the prizes for the fraternity and sorority having the best representation at the banquet last year. The Ionian literary society excelled in that class.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lautz of La Junta, Colo., were the parents who came from the greatest distance to the banquet of '31.

Honorary members of the Domestic Science club entertained the Domestic Science club with a party in the art department Thursday afternoon.

HOLD FIRST QUILL CLUB MEETING OF THE YEAR

Candidates Hand in Manuscripts For Membership—All Undergraduates Eligible.

Quill club held its first meeting of the year last evening in the office of Prof. H. W. Davis. Veva Brewer, Mt. Hope, who is chancellor of Ur Rune presided and presented Prof. H. W. Matthews as this year's program chairman.

Ruth Wilkerson read an original one-act play entitled "A Dull Evening." The rest of the program consisted of poems read by Oma Bishop fro her booklet "Sand and Other Poems," printed last spring by the department of printing.

Manuscripts are being submitted for membership this year. All undergraduates except second semester seniors are eligible to membership upon acceptance of their manuscripts. These must be submitted to Prof. C. E. Rogers, and may contain creative literature of any form. Two copies, an original and a carbon, should be proffered. November 5 is the closing date for manuscripts.

Harold Howe Explains How Tax Limitation Amendment Proposes to Limit Property Rates

The following article, as told by Prof. Harold Howe of the agricultural economics department, to Harold Dendurent, Collegian reporter, presents the highlights of the proposed tax limitation amendment. It is directed at the members of the student body who are of voting age in the effort to acquaint them with the question.

How the tax limitation amendment which will be voted upon in November proposes to limit the total tax rate on property has been explained by Prof. Harold Howe, department of agriculture economics.

Taxes on all property would be limited to 20 mills if the property is located within a city, and 15 mills if located outside a city. Taxes would be levied in excess of these limitations for principal and interest payments on indebtedness which has been incurred before July 1, 1933, and for the payment of the cost of improvements by special assessments. Additional emergency levies for two year periods may be authorized by the vote of a majority of the qualified electors of any taxing district.

Professor Howe believes the wording of the amendment leaves us in doubt regarding the rate which would apply for schools in cities in which more than one-half of the area of the school district lies outside the city limits.

Te amendment states that "no property taxed according to value shall be so taxed in excess of two percestum of its true value in money for all state and local purposes where lying within the limits of any city or within the limits of any school district of which more than one-half of the area lies within the limits of any city, nor more than one and one-half percentum when lying without the limits of such city or school district."

"There have been various interpretations given this clause which indicates that it is lacking in clarity," Professor Howe said. "Approximately 85 per cent of all third class cities and 52 of the 77 second class cities in Kansas have more than half of the area of their school districts outside the city limits. Whether the rate of 15 or 20 mills will apply in these cities will depend upon the interpretation of this clause."

The amendment states that the legislature shall prescribe the manner by which the rate of taxation shall be prorated to the several taxing districts. "It does not specify in what manner or by whom this proration shall be made," Professor Howe explained.

"The primary argument for the amendment," Professor Howe stated, "is that it will set a definite maximum tax rate on real estate and tangible personal property. The sponsors of the amendment are primarily concerned with reducing the general property tax and they state they are willing that other sources of revenue may be introduced to make up for the loss of revenue caused by the operation of the tax limitation amendment."

However, Professor Howe believes the adoption of the tax limitation amendment would reduce total government costs for the raising of revenue from other sources sufficient to make up for the loss of revenue from general property taxes would be improbable, if not impossible.

The principal argument of the opponents of the amendment is that its adoption would seriously cripple some essential governmental functions, according to Professor Howe. "In the great majority of rural districts, no readjustment in rates would be necessary for the tax rates in these districts now stand approximately at 15 mills, the tax provided for in the amendment," Professo Howe said. "It is in the cities that the major readjustments would be necessary. It is difficult to conceive how the tax rate in a city could be abruptly reduced 10 to 15 mills, and there are a number of cities where such action would be necessary if the amendment were adopted, without seriously crippling some public functions."

That it is unwise to put a specific limitation in the constitution is another argument against the amendment, Professor Howe explained. "The accepted doctrine of constitutional government asserts that a written constitution should contain only general and fundamental principles," he said. "Flexibility is maintained by leaving to legislative enactment all specific and supplementary provisions. A specific limitation once placed in the constitution would be difficult to change if circumstances should so require."

"The proposed amendment may also be criticized on the ground that it offers no solution of the debt situation even though the constitutional limitation may indirectly limit the voting of future bond issues. It probably will limit the voting of these issues because taxes above the rate limitation could not be voted to pay interest and principal except for two year periods, a basis too uncertain to support a bond issue.

Professor Howe believes that taxes on tangible property should be reduced. "The tax limitation amendment sounds good on first reading," he said, "but on more careful study one is aware of many details that a first reading does not reveal. We should acquaint ourselves as best we can, now rather than later, regarding the possible effects of this amendment."

MANHATTAN MERCHANTS COOPERATE

The spirit with which Manhattan business men have joined together to transport the Kansas State band to the Wesleyan football game tonight will be granted by all to be a great effort toward cooperation with the college. Possibly their efforts have seldom before been brought so much in the public eye, but always there has been present activities on the parts of the business men to form a closer union between the college and the city of Manhattan.

Tonight when these men take 90 band membsebr and their instruments approximately 70 miles to Salina in their own cars at their own expense there will be a greater goodwill spirit developed between students and Manhattan merchants.

INVITE THE PARENTS

Next week Kansas State students must assume a duty which has heretofore been taken care of by the college administration. They must be responsible for their parents' presence here Parents' day, October 15. They must carry on personal correspondence giving full information of the highlights of the day—the football game with Missouri university and the banquet in honor of parents in the evening. Owing to enforced reduction in expenditures brought about by the budget slash it is impossible for the college to continue its service to students and parents.

As a result, to make the affair a success, it is the duty for each student to inform his or her parents of the event in their honor.

A WHITE COLLAR JOB

"Is this what College did for you?" asked the young masculine customer.

"Right—and it can do the same for you," answered the sweet young thing from behind the counter in the Five and Ten.

Students who have been studying under the illusion that college is synonymous with white collar jobs have discovered their mistake. The "job" is always just around the corner—just one year ahead. Go to school one year more and you will surely find a job.

If this depression has done nothing else for the college graduate, it has shown him that he must forget his pride, his egotism, and his scholastic attainment, and he must really work to earn his bread. Gone are the days when he was paid for more than he gave.

One has often heard in the past that the college graduate did not do as well in some positions as the uneducated associate. And this was simply because he was unwilling to apply himself where brawn, and not brains, counted. The college man was just a fancy package that sold the goods for his employer.

Now is the time for the man with a degree or two really to show what it means to be educated. Like the coed in the Five and Ten, he must adjust himself to circumstances as he finds them, and he must do it better than his uneducated fellow worker. He is the one who must make an opening for himself where none is apparent to the uneducated.—University Daily Kansan.

MISTAKES

Mistakes do happen in the very best of regulated organizations—there are no exceptions. This is rather unfortunate, but true. To those who are not versed in the art of newspaper make-up, many errors are inexplainable. However, the conditions in the composing room are entirely different to what the average man would think. The omission of a single em dash will change the entire order of an article, and often leads to misinterpretation. Therefore, it behooves every reader who in the course of his lifetime has made some single error not to be too critical of all errors which he detects.

When a lawyer makes a mistake he's glad of it—he can collect another fee, when a mechanic makes a mistake—he charges it up, when a doctor makes a mistake—he buries it, but, when an editor makes a mistake—GOOD NIGHT!—The Round Up.

The Snooper

Tuesday was a remarkable day. We found out that Kappa Sigma had lost its taw, that Hoover invaded Iowa, that Booker T. Washington crossed the Delaware (historical note), and H. W. Davis, English department head, was seen in the Palace sucking on a coke and thumbing through the pages of some magazine called "Ballyhoo", which is said to be of very low character. The danged old rascal! And he was chuckling softly to himself, evidently enjoying the doggerel immensely. After a jolt like the above we wouldn't even bat an eye at seeing Doc Siever doing handsprings through Anderson hall.

After the Kappa Sigma disaster we wonder if Hal McCord is still making his "personal check of the beds" to weed out the foreign matter which may have accumulated in the house during the day. In several different statements Hal has vowed that his personal checks revealed no contraband, whereas 20 men say that he goes shuffling about in the middle of the night scaring freshmen into hot flashes and nervous disorders. One youngster is said to have lost his whole nervous system (which looked something like an empty banana stalk), when Hal ran into a couple of badger traps under the frosh's bed one night. We would appreciate a knowledge of just what method he uses to rout out undesirables. Does he look under rugs? Does he rummage through laundry bags? Does he go about running long, sharp hat pins into the linings of mattresses? These are things that we will probably never know, drat it!

News item: City unsafe for Chi Omegas. At least so one told the Snooper the other day in a fit of distemper. She stated that a certain hangout, being o'er run with "rats" was unfit to be populated by any other members of her gender. However, she did not specify just what was meant by the term "rat", so we took the trouble to consult Mr. Webster's brain child where we found the following description. Rat: any of certain rodents of the genus Mus, and other more or less nearly allied genera,—the best known species of which is the brown, or Norway, rat, M. norvegicus, syn. M. decamanus, Wamego, and all points east, which becomes about ten inches long from stem to stern. This does not include the India rubber rat which becomes much longer, and thinner, if caught in a revolving door. As you can possibly see, this rather vague description does not find anything in our category of rats, so we had better stop here to allow for more research.

On Other Hills

Four bandits attended the Chicago medical college last Monday. But the only thing they learned was how to take other persons' money. They held up college officials and escaped with approximately $3,000 in tuition fees which had just been collected from students.

Selling fish bait—minnows and worms—is the way one University of Missouri student earned enough money to pay his enrollment fees this fall. As side lines, he marketed snails and mussel shells.

Northwestern alumni in Chicago recently sent in a blanket order for 20,000 seats for the Northwestern-Michigan game next Saturday.

Esperanto, the "universal language" is offered as a regular course in the universities of Oxford, Prague, Geneva, and Liverpool.

Archie Stuck, University of Kansas student, goes to class in the morning, plays football in the afternoon, and serves as night chief of police in Lawrence.

Two foreign students on the payroll at the University of Kansas may be deported unless they can prove to the department of labor that they can pay their expenses while in this country, or are willing to work only for room and board.

Ten of the 48 electrical engineers graduating from Kansas State Teachers' college last year have secured positions.

A student at K. U. performed a real scholastic achievement when he completed in three years a course that requires the average student five years to go through. He passed an oral examination and was awarded a master's degree. He musta studied.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati who holds a bachelor of science degree from the engineering college, has enrolled in high school this year. Unable to find work after winning the university sheep-skin, he decided to get more education rather than waste his time.

Square toed shoes have been distributed to kickers of the Dartmouth football squad, because they've been missing most of the extra points after touchdowns.

A course in horsemanship is being offered at Michigan State this year. Polo will be practiced for three days a week and jumping for one.

Xavier university, Catholic institution for negro athletes has been opened at New Orleans. This school is the first of its kind in the south.

Members of the senior class at Center college, Neb., cut classes last week to go on a steak roast, and then draped the chapel in black to remind the faculty and underclassmen that they were having a good time.

A wit at the University of Oklahoma has given a definition of a college: A place to eat and sleep for four years, while you read a certain number of books in a certain number of courses to help you get a certain number of grade points to get a certain degree which means nothing.

Among The Ags

Just for a bit of change it's fun to go through Doctor Nabour's insectary (in the east division of the college greenhouse). What you'll find there may not be exciting, for the Doctor does nothing but crow a certain kind of grasshoppers; but if your interested in grasshoppers or genetics either you'll find examples of things you might not have suspected. Some of the hoppers with which the geneticist spends his time have markings which nature might not produce for centuries, unassisted, but the doctor doesn't take a lot of credit for that.

Doctor Warren up in the poultry department has somewhat of a record for producing freaks also. He has rumpless chickens, chickens with bare necks, chickens with feathered legs, chickens without the flight feathers on the wings, in fact almost eery kind of chickens except four-legged ones.

The boys who work for Dr. John H. Parker at the experiment station have been planting wheat. "Planting" is the proper term because the 16 foot rows are seeded with a hand seeder while the individual kernels are dropped at regular intervals by hand in the eight-foot rows.

Somehow I can't help feeling a bit sorry for the poor ag who went to sleep in a farm carpentry lab and didn't wake up until half an hour after the rest of the class had gone home.

If the new dairy barn is to be as elegant as it sounds the Kansas State cows will probably get a reputation of being the best-mannered bossies in the midwest. Could they help being lady-like in such surroundings? Then of course the creamery will cook up some sort of a slogan about milk from hilarious cows and cheese from the cow cottage. Prosperity must be coming.

There is the story in the department of the ag who placed bets against all three candidates for governor of the state. Now he is just sitting back waiting until after election day to collect two and pay off the other.

More rumors about a barnwarmer and the first of the ag queens. The division is undoubtedly unsurpassed in the number of its reigning beauties selected at various seasons. So far as can be determined there hasn't been any major disagreement between the queens themselves as to who is the leader at any one time; but there was a wholesale kidnapping of candidates last spring.

So it goes, other divisions may gain enrollment, hold teas, or get doctors in who's who, but the ags just import a geneticist, concoct a judging team, and elect a couple of queens.

Dean H. Umberger, division of extension and Prof. Harold Howe of the department of agricultural economics, will attend the community day celebration to be held Saturday at Minneapolis, Kans.

STUDENT IN GERMANY

Charles C. Seale is Attending the University of Heidelburg.

According to a letter received recently by Miss Jessie M. Machir, registrar, Charles C. Seale, a former student here, is attending the University of Heidelburg at Heidelburg, Germany, where he is taking a preparatory course in the German language so that he may be able to major in chemistry.

Seale worked as an overseer on one of the plantations in Barbados, belonging to the father of Walter C. Gill, a former student here. He spent two months in England before going to Germany where he entered the university.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

It's been a bad week for the cold-blooded social lights with this biting weather on hand. Anyway it caused the appearance of these fashionable new polo coats for both women and men—in every color and style imaginable . . . . Oh say, what rekindled the old feud between Harry Miller and "Cotton" Tietz—and caused the platinum blonde to give up the redhead? . . . . And have you heard that there's to be an announcement party soon—either to give the date of an approaching marriage or to announce that the knot has already been tied? . . . . We see that geology prof and his Chi Omega friend at every varsity—maybe he has a pass, too . . . . Speaking of varsities—did you notice how Leora Light was there when the football team was away up at Purdue? . . . . And we wonder when Mark Babb and Helen Durham will commence to go steady—or Dave Umberger give up his new Kappa and Pi Phi friends to renew it all with Mary Louise? . . . . Too bad that Bob Zebold has to sit at home since his pin found it's way down to ElDorado . . . . Ask Dan Partner about that autographed picture he obtained of Joe Himes' orchestra at the Old Mill one night? . . . .

And doesn't Harry Hasler look like a page from the old family album in his new peg leg trousers—but then they are quite ducky out in Calif . . . . Duckier still is the new combination of Pryor and Duncan . . . . Did anyone see the handsome football players from Oklahoma City U. out in front of Nichols, yesterday—just on their way to Lincoln, Nebr. . . . . A mighty nice catch nowadays is that new Phi Delt freshman with the snitzy Chevrolet roadster (16 county)—and his early hours of going home (at night) do give the other boys a chance . . . . Wasn't it nice about Tyne Lantz, Bruce Rolf, and Max Hammell being pledged to Nu Sigma Nu, professional medical fraternity at K. U.? . . . . What about Mary Jane Pae asking Brick Garrison if he were coming to open house with the rest of the Betas? . . . . Who's the Kappa Sig that made you eat your words, DuMars? . . . . The story goes that a certain white powderish element was noticed on the coat lapel of one of our English profs the other day—no insinuations Mr. Davis . . . . The way Bob Wallerstedt races about the Wareham ballroom, one would suggest that he try out for the cross country team . . . . And if we live through this, look for more just like it next time . . . .

BEGIN INTRAMURAL SOCCER

Today Eids Week of Interesting Games—Pair Off for Horseshoes.

Intramural soccer began last Monday. The two games this afternoon between Theta Xi and Phi Sigma Kappa, and Phi Kappa and Pi Kappa Alpha will conclude a week of competition which has shown some interesting results, both in scores and the type of soccer being played by the competing teams.

The three games played last Monday were unique in the fact that two of them resulted in tie games, both by the same scores. Delta Tau Delta deefated Tau Kappa Epsilon 6 to 0. Phi Lambda Theta tied the W. F. A. C. 2 to 2 and Sigma Phi Epsilon tied Lambda Chi Alpha 2 to 2.

Tuesday's games produced winners with decided margins. The results: Aggie Knights 3, Alpha Gamma Rho 0; Sigma Alpha Epsilon 3, Acacia 1; Phi Kappa Tau 4, Beta Theta Pi 0. Wednesday's results are: Delta Sigma Phi 2, Lone Stars 0; Kappa Sigma 4, Phi Delta Theta 0; and Sigma Nu 4, Alpha Tau Omega 2.

The 23 teams on the soccer schedule have been divided into four groups. Competition is then limited to the groups, determining their winners. These winners will then battle for the soccer championship. The team groupings are: Group I—Delta Tau Delta, Phi Lambda Theta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and W. F. A. C. Group II—Alpha Gamma Rho, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Kappa Tau, Beta Theta Pi, Acacia, and Aggie Knights. Group III—Delta Sigma Phi, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Nu, Phi Delta Theta, and Lone Stars. Group IV—Theta Xi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Phi Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Alpha Kappa Lambda.

The following games will be played next Monday, October 10: Phi Lambda Theta vs Tau Kappa Epsilon; Sigma Phi Epsilon vs W. F. A. C.; Lambda Chi Alpha vs Delta Tau Delta.

Pairings have been made for the first round in horse shoe singles, which began last Monday. The first round matches must be played by next Wednesday, October 12.

OKLAHOMA TEAM STOPS HERE

Oklahoma City University Gridsters Play Nebraska Wesleyan Tonight.

The Oklahoma City university eleven stopped long enough in Manhattan yesterday for a brief practice on the stadium field before continuing on to Lincoln, Nebraska, where they play Nebraska Wesleyan tonight.

The practice, which was somewhat delayed because the truck carying the equipment developed trouble, was short and snappy. Coach V. J. Green sent his men through a little warm-up before they continued with a signal practice.

About 30 men make up the squad of the O. C. U. team. The boys, after their game tonight, will continue on to Fargo, N. Dak., where they will encounter North Dakota State next week end.

The team carries tutors so that the squad members will not get behind in their courses while they are away.

Sports Hi-Cups

The after effects of the K-Aggie-Purdue battle are still lingering. Yesterday a squad member received a letter from Chicago and he instantly became so unnerved that he could hardly open the advertisement.

Oklahoma City university practiced on the stadium field last night. Tonight they play Nebraska Wesleyan and then continue their trip up into North Dakota before returning home.

Melvin Bretz, who played guard position on the 1930 freshman eleven, is now playing for Oklahoma City U.

Some youngster on the campus is trying to match the turtle necked sweaters of the football players. Maybe, though, he wears that white sweater to be like Clark Gable.

A certain football player thinks that white footballs are much lighter than the usual colored pig skins.

Melvin Wertzberger: "Well, I guess I have all the boys in condition for another week."

It is rumored that Bill Brewer freshman football man spends his time running around looking over boys' shoulders while they read the mail from their girls.

This new huddle that the McMillin boys will demonstrate tonight has been described as a new form of duck waddle.

TO HOLD DINNER

For Workers in Wesley Foundation Personal Visitation Campaign.

A dinner will be held Monday, October 10, at the Wesley foundation student parsonage, 1630 Osage, for the workers in the personal visitation campaign carried on for the Wesley foundation.

The purposes of this meeting are to subscribe the budget for the year, and to find out ways in which each individual member would like to engage in the Wesley foundation activity programs. Cards have been mimeographed to be filled by the students.

Some of the activities which are listed are: Dramatics, gospel and deputation teams, intramural athletics, Kappa Phi girls' club, group leadership, Methodist boys' club, college department church school publicity "Methodist Student", music, either vocal or instrumental, leading devotional meetings, recreation, and leading discussion meetings.

The budget for the year 1932-1933 is estimated to be $4,430.

Pointing the way to the advertised brand

Many a "sale" made by advertising has gone to a competitor because the purchaser did not know where to buy the advertised brand. Telephone men evolved a plan to make it easy to find.

They created a "Where to Buy It" service in the classified telephone directory. There—beneath the advertised trade marks—Buick, Goodrich, RCA Victor, General Electric and many others now list authorized local dealers. Thus telephone men complete the chain between advertiser and consumer—increase the effectiveness of advertising—help manufacturers and dealers to increase sales—help consumers to get what they want!

Because they apply vision to subscribers' problems, Bell System men continually increase the value of telephone service.

The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

NOMINATE NINE CANDIDATES FOR BEAUTY QUEEN

PLANS WELL UNDER WAY FOR SIXTH ANNUAL AG BARNWARMER.

OVERALL CUSTOM PREVAILS

Ag Students Compelled to Wear Overalls to Classes Week Preceding Party Under Penalty of Ducking.

With nine nominations for queen already received plans for the fall social event of the division of agriculture, the sixth annual Ag Barnwarmer, are well under way, according to A. C. Thomson, McCune, manager. The party will be held in the gymnasium Friday night, Oct. 21.

Girls nominated for the title "Queen of the Ag Barnwarmer" are Vera Trusler, Junction City, Pi Beta Phi; Luella Graham, Topeka, Chi Omega; Geraldine Hammond, St. John, Delta Delta Delta; Marie Henney, Hutchinson, Kappa Delta; Mary McMullen, Oberlin, Alpha Xi Delta; Florence Melchert, Ottawa, Zeta Tau Alpha; Wilma Cook, Ash Valley, Clovia; Kay Brewer, Wichita, Van Zile; and Helen Tedman, Mount Hope, Beta Phi Alpha.

A general election at which the five favorite candidates will be picked will be held during ag seminar at 4:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon, October 13. The queen will be picked from these five candidates at a secret ballot election the Thursday before the party.

The name of the winning candidate will not be announced before the dance, Thomson said. Hugh Durham, assistant dean of agriculture, will officially crown the queen.

The outstanding feature of this year's barnwarmer, says Thomson, is the 50 cent admission. In previous years the tickets have always cost a dollar but the management this year believes it will be possible to furnish an identical party at the lower rate. June Layton and his orchestra will probably furnish the music.

Andrew Elson, Kansas City, has charge of decorations for the event; Harold Daly, Manhattan, is custodian of the eats, customarily apples, cider, and doughnuts; and Joyce Miller, Sycamore, is chief of the police whose most outstanding duty is to duck all ags who refuse to wear overalls to school and to expel all outsiders from the dance floor.

All ag students will be compelled to wear overalls to all classes on the hill during the week preceding the dance under penalty of a ducking for failure to do so.

The barnwarmer, says Thomson, is a tradition of the division. Veterinary and agricultural engineering students are allowed to attend the function but students from other divisions attending are removed if caught by the ag police.

HOLD FIRST SERVICES

Vesper Will Be Held Each Tuesday Afternoon.

The first weekly vesper services of the year will be held this afternoon from 4:05 to 4:25 o'clock in Calvin 58. Mrs. A. M. Reed will lead the services with Ethel Olney, St. Joseph, Mo., as pianist. Mrs. Reed will be assisted by Betty Ozment, Manhattan, and Elouise White, Dalhart, Tex.

Vesper services will be held each Tuesday afternoon at the same time and place with different leaders each time. It is a worship that is accomplished mostly by meditation and is open to students, members of the faculty, and townspeople.

GRADUATE CLUB ELECTS

Fred Groetsma Will Head Organization This Year.

The graduate club elected officers at the hike held in Sunset park Friday evening, October 7. The new officers are Fred Groetsma, Manhattan, president; Edna Marie Brown, Burr Oak, vice-president; Laurel Kingsley, Manhattan, secretary; and Lester Gilmore, Freehorn, Minn., treasurer.

The committees that were appointed are: refreshment, Pearl Haas, Hutchinson, chairman; Harold Higginbotham, Herington; Leola White, Manhattan; and Lonnie Simmons, Manhattan. The social committee are Bernice Kunerth, chairman; Chris Bradley, Mrs. Finley, and Ollie Hulse, all of Manhattan.

SEND INVITATIONS TO PARENTS VIA WAVES OF ETHER

CELEBRATE SATURDAY WITH GRID GAME, BANQUET, AND OTHER FEATURES.

FARRELL TO MAKE ADDRESS

M. F. Ahearn Will Present Plaques to Parents and Organizations Winning Prizes.

Parents of Kansas State students tuning in these days on station KSAC may feel the thrill of a personal message coming to them via the ether waves. The messages are invitations to Parents Day next Saturday, October 15, an event celebrated annually with a banquet, football game and other features.

Although the Missouri game in the afternoon is the principal attraction of the day, of no less importance to parents is the banquet in their honor at Thompson hall in the evening. Bert Barrier, Topeka, president of the K. S. C. Parents association, will be the parent-speaker at the banquet. Mr. Barrier is a former member of the state senate. His daughter, Alice, is a sophomore in industrial chemistry.

President Farrell will make a short address, and there will be additional entertainment. Ernest Reed, Norton, will be toastmaster. A feature of the banquet will be the presentation of five silver plaques offered by Prof. M. F. Ahearn to: The parent having the most children enrolled in Kansas State college, the parent coming the longest distance to the banquet, the sorority having the largest percentage representation of parents, the fraternity having the largest percentage representation of parents, and the literary society having the largest percentage representation of parents.

SPEAKS IN ABILENE

Dr. W. E. Grimes, head of the department of agricultural economics, talked on "What is Wrong With the Credit System" at the semi-annual conference of credit managers and bureau secretaries Monday at Abilene.

Doctor Grimes will speak before the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce today on "Unemployment and Welfare Work."

GARGOYLE ELECTS OFFICERS

Officers of the Gargoyle club for architects for the school year 1932-33 are: president, R. J. Alexander, Independence, Mo.; vice-president, R. A. Schober, Manhattan; secretary, H. W. Ganstrom, Hollis; treasurer, Hal McCord, Manhattan; and sergeant-at-arms, Clifford Black, Salina.

The new officers were elected at a meeting held Thursday afternoon.

Adoption of Income Tax Amendment Will Affect Says Prof. Harold Howe Only Those Able to Pay,

The adoption of the income tax amendment, which will be voted upon at the general election November 8, will show direct results in lowering or in preventing the increase of property tax levies, Prof. Harold Howe of the agricultural economics department stated, in regard to whether or not the enactment of an income tax would mean "just another tax" which would give tax spending units larger funds to spend with no relief to the taxpayer.

"Whenever an attempt is made to diversify taxes by introducing a new source of revenue, criticism of the proposed tax is heard," Professor Howe said. "It occurs because of a well founded fear that governments, like individuals, can always find places to spend additions to their incomes."

The income tax amendment provides that "the state shall have power to levy and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source derived, which taxes may be graduated and progressive."

Prevents Increase of Tax.

"The statement that the income tax has been instrumental in 'preventing the increase of property tax levies' may need a word of explanation," Professor Howe said "To some that might suggest a confession that the income tax was causing larger expenditures, but this increase in expenditures has not been limited to those states which have the income tax."

In answer to whether or not the persons who pay property taxes are the same ones who would pay the income tax, Professor Howe said, the bulk of the income tax in any state is not paid by the same groups of people who pay the bulk of the general property tax. The farmer and the small home owner, representing the laboring man and the man with an average income would pay a large part of the income tax if adopted in this state he explained. "The income tax falls most heavily on those with large incomes. These incomes may be from real estate and tangible personal property or they may arise from the ownership of intangible wealth. When the income arises from real property, double taxation occurs, but this type of double taxation is not wrong. It is only placing the tax on the individual most able to pay. When the income arises from the ownership of intangibles, the tax on income is not a double tax in any sense because this type of wealth is reached effectively in no other way."

It has been estimated that the income-taxing states derive revenues from the state income tax amounting to about 30 to 40 per cent on the average of the income tax collections made in the state by the federal government. With this ratio as an index one method is afforded for estimating the revenue from an income tax in this state. In 1926, which may be considered a normal year, Kansas individuals and corporations paid the federal government $15,000,000 in income taxes. If the Kansas state income tax should produce 35 per cent as much as the federal tax from this state, then one might expect a yield of approximately 5 1-2 million dollars in a normal year.

Suggest Two Plans

Two plans for the distribution of the revenue from the proposed income tax have been suggested in Kansas, Professor Howe said. They are: (1) to put the revenue in the state general fund, and (2) to place the revenue in a state school equalization fund. The first proposal means removing part or all of the plan is to establish a state school state levy on property. The second equalization fund to aid in the financing of grade and high schools. This plan would aid school districts which, because of low assessed valuations, are obliged to have excessive levies in order to maintain a school plant with even the minimum educational opportunity for the children in the district.

Regarding the cost of administering state income taxes, Professor Howe stated the usual collection cost falls between two and three per cent of the amount of the income tax collected, indicating that this tax is not expensive to administer. The cost of administering the corporation income tax is considerably less than that of the personal tax. States having both personal and corporate income taxes are likely to show a lower cost of administration than states having the tax on personal income only.

An amendment of the same wording as the proposed income tax amendment was rejected at the general election in 1930. Four hundred and ninety-one thousand persons voted on this amendment. This number was 80 per cent of the total number of votes cast for the office of governor. Of those voting, 46.4 per cent voted for and 53.6 per cent voted against the amendment.

Decide Constitutionality.

Professor Howe said the income tax amendment was submitted because it is generally believed that a graduated income tax would not be constitutional under our state constitution as it now stands. Rather than pass an income tax which might later be declared unconstitutional, the legislature chose to settle first of all the matter of constitutionality, hence this amendment.

At the present time, 24 or one-half of the states have some form of income tax. Professor Howe said that states making use of the income tax may be placed into three classes: first, those having both personal and corporation income taxes; second, those having a tax on personal incomes only; and third, those having the corporation income tax only.

COLLEGIAN BOARD ELECTION THURSDAY

Mayrie Griffith, Ralph Van Camp, And W. D. White are Nominated by Petition.

Three petitions nominating students for membership on the Kansas State Collegian board have been presented to Prof. C. E. Rogers, head of the department of industrial journalism, and member of the board. The election will be held Thursday, October 13, in Kedzie hall.

Petitions bearing the names of 10 Collegian subscribers nominated the following for board positions: Mayrie Griffith, Topeka; Ralph Van Camp, Council Grove; and William Donald White, Kansas City, Mo.

ASSIGN NEW OFFICES

New offices have been assigned to several instructors in the home economics division. Margaret Ahlborn, assistant dean of the division, is well established in her new quarters in the former offices of the Y.W.C.A. She is more than satisfied with the change as it gives her more room, better light, and a place for the files that was hitherto lacking.

Nina Browning and Eva McMillin, of the department of food economics and nutrition, have moved into C28, and Ruth Tucker and Gladys Vail, also of that department has changed offices twice this year and is now situated in C68.

Student Life in China Not So Different, Says Sherman Todd

Sherman Todd, Olathe, sophomore in agriculture, spent last year studying at Yenching university, Peiping, China, an institution controlled by a board of regents in New York City and receives a large part of its financial aid from America, although it is registered by the Chinese government as a Chinese university.

In this university a majority of the instructors were Chinese, but in the science department several of the professors were American or British. This was due to the fact that as yet no science text books have been written in the Chinese language. One of the American instructors was Dean Frank Martin, Missouri university, who was spending the year in China as an exchange professor.

Regulations Are Strict.

Academic work, said Todd, is much harder in a Chinese university than it is in American institutions. Regulations are much more strict and the students are all above average in intelligence, the poorer students being weeded out by the severe entrance examinations required by the university. As entrance examinations are also given in English, the Chinese students all speak the language well and have a good knowledge of grammar.

Athletics are stressed less in Chinese universities than in American institutions. Every kind of sport is played except American football, which is replaced by soccer. In athletic ability, the Chinese do not rank as high as American athletes, but this is because only recently have athletic contests been introduced into China. Two other hindrances to the advancement of sport in China are: in the days of the empire, the uper class Chinese never participated in any kind of muscular exertion, that was not absolutely necessary as they considered this lowering themselves to the class of common laborers and coolies, and the fact that they do not possess the ability to cooperate.

"It is not at all hard to get acquainted," Todd said. "The Chinese were especially friendly and eager to help me enjoy the year. They were all very interested in the American customs and were wwilling to engage in discussions concerning the good and bad points of the two countries. In general I found Chinese students interesting and lively and always ready to engage in some form of recreation.

Used Chopsticks.

"During the last semester," Todd said, "I lived in the dormitory and had Chinese food all the time. Of curse, I had to use chopsticks because there was nothing else to use, but contrary to the general belief, they were not at all difficult to use and after a few meals I could use one almost as well as the Chinese. Chinese food is much different than our food but it is a matter of personal opinion whether one likes it or not. Personally, I like it."

WOMEN'S AIR DERBY BROUGHT TO CLOSE

Eighteen of Twenty Planes Have Not Returned to Hangars.

The women's air derby which characterized the membership and finance campaign of the Y. W. C. A. was brought to a close Friday morning at 9:00 o'clock with two of the airplanes already in their hangars. The remaining 18 airplanes are still buzzing around and making contacts and will arrive later. The approximate membership of the Y. W. C. A. is now 500 and the student contribution has reached the $550 mark.

Alberta Burdette, Kansas City, pilot of one of the small planes, arrived first with a 100 per cent passengership. Evelyn Braden, Wichita; and Lois Lewellyn, Newton, pilots of the largest airplane, arrived next with a 98 per cent passengership.

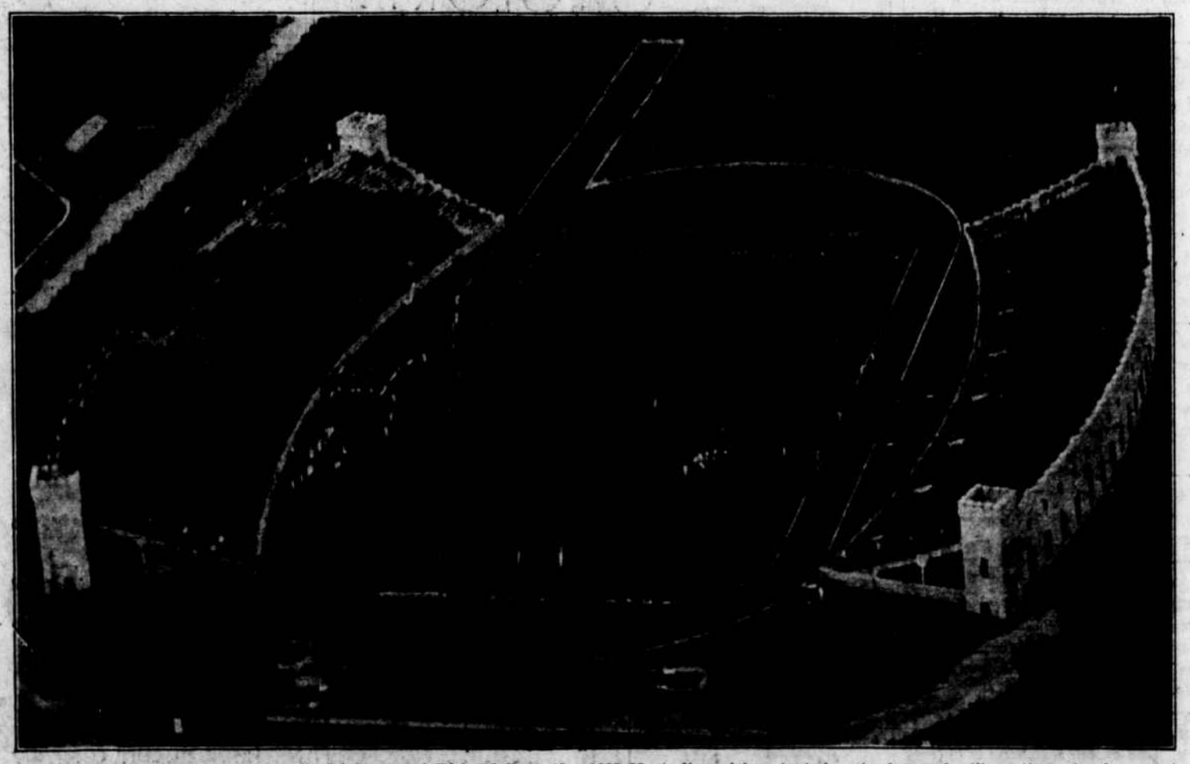

Final results will be announced Friday.

MILITARISTS WILL PARADE

There will be a parade of company B, infantry, and battery A, artillery, on the drill grounds on the east campus, Saturday morning, October 15.

The parade, which will last from about 11:15 to 11:45 o'clock wwill be an event on the Parent's day program and will be held especially for the parents who will be in town to attend the Missouri-Kansas State college football game.

TO FORM HORSESHOE IS GOAL OF DRIVE

Under the direction of Donald Johnson and Dick McCord, the 1932-33 stadium drive started yesterday and will continue for four weeks. The purpose is "to secure a pledge from every student who has not contributed to the stadium fund. In the past students have been asked to pledge any amount they could and pay the debt at the rate of $10 a year. This year the maximum pledge is $40 and is not to be paid until after graduation. Also if a student drops out of school, he will only pay $5 to the fund, for every semester he was in school.

Recent Survey Discloses Ninety-Three Graduates Natives of Foreign Countries

Ninety-one graduates of Kansas State are native of foreign countries, which do not include the possessions of the United States or Cuba. In this group there are 23 women and 68 men, finds Kenney L. Ford, alumni secretary in a recent survey.

Canada heads the group with a total of 17 graduates. China is a near rival with 11 while South Africa closely follows with nine. India and Mexico tie for fourth place with seven graduates each.

Five countries have each had three students graduated from Kansas State: France, the Canal Zone, Japan, Turkey, Egypt. Two students were graduated from each of the following countries: Syria, Korea, the Virgin Islands, and Costa Rica.

The remaining 16 countries are represented by one scholar each: Chile, Brazil, Peru, Spain, Singapore, Palestine, Guam, Belgium, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Jamaica, Siberia, the Bahams, Ceylon, Dutch West Indies, and Honduras.

CHANGE NIGHTS OF MANHATTAN THEATRE PLAYS

PLAYS THIS YEAR TO BE ON THURSDAY AND FRIDAY NIGHTS.

AVOID WEEK END CONFLICTS

President Approves But Says Other Organizations Must Not Depart From the Usual Practice.

Departing from the usual practice of allowing school activities to be presented only on Friday and Saturday nights, President F. D. Farrell has given permission for two Manhattan Theatre plays to be given on Thursday and Friday nights.

The president explained that the change is given only to make possible an experiment by the Manhattan Theatre and that other organizations must not take it as a departure from the usual practice. The Thursday night performance will give a number of people opportunities to see the plays who have been unable to attend on Friday or Saturday, due to the open nights for other organizations.

Thursday and Friday, Oct. 20 and 21, will be the date of the first play, "Easy Come, Easy Go," a farce, according to Production Director H. Miles Heberer.

Following is an extract from the president's letter to Mary P. Van Zile, dean of women, advising her of his approval of the change in dates:

"This approval is given for the present semester only and entirely for the purpose of giving the Manhattan Theatre an opportunity to make a trial of presenting plays on Thursday nights. It must not be construed as a precedent for other organizations to depart from the usual practice for the purpose of experimenting.

"I believe that the usual practice of limiting such activities to Friday and Saturday nights is sound and that any extensive departure from the practice is undesirable."

FARRELL TO TOPEKA

Two trips are on this week's schedule of President F. D. Farrell. On Wednesday President Farrell will attend a meetisg in Topeka of the state board of education. He will address the Reno county farm bureau Thursday on the subject, "Back to Fundamentals."

Miss Clarice Painter and Miss Alice Jefferson, of the department of music, will go to Topeka Thursday to present a duo piano program before the Topeka Music club.

NOTED PERSONS HERE THIS WEEK IN FORUM TALKS

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE REPLACES RUTH BRYAN OWEN AT WEDNESDAY SESSION.

THOMAS TO BE HERE FRIDAY

Socialist Candidate for President Will Speak at 4 O'Clock in Cafeteria Upstairs—To State Campaign Policies.

A Democrat and a Socialist will headline the two student forums this week. Randolph Carpenter, Marion, Democratic candidate for congress from the fourth district, will speak tomorrow noon and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, will speak at the forum Friday noon, both meetings upstairs in the cafeteria. Carpenter is filling the date formerly set for the speech of Ruth Bryan Owen, who is unable to appear here tomorrow.

Carpenter is an ex-service man and a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He has been selected by the Demos to represent them in the series of political speeches scheduled for student forums this fall.

To Sound Socialist Slogan.

In representing his party Friday, Thomas will probably sound the Socialist slogan, "Repeal Unemployment" which advocates appropriations for direct relief to unemployed; federal appropriations to finance public works; six-hour day and five-day week for workers without reduction of wages; unemployment insurance; and old age pensions.

Thomas is also vigorously urging reorganization of industry on a planned basis and on principle of public ownership and production of the food, clothing, and shelter essential to the needs of the people for public use rather than for private profit.

Thomas is a seasoned campaigner in the Socialist ranks. Most outstanding of his political battles are his campaigns in New York, where, as candidate for mayor of New York City, he made attacks on Mayor Walker which soon became the basis for the exposure of the Tammany mayor. Thomas also has run for governor of New York, as well as for member of the house of representatives from a New York district. The 1932 national Socialist convention in Milwaukee unanimously named him to again run for president this year.

Has Fed 400,000 Strikers

The Socialist leader has carried on his battles for labor on the industrial field with the same energy that has distinguished his political campaigns. As chairman of the Emergency Committee for Strikers' Relief, Thomas has helped feed over 400,000 strikers and their families in the last six years.

Thomas is noted also as one of the most capable of platform men, a speaker with a rich-humored, yet pointed style which has made him an outstanding debater and public speaker.

HOLD COMMISSION MEETING

All Freshmen men are invited to attend the second meeting of the Freshman men's commission which will be held tonight in room 76 at Nichols gymnasium. Ray Lippenberger, chairman of the program committee, has planned an excellent program including a talk by Dean Babcock of the Division of General Science, and special music.

Model of Kicksetti Totem Pole Is Added to Indian Art Collection

The latest addition to the collection of Indian art owned by Miss Everhardy of the art department is a model of a Kicksetti totem pole. It was brought to her by Mr. Calvadar B. Della who graduated from Kansas State last June and was employed during the summer in Alaska. He has returned to take graduate work in agricultural economics. The pole was made by William Barley, Petersburg, Alaska, and was authenticated by the Alaska historical Totem society of Ketchikan, Alaska.

This brilliantly painted totem pole which stands about two feet high is significant of a combination of ideas and a suggested narrative which all in all represents the different crests of a particular tribe. The top face of the totem pole represents a mountain. Immediately below the mountain is a frog which, in totem pole language, is an emblem of the tribe. Directly below the frog is a raven, the creator who made man, talking to the young raven. The figure lowest on the totem pole is a Kiliskmoo beaver. This figure is significant of the fact that the father belonged to the beaver family, the mother belonging to the frog family—a figure higher on the totem pole.

The totem pole represents the main crests belonging to a tribe. These crests vary in number and occupy prominent position at the top, bottom, and middle of the pole.

CHOP, CHOP, AND A HEAD CAME OFF

Yesterday the mighty axe of the Kansas university athletic department descended abruptly upon the football coaching personnel of the institution. Bill Hargiss will no longer watch over the grid destinies of the Jayhawkers.

Reports were hazy regarding the dismissal. "Unsatisfactory conditions," if one can decipher that, were the reasons for the change. There are no doubt many reasons behind the action which will never be known to the public. Last year there were various handbills circulated about the eastern half of Kansas bearing the plea: "Help us get rid of Allen and Lindley." Does this circumstance of yesterday hark back to those stormy days?

The shake-up has done one thing for the cause. It has placed Adrian Lindsey, a conscientious and efficient football coach, into the position vacated by Hargiss. However, there is a hair in his butter as well if adverse reports emanating from the university about Phog Allen are to be taken as the snowy truth. Allen will be at his side in trying to fashion an eleven.

The adverse publicity which is bound to result will possibly be harder to live down than a year of disastrous football.

CHOOSE YOUR FRIENDS

"Friendship is the only thing in the world concerning the usefulness of which all mankind are agreed," said Cicero. There is nothing more becoming a wise man than to make a good choice of his friends. This especially is applicable to college students. The most powerful and lasting friendships are usually those made in the early seasons of life, when one is most susceptible to warm and affectionate impressions. The value of a judicious and sympathetic friend is so great as not to be estimated, while on the other hand, even a prudent enemy is preferable to a friend without discretion.

Choose your friends wisely, in regard to their uprightness, their sincerity, and their unselfish motives. The student whose parents are under the constant necessity of prying him loose from undesirable friends and acquaintances will show the same lack of good judgment in other problems that will confront him later in life.

Discriminate between your college acquaintances and choose those whose friendships you wish to be lasting throughout life.—University Daily Kansan.

THERE WAS ONLY ONE EDISON

Thomas A. Edison spent few of his days in school. E. S. Scripps couldn't get along with his teacher because he insisted on reading "interesting" books while he should have been studying geography. Scripps couldn't see the need of a teacher to guide his study when he knew what he wanted and could go about learning it without their help.

There still are Thomas A's and E. W's who can attend college or not, make good grades or not, take a degree or not, and still make a success. But for most of us the regular routine of classwork, with as good grades as possible and a degree is the most desirable course. While a few can ignore the conventional education and get away with it, the fact remains that the majority need guidance in their study.

Witness the number of freshmen who change their course of study three or four times before they finally settle down to one thing—and even then they are not sure of themselves. Even those who know what they want when they come to college seldom know what it is all about. Often a student half-studies a course then realizes ten or twelve months later the real significance of that subject.

While a few among us who know what we are going after can do as we please, most of us will do well to study regular courses, go through the conventional educational process and finish college. By that time maybe we will know where we want to go and will be able to guide the rest of our trip.—The Oklahoma Daily.

The Snooper

The horrible truth is out! The Snooper is a liar and humbly begs pardon from the grief-blanched house of Beta. The horrible truth: there never has been a man on the Beta second floor. "Furthermore," falsettoed a high-strung Beta with an insolent toss of his tobacco-brown sidewhiskers, "there probably never will be, so there." The story which appeared in this column to the effect that the Betas entertained a man on their second floor on the night of September 20 reeked with falsehood. Little did the perpetrators of that colossal prevarication dream what wringing of hands and gnashing of tooth against tooth would follow such a rumor, because, as someone sadly remarked, the song is ended but the smellody lingers on.

While rummaging through some exceedingly important looking papers here on the desk the name of Harry "Brown-of-Culver" Hancks looms up reminding us that we should have mentioned him several days ago. Harry, better known as Hancks of Kappa Sigma (as he introduced himself during rush week,) is the lad who bull-neck sweatered it to all the open houses thereby causing a sensation unknown in local social circles since last year when Chuck Helman, the U.K.A. worry-wart, appeared at varsities and on the streets of Aggieville in the checker-board suit and gamblers vest which made him famous. Harry comes from Wamego where he probably got the bull-neck sweater. Okay! Wamego! Wheeeeeeeeeee (noise resembling peanut wagon.) He probably uses it, up around his neck that way, to protect his old apple and we don't mean Grimes Golden either. He is a singer in the glee club, you know, or don't you know? He sings shortstop. (Shortstop: between first and second bass.)

Historical note: H. W. Davis says that the gag about his having powder on his lapel is old stuff, as he has had it there at least five times before, and he didn't count it up on his fingers when he said it either. H. W. says that it has been commented on in Snoopers, Nibblings, editorials, Over the Back Fences, feature stories and so forth until the issue is growing a beard. Now all we want to know is, where does he get all the powder?

Immediately upon seeing the rat story in this column last Friday, 15 Aggieville merchants toughened up and asked indignantly what the Snooper said when he said that HIS establishment was overrun with the varmints. We don't know what this leads you to believe but thought that it was worth mentioning.

Here's news, girls! Only one out of every 75 marriages growing out of college romance fails. This dope is given out by the Institute of Family Relations, in evaluating college romances in making happy American homes. It says that college gets young people accustomed to one another; acclimates them to trials and develops co-operation between the sexes in shouldering the disappointments and problems of life. ISSUE PROGRAM FOR ENGLISH LECTURES

Doctor Alexander of Baker University Will Be Only Guest Lecturer.

The English department has issued the program of the English lectures from the dates October 11 to December 20 to be presented in recreation center, Anderson hall, on each Tuesday evening at 7:30.

All lectures but one are to be given by members of the English department of Kansas State. The one guest lecture will be given by Dr. C. C. Alexander, head of the department of English at Baker university. This lecture is to be given in return for a lecture presented by Prof. R. W. Conover at that university last year.

The first lecture will be a discussion of three plays by Noel Coward and will be given by Prof. Conover on October 11. All lectures will consist of discussions of recent literature including drama, fiction, and poetry. Other lectures in the order to be presented are: "John Mistletoe" by Christopher Morley, discussed by Miss Anne Sturmer on October 18; "Prose and Poetry" of Eleanor Wylie, by Miss Helen Elcock on October 25; three works of Hugh Walpole — "Rogue Herries," "Judith Paris," and "The Fortress" by Prof. C. W. Mattnews on November 1; "The Matriarch" by G. B. Stern, discussed by Prof. J. P. Callahan on November 8; the guest lecture on November 15 presenting "Paul Green and his Significance as a Dramatist"; William McFee's work, "The Aliens" and "The Harbor Master," by Prof. A. W. Breeden on November 22.

"Selected Poems," by Lizette Woodsworth Reese, will be given by Prof. J. O. Faulkner on December 6; "The Coronet" by Manuel Komroff given by N. W. Rockey on December 6; "Sir Walter's Influence After One Hundred Years" by Miss Ada Rice on December 13; and the final lecture presented by Prof. H. W. Davis, head of the English department, who will discuss "The Recent Poetry of Robinson Jeffers" on December 20.

Students, members of the faculty, and the general public are invited to attend the lectures.

SEND INVITATIONS TO PARENTS VIA ETHER

During the morning students will act as hosts to their parents and are urged to invite them to accompany them to classes and take them to the show-places of the campus. In the shops they will be shown a foundry demonstration and the livestock may be seen at the barns. Of interest to all parents are the green house of the horticultural department, and the library, the newest and most beautiful building on the campus.

Progress in plans for the observance of the occasion next Saturday, October 15, was reported at a meeting of the committee in charge, held last evening in the alumni office. Members of the committee were appointed to present the matter to the various campus organizations.

Pete Fairbank, Topeka, chairman of the committee, will be assisted by Pete Pocock, LeRoy, in contacting the fraternities. Ivalee Hedge, Manhattan, is in charge of sorority solicitation and Doris Thompson of Van Zile Hall. Literary societies will be informed by Aileen Rundle, Clay Center.

Tickets for the banquet which will be served at 6:15 Saturday evening will go on sale Thursday morning in the main hall of Anderson. Mary Alice Schnacke, LaCrosse, is in charge of hall sales. The price of the tickets is sixty cents, a reduction from previous years.

Students are asked to write to their parents inviting them to Manhattan on their day. For the first time the college is not issuing formal invitations.

Among The Ags

I'd cite Nevlyn Nelson, a junior from Belle Plaine, as the recipient of the week's worst luck. Nelson was announced last week as a member of the dairy products team which will leave for Detroit, Mich., Friday to compete in a national contest. It was the second year that he had tried for the team, and he had worked as hard as he could at the rather trying task of tasting and evaluating butter, milk, cheese, and ice cream. Sunday Nelson was taken to a Wichita hospital with a badly infected finger. He probably will miss the contest.

It was up to Prof. H. M. Scott of the department of poultry husbandry to spring the week's most unusual sight. The transparent chickens with red bones which he is preparing for the hatchery operators' convention are fully as astounding as anything a carnival barker ever strained his lungs about. It's a German custom, he explains, adding that "You can buy human bodies done up that way over there." Thanks, don't care for some.

I got ready for a brainful of the latest experimental advancement for the good of the downtrodden farmer when I found F. E. Charles having a brisk talk with Professor Aldus. . . . and then found that they were discussing bargain socks!

The fish in the formal garden pool had better prepare for company. That, according to recent reports, is where the ags who don't wear overalls next week will be ducked. The idea is that the engineers can't swipe the pool. Also it has a very effective temperature, especially early in the morning after one of these snappy nights.

Everything is settled for the barnwarmer, it seems, except the queen and the baled hay. There are nine nominees for queen, but not so many offers of baled hay.

The hay is really the serious problem. A mere queen can always be elected by the dire and devious processes of fraternity cooperation over-riding independent opposition—but what sorority has nominated a queen with baled hay as an accessory? Wake up, girls.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION HAS REGULAR MEETING

Plan For Annual W.A.A. Convention to Be Held in Manhattan Next Month.

Members of the Women's Athletic Association held their first regular meeting Tuesday evening in Nichols gymnasium. The meeting was conducted by Miss Betty Wagstaff, president.

Plans were discussed for the W. A. A. meetings which will be held the first Thursday evening of each month. Intramural activities, which are sponsored by the W. A. A. were taken up, and in addition to the "Frog" club tryouts, contests will soon be held in archery, hockey, and horseback riding.

The annual State W. A. A. convention will also be held in Manhattan next month. No definite date has been set for the convention, but according to Miss Wagstaff, plans and a program for the meeting are being made.

Phi Kappa Tau

Norris Meek and George Collier spent the week end in Kansas City. Pete Pocock and Wallace Martin visited in Wichita over the week end. Carl Nelson, St. Louis, Mo., and Rusty Dunlap, Oklahoma City, Okla., were week end guests at the house. Sunday dinner guests included Mrs. T. B. Wells, Bob and Jean Wells; Mr. and Mrs. G. D. White, Kansas City; Don and Robert White; and Ben Winchester, Kinsley. Mrs. J. B. Vandergriff, Mrs. B. O. Vandergriff and Ona Vandergriff, jr., all of Douglas, were visitors Sunday afternoon.

"You call it America's pipe tobacco!"

—AND HERE'S WHY: Granger is made of White Burley Tobacco — the type between the kind used for chewing and the kind used for cigarettes.

In other words, it's pipe tobacco—and if you're smoking a pipe, you want tobacco made for pipes—not tobacco made for something else, it matters not how good it is.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . Well, we actually survived after the "dirt" came out last week—simply because we left town that day . . . . The biggest event last week end was the romp Kansas State gave Wesleyan down at Salina—and with only 4,000 spectators on hand to witness the massacre . . . . There was plenty to note at the game—for example Bud Harrop there but where was Margaret—ask Jaconette Lawrence . . . . Harry Miller blossomed out with a new lady friend, none other than Ione Hill—but oh Harry! why was Ione campused Saturday night? . . . . There was Major Bliss looking dapper in a new green hat . . . . A number of old K. S. C. students were there, too—Bob Johnson, Bob Shearer, Mildred Huddleston, Casey Bauman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cronkite, Bill Daniels, Al Tucker, the Gunn boys, Gordon Towner, Gordon Blair, Mildred Fox with Walt Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Crocker, and "Chick" Allison with a girl other than Pauline . . . . But what did Lee Morgan eat to make him so ill just before the start of the game? . . . . And we gladly dedicate the Lamer hotel to Swede Lutz as a pickup place for passengers . . . . The usual number of cigars plus their Joe College owners were there—derbies were the only accessories lacking . . . . So much for the game . . . .

. . . . Congratulations to Isabel Nelson and Nelson Reppert—it's candy for the Chi Omegas and cigars for the Sig Alphs . . . . We wonder why Don Hutchinson has been nicknamed "Buttercup?" . . . . Just happened to see where the Delts have two new pledges—that free varsity last Saturday must have been good rush talk—let's see what the Sigma Nus can do this week . . . . Ask the Kappas why they have boycotted Fritz Beeler . . . . And there'll be an announcement of a wedding soon . . . . Before we forget, H. W. Davis is afraid his "powder-on-the-lapel" story isn't going to make the Collegian six times this year—we're doing our best Mr. Davis . . . . The new president of the Beauvais says all parties will be dry this year—that's noble work for the W.C.T.U., Clay . . . . Why is Ray Spilman called "Dingbat?" . . . . Was that new mown hay in your hair last Saturday night, Margaret Mary Reddy? . . . . The inevitable has occurred—the Kappa Harmon wore stockings—imagine it—to the varsity Saturday . . . . And there was "Rammer" Graham with Meredith Manion at the dance — what about Sarah, Ralph . . . .

. . . . What's this rumor that an A. T. O. pin is going back to its original owner some day soon? . . . . Don't tell me there's a romance developing between Marian Crocker and Johnny Ratliff—but then they are seen together quite frequently . . . . And here's one on "Doc" Mathews—while attempting to introduce himself to a Tri Delt freshman, he acknowledged, "I'm just a gentleman and a scholar." . . . Without further hesitation, his listener added, "Oh, I know who you are then—a Kappa Sig"—and children that was said in all sincerity . . . .

AT THE DICKINSON

Manhattan hasn't had a picture here this fall that's as sweet as "Smilin' Through." Norma Shearer is nicely cast in this story that will never grow old as long as new mediums are advanced through which it may be presented. Back in the silent picture days, Norma Talmadge scored a success in "Smilin' Through." Now another Norma does the part equally well.

The beautiful Norma falls in love with the son of a man who killed her uncle's young bride-to-be. The uncle, bitter after his solitary years and still true to the memory of the girl he loved, objects to Norma's seeing this young man. Stolen moments in the garden and over the tea tables convince Norma and her lover that they must live their own lives and disregard the unhappy events of the past.

But, the uncle interferes, so Norma stays at home while the young man goes to the front. You'll have to see it to appreciate the fine work that has been done. It's too good a show to spoil by trying to put it into words.

Fredric March and Leslie Howard are as strong a supporting cast as any star could ask for.

Take your best girl. She'll weep and then love you for holding her hand.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM

Cadet life as lived by Tom Brown in "Tom Brown at Culver" should be rather monotonous. At least Carl Laemmle presents it that way when he devotes half of the film having young men march around the parade grounds, blow bugles, and wave flags.

When the show really starts moving, it's interesting. Tom Brown, street urcin, is discovered by the American Legion, who send him to Culver in memory of his father, who they believe was killed in the war. Slim Summerville is the samaritan angel who sees the appointment is made and who later brings about a meeting between Tom and his father, H. B. Warner. That's about all there is to the plot, but comedy sidelights offered by the boys at the academy, and certainly by Slim Summerville, help to drown out the war-time sentiment.

I believe you'll like it.—E. D.

HARGISS QUITS AS GRID COACH AT UNIVERSITY

UNSATISFACTORY CONDITION IN FOOTBALL COACHING SITUATION CAUSES CHANGE.

LINDSEY NAMED SUCCESSOR

Change Attributed to Poor Showing Made by Jayhawkers Against Oklahoma Sooners — Allen Will Take Charge.

Claiming "an unsatisfactory condition in the football coaching situation", caused H. W. "Bill" Hargiss, head football coach at the University of Kansas to resign his position Monday, October 10. Adrian Lindsey, who quit a similar position last year at Oklahoma, was named as his successor.

Hargiss will be retained as head track coach at the University to succeed Brutus K. Hamilton, who resigned last summer to coach at the University of California. No reduction in salary will be made.

The shakeup came as Hargiss was starting his fifth year at the university as head football coach. The change is attributed to the poor showing that the Jayhawkers made against Oklahoma university last week.

COACH H.W. HARGISS

Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic director and nationally known basketball coach, will have full charge of the Jayhawker football squad during the remainder of the present season.

The Kansas athletic board after a session last night, turned over full responsibility for the football squad to Dr. Allen and empowered him to make any change he deemed necessary. In a statement the board said:

"In view of the unsatisfactory condition existing in the football coaching situation, the athletic board of the University of Kansas calls upon Director F. C. Allen to take whatever steps he deems necessary for the remainder of the football season to improve conditions."

After a conference today with Hargiss, Allen issued a statement saying: "In this emergency I am designing Adrian Lindsey to take over the active detail coaching of the football team. Mike Getto will continue in his present capacity as assistant varsity coach and Coach H. W. Hargiss will continue as head track coach without any reduction in salary."

Formal Resignation

The deal was completed when Hargiss addressed his formal resignation as football coach to Chancellor E. H. Lindley, chairman of the athletic board. Hargiss' letter said:

"Because of apparent dissatisfaction with the coaching of the football team I feel that for the best interests of the university I should be relieved of further responsibility in that field. This will give me an opportunity to direct my efforts as track coach to the maintenance of the prestige of track and field athletics at the university."

Dr. Allen said Lindsey's appointment as acting head coach was for one year. Lindsey, who was a star fullback for the Jayhawkers and captain of the football squad here in 1916, was appointed assistant to Hargiss several weeks ago.

After a spectacular career as a field goal kicker and all-around fullback in college, Lindsey played with the champion 89th division team in the A. E. F. and returned to his alma mater in 1919 as freshman football and varsity baseball coach. He played baseball with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1921, then was dropped to the minor leagues.

Coached at Bethany

For five years Lindsey was head coach at Bethany college, Lindsborg, Kan., going from there to the University of Oklahoma. The Oklahoma football department underwent a shakeup after the Sooners finished the 1931 season in a last-place tie with Missouri in the Big Six conference. The Sooners' only conference victim last season was Kansas. Lindsey resigned as head coach and returned to live in Lawrence.

The Kansas shakeup gives the Big Six three new head coaches for the 1932 season, Frank Carideo succeeded Gwinn Henry at Missouri, and Lewie Hardage took over the Oklahoma job relinquished by Lindsey.

SOCCER GAMES SHOW INTERESTING RESULTS

Delta Tau Delta Only Ones to Go Undefeated—Horse Shoes Finish Tomorrow.

The three intramural soccer games played yesterday afternoon showed interesting results. Of the six games played by the six teams in Group I three have been tie games, and only one team has won both its contests, the others either having sustained a tie or loss.

Yesterday Delta Tau Delta defeated Lambda Chi Alpha 3 to 0 to go on undefeated. Tau Kappa Epsilon and Phi Lambda Theta provided the tie game, the score being 1 all. Sigma Phi Epsilon broke into the win column by scoring a 3 to 0 victory over the W. F. A. C.

Six games are scheduled for today and Wednesday. They are: Tuesday—Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Aggie Knights; Phi Kappa Tau vs. Acacia; Beta Theta Pi vs. Alpha Gamma Rho. Wednesday—Kappa Sigma vs. Lone Stars; Alpha Tau Omega vs. Phi Delta Theta; Sigma Nu vs. Delta Sigma Phi.

The first round in horse shoe singles is scheduled to be finished by tomorrow night.

KANSAS STATE EASILY DEFEATS WESLEYAN

Led By Graham and Russell the Team Submerges Coyotes in Barrage That Nets 8 Touchdowns.

Led by "Rambling Ralph" Graham and Dougal Russell, a powerful Kansas State eleven submerged the Kansas Wesleyan Coyotes Friday night under a barrage that netted eight touchdowns. The score was 52-6 and represented the largest score ever made by a Kansas State team in modern grid history.

After the first five minutes, a Wildcat victory was assured. Soon after the opening kick off, Russell crossed the goal line after a brilliant 45-yard run through a mass of Coyote tacklers. According to "Swede" Anderson, he certainly "sunfished" as he swarmed down the field.

In a few minutes, Graham broke through for the second touchdown, after several plunges placed the ball in a scoring position. "Rambling Ralph" converted both points after touchdown to run the Wildcat total to 14. Before the end of the half, another touchdown by Graham and a score by Bushby boosted the tally to 26-0.

At the start of the second half, "Bo" McMillin placed an inexperienced team on the field, and Kansas Wesleyan's offense immediately began to function. A pass from Boxberger to Robinson was complete from Kansas State's 21-yard ote's only score, after a drive from line and accounted for the Coymidfield. Encouraged by their success, Kansas Wesleyan began a "march" that was stopped on the Wildcat seven yard line. At this time an entire new Wildcat team came on the field. On the next play Robinson fumbled and Blaine recovered. A beautiful run by Russell immediately brought the ball out of danger. The rest of the game was a romp with Graham scoring twice, and Breen and Russell once to run the tally to 52-6.

A crowd of between 3,000 and 4,000 attended the night game. It was the first game the State eleven had played "under the lights."

Sports Hi-Cups

The Kansas Jayhawk was offering $1,000 reward for the person who could tell them "What is wrong with Kansas."

"Bo, it is sure hard for me to pass this white ball. It is much lighter than the yellow one." Signed E. S. W.

L. B. Pilcher: "Yes. Oss, my ankle is all right, but it sure does hurt when I run."

The coaches down at the athletic office are the only ones in Kansas that have much time for Missouri at present.

Playing a game of football at Kansas Wesleyan is just like playing a good sized high school only the bands are larger.

Jack Going, flashy half back for the Aggies, punted -2 yards against the wind the night at Kansas Wesleyan. Boy! that wind sure did blow.

It took the fire out of Kansas Wesleyan Friday night when Bo sent back in his whole first string. At least they fumbled when they should have threatened to score.

Every reserve on the Kansas State aggregation agrees that there are more sand burrs at Salina than any other place in Kansas.

Prof. W. B. Balch atended the Kansas State-Wesleyan game at Salina Friday.

MISSOURI GAME TO BE NO SNAP, SAYS COACH

Enormous Scores Against Carideo's Team Fails to Impress McMillin.

"Everyone in this town thinks we will have a snap game next Saturday against Missouri university but don't you believe it," Coach McMillin told his squad members yesterday. "Just because they have been beaten on two previous Saturdays is no reason they will not put up a plenty tough ball game against us, Saturday, October 15."

In preparation for the Kansas State-Missouri tilt this week end, Bo McMillin last night put his squad through a long signal practice and "dummy" scrimmage that almost turned into the real thing before the evening was over.

The game against Missouri will be the opening game in the Big Six for Kansas State and due to the easy win over Kansas Wesleyan last Friday night, it will probably be one of the hardest games of the season.

A few injuries still prevail in the K-Aggie camp. Doug Russell, McDonald, Pa., is suffering from a bad tooth which has caused a severe swelling to his jaw.

L. B. Pilcher, Glasco, is still kept from hard practice because of an ankle injury received several weeks ago in practice.

Harry Hasler, ElDorado, has been kept from scrimmage since the Purdue game but will be in shape for the Missouri encounter.

The Missouri Tigers, under the coaching of Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame football star, will come to Kansas with fire in their eyes. Although they have not yet won a game this season, they have competed against the stronger teams of the middlewest.

The Missouri team uses a similar system to that of Wichita university, the famous Notre Dame shift. According to Coach McMillin at a pep meeting early in the year it is nothing but some "pretty fun dancing."

CAGE PRACTICE BEGINS TODAY, SAYS CORSAUT

Five Lettermen Return This Year —Three Are On Football Squad.

According to Coach C. W. Corsaut, official varsity basketball practice will start today. He has asked two lettermen and several freshmen to report for practice.

"It is far too early to make any prediction concerning the coming season," said the Wildcat basketball mentor, "but of one thing I am certain. The success of our coming season depends upon the play of our center. If we can develop a capable center, we will make it plenty tough on the other teams in the conference."

Five lettermen return from last year's team: Captain Andy Skradski, Lloyd Dalton, Emmett Breen, Ralph Graham, and "Bus" Boyd. Of this group, Graham, Breen and Dalton are on the football squad and will not report for basketball until after football season. Skradski and Boyd are working out daily, but are not practicing basketball yet. Corsaut intends to keep them playing handball for a couple of weeks, while he teaches the new men some fundamentals.

Promising men from last year's freshmen team are: Kenneth Phelps, Manhatan; Don Hutchinson, Hutchinson; Oren Stoner, Sabetha; Homer Drier, Kansas City; Ralph Marshall, Kansas City; Dougol Russell, McDonald, Pa.; and Jim Freeland, Trenton, Mo. Of this group, Marshall, Stoner, Russell and Freeland are on the football squad. Concerning these men, Corsaut said, "These men are all very promising and with a little experience will make fine varsity men."

Don Hutchinson, who is a promising guard candidate, formerly played with Hutchinson high school and later with Hutchinson junior college. During the coming season, Corsaut is planning on using Hutchinson a great deal. He has had lots of experience and is a fast, heady guard. Dougal Russell star football man, is also a good basketball player. He has had previous college experience and this combined with his ability should make him a valuable man. Phelps, Drier, Stoner, and Freeland have all had considerable high school experience and after a fall's practice on fundamentals will make valuable members for the squad.

In the first game, Corsaut could start an entirely veteran team. Skradski, Graham, Breen, and Boyd, regulars from last year are all back in school and with Dalton would form a team of lettermen. This will enable Corsaut to bring his sophomores along slowly, so they will have plenty of experience before called upon to play in an important game. From last year's squad, Captain Auker, Fairbanks, Wiggins, and Brockway have graduated. Their places will be hard to fill, but with experience the new men should take their places.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Volume XXXIX — The Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, Manhattan, Kansas, October 14, 1932. — Number 10

PARENTS AND EDITORS TO GAME

HECKLERS TAKE CHARGE AT FALL GOLF TOURNEY AT COUNTRY CLUB

TO PLAY RUTHLESS GAME WITHOUT RULES—EDITORS MAY RELAX.

BANQUET BY JOURNALISTS

Recognition to be Given Editors Who Have Done Meritorious Work in Newspaper Field.

"Pack up your troubles in your old golf bag and drive, drive, drive." That was the slogan sent out in advertising the Kansas Editorial Golf association's annual fall tournament being held in Manhattan this week end. A check of registration early last evening showed 28 names and many more editors were reported as being in town but not yet registered.

The annual tourney with its ruleless golf and its unusual prizes is a gathering for those editors who wish to play golf and for those who wish to play. It affords the editors an opportunity to relax a bit, and to tell golf stories. Recognition is given those men who have done meritorious work in the newspaper field at the superior editors' banquet given by Sigma Delta Chi, men's honorary journalistic fraternity, Friday night at the Wareham hotel.

According to H. W. Bouck, secretary of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, about 100 newspaper men are expected.

Herbert Waggoner, Hutchinson, president of the association was the first man to register. Other well-known names on the list included J. C. Mohler, D. W. Mulvane, and Carlos Hobbs. Topeka, and E. A. Briles, Stafford, president of the Kansas Press association.

This year's tourney is sponsored by the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce and the department of industrial journalism at Kansas State. M. F. "Mike" Ahearn, head of the athletic department at the college, is chairman.

According to H. W. Bouck, secretary of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, about 15 men qualified for the tourney Thursday afternoon on the Country club course.

The remainder of the qualifying rounds will be played Friday forenoon and the match rounds will start Friday afternoon. Golf will be completed by Saturday afternoon, however, to permit attendance to the Kansas State-University of Missouri football game; according to sponsors of the tourney

NORMAN THOMAS, SOCIALIST HEAD SPEAKS TODAY

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE PROBABLY WILL INTRODUCE ECONOMIC PROGRAM.

IS EXPONENT OF PACIFISM

Favors Abolition of Military Training Camps and R. O. T. C.—Advocates Joining of World Court and League.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of the United States, will speak this afternoon at 3:45 oclock in recreation center, instead of the cafeteria as formerly announced.

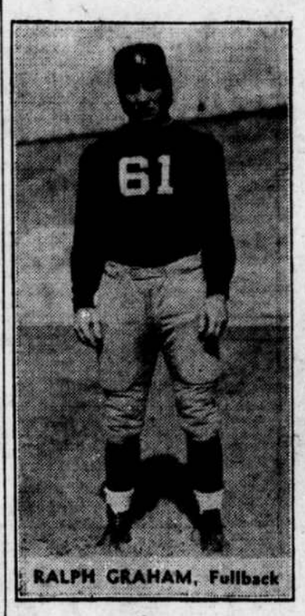

Thomas, the second forum speaker scheduled this week, will probably introduce to his listeners the economic program of the Socialist party, which has gained sharply in organization and municipal offices in the last three years.

The economic program of the Socialist party provides for an appropriation of five-billion dollars for immediate relief for needy, and federal appropriation of five-billion dollars for public works and roads.

WILL AWARD SIX PRIZES AT PARENTS BANQUET

Trophies Offered by the Athletic Department Will be Presented By M. F. Ahearn.

There are going to be some mighty lucky as well as happy people at the Parents Day banquet Saturday evening, October 15 when Prof. M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics, awards the six prizes that are being offered by the athletic department as a special feature of the Parents Day program.

A silver loving cup is offered to the fraternity having the largest number of parents present at the banquet in proportion to the size of the fraternity. For the last three consecutive years, Phi Delta Theta has been the winner of this award, and last year it became the permanent property of the fraternity. A new cup is being offered this year.

Silver placques will be awarded to the literary society, the fraternity, and the sorority having the largest number of representatives of their organization present at the banquet. Last year Delta Delta Delta sorority received the award for having the most parents present among the women's organizations, and Ionian literary society was the best represented literary society.

A pewter water pitcher is being offered to the parents present at the banquet having the largest number of children in college this year. Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Morgan were last year's winners, having at that time three children enrolled.

A set of silver salt and pepper shakers will be awarded to the parents coming the longest distance. The winners last year were Mr. and Mrs. H. Lautz from La-Junta, Colo., who came 565 miles.

These six prizes will be on display downtown in Smith's jewelry store window.

TOURNAMENT PRIZE VALUES VARY WIDELY

Range From Can of Mulligan Stew To Silver Dinner Sets

Prizes ranging from a can of mulligan stew to sterling silver dinner sets will be awarded to flight-winners in the Kansas State Editorial Golf association tournament being held here today and tomorrow.

The prizes for winners of each flight will not be announced until after the qualification rounds have been played. The prizes may not be awarded to winners of the top flight, they may even go to runners-up in the consolation flight; no one will know until after the qualification rounds have been played.

Expensive leather golf bags, electric toasters, electric stoves, waffle irons, silk blankets, five large cured hams, sweaters, several sets of clubs, and many other articles make up the prize list. It is said there will be a prize for every player who enters the tournament.

The census shows 64,000 turkey growers in California, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Montana and Utah.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS AS SEEN IN THE LOBBIES

Herbert Spencer Waggoner, city editor of the Hutchinson News and president of the Editorial Golf association, was one of the earliest arrivals yesterday. He came with George Hausam, also of Hutchinson, in the latter's Pierce-Arrow automobile, which Editor Waggoner lightly referred to as "our old flivver."

A firm believer in advertising is Bentley Marnabas, of Wichita, who is known in newspaper circles over the state for his work with "Servicescope," trade publication of the Kansas Gas and Electric company. Mr. Barnabas advertised the fact that this is a golf tournament as well as a conversational convention, by early and late appearances in the hotel lobby yesterday in his resplendent golfing togs.

The golfing editors like football, too, and they are looking forward to the game between the Kansas Aggies and the Missouri Tigers, here tomorrow afternoon. Many of them were downright worried yesterday afternoon lest the final rounds of the tourney not be finished before the game, which starts at 2 oclock.

George Hausam, of Hutchinson, many times winner of editorial golf championships or medalist honors, is taking time out from his game to acquire lots of information about Kansas State college. Mr. Hausam has a son who will finish junior college this year and who is an Aggie prospect.

"Yeah, we sure did get a fine welcome," said one editor, "Welcome signs everywhere. Yeah, 'Welcome I.O.O.F.'".

Bert Harris of the Herington Times doesn't play golf, but he's sure in for the rest of the tournament. Bert's a loyal Aggie supporter and he'll be rooting hard Saturday.

SENIORS TO ELECT OFFICERS NEXT WEEK

Lack of Political Spirit Results in Abandoning Under-Class Elections.

Senior class elections will be held Thursday, October 20, in recreation center, according to Maurice DuMars, president of the Student Council.

Names of nominated candidates must be in the hands of Esther Row, secretary of the association, by Tuesday noon preceding the election.

Following the plan decided upon last year that seniors alone will have election of officers, only members of that class will be allowed to vote. Nomination of candidates will be made by the two campus political parties. Vox Pop and Theodoric. However, nominations will be accepted from other people not in either of the political parties.

Nominations will be in order for president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer.

It was also decided in the student council meeting Monday evening at the Farm House that a number of the 1932 Royal Purples will be purchased to send out to the high schools in Kansas. DuMars stated that the sending of these Kansas State yearbooks will probably be in the nature of high school extension work to replace in some degree the "go-to-college" teams which make annual trips over the state.

The number of books which will be purchased will be determined following the budgeting of the activity fund. James Chapman, who was editor of the Royal Purple last year, is in charge of all the books which were left over.

MAYRIE GRIFFITH, VAN CAMP ON BOARD

Record Vote Is Cast in Annual Collegian Election in Kedzie Hall Yesterday.

Collegian subscribers yesterday elected Mayrie Griffith, Topeka, and Ralph Van Camp, Council Grove, to the Kansas State Collegian board at the annual election held in Kedzie hall. A record vote was cast.

Miss Griffith will be the only new member on the board since Van Camp was elected last year also. The other members of the board are Prof. C. E. Rogers, head of the journalism department; Mary Alice Schnacke, LaCrosse, president of Theta Sigma Phi; and Maurice DuMars, Agra, president of Sigma Delta Chi. The latter automatically become members when they are chosen heads of their organizations. Edith Dobson, Manhattan, is the retiring member of the board.

Fred Peery, Manhattan; and Donald White, Kansas City, were the other two candidates whose names appeared on the ballots.

SOCIETIES HAVE HIKES

The Ionian and Hamilton literary societies had a hike Saturday evening, October 8, at Sunset park. The members later in the evening danced at the home of Marcia and Ralph Conrad.

RECORD NUMBER OF PARENTS TO VISIT COLLEGE

GAME, BANQUET, HIGHLIGHTS

WILL BE HONOR GUESTS IN SATURDAY'S ACTIVITIES.

Final Plans Are Made for Annual Parents' Day—Hersig, Farrell, Ahearn Will Speak.

Approximately 300 parents will be visitors at Kansas State college this week end to attend the annual Parents' Day program tomorrow. Plans are being completed for their entertainment which will enable them to become acquainted with a part of the regular college routine as well as to meet many of the college officials.

Departing from the practice of past years, when invitations were mailed to the parents of each student at Kansas State college, messages were sent this year to them by means of radio station KSAC when parents were asked to be present to participate in the activities of the fourth annual Kansas State college Parents' Day.

Visit Classes—See Parade.

The program for the first portion of tomorrow morning will consist of informal visiting of classes. The dairy barns will be open for inspection and a foundry demonstration has been planned in the shops. From 11:15 to 11:45 o'clock there will be a parade of company 8, infantry, and battery A, artillery, on the drill grounds on the east campus.

No general arrangements have been made for the noon hour, in order to permit parents to be the guests of their sons and daughters for lunch at organization houses, the dormitory, or lodging places.

The big attraction of the day's program will be the M. U.-K.-Aggie game at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, which will take place in the college stadium.

Banquet At Night.

The banquet, which is an annual affair in honor of the visiting parents, will be held in the college cafeteria at 6:10 o'clock. E. L. Barrier, Eureka, who is president of the Kansas State Parents association, will speak representing the parents. Mr. Barrier is a former member of the state senate. His daughter, Alice, is a sophomore in the department of industrial chemistry.

President Farrell will address the group. The theme of his address will be the relationship between the college and parents. R. L. Hersig, Salina, winner of the local Atwater Kent radio audition contest, will sing. Toastmaster for the banquet will be Ernest Reed, Norton.

Awards of prizes for visiting parents will be made at the banquet by M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics.

Tickets for the banquet, the price of which is 60 cents, are being sold in the main hall of Anderson. Mary Alice Schnacke, LaCrosse, is in charge of the sale of the tickets.

Pete Fairbank, Topeka, is chairman of the committee in charge of general arrangements. Other members of the commitee are: Pete Pocock, LeRoy; Ivalee Hedge, Manhattan; and Aileen Rundle, Clay Center.

KIM TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS

Y. S. Kim, Chinese student here, will speak Thursday, October 20, on the foreign relations program of the Clay Center, Kansas, Rotary club.

NOISE AND PEP WILL FEATURE NIGHT'S MEETING

CROWD WILL GET TOGETHER IN PREPARATION FOR GAME.

WILL HAVE GIANT BONFIRE

Crowd Will Gather at City Park For More Cheering—Pep Varsity to be Held at Wareham.

With the battle cry "Beat M. U." ringing in their ears, one of the biggest, noisiest, peppiest crowds will get together for a rousing pep meeting tonight in the auditorium at 7:30 in preparation for the Kansas State-Missouri football game, which will open the Big Six grid season for the Wildcats.

With "Doc" H. H. King, master of ceremonies par excellence in charge, a great evening has been planned for the pep meeting. Among the notables which "Doc" King will introduce are Frank Root and Carl "Swede" Anderson, who will amuse the roaring crowd with their repertorie of jokes and stories in speeches which headline the program.

In addition to the pep talks Prof. Lyle Downey will have his band in full force on the stage to keep the crowd in tune and time to the Wildcat battle song, "Aggie Wildcats," and keep the fighting spirit up with marches. "Bo" will also have his great football team out in front where everyone can see them and cheer them on to victory tomorrow.

And to top everything off, a giant bonfire will send the sparks flying high when the surging mob will congregate in the city park after the pep meeting for more yelling and cheering. A varsity also will be held at the Wareham ballroom following the pep meeting.

FLORISTS ELECT BALCH SECRETARY-TREASURER

Midwest Association of Six States Formed at Kansas City.

Prof. W. B. Balch has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Midwest Florist's association, a regional association for commercial florists. The association was formed at Kansas City, where Balch was judging a dahlia show. The association includes the states of Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Missouri.

Professor Balch states that one of the best exhibits at the show was done by a graduate of Kansas State, C. A. Chandler, who was graduated in 1904 or 1905 had a miniature garden designed primarily to show how evergreens should be planted for informal effects.

McMILLIN PUTS MEN THROUGH LONG SESSIONS

HOLDS SIGNAL AND SCRIMMAGE SESSIONS FOR TOMORROW'S BATTLE.

WORKS ON PASS DEFENSE

Believes It Will Stop Team of Tricky All-American, Frank Carideo. Missouhi University Mentor.

Still proclaiming Missouri's great offensive power, Bo McMillin has been putting his men through long signal and scrimmage sessions all week in preparation for the Kansas State-Missouri battle tomorrow afternon at 2:00 o'clock on the stadium field.

Coach McMillin has been working his backs hard on pass defense, which he believes will stop the team of the tricky all-American, Frank Carideo, the Missouri university mentor.

The line, under the coaching of Oss Maddox, head line coach, is still working on the seven man line type of defense. This is the defense used by Purdue university and has been adopted by Coach McMillin as the probable type by which to stop the Missouri "Sun Dancers."

Stiff scrimmage was held Wednesday evening in order to strengthen the K-Aggie offense and work out some new plays which will probably be used against Carideo's Missouri Tigers this week.

Reports from the Missouri camp reveal that every man on the Missouri squad will be in shape for the Kansas State-Missouri tilt. Only a few injuries were received in the race-horse game last Saturday in which Texas university downed the Tigers 65 to 0. It was in this game that Carideo "claimed" that his team had been scouted and that Texas knew more about his team than he did himself. He altered this statement however as meaning "that Texas only has a wonderful football team."

All injuries of the McMillinmen are almost in the bag. Every man was suited up for practice last night with Hasler, end, El Dorado, ready to be in the lineup if necessary. L. B. Pilcher, Glasco, also is in top condition again and Raymond Doll, back, Elmwood, who has been kept from practice for several weeks because of an infection, "dummy" scrimmaged against the Missouri plays all last evening.

Several new men were working with the first string last evening. Lee Morgan was substituting for Shaffer. Jack Going for Russell in the backfield and Sungren, sophomore guard, worked in the place of Captain Walter Zeckser. These men will probably see a lot of service in the game tomorrow and it is possible that they will be included in the starting lineup.

The usual starting lineup: Lloyd Michael, Lawrence, center; guards, Captain Zeckser, Alma, and Blaine, El Dorado; tackles, Weybrew, Wamego, and Dalton, Garnette; ends, Neelly, Hopeyell, and Shaffer, Dodge City. In the backfield are Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa., Emmett Breen and Ralph Graham, El Dorado, and Tom Bushby, Beneville.

Field selection of seed corn before frost to secure a god quality of seed for next year is urged by the Iowa State college.

THE WEATHER

And now, my dear children, you may take off your wool shoestrings and prepare yourself for a nice week end with California skies and Florida humidity. The weather man tells us we will have a fair week end with plenty of moonlight and what have you. Rather nice to burn up the gravel towards home or maybe just stay here and enjoy yourself.

Because There Are No Buffalo And Indians Kansas Editors Take Up Golf

Away back in 1920, leaders in Kansas editorial circles felt a primeval urge to get out of their stuffy sanctums and into the great outdoors—to cope with nature in the raw. They might have hunted buffaloes or Indians, but the only buffaloes were on nickels and the only Indians had government protection.

So perforce, they took up golf. A good many of the editors had already learned the game, and their missionary efforts soon developed within newspaper circles of the state a goodly number of followers of the greens and fairways. Thus it was that, 12 years ago at Topeka, the Kansas Editorial Golf association came into being, under the sponsorship of Charles F. Scott of Iola, J. C. Mohler of Topeka and other such widely known figures in this state's newspaperdom. The association grew rapidly in membership and extent throughout the state, until now the semi-annual golf tournaments are gatherings happily anticipated by all members of the association.

Tournaments are held in the spring—usually the first week of May—and in the fall. In earlier years Topeka, Wichita and Hutchinson were most frequently the hosts, but in recent years the tournaments have been held in various other parts of the state. Tournament play to select a golf champion is of course the principal item of business attended to—but various appurtenances to the formal play serve to make affairs all the more interesting. The blind bogey prizes—such as the cars of gasoline and oil given at El Dorado in 1930, and the carload of salt given at Hutchinson this spring—and other innovations add to enjoyment of the semi-annual gatherings.

The number of competitors in recent tournaments has averaged about 75. Membership in the association is not limited strictly to editorial qualifications — rather, those who are less directly connected with newspaper or publicity work may also belong. The "writin' editors" constitute probably a majority of the membership, but advertising men, newspaper supplies salesmen and others of similar capacity are included. This latter group has frequently boasted its golf excelt that of the editors themselves, and has given weight to the claim by clinching numerous championships. But the claim was set aside last spring when Cecil Rich, editor and publisher of the Pratt Tribune, won the championship in the tourney at Hutchinson.

So the Kansas Editorial Golf association has now come to Manhattan for the newspaper men's semi-annual fling on the fairways and—perchnce, alas!—in the rough.

PARENTS AND EDITORS HALLOO!

'Tis with pleasure that the Collegian welcomes the parents of Kansas State college students and Kansas editors to Manhattan. The parents will be given an opportunity to obtain knowledge that John and Mary really do attend classes and work diligently upon academic subjects during their four-year stay at the institution.

The editors will confine their observations mainly to the outlandish iron and wood strokes of their contemporaries, and incidentally, take time out to watch Bo McMillin's Purple Horde administer a trouncing to the Missouri university football aggregation.

The guests are welcomed to Manhattan to have a good time, observe college and civic activities, and go home feeling that they have been justified in making the trip.

MENS SANA IN CORPORE SANO

(Sound Mind, Sound Body)

Physical education courses, which have been required for forty years in the college of liberal arts and sciences, at the University of Kansas, as a prerequisite to graduation, have been made optional for the 1932-33 school year. In the past, students in the college were required to have four semesters of this work before they were eligible for a degree. Chancellor E. H. Lindley said the change was made as an experiment largely to help in meeting the reduction of 25 per cent in the university budget.

Better ways than this could be found to meet the reduction in the budget. At the beginning of the World war when all of our young men were given physical examinations upon their enlisting in the army, it was found that a large per cent needed intense training before they would be fit for the strenuous service. Since that time physical education has come into its own and in all public schools and colleges the training of the body has been emphasized and good results obtained. Each fall, fewer cases are found of students who are unable to take the required physical training. This is due to the good work done by our college trained instructors teaching in grade and high schools.

High schools in the states which are members of the Big Ten league have taken from their curriculum all required physical education for both boys and girls. What will this mean? In the next decade there will be no necessity for students to select physical education as their major in college, and if required work is taken out of our colleges, a faculty will be unnecessary in that department. In other words, our colleges will suffer if required work is taken out of the public schools. This would be a serious move, but unless we all see how the trend is, we will not be prepared to defend the issue when it strikes home.

The physical education department is a preventative course for students. It keeps them fit for geology and American literature. It is an important link in the well rounded cycle, making up a perfect curriculum.

Let's all fight for it.—E. W.

TEACHING AND THE MISFITS

Miss Florence Hale, president of the National Education association, recently uttered criticisms of some members of the teaching profession. It was during the war, Miss Hale states, that many unfit teachers were pressed into the teaching profession. "This," continued Miss Hale, "resulted in a large output of so-called teachers who, in many instances, were not teachers at all, when it came to the true spirit of teaching or to the right kind of a personality to be a successful teacher."

It is only natural for families of moderate circumstances to expect their children to derive financial advantage from education. Desire on that basis does not constitute a claim. The teacher's personality, attitude and interests must be considered. The fact that a girl is married is no reason for discharging her from her job, says Miss Hale. The complaint is against those who accept salaries but give very little to the schools in return.

A high status in the teaching personnel is hard to maintain where school boards look upon the schools as so many "jobs" to parcel out where they will do the most political good. Miss Hale's plea is for a rigid selection of applicants which will be ultimately of benefit to the teachers themselves, for, she explains, one reason why so many communities are eager to cut the salaries of teachers is that they are dissatisfied with the services of the inefficient minority, which tends to injure the standing of all the teachers.—Indiana Daily Student.

The Snooper

The boys over at the Delta Tau Shelters mistook the fire chief for the long, hairy arm of the law the other day and not having sufficient vertebra to withstand a possible verbal attack from the college authorities, catapulted siphons, crocks, bottles containing some sort of odiferous hogwash, and other miscellany from upstairs windows in moral fear of search and padlock. The material, it is sincerely believed, must have been left in the place by former occupants. Who dares imagine any staunch Delta Tau harboring materials in the above category? Read the last sentence carefully so as not to confuse the word staunch with the more common "stench", which means something altogether different. Anyway, the chief (mentioned several hundred words back), proclaimed the structure fireworthy and went his way, unaware of the unease which he had left in his wake.

Bulletin: Harken, you of the agrarian element. Next week, don't fagetcha overalls or you will forthwith be dunked in a goldfish pool. Last year, if you can harken back that far, one George Washington (not the one you are thinking about, you dopes!), threatened to exterminate the whole ag. division because they insisted upon dunking him in a horse trough for failing to comply with rigid rules. If you are unable to find overalls, it is better not to wear anything. In fact, if we can get enough agrarians to not wear anything we might declare a holiday and the Collegian will put out an extra.

The initiation of the new members of Pi Kappa Chi tested the mettle of some of the new freshmen girls Wednesday night. Two Kappas and a Pi Beta Phi wept bitterly when wood was administered. The others, being made of sterner stuff, did nobly. Genevieve Johnson of Chi Omega threw a wrench (a bucket of mild salt water) into the well conceived works (a bucket of some foul concoction) and a part of the initiation went amuck. The prank wasn't discovered until after the ball was over.

On Other Hills

Bring this question up at your next big bull session: Resolved That it is better to be drunk than to be in love. This was the subject for debate at McGill university.

The custom of playing taps on a bugle at the end of the day has been discontinued at Mississippi State college, after 52 years' continuous use.

A new $1,500,000 law school will be dedicated at Cornell university, October 15. The building is a gift of M. C. Taylor, Cornell graduate, and head of the United States Steel corporation.

The University of Wisconsin is sponsoring eighteen sports this year, including bowling, water polo, and rowing.

Co-eds at Northwestern university crib by reading notes placed under their fish-net hose.

Although he has never attended college, Babe Hollingsberry coaches the football team at Washington State.

Non-drinkers at the University of Indiana hold the majority by a margin of 165. There are more students at the university that smoke than those who do not.

If you are unemployed and can prove it, you will be admitted to all classes at Brigham Young university.

Physical education at K. U. this year is required only of fine arts students and engineers enrolled at the college.

Auburn university might win the American football title this year. The school has a candidate for the football team who weighs 303 pounds.

Four dances each this year will be the limit for fraternities and sororities at the University of Misscuri.

It pays to study at the University of Washington. Graduating seniors who have been on the honor roll for two years are exempt from final examinations.

Co-eds at the University of Oklahoma were recently advised to get in "touch" with some man in the R.O.T.C. unit, after it was announced that men who attended camp at Fort Sill this summer would receive pay totalling $3,005.20.

The romance of canoeing on their campus has been ended by authorities at Stanford university. Under a new rule recently put into effect, no young maiden is allowedto be rescued by a hero who has "accidentally" overturned the boat. Hereafter, all co-eds must pass a test in swimming and life-saving before they are allowed in a canoe.

Over 300 newspapers and 1700 periodicals are contained in the Watson library at Kansas university. This involves recording about 3,000 a week.

Farmers in states north of here have gone on another strike, which inspires a question which has been puzzling us ever since the "holiday" movement was launched: Who juices the cows and slops the hogs in their absence? Most of the farm-wives, we suspect, will really be in need of a holiday after it's all over.—Concordia Blade-Empire.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Another big week in sight—our game with M. U., Parents Day, the annual Pi K A Cornjigger, and the Kansas Editorial Golf Association in town . . . . Speaking of Pi K A, we wonder the outcome of their scholarship rating at the end of the five weeks. You know they returned to school this week after seven hilarious days of quarantine . . . . In the same strain, someone ask "Snooper" Sorrells if he has ever recovered his "breach-of-promise" letters from Lawrence—and if they're in Colorado by now . . . . By the way, Eleanor Wright, after all your inquiries, have you learned whether or not Taylor Jones is a good boy—perhaps the Phi Delt at K. U. could tell you . . . .

. . . . Here's a good one on the editor—after diligently studying his Spanish lesson for an hour or so, Ward came to class October 13 to learn that he had put his valuable time in on the October 3rd assignment . . . . One of the prospective Ag Barnwarmer queens has given out this bit of advice to her who would be Ag Queen, "If you want to win, just act as if you aren't a somebody" . . . . Chili Cochrane tells us that he's no nearer to getting married now than he was ten years ago—so we wonder just how near he was that decade past . . . . Noting fashions—have you all seen that chic blue sport dress which Dorothy Hadsell wears so becomingly? . . . . Sorta reminiscing—do you remember "Cowboy" Bob Blair, prominent senior last year—at present he's at the Tequesquite Rancho in Albert, New Mexico, and is the only white man among 18 Mexicans . . . .

. . . . What about the Lambda Chi freshman who during their recent sneak ran off with a town boy's dad's car. Remember freshie—not all the cars parked in front of your house necessarily belong to the members . . . . It seems as if the Tri Delts are attempting to rear bigger and better Y. W. C. A.'ers, for take a look at the list of Freshman Commission officers . . . . Can you imagine any of the Pi Phi freshmen breaking a date with Jim Richards—why the idea is preposterous! . . . . No one man has ever gained more sophistication from going around the world in a mule boat than did Denny Olmstead . . . . The newest Beta pledge—Roscoe Pitts—that's all right, Dick Seaton, there's always one dark horse among the new pledges each fall . . . . And what do you suppose will be Frankie "Cryboy" Carideo's alibi this week end for losing another football game? . . . .

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON

Pointers for football players are passed out freely by Richard Arlen in his role as star of "All American." However, not only football players, but anyone interested in good entertainment will enjoy this picture.

All of the members of the 1931 All American team in action is a thing one will probably never have another opportunity to see. The game they play against the stars of former years furnishes thrills seldom equalled in football pictures.

Jame Gleason who plays the part of the gloomy coach is well worth going to see all alone. With lines that are not particularly new or snappy he manages to be extremely funny. June Clyde as the girl pulling for the home team is charming.

A slightly new slant on football-inflated egs is brought out in this story of a great player who wanted to cash in on his own popularity to make some easy money without any greater effort than riding about on million dollar yachts. As a bond salesman he made a grand football player — an old gag, but fitting.

It's a good show, and seemed to have been greatly enjoyed by "Bo" and the boys as well as the rest of the crowd.—D. H.

"Bird of Paradise"

"Bird of Paradise" might well have been named "Let's Go Native." It is a stirring melodrama of the native girl and the white boy. Of course the scenes are laid in some South Sea island where the atmosphere, the actions, the music, and the costuming is entirely Hawaiian. It's a tropical picture all right with all the Hula Hula girls in their grassy skirts giving one of the best performances of Hawaiian dancing that has been filmed recently. The barbaric heroine excellently portrayed by beautiful Dolores Del Rio would tempt any man to go native. Joel McCrea as the white man who did lose his heart to the princess of the South Seas could easily be cast as another Tarzan as far as physique is concerned. There is a splendid supporting cast which includes such names as R. "Skeets" Gallagher, Bert Roach, and Creighton Chaney, the son of the former star, Lon Chaney. There is both good and bad acting, good and bad photography. The story deals with the native princess who is considered by her people as a child of the volcano. There is the white man who cannot resist the charms of the brows-skinned maiden so stays on the island with her. He ocurageously battles her gods and defies her people to live and love in this tropic paradise. Naturally, complications arise because of the superstitions of these tropical peoples, and there are breath-taking scenes. The ending is different but satisfying. Don't feel too badly if you should miss this show, but if you want some good old native thrills, see it.—E. E.

AT THE WAREHAM

From caviar to beans goes Connie Bennett through a lively continuity that includes a murder trial reeking in complications and implications in "Two Against the World."

The blondest Bennett girl is rich and carefree in this latest picture of hers and a life of parties is interrupted by her brother's trial for murder. Neil Hamilton is the rising young lawyer who won't bend an inch from his principles, even for the lovely Constance, who is softer and more appealing than ever in her new role.

The cast is fine, and an old-fashioned meller-drammer plot has new smart angles and sophistication.—E. G.

LEATHER jackets are making history this year! A new age in leather is being marked by the Kordo leather people in their practical jackets which are smooth as silk and as tough as the Kansas State line. The Varsity Clothing company has a large assortment of these serviceable jackets that are going golfing, hunting, and hiking this season, to say nothing to decorating the stadium. What's more—they're washable. The price is reasonable. Then when the cooler days come along, all wool, turtle necked sweaters in gay stripes will be just the thing to wear under that jacket. The double thickness at the neck will guard you against the elements. They're only $1.95.

YOU'LL love "Mickey Mouse" hats just as much as your kid brother does "Mickey Mouse" comedies. The Wareham Hat Shop, in the Wareham building, has a recent order of hats which includes all the season's latest styles. The "Mickey Mouse" is a dear little tilted-to-one-side trick all the co-eds are demanding. A pert bow on the top gives you that added height. And that's not all. The "Mickey," decidedly not a twin of the other hat, is a clever down-over-the-right eye felt that has just oodles of style.

YOU'LL want your parents to be proud of you this week end. And they can't be that way if your hair looks unkept. Call 3135, the Varsity Beauty Shop, for a finger wave and shampoo today. Have your hair looking "right" at the game and dance following.

SUEDE ties and pumps that will go smart places with distinction are what all co-eds insist upon and find at the College Shoe Store. Swanky ties for campus wear, and slim high heels for parties, in both browns and blacks, are being advocated by this modern shoe store where the prices are always right. More concentration is being placed on the feet since skirts stay well down below the knees. And men, if you want your feet to be really comfortable in well-made shoes that possess unusual wearing qualities buy Friendly Fives, sold exclusively at the College Shoe Store. The price, you know, is always $5. If you want to keep away from that run-down-at-the-heel look, buy your shoes at Aggieville's exclusive shoe shop.

IT'S such a nice feeling when you take your hat off and your girl friends notice that Gage label, because your girl friends know the Gage label stands for chic. The Bonnette Hat Shoppe, 404 Poyntz, has a new shipment of Gage Fabric Hats in black, brown, navy, wine, and green. These smart hats come both with brims and without—and they're all weather hats! Water and snow won't faze them. The price is sensational—$2.50. Other soft hats in wool, crepe, and velvet are priced from $1.00 to $4.50.

SEEING mother and dad standing near your favorite campus building will be a treat for you in later years, even more than it will be Saturday. Don't forget to take snap-shots of the "home folks" in your college surroundings. And have your films developed at Lisk Foto shop where the service is the best and the price lowest.

IF you're looking for a smart frock and hat for the big week-end events, shop at the Aggieville Hat and Frock shop, 1210 Moro street, where you find the "newest things at the lowest prices." The latest of the season's crinkly crepes, soft wools, and sleek satins are awaiting your selection. Lovely brimmed felts and soft little crepe hats, right for every occasion, are asking your approval—and will have it. You'll be smartly and economically dressed if you choose your wardrobe at the Aggieville Hat and Frock Shop.

OUTSTANDING EDITORS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT

Sigma Delta Chi Will Name Prominent Newspapermen at Third Biennial Banquet.

Twelve outstanding editors of Kansas will receive recognition tonight when Sigma Delta Chi announces its third biennial selection of Superior Kansas Editors. The names will be revealed and certificates presented at the banquet of the Editorial Golf association tonight in the Hotel Wareham.

The banquet of the Kansas Editor's Golfing association will be held this evening at 7 o'clock in the crystal dining room of the Wareham hotel. The master of ceremonies will be Herbert Waggoner, of the Hutchinson News Herald.

Ray Pollom, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor Evan Griffith will welcome the editors to Manhattan, and A. L. "Dutch" Shultz, of the Topeka State Journal, will give the response for the editors.

Maurice L. "Duke" DuMars, president of the Kansas State college chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, will announce the new group of Superior Kansas Editors.

The Grand Prize for the golf tournament will be presented at the banquet. The nature of the prize is still a mystery. The winner is being determined by use of a blind bogey hole in the qualifying rounds.

A. N. "Bo" McMillin, Kansas State football mentor, will come down after the pep meeting at the college to talk briefly to the editors.

An innovation this year is the selection entirely on the basis of individual merit and worthy contribution to the newspaper field. Heretofore awards have been made according to classifications such as the best editorial page, best humor column, best paragraph column and similar designations. More than half of the superior editors chosen have signified their intentions of attending the banquet.

In addition to the dozen to be so recognized, two men will be cited for meritorious work in sports writing.

Two women have received the honor of selection to the superior editor list in the past. In 1928 Mrs. Cora G. Lewis, Kinsley Graphic, was chosen as the woman actively engaged in newspaper work who has done the most constructive good in Kansas journalism. That honor also went to Marion Ellet of the Concordia Blade-Empire in 1930.

Superior editors of 1928 were: Henry J. Allen, Wichita Beacon; George W. Marble, Fort Scott Tribune, deceased; Leslie Combs, Emporia Gazette; Topeka Daily Capital, Charles H. Sessions, managing editor, Harold T. Chase, editor, E. E. Kelley, columnist; Thomas E. Thompson, Howard Courant; Frank Motz, Ellis County News; John R. Harrison, Beloit Gazette, deceased; Leslie E. Wallace, Larned Tiller and Toiler; J. P. Ruppenthal, correspondent to the Russell Record; Garden City Herald, edited by "The Kelloggs"; Mrs. Cora G. Lewis, Kinsley Graphic.

Things in Art

Water Colors

by L. BURR SMITH

Sun-cracked 'dobe of the New Mexican casa and Kansas State's limestone buildings become charming subjects under the water-color brush of L. Burr Smith, assistant professor of architecture. The rich, sleepy sunshine of siesta-time in New Mexico floods "El Camino," while "Eight O'clock," a campus scene, was taken down in clearer, cooler light.

Burr Smith can give the appearance of detail without losing the charm of his medium. "Templo Guadalupe, C. Juarez" is remarkable in its detail, with its foreground stand where medals to the Virgin and ice-cream cones are sold. In every case, the artist has solved the problem of selection without failing to interest us.

A contrast to the usual brilliance of southwestern scenes is "Between Rains at Taos, New Wexico". Layers of clouds are handled in a gorgeously decorative manner in "Mission, Ranchos de Taos", and the shadows behind drying chili peppers are convincing in "Casa".

The water-colorist's beautifully patterned local landscapes show his ability to give loveliness and color to neutral areas and make the finished mosaics unusual in fresh brilliance. "Cattle Country" and "Wildcat Valley" are outstanding in the landscapes. 'Sunshine After Rain", a view east of the golf course, gives the clean-washed feeling of a landscape drying in a burst of sudden sunlight.

Most of the work exhibited was done this summer on the campus or in New Mexico. Earlier work, done in the east is represented by "Abattoir, Charles River", "John Harvard", two still lifes, and "Tree Study, Concord, Mass.", a delicate piece of workmanship. One of the still lifes shows a remarkable quality of dust. The other is a study in contrasting textures achieved by masterly graduation of color in brocade, back drape and pottery.

"Campus in Summer" and "Anderson Avenue Elms" will have student interest, and in these campus scenes, Burr Smith combines his various specialties in picturing the texture of our native stone, the heat of the summer sun, and charming pictorial details.

The exhibit will be up for two weeks in the galleries of the department of architecture, third floor of the engineering building. Some of the work is for sale.—E.G.

probably will participate in that probably will prticipate in that nineteenth hole play-off.

A Democrat editor was poking fun at his Republican friend in the lobby of the Wareham hotel Thursday afternoon, pointing out that the Manhattan G.O.P. headquarters were located in a defunct bank building.

"You have no room to talk," replied the Republican. "The Democrats are using the building of the failed Aggieville bank for the same purpose."

Well, chimned in a bystander, it looks like the Brinkleites are the only solvent ones in the race this year.

Will T. Beck of the Holton Recorder writes that he will be unable to enter the golf tournament but that he will be here for the banquet tonight.

A telegram from Kansas City states that Jack Lawrence of the Council Grove Republican is there this week and is too busy to attend the tournament. He sends his greetings to the editors who are here.

John Redmond of the Burlington Republican, who is president or vice-president of so many newspaper and highway associations that even he doesn't know all of his official positions, writes that he will be here for the banquet.

E. A. Briler, president of the Kansas Press association, of the Stafford Courier, was one of the first arrivals.

Coming in at 8:30 last night, O W. Little, that veteran secretary of the Kansas Press association and sometimes editor of the Alma Enterprise, found the Wareham lobby almost empty of Kansas editors and wondered where the devil everyone was.

Oscar Stauffer of Arkansas City, who has a string of dailies in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri, wrote to say that he was attempting to arrange his plans to attend the banquet.

Charlie Townsend of the Great Bend Tribune writes he cannot attend the tournament but that his brother, Will Townsend, will represent the Tribune.

Carlos Hobbs of the Topeka State Journal was among the first to arrive, but he came minus a purple jersey.

Gray Levitt of Topeka pulled in Manhattan Thursday evening. He asserted that he was ready to "take on all comers". Levitt was accompanied by Ed Chapman of the Topeka State Journal, Harry Wright of the Topeka Capital and plenty of clubs. You can bet your last dollar that Wright will be the champion tee gatherer of the tournament.

Elliott Belden, public relation man for the United Company at Abilene, made his appearance last night.

Politics will keep Dan Anthony III of Leavenworth, secretary of the Kansas Editorial Golf association, away from most of today's meeting. However, he has sent word that he will be in Manhattan about 10 o'clock Friday night.

this year, provides compulsory unemployment compensation with adequate benefits based on contributions by government and employers. The insurance also provides old-age pensions for men and women sixty years of age and over, and health and maternity insurance.

Regarding banking and currency the Socialist party would establish a unified banking system, beginning with complete governmental acquisition of the Federal Reserve banks and extension of the services of the postal savings banks to cover all departments of the banking business.

The Socialist party favors public ownership and democratic control of mines, forests, oil and power resources, public utilities, dealing with light and power, and of all other industries.

Abolition of military training camps and the R.O.T.C. is favored by the Socialist party. The party favors joining both the World Court and the League of Nations. Unlike the policy of the Democratic party, the Socialists are in favor of "cancellation of war debts due from the allied governments as part of a program for wiping out war debts and reparations, provided that such cancellation does not release money for armaments, but promotes disarmament."

During his early years Thomas attended Princeton where his brilliant scholarship was manifested together with his extraordinary attainments as a public speaker. He is internationally recognized as an outstanding exponent of American pacifism.

PARENTST ELECT OFFICERS

Business Meeting Will Be Held After Banquet in Thompson Hall

Officers of the Parents Association of Kansas State will be elected at a business meeting held at the annual banquet in Thompson hall after the football game with Missouri university, Saturday, October 15.

Bert Barrier, Eureka, is now president of the organization. The other officers are Fred Henney, Hutchinson, vice-president; Jerry Wilson, Manhattan, secretary; F. N. Seekamp, Mulvane, treasurer; and W. J. Brown, Fall River, delegate-at-large.

Kansas State parents organized temporarily two years ago with the purpose of promoting the interests of the college and cooperating with the students and faculty in the annual Parents' day activities.

An advisory committee with a chairman in and for each county of Kansas is elected, according to the constitution of the organization. Its purpose is to keep informed on matters of interest to the college and to advise with officers and the executive committee in management of affairs of the association. An executive committee of five acts upon all matters coming before the association between meetings.

Membership in the Parents association is composed of the parents and guardians of students attending Kansas State or who have attended the college.

CAMPUS CHEST GROUP IS BEING ORGANIZED

Committee Is Composed of Eight Faculty and Nine Student Members From Many Organizations.

The Campus Community Chest committee is now being organized, according to Professor Fred L. Parrish, faculty chairman of the committee.

The committee is composed of 17 members, eight from the faculty and the other nine from the student body. The student members are chosen each year from the nine campus-wide organizations.

One student member is chosen by each of the following campus organizations: Student council, Women's Pan-Hellenic council, Men's Pan-Hellenic council, Intersociety council, Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A., Women's Athletic council, Van Zile Hall, and Aggie Knights. Most of these organizations have not submitted the names of their choice for membership on the committee, but will do so soon.

SOCCER INTRAMURALS ONE-SIDED CONTESTS

Four Games Are Scheduled for This Afternoon—Horse Shoes in Second Round.

Although competition in soccer is almost half over and most of the teams have reached their best form, the wining teams are still scoring decisive and large victories over their opponents as the games played last Tuesday and Wednesday proved.

Tuesday afternoon Alpha Gamma Rho overhalmed Beta Theta Pi 8 to 0; Phi Kappa Tau ran over Acacia 6 to 1; and Sigma Alpha Epsilon defeated the Aggie Knights 2 to 0.

The results Wednesday show that Delta Sigma Phi won from Sigma Nu 3 to 0; Alpha Tau Omega scored a 6 to 0 victory over Phi Delta Theta; and the Lone Stars defeated Kappa Sigma 2 to 0.

Four games are scheduled for this afternoon. They are: Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Phi Kappa; Alpha Kappa Lambda vs. Theta Xi. The games Monday afternoon are: Delta Tu Delta vs. Phi Lambda Theta; W.F.A.C. vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; and Tau Kappa Epsilon vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Play in horse shoe singles advanced to the second round with the first round completed last Wednesday. The pairings in horse shoe doubles have been made and are posted on the intramural bulletin board. These matches must be played by next Monday night.

Sports Hi-Cups

According to the Kansas City Times, Bo is worried because Missouri three times got the ball within 45 yards of the Texas university goal.

Every boy on the football squad went to the show last night. Who wouldn't if they gave you a pass?

"P——!! Ken," I have a little one year old son at home that can go down under punts faster than that."

If Adrian Lindsey, new head football coach at K. U. loses the ball game this week, well, probably he may as well be looking for a new job.

Roscoe Pitts: "Mr. Root, where do yo-all live now?"
Frank: "Oh, we have moved."
Roscoe: "Well, I wish you would tell me cause I haven't seen your wife in a long time."

The Pi Phis complain that they can hear Oss Maddox during the dinner hour saying, "drive'm men, drive'm."

The next time the band decides to practice, they had better do it in the ball park.

Miss English Professor: "Well, if I had known he was a football player, I wouldn't have given him quite such a large F.

Who ever thought that football players took English anyway? It usually takes the football players.

MYSTERY ENCIRCLES PRIZE

A cloud of mystery encircles the blind bogie prize of the Kansas Editorial Golf association this year.

The blind bogie award is the joker of the golf competition and is awarded annually to the editor using just the right number of strokes on a given hole. Not only will the victor of this event be kept a secret until the editors banquet Friday night, as it has been done in previous years, but the award itself will not be disclosed until then.

The only information that could be secured from the instigators of the prize was that it would have more intrinsic value than those of previous years. The committee is complying with the associations request to cut down on the size of the prize.

Last year Floyd Ecord, editor of the Burlington Republican, was presented a carload of salt at the Hutchinson meeting as champion of the blind boggie competition.

NOTED DOG BREEDER HAS GREYHOUND HERE

Has Disarranged Bone in Right Ankle as Result of Race.

"Fast Friend," a beautiful tar and black greyhound has arrived at the veterinary hospital for observation from Colma, Calif. "Fast Friend" is a brother of one of the fastest racing greyhounds in this country, "My Laddie," and according to the Coursing News for August is valued at $5,000.

"Fast Friend" is owned by F. W. Jones, a well-known dog breeder. Last Winter "Fast Friend" broke a toe in the Florida races. The result of that injury is the cause of his being here. At later races he had to be taken out for lameness in the right fore ankle. X-ray pictures show a bone disarrangement.

Dr. E. J. Frick who is considered to be an authority on greyhounds hopes to put the dog in shape for racing. Dr. Frick says that "greyhound racing is a sport that from its inception attracts the attention of not only dog fanciers but vast crowds of sports loving people who enjoy the unusual in racing." There is nothing a grey hound does better than chase a rabbit, even though it isn't alive, he says.

FIRST OLYMPIAD HELD 776 B. C., SAYS AHEARN

In Chapel Address Athletic Director Explains History of Olympic Games.

In the year 776 B. C. the first athletic meet was held on the plains of Olympia, 50 miles west of Athens, and the meets have been in existence nearly all the time since then, said M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics at Kansas State in a talk at student assembly Wednesday morning.

He described the facilities at Los Angeles as being very well organized and convenient, the nicest feature being the Olympic Village which had never before been attempted. The 550 English, Spanish, and French type houses were all enclosed by a big wire fence around which guards rode in an attempt to keep the public away. In the big dining hall the contestants from each country sat in a group by themselves. The women contestants all stayed in a hotel together in Los Angeles.

The Olympic stadium in Exposition park seated 120,000 people, and other attractions were in the swimming stadium, Long Beach Marine stadium, where rowing contests were held, and the Olympic Museum of Fine Arts.

"Such exhibits of sportsmanship have never been equalled as was shown in this meet," said Mr. Ahearn. "If we had more Olympic meets and fewer wars, the world would be much better off."

CO-EDS WILL SIT IN ONE SECTION AT GAMES

Introduce New and Novel Idea for Creation of Pep and Enthusiasm.

A new and novel idea for the creation of more pep and enthusiasm will be introduced at the Kansas State-Missouri university game Saturday afternoon, when all girls of the college will sit together in the reserved section F, on the west side of the stadium.

The "pep section" will be sponsored by members of the Purple Pepster club and a special feature will be the giving of a different stunt by the group from their seats in the stadium following the first touchdown in each game for the remainder of the season. Purple Pepster girls will be stationed in the stadium to show all girls to their reserved section. All members of sororities, Van Zile hall, and Clovia are co-operating with the club in their efforts to make the stunt effective and a success. A section of the stadium will be reserved for each game for the girls' section.

During the last meeting of the Pepsters Wednesday afternoon in K room in Nichols gymnasium, it also was decided that, providing transportation could be obtained, all members of the organization would attend the Kansas State-Nebraska football game at Lincoln October 29. Alice Kimball was appointed chairmn of the transportation committee.

Editors' Look Over The Links Before Entering Tourney

Nine Kansas newspaper men were in the first group to tee off yesterday afternoon in a practice round at the country club course.

All were swinging their clubs freely. The slices and cuts made on the first drive were few. Herbert Waggoner of the Hutchinson News and president of the Kansas Editorial Golf association, was among the first on the links. After cutting his first ball off into the rough, he remarked, Now, ain't that good," in true editorial fashion, and wondered "if the wind would be in the same direction on all the holes."

Floyd Ecord of the Burlington Republican, who won the bogey prize of a car load of salt last year at Hutchinson, was in the group. Others were J. C. Mohler, secretary of the state board of agriculture at Topeka; R. O. Owthwaite Topeka; W. J. Prentice of the Imperial Type Metal company of Chicago; George Hallsam, of the Hutchinson Office Supply and Printing company; Bill Hinson of the Missouri Interstate Paper company, Kansas City; Morris Bushnell, Salina; and John Gilmore of Fredonia.

expenses. And it comes out of his pocket if he doesn't make them, of course. It's about an even break on the times he makes and the times he loses. This year, he is doing as many other promoters are doing offering eight instead of ten fights, thereby easing the money problem and aiding his chances of presenting a larger percentage of really worthwhile fights. The card for the first indoor show looks like a hit.

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

FIRST THEATRE PRESENTATION TO BE THURSDAY

"EASY COME, EASY GO" IS FIRST PRODUCTION OF YEAR.

CAST ENTIRELY STUDENTS

First Time Faculty Members and Townspeople Have Not Taken Part in Plays.

The first Manhattan Theatre production of the year, "Easy Come, Easy Go," a farce by Owen Davis, will be presented Thursday and Friday night, Oct. 20 and 21, in the college auditorium.

Two thieves, bank robbers both of them, are about to be caught. But, miraculously, they escape into a sanitarium. Here they steal everything they can get their hands on and the younger of the thieves becomes discouraged and goes to a big business man for advice. Just be a bluff—that's the advice the big business man gives. Taking the advice, he poses as a millionaire in the sanitarium just for a rest. He falls in love with the daughter of a man who knows what he is and becomes repentent and finally, returning the loot, he gets the girl.

Entirely farcical, the play will be one of the best comedies ever presented by Manhatan Theatre players, according to H. Miles Hebener, who is directing the play. From start to finish the predicaments of the two bank robbers, getting in mixups and getting out of them, will keep the audience in an uproar.

L. G. Langston, Hutchinson, takes the part of the younger of the thieves, Dick Tain, and Donald Williams, Manhattan, is the other thief, Jim Bailey. Both are experienced actors, Langston appearing in plays at Hutchinson junior college and Williams taking part in previous Manhattan Theatre productions. Barbara Quale, played by Louise Hatliff, Manhattan, is the girl with whom Dick Tain falls in love. Tain's rival, Horace Winfield, is a sap millionaire, who continually has some dumb remark to make, is played by Harry Ganstrom of Hollis. Don Porter, Mount Hope, has the role of Mortimer Quale, big business man and father to Barbara.

Other players and their parts are: Dorothea Moser, Blue Rapids, Alma Borden; Helen Morgan, Newton, Mrs. Masters; Helen Pickrell, Minneapolis, Molly; Eleanor Pryor, Wichita, Ada Ray; J. B. Kepler, Fort Scott, Tom Nash; Guilford Railsback, Langdon; Walcott Masters; John Van Aken, Lyons, Doctor Koots; Robert Chambers, Hutchinson, Harvey Borden; John Barhyde, Hutcihnson, the station porter; Albert B. Green, Manhattan, Doctor Jasper; Clarence Keith, Ottawa, "Shadow" Martin.

The box office at the auditorium is now open for the sale of season tickets. Single admission tickets for the play will be placed on sale Wednesday morning and will cost 50 cents and season tickets $2.00. Five Manhattan Theatre plays will be presented this season.

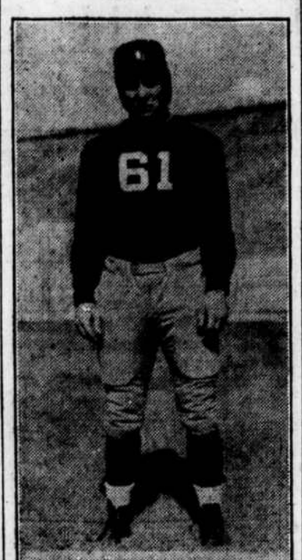

The cast of players is made up entirely of students, the first time in the history of Manhattan Theatre that this has been the case. Usually faculty members and townspeople have helped in the productions.

Producing the play on Thursday night is also something new. Never before has a student activity of this sort been presented on any night except Friday or Saturday, open nights. This year President F. D. Farrell has given his permission to the Manhattan Theatre to present two plays during the semester on Thursday and Friday nights. It is being carried out as an experiment to discover whether or not larger crowds will come to see the play on those nights than on Friday and Saturday.

The faculty of the college music department has invited students in the department to tea at the home of Prof. and Mrs. William Lindquist, on October 23 from 4 to 5 o'clock.

Come to the Grid-Graph Saturday.

BAND ASKED TO PLAY AT AMERICAN ROYAL

Transportation and Meals Will Be Furnished By Chamber of Commerce.

The college band has again been asked to play at the American Royal Livestock show in Kansas City on November 14, according to Lyle W. Downey, director. Transportation to and from Manhattan, and meals while in Kansas City will be furnished by the Chamber of Commerce.

Professor Downey also received a letter from the principal of Wyandotte high school asking the band to play two thirty-minute programs there. The auditorium is too small for everyone to hear the band's concert, and in order to keep within the state fire laws, the band is being asked for two shorter programs.

About 80 members of the band will make the trip.

The low temperature record for Illinois is 23 degrees below zero.

Prepare Special List To Teach Football Terms

Football terms for the edification of frosh have been prepared at Oklahoma A. and M. college. Here are a few hot ones:

Assistant Coach: Gentleman who takes care of coach when he swoons following dumb move of quarterback.

Bench: Uncomfortable seat for which players have great dislike; a great leveller of men, since coach and waterboy also sit on it.

Drum major: Juggler; model for displaying uniforms.

End run: Run that ends game.

Flask: Container carried by alumni who have innate fear of being bitten by snakes; also used as fortification against the rigors of thirst and cold.

Forward pass: Designed to break monotony of backward passes employed by center, and to break backfield men of timidity and make them move forward.

Hot dog: Exclamation of satisfaction. Also eaten with mustard between buns; mustard usually left on coat collar of man in front.

Half: Period in which alumni further fortify selves against rigors of thirst.

Punt: Past tense for pun, in which fans indulge when game lags.

Quarter: Time when alumni fortify selves against rigors of cold.

Ruf Nex: Exactly what the name implies.

Stop Watch: Timepiece employed by co-eds on Sunday nite dates.

Ushers: Smart alecks who make you sit where you don't want to sit.

EXTENSION SERVICE WORKERS MEET HERE

Hold Five Days of Planning State And County Programs.

All corners of Kansas have sent their extension service workers "home" to the campus of Kansas State college for a week of planning state and county programs for the coming year.

Under the leadership of Dean Harry Umberger of the extension division, more than 160 county agents and farm specialists arrived here yesterday for their annual five-day conference. Until Friday night they will be busy holding programs to meet the present needs of Kansas farm and home life. Stress will be laid upon the importance of encouraging farmers and homemakers in the development of a "live at home" program.

Prominent agricultural leaders who are on the campus this week to aid in shaping the extension work for 1933 include: C. W. Warburton, Washington, D. C., director of the extension work for the United States; President F. D. Farrell of Kansas State college; A. B. Graham, Washington, D. C., who is in charge of the subject matter workers for the federal government; Eugene Merritt, extension economist from the Washington office; and E. E. Giles, Larned, president of the Pawnee county farm bureau.

"The extension service program is a composite program, made up of what the college has to offer in way of service and what the various counties need," explained Dean Umberger in his opening remarks yesterday. "The agents have in mind the wishes of the people of their respective counties with respect to what they would like to see included in the coming year's program. This conference has been called to shape and unify the county and state programs."

In the first general sessions, Doctor Warburton explained how county agents were local representatives for the national and state program to aid in rural life development.

President Farrell reviewed the developments in agriculture during the past half century.

"Hard times sober us," the president said, "and induce us to search our hearts for truth, for fundamentals. Just now agriculture is in a distinctly sober mood. It is in a mood to get back to fundamentals insofar as it has departed from them. In our official capacity, it is our duty and our privilege to help agriculture to get back. The road back is a difficult one."

BURNS FAIL TO KEEP McMILLIN FROM PRACTICE

COACH LITERALLY FORCES HOSPITAL OFFICIALS TO LET HIM APPEAR AT FIELD.

OKLAHOMA GAME TOUGHEST

No Severe Injuries Received Saturday So Everyone Should be in Good Condition for Tilt.

Coach A. N. "Bo" McMillin was severely burned about the head and arm early Sunday when accumulated gas in the furnace of his home exploded as he tried to light the fire. McMillin was rushed to the Charlotte Swift Memorial hospital where he was confined until about 5 o'clock last evening when he literally forced the hospital officials to let him appear at the football practice field. After watching practice for a short time he was then returned to the hospital.

The practice, in charge of the head line coach, Oss Maddox, went off smoothly. After sending the McMillinmen through a stiff charging and punting practice the practice was brought to a close by every man running several hundred yard sprints in competitive races. Several times during punting practice and signal drill Coach McMillin rushed on the field in order to conduct practice in his own way but each time he was forced back into his automobile, due to his weakened condition.

No severe injuries were received in the Missouri game last week and everyone should be in good condition for the Oklahoma tilt on October 22.

"The Oklahoma game will be our toughest game," Coach McMillin told his men last Saturday after the game. "It is up to every one of us to get in condition and we must do it." It was because of the stiff game this week that caused Coach McMillin to hold his squad for a short practice after the Missouri game.

The Oklahoma university team has become one of the toughest teams in the Big Six this season, losing to Texas university by a score of 17 to 10 after Missouri had been defeated by the Texas Long Horns the previous week, 65 to 0.

THOMAS GIVES VIEWS OF SOCIALISTIC PARTY

Candidate Says We Have Outworn System of Capitalism Should Not Exist.

"An outworn system of capitalism which reduces farmers to bankruptcy and puts 13 million people out of work has no right to exist," declared Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the presidency of the United States, who spoke to a large audience in the college auditorium last Friday afternoon.

"Socialism offers a Consistens," philosophy for this machine age," the forceful third-party leader continued, outlining the 1932 policies he represents.

Besides urging a steady recuct of the tariff and controlled inflation of prices, the Socialists would modify the tax system to consist of a properly graduated tax on incomes and no general property tax.

"We want more private propert —enough so that there won't be 200,000 vagabond boys on the road," asserted the speaker.

The other two leading parties were assailed for having no intelligent discussion of foreign relations in their platforms, as the speaker ridiculed the policy of non-recognition of Russia, which controls one-sixth of the world's population.

Turning to matters of more local interest, Thomas said, "We have no money to balance the budget, but we continue to appropriate money for fancy R.O.T.C. instruction."

The work that must be done to cure unemployment must be organized—we can't drift out, according to the Socialist leader.

In concluding his plea for purpose and plan, courage and vision, Norman Thomas made a special appeal to college students to use both their brains and their hands.

"A college diploma doesn't keep you warm in a bread line," he warned.

This was Thomas' third appearance in Manhatan in the last six years. He was scheduled to speak in recreation center, but the large audience had to move to the auditorium.

Sixty of North Carolina's counties have no treasurers.

Proclamation.

Fellow students: In view of the approaching football game between Kansas State and Kansas university, and in view of former depredations by members of the student bodies of both institutions upon the property of the respective campuses and of the school fights,

BE IT HERE PROCLAIMED:

That the Student Council of the Student Governing Association of Kansas State considers the pact entered into by the student governing councils of both institutions in 1929 to be still binding, as provided in the pact;

That willful defacing of the property of either school or violence to any student or faculty member is a violation of the pact ("all manner of school fights and pre-game activities between the two schools" were abolished by the treaty);

That if the pact be violated by a Kansas State student, every effort possible to the Student Council will be made to bring the offender to justice.

Maurice DuMars, President Student Council.

COLLEGIAN TO HOLD PRESIDENTIAL STRAW VOTE IN ANDERSON HALL ON THURSDAY TO DETERMINE OPINIONS

NAMES OF THREE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES WILL APPEAR ON BALLOT—THOMAS' SPEECH HERE BENEFICIAL TO HIM.

POLLS OPEN AT NINE O'CLOCK AND CLOSE AT FIVE

Each Student's Name Will Be Checked from List As Vote is Cast—Campaign of Each Party Enters Final Stages.

Roosevelt or Hoover, which will it be? But perhaps Kansas State students will cast their votes for Norman Thomas at the polls Thursday in Anderson hall when the Kansas State Collegian conducts its straw vote on the presidential election of 1932.

All students, politically or otherwise minded, will have an opportunity to name the man they wish to guide the destinies of this nation for the next four years when they place an "X" after the name of one of the three presidential candidates.

With the Democrats endorsing Roosevelt and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Republicans advocating a resubmission of the Volstead Act and the reelection of Herbert Hoover, the two strongest political parties are staging one of the biggest campaigns in the history of this country. Norman Thomas, the Socialists' hope, who spoke here last week, will have his name on the ballot also. The effect of these personal, press, and radio campaigns upon the coming generation enrolled here, will be made known in Friday's issue of the Collegian.

The polls will be opened at 9 o'clock in the morning, and will close at 5 o'clock. All voters' names will be crossed off of the student directory as they receive their ballots. Stuffing of the ballot box will not be encouraged nor allowed.

Most Important Work In Library Is Fooling Profs.

Fearing that instructors may check on library cards for reference work they have assigned, students sometimes check out books, sign their names to the cards and return them after a few minutes. That is the observation of Mrs. Anna N. Muller, the smiling lady behind the desk in the class reserves department of the college library.

Another noticeable fact, according to Mrs. Muller, is that the rush of the first two weeks of the semester wears off "just like a New Year's resolution."

"We are especially busy at the beginning of the second semester down in class reserves," Mrs. Muller said. "Perhaps it is because students have a great deal of enthusiasm to start their new work, having left the 'old shoes' behind."

Some students visit the library daily and spend considerable time there, although they do not always check out library material for their study, Mrs. Muller said. During quiz weeks less books are checked out than during other weeks as students are making greater use of their own texts and notebooks.

START WORK ON DAIRY BARN

Proposed Sight Has Been Staked Out and Construction Will Begin Tomorrow.

Construction of the new dairy barn, to be built at a cost of $43,-909.50, will begin tomorrow according to G. R. Pauling of the building and repair department. The new barn will be located northeast of the J. J. Smiley house on the college farm.

The proposed sight of the new building has already been staked out and Blazer Volmer company of Wichita, low bidder of the general contract, pan to start excavation Wednesday. All service connections including water, gas, and electricity, have been completed. Workmen of the Blazer Volmer company estimate that four and one-half months will be required to complete the building.

The building will be U-shaped, 210-feet long, and 40-feet wide. The main part of the building will be large enough to house 70 cows. Four silos will be included in the plans. The outside of the wall will be of native limestone.

HART FORUM SPEAKER

Reverend John R. Hart of Pittsburgh, Pa., will be the forum speaker Wednesday noon in Thompson hall and his topic will be "Negative and Positive Personalities." Reverend Hart is known as the most versatile and variously gifted speaker on the American platform today. He is a scholar, clergyman, and an athlete.

PLAY PIANO RECITAL

Miss Alice Jefferson and Miss Clarice Painter, of the college department of music played a two-piano recital in Topeka Thursday evening at a meeting of the Topeka Music club.

PICK ONE OF THREE

The Collegian's presidential straw vote next Thursday will determine, at least for this election, whether or not the political feeling on the Kansas State campus is as dormant as it seems. It is the hope of the Collegian that it is not.

The forceful address made by Alf. Landon in a forum session recently should have kindled the spark to generate desire for political knowledge in this year of elections.

If that speech failed to provide the necessary urge on the part of the Kansas State student body, the brief talk by Norman Thomas last Friday should have done much to quicken the heart-beats. Thomas is mentioned as being one of the best platform speakers in America today and a producer of sound principles.

The Collegian hopes for and expects a large vote cast Thursday in order to determine the political opinions of the members of the student body.

A WISE MOVE

One seldom realizes the need of a point system to limit extra-curricular activities until he has been through the grind which comes from excess participation in them. It has long been our belief that trouble from "activity hounds" on the campus can not be handled except through some definite scheme of limitation. An "activity hound" may be defined as anyone who spends more than half of his leisure time in activities.

Freshmen who come to the university usually absorb the idea that campus values are necessarily measured by the amount of participation in campus activities. Nothing could be farther from the truth. We believe that a student here gains far more from being able to handle himself in discussions of real life problems among students than from a frittering away of his time in activities in which he is not really interested.

We do not seek to belittle the value of student activities, but they are necessarily subordinate to the larger aim of college: teaching a student to think for himself. Courses of study are planned with the most from their stay here should see that scholastic work has been adequately handled before they engage in extra-curricular activities.

Some system of limiting students to those activities in which they are really interested will prove itself of great value to them.—The Silver and Gold.

The Snooper

The week end brought many, and varied, kinds of entertainment. The Wampus Cats are to be congratulated on their stunt during the half of the game. Besides being fairly amusing, it kept the parents and guests from contracting scurvy from glutting themselves with hot dogs. Frank Brown, the cyclist at the half, comes from Kansas City where he probably lived under an assumed name. The strenuous big city life gave him the intestinal fortitude necessary in such performances as we saw at the half. Frank revealed that rare inner fiber by cycling madly into the great arena and (single-handed, mind you) slaying a most ferocious beast. Frank crawled laborously up to the animal until he felt its hot breath against his eyeballs and then, from this strategic position, fired point blank at the beast filling the air with his many parts and endangering the lives of 10,000 people. He then placed his feet upon a few remaining patches of hair and gave the mighty cry of Tarzan. The Wampus Cats then put in their appearance and bore the gory hulk away to the strains of "Cloves, Your Magic Smell is Everywhere" and the frenzied cheering of the multitude.

Parents day brought many parents to Manhattan, as even the dumbest of clucks could have figured out. Scrooge Martin milled around among his old classmates and as his old eyes dimmed with joy he wept bitterly over his inglorious past.

The I.K.A. Cornjigger brought still more out of towners. The boys conceived a most novel method of entering the house. A structure which greatly resembled a small woodshed, but wasn't, served as an entrance. From there the guests descended a staircase of baled timothy to the lower chambers where ribaldry reigned.

Among the many parties last week was the annual birthday celebration of William Upton "Guerran deBeaumont" Guerrant. The celebration was held in an area bounded on the north by unnavigable brush, on the south by the end of Tenth street, on the east by the blanks of the Boo (or banks of the Blue, which ever sounds the most fetching to you), and on the west by an isolated cranberry bog. The casual stroller in the vicinity of the above mentioned berry bog might have seen Guerran deBeaumont trying to part the several strands of what he firmly believes to be his hair, and making Beagle hound noises at the moon. Guerran deBeaumont, as you probably know, is a corneter with the Layton Nose Pickers, and he has no end of trouble when those hairs blow down in his eyes as some thoughtless dancer swishes by the brass section. It renders him unable to pick the caliber of nose desired of the members of the Layton organization.

Book Review

By Ruth Wilkerson

"THE STORE"

My first introduction to Mr. T. S. Stribling—through his latest novel, "The Store,"—has been most impressive.

He is one of the few modern novelists who realize that novels may be written for some purpose other than exhibiting a capacity for superficial brilliance on the part of the author. He is one who shuns the methods of the intellectual smart-aleck, and relies on simple, artistic narrative, together with a vivid knowledge of his subject, for his success.

"The Store," set in Florence, Alabama, presents an interesting study of conditions in the South after the Civil War. Mr. Stribling does not make us painfully aware that he is dwelling on the decline of southern aristocracy and the problem of the negro in the South; he merely presents these conditions of southern life through a forceful narrative picture.

Colonel Miltiades Vaiden represents the pre-Civil war aristocrat who found himself poor and obscure during the reconstruction of the South. Touissaint Vaiden and his mother, Gracie,—negroes who are white—show the pathos of the quadroon and octroon — not accepted by the whites and not content to mingle with the blacks. J. Handback and Son represent the southern merchant who cheated the illiterate negroes and became financially prominent by taking over the old plantations at a ridiculously low price when their owners were unable to hold them because of the ruin brought on by the Civil war.

There are many other characters, but most of them fall into these three classes. The plot is an interesting one—but the number of subplots and the many characters make it impossible to give a synopsis here.

But you will enjoy reading the book. Although it is some five hundred pages in length, it is not tiresome. The characters are numerous and varied. The people are individuals. Their attitudes—pathetic or humorous—make the story alive. And the most remarkable thing of all is that you are sympathetic with every one of them.

Again I must commend Mr. Stribling for creating a novel above the grossness of pessimistic realism—above the tittering brilliance of aristocratic realism—a novel that is outstanding for its simple, artistic style and its vivid and unbiased picture of a phase of southern life.

On Other Hills

Freshmen at Iowa State Teachers' college have plenty of chance for improvement during the next four years. Get a load of some answers they gave on an intelligence test recently: Prosecution—the killing of a large number of persons. Adulteration—growth from childhood to maturity. Jamboree—shallow one-headed drum with jingles on the side. Atheist—a plant or animal that lives at the expense of others.

Garbed in bathrobes and pajamas, and a few in skimpier dress, students of Georgetown university recently set out to tell President Hoover they were going to lick New York kuniversity in the football game the next day. They marched two miles to the White House, where 10 students were collared by cops, and booked on a variety of charges, ranging from parading without a permit to violating traffic ordinances.

Sing Sing prison football players recently proved their superiority over Clover A. C. of New York by chalking up a 19-6 victory, all for the glory of dear old Alma Mater.

Hobo day will be observed October 20 by Washburn students. Old clothes, featuring the worst possible combination of colors will be worked out. A king and queen of the hoboes will be elected by a popular vote, and there will be a parade through the downtown section of Topeka.

The College of Emporia celebrated homecoming this year without a football game. Speeches by prominent persons were substituted for the customary grid struggle.

Enforcement of the frosh cap tradition was uppermost in the minds of sophomores at Nebraska university last week when they constituted themselves a "vigilance committee."

That students are not naturally bad, but will, if given the opportunity, exercise some temperance and judgment on their part in regulating their personal conduct, is urged by the Daily Nebraskan, in a revision of student regulations.

ASSESSMENT UNIFORM

Senior Class Dues for Royal Purple to be Same—None for Underclassmen.

"A uniform assessment of $2.25 is being made for the first insertion of underclassmen pictures any place in the Royal Purple." Stephen Vesecky, business manager, explained. "For each individual picture appearing in any other part of the book fifty cents is charged, which is twenty-five cents less than last year for two insertions with the students' savings increasing with each additional picture. One dollar of this assessment is paid to the photographer, one dollar for making the cut, and 25 cents for the printing and the paper.

The senior class assessments are $12.50 again this year which includes a copy of the annual and a picture in it. Last year $1.50 was charged for each insertion. If a student had more than one picture in the annual, the staff made money, but if they had but one, they lost. As a result the staff had a loss on the entire book.

"The staff is making every effort," Franklin Thackrey, editor, said, "to improve the quality of the bock and still pay for its publication; in the face of diminished revenues. The staff is already working out a number of plans for improving the interest and utility of the book, which cannot be announced yet."

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Normality once more—now that our first "homecoming" is over. We were right about the game—another victory for the Kansas Staters . . . . We haven't decided though just what or who did win the game for us—can't tell whether it was the new cheering section composed of girls only, the new pep organization composed of Downey's and Davidson's band, or the appearance of that non-official publication of the "Brown Bullet" on the field. Perhaps some of the football boys took a peek (and that would cure anyone) of the would-be Ballyrot just before the game . . . . Speaking of football players, do you know that "Rammer" Ralph Graham wears "77" on his jersey, the same famous number that adorned the jersey of "Red" Grange—also, take a look at the R. G. initials that characterize both . . . .

. . . . We wonder, Jay Kimball, if you are attempting to get in "the public eye" by constantly breaking away from the rest of the Wampus Cats and proceeding out where everyone might obtain a good look of you . . . . What a success the Cornjigger was—but the poor pledges and the cleanup afterwards . . . . Walt Bell came in the screamiest costume—and spent all evening hopping around shouting "Chase me chicken, I'm full of corn" . . . . There's the one on Emmett Breen, who visited "Bo" McMillin at the hospital Sunday and spent all his time telling of the men who had burned off their legs in a fire in El Dorado (of course) . . . . And what about the young coed who inquired what "Dad" Washburn taught in the physical ed. dept—there is a resemblance in "dad" and "pop" isn't there?

. . . . That was a nice tumble Pattie Kimball took at the varsity, Friday night . . . . And from all reports, the Sigma Nu alumni took it upon themselves to see that some of their non-Sigma Nu friends came gratis into the Friday dance . . . . Guess the rift between Johnny Johntz and Gladys Skinner is permanent . . . . Who's this MacLeod that's secretary of the Y. M. (with emphasis on the M)—just ask Nelson Reppert . . . . Did anyone see Malena Jane Berglund and Byron Swain so carefully examining the contents of the sack marked B. S. in the Wareham dining room Friday night—it was really a dirty sight . . . . Wonder when Floy Poague will be out of that six-weeks campus . . . . For all the marriages this last week or so—just a proof of the old saying "two can live as cheaply as one" (yes, two boys as cheaply as one girl' . . . .

. . . . Quite a few of the old familiar faces back this last week end—Monk Edwards and his wife, Tad Platt and his, too, Jim Yeager but left Kay at home, Miriam Clark and Amos Wright, Pauline Samuels and Chick Allison, Jacqueline Haskell, Virginia Burch, Elden Auker and Mildred Purcell, Max Smiley, Helen Louise Swan, Bob Schwindler, Arch Miller, Elizabeth Mountain, Jo Skinner, Madge Limes, Elsie Ruth Rand, Kirk Ward, and Bill Daniels . . . .

Just what is "rough cut?"

THE tobacco that is cut best for pipes might be termed "whittle cut" or "rough cut," like Granger. It requires a type of tobacco different from the tobacco used for chewing tobacco or cigarettes. Then again, Granger is made by Wellman's Method.

Granger has a pleasing aroma. It is slow burning and cool. Just try it!

"CABIN IN THE COTTON" TODAY AND TOMORROW

POWERFUL SOUTHERN EPIC BARTHELMESS' FINEST EFFORT

A powerful drama of the cotton country of the south opens the first half of this week at the Varsity theatre, where Richard Barthelmess appears in his latest and finest picture "The Cabin in the Cotton."

Barthelmess portrays a "poor white" boy of the district, educated and given a home by a rich planter, who finds himself torn between love for his own kind, the distressed tenant farmers, and loyalty to the planter who has been his benefactor. In the end, he succeeds in doing both—but not before a gripping and colorful tale has been unfolded.

Reviews from New York, where this picture has had a premiere showing, indicate that it is one of Barthelmess' best films in years.

A bevy of screen beauties adorn the picture and enhance the love interest. They are headed by Dorothy Jordan, who plays opposite Mr. Barthelmess, and who has been called "the prettiest girl in Hollywood." Bette Davis also has a leading role opposite Barthelmess, and others in the cast include Florine McKinney, Dorothy Peterson, Berton Churchill, David Landau, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall and many more.

Haunting negro melodies, a series of remarkable shots of the cotton-picking countryside in full bloom, atmosphere of the old South, as yet unsullied by an advancing industrialism from the north, all contribute to make this one of the most beautiful pictorial exhibits to come out of Hollywood.

In it is the passion of the hot-headed southern planters, the aristocrats of the south; the deep suffering of the poor whites, the happy go lucky philosophy of the negro, all told so directly, so expertly by the camera of director Michael Curtiz that "The Cabin in the Cotton" immediately must be classed as a great piece of screen entertainment.

It is the South of today, a South infused with the ideas of advancing industrialism, diversification of crops and education, in conflict with the romantic South with which we are all familiar, with its prejudices and its strongly marked affections.

It is an epic formed from the crucible of a little "Cabin in the Cotton,"—epic in size, in conception and execution of its important theme. In it Richard Barthelmess gives one of the greatest performances of his remarkable career—for this, surely, compares favorably with his work in the immortal "Tol'able David," "Way Down East," and others.

In a small part, Dorothy Jordan impresses again with her remarkable ability to make much of a simple action. Her sweetness, simplicity and charm summarize all that we mean when we speak of southern women. Bette Davis, too, is shown to excellent advantage in a role as Dick Barthelmess' sweetheart.

Just a glimpse of Henry B. Walthall, famous "Little Colonel" of "The Birth of a Nation" was worth much. He has lost none of the old time magic, and the fans who have not seen this little star for a great many years may well present themselces at the Varsity theatre to renew that acquaintance.

The story is by Harry Harrisson Kroll, the screen play by Pulitzer prize winner Paul Green, whose plays of the south are known everywhere. The notable cast includes Bette Davis, Dorothy Peterson, David Landau, Hardie Albright, Berton Churchill, Edmund Breese, Tully Marshall, Clarence Muse, William LeMaire and many others.

This is one by all means to be seen, for it is another of the great hits that have been coming with great regularity during the past year from the Warner Bros. studio.

NEWS FOR ALL MANHATTAN

. . . . On this occasion we are pleased to announce, to our patrons, a few of the many treats that we have in store for you. Treats indeed, and such as never before have been offered to Manhattan theatregoers.

. . . . In the past it has been the custom of most picture producers to produce each year a few pictures that stand head and hands above the screen fare which you see from one week to the next at most theatres . . . . These super productions are costly and much more time and highly paid players are required to produce them . . . . therefore it is only natural that when they are offered to you, their quality demands a greater price than you are accustomed to paying for your entertainment.

. . . . In the near future, however, you shall have the opportunity to see "GRAND HOTEL" at the VARSITY. This picture stands as a milestone in motion picture history as the greatest undertaking ever to be attempted in pictures. It's cast is made up of the largest assembly of great stars ever to take part in one massive production. In it you will see Greta GARBO, John BARRYMORE, Joan CRAWFORD, Wallace BEERY, Lionel BARRYMORE, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt and many others all in feature roles. The world over, people have paid as high as $3.30 to see this famous production. You will see GRAND HOTEL at the VARSITY the very next week at our popular prices of 25c matinees and 35c evenings. Childrens are always 10c.

. . . . Strange Interlude, also is a picture of massive production scale starring Norma Shearer and Clark Gable. It will be coming along soon for showing at the Varsity at these same low prices. New York and other cities are paying $3.30 to see it.

. . . . LIFE BEGINS is still another "road show" attraction which you will see soon at no advance in admission.

. . . . Is it not truly a treat to read such news of your future entertainment outlook. You will thank your lucky stars for the VARSITY and you will thank us for this advice: Watch our ads closely.

TELEVISION STATION TO TRANSMIT SOON

College Apparatus to Begin Sending Programs Regularly November 1.

The college television station has received the "OK" of the government testing station at Grand Island, Nebr., and beginning November 1, is to transmit programs regularly. Plans are for the station to be on the air Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights from 8 to 9 o'clock.

As a result of several tests, favorable reports have been received from persons having television receivers at Topeka, Rice, St. Joseph, Mo., and Omaha, Nebr.

The college station is to send pictures on a film for the time being. When its regular schedule is started, it is expected to be one of the eight or ten active television stations in the United tSates.

The college receiver is the only one in Manhattan now equipped to receive from the new station. It is believed the college station will encourage amateurs to build more receiving sets.

"Television has been considerably slowed up by the depression," Prof. R. G. Kloeffler, head of the electrical engineering department, said.

"Grand Hotel" Justifies Greatest Expectations

Vicki Baum's Enthralling Drama of a Berlin Hotselry Comes to Screen Brilliantly Mounted, Expertly Directed and with Flawless Acting by Dazzling All-Star Cast

Here is a talking picture that marks another progressive step in the history of the screen.

"Grand Hotel" merits whatever superlatives can be fashioned to describe it. It outranks by far the stage production, both in mounting, characterization and story unfoldment, not to ignore a cast unparalleled on stage or screen.

Its personality is more compelling than that of any of the actors. Goulding has adroitly emphasized the symbolic phrase of Miss Baum's narrative. He never lets us forget that in the Grand Hotel "no one lives here, all are transients. Here today, gone tomorrow, with strangers sleeping in our beds."

The story of "Grand Hotel" centers upon a number of striking characters who are drawn together when they spend a night in the fashionable Berlin hostelry. There is Grusinskaya, played by Greta Garbo. To this reviewer it is the most natural and powerful performance of her career. Grusinskaya is a temperamental Russian ballerina who finds herself beyond the peak of popularity. A titled thief, John Barrymore, enters her room to steal her pearls—and remains to take her love as well. Can't you see Garbo and Barrymore in these scorching love scenes?

Another outstanding performance is that of Joan Crawford who appears as Flaemmchen, the sex-appealing stenographer whose charms prove disastrous to Preysing, a domineering industrial king, brilliantly portrayed by Wallace Beery.

Then there is Kringelein, a provincial factory clerk, told he will die in a few weeks, spending his savings for an eleventh-hour taste of life in the Grand Hotel. Lionel Barrymore lives the role. No matter what else he has done—Lionel has never before and probably never again will play so human and moving a character. Lewis Stone is stirring as the shell-shocked doctor and Jean Hersholt scores as Senf, the chief porter, chained to the hotel desk while his wife suffers the agony of a prolonged childbirth.

The cast is too numberous to fully describe but too much credit cannot be given the supporting players right down to the most insignificant "bit" players. Among those in important roles are Robert McWade, Purnell B. Pratt, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Rafaela Ottiano, Morgan Wallace, Tully Marshall, Frank Conroy, Murray Kinnell and Edwin Maxwell.

The settings are the most imposing seen on the screen in many a day and the photography is exceptionally interesting in choice of angles and lighting effects.

The brilliant cast of "Grand Hotel" also includwes Joan Crawford, Wallace Berry and Lionel Barrymore in starring roles with Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt heading the large supporting cast.

Laurel and Hardy Star in 'Pack Up Your Troubles'

America's Foremost Fun-Makers Have Hilarious Adventures as Misfit Buck Privates in Their Second Feature-Length Comedy Opening at Varsity Theatre

Laurel and Hardy will be seen in their latest feature-length comedy, "Pack Up Your Troubles," at the Varsity Theatre, starting Thursday.

The popular comedians portray entirely new characterizations. As a couple of vagrants they are kidded into joining the army, and when once in olive drab they find themselves involved in numerous predicaments.

The comedians take everything seriously, especially in the army. They are aware of the fact that no questions must be asked. They must obey every command, eagerly and enthusiastically. Thus, when the kitchen chef in a jocular mood tells them to take the garbage to the general's office, they proceed to do so and land in the guard house.

Determined to be Heroes

Still, the comedians are conscientious. They want to help win the war. They also want to become heroes, if possible, either naturally or through sheer luck. So they saunter across No Man's Land and become entangled in a tank. They come back with a squad of prisoners, but don't know it. The prisoners——but to tell everything would undoubtedly spoil the enjoyment of the picture.

Bick in America they have another problem. A buddy had asked them to care for his child, and if possible to find his estranged folks. The funsters find the baby being mistreated by a couple of tenement hoodlums. They become foster fathers of the child. Then a surly reformatory official threatens to send the child to an orphan asylum To outwit this plan they go to a bank to negotiate a loan on their lunch wagon business so that the child can be taken west.

More trouble ensues. They cannot get the loan, but take the money anwway. Soon the police are on their heels. Arrest is certain and a stretch in jail looms before them.

PHOTOGRAPHS GUIDE STARS IN "GRAND HOTEL" MAKEUPS

Edmund Goulding, director of "Grand Hotel," which will be seen soon at the Varsity Theatre, studied photographs of performers in stage productions of "Grand Hotel" given in Berlin, Budapest, Prague, Rome, London and Paris, in deciding on the makeup and wardrobe for his central characters in the picturization of the Vicki Baum play and novel. He found, for instance, that although most of the actresses who played Grusinskaya seemed to have accepted similar interpretations of the character, there was a marked individuality of conception of roles as far as Kringelein was concerned. Greta Garbo enacts Grusinskaya in the screen version, with Lionel Barrymore playing the part of Kringelein.

WILDCATS TAME TIGERS FOR FIRST BIG SIX VICTORY

LINE PLUNGING OF GRAHAM AND FIELD RUNNING OF RUSSELL FEATURES.

WILDCATS NEVER IN TROUBLE

Victory Places McMillinmen in Three Way Tie For First Place With Nebraska and Oklahoma.

The Kansas State football team opened up after the first quarter to overwhelm Missouri 25 to 0 in the Big Six conference opener. This victory places the McMillinmen in a three-way tie for first place with Nebraska and Oklahoma.

The line plunging of Ramming Ralph Graham and the broken field running of Dougal Russell were the features of the game. Graham scored 18 of his team's 25 points to boost his total for the season to 72. Russell's brilliant running was largely responsible for bringing the ball into scoring position several times.

Kansas State was never in serious trouble, but it was not until the second quarter that a touchdown was shoved over against a stubborn Missouri defense. The score stood at that figure at intermission, but play from that point resembled a rout.

Graham, Russell, and Bushby were the backs called in to give the scoring punch to the Wildcat eleven but it was substitutes who carried the long end of the battle and let the regulars rest for the Oklahoma game next Saturday.

With Dougal Russell, star sophomore back, out of the game in the opening quarter and the Aggie team using ony a small group of plays in order to keep visitors from carrying too much information home, fans were beginning to believe that the pessimistic outlook that has been inhabiting the Wildcat camp for the past week was justified. However, where Russell and Graham, who had been removed in the first period, came on the field together in the first few minutes of play in the second period with the ball in possession of the Aggies on their own 31-yard line, the expected powerhouse scoring drive was exhibited.

Score in Eight Plays

It took only eight consecutive plays for the Aggies to travel the 69 yards that put Graham over the Tiger goal line for the first touchdown. End run gains by Breen and Russell accounted for a good share of the yards, but the powerful plunges of Graham found little opposition in the Tiger forward wall.

The exchange of punts, with neither team making any noticeable headway, featured the play during the remaining part of the second quarter and it was not until Weybrew recovered a Missouri fumble in the third quarter that scoring was resumed. Weybrew recovered a loose ball on the Kansas State 32-yard line to stop the most threatening drive made by the Missourians during the entire game and to give the Wildcats the opportunity for their second touchdown.

Russell Makes Gains

Dougal Russell, running behind almost faultless interference, carried the ball to within a few feet of the goal line in two end runs. Graham hit the line for the remaining distance on the next play.

The green clad aggies had found their scoring stride by now and let little time elapse before Graham broke through the Missouri right tackle for 30 yards and the third Wildcat score. Breen and Graham had contributed 15 yards in the two previous plays after the Aggies were given the ball on the Missouri 45-yard line when Missouri was penalized because of holding while Weybrew's punt was in the air. A pass, Graham to Russell, added the only extra point of the game.

Hatfield's punt was partially blocked in the fourth period and went out of bounds on the Missouri 27-yard line. Alternating a plunging the Tiger forward wall Bushby and Stoner took the ball over from this position. It was Bushby who made the final drive.

After sending the players who had been in action most of the game to the showers, Coach Bo McMillin put the reserves through a practice session immediately following the game.

Sports Hi-Cups

Bo McMillin really lives his football. Yesterday he got up out of a hospital bed to attend football practice and then afterwards returned to the confinement.

The Kansas City Star gave Bo a rather dirty crack about practicing the boys after the Missouri game last Saturday but if you will ask any of the boys they will also admit that it was needed.

If dope means anything it looks as though Kansas State is in for some tough battles before Thanksgiving.

One of the sophomores, who saw varsity competition for the first time last Saturday, prayed in somewhat this manner. "God bless Mother, God bless Father and God bless Bo McMillin."

Roscoe Pitts and Tom Bushby compare quite favorably in one way. Neither stutters when you mention the word "money."

A third string football squadman described Oss Maddox as having a big black handlebar mustache and a long blacksnake whip in each hand. He sure must like his football!

SOCCER GAMES THRILLERS

Half of Intramural Contests Over—Horse Shoe Doubles Into Second Round.

Intramural soccer swung into its third week of competition yesterday with nearly half of the first round of games played off.

Of the three games played yesterday, one was a close thriller and the other two were easy affairs for the winners. In a great battle Sigma Phi Epsilon snatched a 1 to 0 victory from Tau Kappa Epsilon. The W.F.A.C. ran over Lambda Chi Alpha 7 to 1 and Delta Tau Delta swept through Phi Lambda Theta 6 to 1.

Both of last Friday's games were close. Phi Kappa defeated Phi Sigma Kappa 1 to 0. In the other game Alpha Kappa Lambda and Theta Xi battled 40 minutes to a scoreless tie.

Six games are scheduled for today and tomorrow. They are: Tuesday—Alpha Gamma Rho vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Acacia vs. Beta Theta Pi; Aggie Knights vs. Phi Kappa Tau. Wednesday — Delta Sigma Phi vs. Kappa Sigma; Phi Delta Theta vs. Sigma Nu; Lone Stars vs. Alph Tau Omega.

The first round in horse shoe doubles was concluded yesterday. Play in the second round of singles continued.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"Movie Crazy"

Harold Lloyd is funnier in this new picture of his than he has been since the silent days and probably before that. The whole show is just one big laugh.

Harold is movie crazy. He goes to Hollywood, meets an actress who for some reason likes him, and despite his terrible love scenes, finally gets a contract. Scene after scene of this crazy picture takes you to Hollywood's backstage—and takes you there realistically.

Constance Cummings does some mighty nice acting. She's a pretty thing with just lots of that old appeal. Her gowns are lovely.

Don't miss this show if you want an evening of pure enjoyment.—E. D.

AT THE VARSITY
"Cabin in the Cotton"

Richard Barthelmess, one-time screen idol, and still a nice looking but a little-too-heavy man, is back in town. He didn't come with the force characteristic of him in former years, but he is playing a mighty nice performance in his "poor white" boy role.

Dorothy Jordan, that beautiful little Hollywood trick, awfuly sweet as the poor little girl, and Bette Davis, smart looking blond with big eyes, make the show more interesting. Berton Churchill, Tully Marshall, David Landau, and Henry B. Wathall, are in the supporting cast.

The usual battle is waging between the planters and the plantation owners in the cotton country. Barthelmess, educated by the owner, but son of a planter, is torn between the two factions. His heredity proves stronger than his environment. And the show ends happily.

Not bad. The music is good.—E.D.

HANEY TO SPEAK

Professor J. W. Haney, chairman of the department of mechanical engineering, Nebraska university, spoke at a meeting of the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Thursday afternoon, October 13, at 4 o'clock. Professor Haney is the representative of the national society of A. S. M. E.

GRADUATE SPEAKS TO ENTOMOLOGY STAFF

Dr. C. L. Mariatt, Chief of Bureau At Washington, Visits College Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dr. C. L. Mariatt, chief of the bureau of entomology, Washington, D. C., and a graduate of Kansas State college, visited the college Tuesday and Wednesday and talked informally to staff members of the entomology and zoology departments after a luncheon in the cafeteria Wednesday noon.

The country was threatened by three very great entomological disasters this year, Doctor Mariatt said, but fortunate weather conditions handled the situation and all three were satisfactorily curbed.

Grasshoppers in the midwest were hindered from causing a terrible blight by the rains in June, and unfavorable weather destroyed the cotton boll wevil which has lived in unprecedented numbers through the winter. The European corn borer caused no commercial damage in the United States this year as was expected because of the dry weather in the central states, according to Doctor Marlatt.

Doctor Mariatt, who received his B. S. degree from Kansas State in 1884, his M. S. in 1887 and the honorary Doctor of Science in 1921, recounted many of his experiences as a student. He complimented the institution on its spirit and growth. He also praised the type of entomological investigators being turned out by schools such as Kansas State, saying that the graduates of such colleges are the best fitted for the work.

Y.W.C.A. HOLDS MEETING

Association Has Program in Recreation Center—Introduce Cabinet Members.

The first Y. W. C. A. association meeting of the year was held Monday night in recreation center at 8 o'clock with Mary Alice Schnacke, LaCrosse, president of the Y. W. C. A., presiding. Transparent Chicks Principal Exhibits At Hatchery School

Transparent chickens with red bones, tiny turkeys with flesh as clear as the white of an egg and skeletons as visible as though the bodies were X-ray pictures, such an exhibit is one of the sights which hatchery men attending the fifth annual school for hatchery operators at Kansas State Friday and Saturday saw.

The unconventional chicks were prepared by Professor H. M. Scott of the poultry department for an exhibit showing the order, time and rate of ossification of the chick embryo.

Genuine chick and turkey embryos are used, according to Professor Scott. The flesh is made transparent by treatment with a potassium hydroxide solution which changes the protein material to a firm and colorless mass. The bones are then stained with a red stain which has an affinity for calcium. The result is a modeled X-ray of the mowl.

This method, called Spalyrholz, originated in Germany, where, according to Professor Scott, it is applied to the bodies of larger animals including those of human beings.

In the Kansas State exhibit specimens of fowl embryos from the early stages of development up to the time of hatching are being prepared in this way to show the rate of development of the bony structures. The embryos are cleared, the bones stained, then the exhibit is arranged in its progressive order with each of the treated specimens reposing grotesquely in a glycerine bath through which the red bones show up like inked lines in a diagram

Bo Directs Signal Drill.

Yesterday afternoon the squac t through its final practice ion before entraining for Soonand. Most of the time was taken with signal drill, under the diion of Bo. This was the third this week that Bo has been on the field supervising the after the serious burns he re- last Sunday.

t of the practice sessions this have been handled by Frank y and Oss Maddox, assistant ches. The squad has been drilled rt to iron out the mistakes and found in last Saturday's me with the Tigers, and to perct the offense and defense of the rple Power House.

Much of the time has been taken with signal practice and punt-. The booting assignment has en a probem all season. The men e also been tossing lots of ses and perfecting pass defense. ses have been used materially the past with Sooners and have rly always shown results. Numous new plays have also been nded out by the coaches in or- to pull some surprise plays on Sooners. The squad has done a t deal of scrimmaging, but y have not been very hard.

Squad Has Few Injuries.

The squad is in almost perfect sical condition, with only a of the veterans nursing minor uries. During Wednesday's prace session, McAtee, sophomore k, re-injured a knee and was able to make the trip. Although rgan's burned leg is still giving a little trouble, he will be dy to go tomorrow. Both Capn Wally Zeckser and Lloyd chael have their legs bandaged , but not to the extent that it ll alow them down.

The game tomorrow will be a ttle between two almost evenly tched teams, and in all probbly the toughest game of the son for the Wildcats. Both ms are light and fast, athough e K-Aggies have a signt advange in weight. The Wildcats have iving power behind the line with mming Ralph Graham, nation's ding scorer, and Tom Bushby. ugal Russell is also a threat on d runs. Oklahoma will be at some dvantage tomorrow as Bill nase, star back, was injured in t Saturday's game with Texas d possibly will be out of the batle tomorrow, a fact which boosts nsas State's stock considerably.

LEFEBVRE SPEAKS IN SEMINAR

Botany Professor Tells of Corn Borer Menace.

Dr. C. L. Lefebvre of the department of botany and plant pathology spoke at the botanical seminar yesterday afternoon concerning his studies of the corn borer. Doctor Defebvre came to Kansas State this year from Harvard university.

For a number of years the speaker has been engaged in the study of certain fungus parasites attacking corn borer in the United States. These studies were made with the intention of seeing whether any of these parasites might prove valuable in controlling the corn borer which has seriously injured the corn crop of the northern United States and Canada.

Dr. Lefebvre showed slides illustrating the works and studies which he has made.

NAME AG QUEEN AT BARNWARMER TONIGHT IN GYM

AG STUDENTS MAKE SELECTION FROM FIVE CANDIDATES—SAYS THOMSON.

NICHOLS IN RUSTIC STYLE

Baled Hay, Corn Fodder, Sumac Feature Decorations—Admission Only 50 Cents This Year

Splash! Another ag visits the goldfish because he didn't wear overalls. All the ducking, paddling, vote soliciting and gate-crashing of Ag Barnwarmer season are here in force.

Yesterday the ags picked their queen for tonight's frolic, but her name, says A. C. Thompson, McCune, manager, will not be published before the party. The five girls from whom the queen was selected, and who were chosen from 10 candidates at a preliminary election last week are Kay Brewer, Wichita; Ione Hill, Harper; Wilma Cook, Ash Valley; Luella Graham, Topeka; and Geraldine Hammond, St. John.

The winning candidate will be crowned as "Queen of the Ag Barnwarmer" by Hugh Durham, assistant dean of the division of agriculture.

This is to be the sixth annual Barnwarmer. The party is for ags, vets, and agricultural engineers exclusively, police being appointed to enforce exclusiveness. Gate-crashing has always been a pastime for outsiders although its results, according to the student police, are almost inevitable.

The party is held in the gymnasium with corn fodder, baled hay, sumac, and other evidences of fall in the country installed as decorations. Dancing is the most popular entertainment, however group games are provided for those who do not care to dance. June Layton's orchestra will furnish the music this year.

Activity at the party is not limited to the dance floor. There is a "moon room" with soft lights and baled hay seats which has always proven popular as a retreat.

Refreshments, keeping in the spirit of the occasion, are cider, apples, and doughnuts.

Admission to the party this year is only 50 cents, a reduction of one-half the cost of previous years being effected.

Professor F. J. Zink, of the department of agricultural engineering, was in Oakley, Kansas, last week to present plans for a farm machinery depreciation survey to a group of vocational teachers.

TEAM TO DEBATE OVER RADIO

First of Series of Discussions of Public Questions.

Ed Kelley and Eugene Somerville, both of Manhattan, will compose the Kansas State debate team who will discuss the question "Should Kansas adopt the two tax amendments to the state constitution?" with the Northwest Missouri State Teachers college of Kirksville over radio station KSAC, Thursday night, October 25, at ten o'clock.

This is the first of a series of radio discussions of important pubic questions which will feature the inter-collegiate debate program of K. S. C. for the next three months.

Kelley, who is a junior in the department of chemical engineering has had two years previous experience in radio debating. This semester he is handling the "news summary on international affairs" program each Thursday afternoon over station KSAC.

Somerville, though a junior in the division of general science, is entering his first year as a member of the Kansas State debate squad. He directs the "sports" program over station KSAC each Friday afternoon.

The Kirksville speakers will be Charles R. Rinehart, a senior in the division of commerce, and Edwin Morgan, a senior in the department of science. Each man is debating for the fourth year at Kirksville.

The next radio debate on the question "Should Congress re-submit the 18th amendment to the states" will be with the College of Emporia, November 1st.

Twenty-Two Consecutive Days Constitute Jewish Holiday

(By Nathan Fligstein)

Twenty-two days of Jewish holidays will terminate Sunday, October 23. Beginning with Rosh Hashonoh or New Years, the Jewish people over the whole world have been celebrating with feasts as well as fasts for various holidays, happy ones and heavy-hearted ones.

The Jewish New Years began Saturday, October 1, and at sundown the next day, Sunday, was concluded. Feasts were the order of both days. Crowds of people of Jewish faith jammed the churches all over the country. It was their welcome of the civil New Years, for the ecclesiastical New Year begins in the month of Nissan, coming on the eleventh day of April, 1933.

Then followed the "Fast of Gedaliah" on October 3. Only the older and more orthodox Jews observe this day. From after the Rosh Hashonor, until the Day of Atonement, the orthodox people of various sections of the world bestow upon themselves fasts of repentance in the name of some great Hebrew leader, or by consent of the community.

On October 10, of this year, the Day of Atonement found the Jewish race bowed in repentance for their sins they had committed. This day is set apart as the "Sabbath of Sabbaths," and is known in the Hebrew language as Yom Kippur which means Day of Atonement. It is a day of universal fasting for the Hebrew people all over the world. The postexilic methods of observing this holiday were the old ceremonies of sacrificing a calf, a ram and seven lambs besides the offering of a goat by the chief priest.

The fast began October 9, at sundown and ended October 10, sundown. It is the custom for the men not to converse, as much as possible, with the women during this one holiday. Many orthodox Jews sleep or pray all night long in the synagogues. Special prayers for the dead are held, at which those still having their parents living, leave the church for brief intervals during the day.

Simchath Torah, or Happiness because of the Ten Commandments, will be celebrated next Sunday, October 23, and ends the holidays for the month of Tishri, the first month of the civil year, which happens to have fallen in October, this year. At this holiday, all the scrolls of the ten commandments are taken out and paraded around inside the synagogues. Songs of happiness and joy will rule the evening and public feasts will be the events of this holiday. It is to be a season of rejoicing because the Most High picked the Hebrew people to be the chosen people to care for His commandments and learning. And with this holiday ends the 22 days of continuous holidays and fasts.

STADIUM CHAIRMEN PLAN SPECIAL CHAPEL

Will Be Held in Connection With Annual Drive—Athletic Heads Speak.

Dick McCord and Don Johnston, Manhattan, managers of the stadium drive this year, are planning a special chapel program to be given in connection with the drive, probably just before the Nebraska game. Dr. H. H. King of the chemistry department, and "Bo" McMillin and "Mike" Ahearn of the athletic department will be the principal speakers, according to McCord.

All organized houses are cooperating with McCord and Johnston in securing pledges for the completion of the stadium and percentages of fraternity and sorority members who have pledged will be ready for publication by the first of next week.

Forty dollars is the maximum pledge to be made by any one student this year, and no down payment is asked. Five dollars for each semester of attendance is the desired pledge from each student.

MORTAR BOARD HOLDS HALLOWEEN BANQUET

Annual Event to be Held Tuesday Night in Thompson Hall.

The third annual Mortar Board Hallowe'en dinner will be held Tuesday night, October 25, in Thompson hall.

Mortar Board is the national honorary fraternity for senior women, and at the dinner members of Mortar Board for this year will be presented. The aims, ideals and qualifications will be explained.

The Mortar Board scholarship placque will be presented to the freshman girl of last year having the highest grade average. This placque hangs in recreation center.

A program of music, stunts and dancing will be presented. Many of the sorority houses on the hill are closing their dining rooms for that evening and will attend 100 per cent.

Tickets are 40 cents and can be purchased from a Mortar Board member at the door. The purpose of the dinner is to foster a spirit of friendliness among the women of the campus.

LIST FROSH TEST GRADES

Reports of Intelligence Tests Sent To Deans.

Dr. J. C. Peterson of the psychology department has announced that the report on the freshman intelligence tests is being listed. Statistics on the average grades are being calculated and will be ready to be sent to the board of deans for approval and publication in about two weeks.

The tests, which were held on September 14 and 15 in the auditorium were taken by approximately 600 freshmen students. The name of the boy and of the girl who made the highest percentage of grades in the test will also be announced in the report.

Students Clamor For Home Town Paper In Library

It's a treat to find the old home town paper awaiting you Saturday or Monday morning in the continuations department of the library, students find. If Kansas editors could see how students clamor for their county weeklies, they would be gratified to see how even the brief locals are appreciated.

"Nearly every county is represented by at least one newspaper," said Miss Mabel G. Baxter of the continuations department. "Of course we merely file the county newspapers for the convenience of students. If a student finds that his home town paper is not in the library, he can often secure it by informing his editor that he misses it among the other county papers."

Boys make use of the continuations department a great deal more than do the girls, Miss Baxter said. This is partly accounted for by the larger number of men in school.

The busiest hours in the department are from nine to eleven in the mornings, and the rush comes the first three days of the week, Miss Baxter said.

WORK BY FACULTY ON EXHIBITION IN TOPEKA

Four Instructors and One Student Display Works in High School.

Kansas State faculty members are represented in the Kansas Artists Exhibition being held in Topeka under the direction of the Topeka Art Guild. Prof. John F. Helm is represented by two water colors and two etchings, R. I. Lockard by two water colors. Miss Vida Harris by two oil paintings, and Miss Maria Morris by a charcoal drawing. Alden Krider, student in architecture, is exhibiting two water colors and two etchings.

The work, at present in the Topeka high school gallery, will soon go on a circuit around the state.

Bell of the animal husbandry department was the coach.

These men are trying out for the senior livestock judging team to consist of six judges to represent Kansas State at the American Royal livestock show in Kansas City.

SHOW BATTLE WITH SOONERS ON GRID-GRAPH

PLAY BY PLAY REPRODUCTION WILL BE GIVEN IN AUDITORIUM.

DIRECT LOOP WITH STADIUM

Connection Will Allow Board to Re-Act to Everything but Huddles and Tackles—Will Report Other Games

Loyal football fans are assured of the next best thing to seeing the annual Oklahoma university-Kansas State football scrap at Norman Saturday, when the second grid-graph of the season will show a play by play battle with the Soonens in the auditorium at two o'clock.

What has been termed by Coach "Bo" McMillin as "our toughest game" will no doubt prove interesting to Aggie boosters on the grid-graph Saturday. The P[illegible] game, as played on the grid-graph October 1, brought enthusiasm and chering from those in the auditorium during high points in the game.

The grid-graph, which is a mechanical contrivance in the form of a small size playing field, reproduces the game in exact detail. The board will re-act to everything except huddles and tackles, and the announcers will tell about these. When Breen passes the ball to Bushby at Norman, the miniature football on the grid-graph here will follow the course faithfully and almost simultaneously. When "Ramming" Ralph Graham plows through the Sooner forward wall, and when "Dodging" Dougal Russell skirts around right end, the grid-graph will show exactly how it was done.

It was because of the stiff game with Oklahoma that caused Coach McMillin to hold his squad for a short practice after the Missouri game Saturday. The Oklahoma university team has become one of the toughest teams in the Big Six this season, losing to Texas university by a score of 17 to 10 after Missouri had been defeated by the Texas Long Horns the previous week 65 to 0.

The grid-graph will show the entire game and there will be plenty of excitement when the Aggies meet the Sooners tomorrow to decide the outcome of the second game for the Kansas State team. The grid-graph will be operated by members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalistic fraternity. Admission will be twenty-five cents.

Latest reports on other Big Six football games will also be announced. Missouri will play Iowa State and K. U. will battle the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

A direct connection from the Oklahoma university stadium to the auditorium will be maintained.

DR. HART SPEAKS AT FORUM

Pennsylvania U. Professor Talks On Personality.

Dr. John Robinson Hart, psychologist of the University of Pennsylvania, spoke at student forum, Wednesday noon, on the subject of "Positive and Negative Personalities." The lecturer urged his listeners to be persons rather than just things.

By positive personality Dr. Hart explained that he meant the thinking person. In order to have a positive personality, one should have a high degree of training and be a specialist in his particular line. The negative person is one who constanty refers to things that can't be done. In training children, negative correction should seldom be used.

The speaker suggested that this period of so-called depression be referred to as a period of reconstruction. He claimed that since the worst of the depression had passed, progress could be assured by being optimistic, constructive, and seeing the bright side of life.

PUBLISH "CAMPUS CLATTER"

Unless you are a student enrolled in typography classes in the department of journalism, you probably haven't seen the new publication which appeared in the class room last week.

"Campus Clatter," official name for the newspaper, contains late news sketches, gossip, and editorials.

The articles which are written by the students, are hand-set in the typography laboratory.

HOLIDAY OCTOBER 29

In a letter to Maurice Du-Mars, president of the student council, President F. D. Farrell announced that Saturday, October 29 will be a college holiday. This is being done in order to make it possible for as many students as are desirous and able to attend the Nebraska-Kansas State football game without missing classes.

TO EXHIBIT WATER COLORS

Alden Krider, senior in architecture, will exhibit water colors in the department galleries for two weeks beginning Monday, October 23.

The work to be shown was done last summer in Tennessee, Georgia and Arkansas. A few etchings may be included in the exhibit.

CURTAIN RISES ON DRAMATIC SEASON OF KANSAS STATE

"EASY COME, EASY GO" IS FIRST MANHATTAN THEATRE PRODUCTION.

TO PRESENT PLAY TONIGHT

Donald Williams, Liebmann, Langston and Louise Ratliff Have Leads—Helen Durham On Program.

The campus dramatic season opened last night with an all-student cast presented by the Manhattan Theatre in "Easy Come Easy Go," an H. Miles Heberer production. The play will be given again tonight in the college auditorium.

Clever lines kept up action that might have otherwise seemed slow, and the audience showed its appreciation of good, clean comedy.

Donald Williams and Liebmann Langston, both experienced actors did especially commendable work as two bank robbers seeking asylum in a health sanitarium. Louise Ratliff performed credibly in the leading feminine role. Cast as a wealthy business man, Donald Porter showed acting ability, and Albert Green gave a worthy interpretation of a health specialist.

An able supporting cast included: Clarence Keith, Helen Pickrell, John Van Aken, Elinor Pryor, Robert Chambers, Jeannette Moser Guilford Railsback, Helen Morgan Joseph Kepler, John Barhydt and Harry Ganstrom.

Helen Durham, winner of the Atwater Kent audition over station KSAC in the women's divisi[illegible] before the first curtain, accompanied at the piano by Mabel Russell. The college orchestra, directed by Lyle Downey, played the overture and musical interludes.

Don Compton was business manager for the production; Don Miller, assistant; W. D. Davies, production manager; C. Newell, stage; O. D. Hunt, lights; and Lawrence Kelly, properties.

Children's recitals will be in Alpha Beta hall in Nichols gymnasium from 10:00 to 11:00 o'clock on October 29, November 19, December 17, and January 21.

LANDSLIDE FOR HERBERT HOOVER IN STRAW VOTE

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE DEFEATS ROOSEVELT TWO TO ONE IN POLL.

LACK OF POLITICAL FEELING

Only About 25 Per Cent of Students Cast Ballot—Voters Seem Firm in Political Convictions.

Polling the votes of approximately 25 per cent of the student body the Collegian's presidential straw vote finished last night with a two to one landslide for Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for the presidency of the United States. The feature of the vote turned out to be, not the Hoover victory, but the lack of political feeling on the parts of Kansas State students.

The total number of votes cast was 583. Hoover finished with 351 ballots, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate, 165 ballots, and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, wound up a poor third with 67 votes.

The vote bore a more or less surprising Republican tone. It had been the opinion of those in charge that the enthusiastic approval which was shown Norman Thomas in his recent talk here would be indicative of his success in a student poll.

According to various Collegian reporters who constituted the "election board," those students who voted were firm in their political convictions. The fact that many underclassmen did not vote, although there were no age limitations, indicates that the 25 per cent response may be taken as the representative opinion of the student body.

WOMEN'S PAN-HEL MEETS

Discuss Plans for Annual Party—To Announce Date Soon.

Senior women's Pan-Hellenic regular meeting was held Thursday, October 13, at the Alpha Xi Delta house. The officers for this year are: Eleanor Wright, Chi Omega, president; Ferne Tannahill, Alpha Delta Pi, vice president; Mae Gordon, Phi Omega Pi, treasurer. Plans for the annual party were discussed; it is to be formal for women and informal for men. The date will be announced soon.

Pan-Hellenic expresses its appreciation to Mr. I. Victor Iles for his help for work involved in preferential bidding. A favorable feeling was shown toward the results of this rush week in comparison to that of previous years.

The next meeting will be Thursday, November 10, at the Pi Beta Phi house.

Prof. Charles Stratton of the department of music, is playing fifteen-minute piano programs for the Housewives' Half Hour broadcast on radio station KSAC. Professor Stratton plays from 8:15 to 8:30 o'clock on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. The Half Hour is a regular feature of the radio station programs ,beginning at 8 o'clock.

Students in the music department will also be used on these programs.

Czecho-Slovakian Peasant Costume In Art Museum Feature of Interest

"Well what sort of a thing is this?" a student asked as he viewed the Czecho-Slovakian costume which is on display in the art museum on the third floor in Anderson hall. Miss Barbara Lautz paid exactly 680 kronin or $20.50. to be able to bring the costume to Kansas State college at the suggestion of Miss Vida A. Harris of the art department.

One day in a little shop on a side street in Brno, Czecho-Slovakia, Miss Lautz bought the peasant costume. There are many kinds of costumes for every section of the country, acording to Miss Lautz. Each section can be distinguished by its color and costume design.

The peasant costume on display here is of the ordinary type, the sleeves being in a big puff above the elbow, held there by a string run through the cloth. A ruffle extends down over the elbows. The skirts are sometimes in one piece or in two, being very full and made of a black, heavy cotton material and embroidered around the border.

The neck ruffle of the white blouse is embroidered in such fashion as to repeat the embroidery of the elbow ruffle, while the bodice is banded with red and embroidered in a floral pattern in green, red, purple, silver, blue, and yellow colors. The head dress is an embroidered hood being harmonious with the embroidery on the blouse.

"The ordinary people in Czecho-Slovakia dress as we do here, and in the country," Miss Lautz explained. "the peasant women only wear these costumes on special occasions such as holidays, weddings, and church services." The costume will be on display for some time, and will become property of the art department, acording to Miss Harris.

rofessor, Whose Name is Withheld, Brands Women in Journalism as "Miss Prints"

"These women in the journalism partment may be co-eds but they k like 'Miss Prints' to me," one fessor on this hill was heard to serve.

He went on to explain to another fessor, "Last week I gave one of ose girls a perfectly plausible ory but when I saw it in the Colgian I read it twice before I recognized it."

But this cynical professor modified his statement, "Not all student eporters in journalism make habitual errors. For the most part, I believe, the students do verify the acts that they obtain. I have had wo or three students bring their written accounts back to me to verify, and I like that."

A 'Miss Print' asked the instructor where the most mistakes were made. "Well, I don't like to have my initials mixed up, and I'm particular about my name. And I like to have the figures I'm responsible for quoted as I give them." and this seems a plausable answer.

There are two divisions on this hill that are unique in that they keep on a file card items of interest that students in journalism may use. And those instructors who do not feel that they are wasting their time by talking to student reporters are the ones that get best results and are quoted correctly.

RESPONSIBILITY AFLY

If the political activity of the Kansas State college student body can be taken as a prediction as to whether or not the depression will end the old world is slated to go through a long dry spell.

Indications gained from the presidential straw vote on the hill yesterday point definitely toward the prospect of Kansas State graduates going right back to the farm to howl their heads off about the low prices for farm products. Almost exactly 75 per cent of the student body didn't even have the inclination to swerve 10 feet from the beaten path through Anderson to vote for a presidential candidate. The Collegian does not intend to create the impression that yesterday's straw vote was all-important to students. However, the response does indicate the political interest existing on the hill today.

The word "politics," to some people, immediately causes them to notice bad tastes in their mouths. Perhaps unscrupulous persons HAVE made politics savor of underhand tactics and corruption. Authorities say that condition is brought about by the stupidity of the voting public. Nevertheless, politics still run the country.

By the time college students reach the classification of juniors and seniors and take absolutely no interest in the forces operating the affairs of the nation it is a pretty good sign that they never will. They will be graduated and spend the rest of their lives complaining about political graft.

Colleges are proving grounds in other than academic directions. They offer excellent opportunities to learn political trends, political maneuvers, and above all, the satisfaction of knowing what it's all about.

GRADING THE FACULTY

One of our contemporary colleges has instituted a practice of grading the faculty. Students are the critics, and offer suggestions to the instructors as to possible improvements in their teaching methods.

The system used there hardly is one which we would advocate for A. and M. intact, but it contains an idea which can be developed into a practicable and workable practice which could be adopted here with success. There is no question but that some medium is needed by which the students can have a voice—however small it may be—in expressing their opinions of the instructors. We do not mean by that they should be allowed to make vitriolic and caustic commonet on the faculty's shortcomings, for that would be of no postive influence and result only in ill-will between the teachers and students. But much constructive criticism could be made by which the teachers could profit and for which they should be thankful.

Twice a semester, or even oftener, the students could be given papers and campus envelopes in class and asked to make criticisms of the teacher, his manner of conducting classes, or on any phase of the course and its handling. These comments would be mailed or delivered to the office of the dean.

Where a single professor was made the brunt of many criticisms, the dean could judge that something was amiss in his method of teaching. Where criticisms were few and of varied nature, he could surmise their writers were biased, or merely disliked the instructor.

The principal feature of the plan which we like is that it provides a link between the administration and the student body. There is no method in the world by which deans now can tell how their staffs are performing. True, they hear isolated complaints from irate students, but these usually are made by hot-tempered or self-martyrized persons.—The Daily O' Collegian.

The Snooper

Zoological note: Any orthopterous insect of the family Blattidae is called a cockroach but not every cockroach is called an orthopterous insect of the family Blattidae. If that statement shakes your faith in the human race to the extent that you think your dear old Snooper is a dad burned liar, just ask an orcheser. (an orcheser is any member of Orchesis, which is a dancing society.) They say that Nichols' gymnasium is overrun with 6 inch cockroaches which trundle across the floor smacking their lips and making scummy remarks about Pop Washburn. According to the orchesers, who have complained to all the high moguls except the governor himself, the place houses approximately 10 million of these bugs, all in perfect working order. One girl complained that they were even afraid to place their feet on the floor for fear of retarding the progress of some wayward cockroach, and if there is any more pitiful sight than seeing a group of orchesers standing around with their feet in the air, well sir, we don't know what it is. The standard gymnasium cockroach has a 6 inch wheel base, a cruising speed of 13 feet per second, has free wheeling, syncro-mesh, and wrought iron fender wells, besides triple expansion boilers and many other interesting features. If any one finds anything that meets these requirements, please turn it in at the box office.

Financial note: Numerous inquiries have been stuffed into our ballot box asking information which might lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons—pardon me, that's my Rotary speech. Numerous inquiries have been stuffed into our mail box asking information about the recent Seaton-Pitts transaction. The matter, as most of you know, involved the transfer of one share of Beta Button common from Pitts to Seaton after much haggling over details. The transaction, as far as we have been able to find out, involved an amount which we have placed, roughly, at 50 cents. Seaton asserts, however, that the amount was NOT the purchase price, but was merely paid to the sellee as soul baum. Although the amount paid is believed to be far more than the material worth of the one share of Beta Button, it was well worth the purchase price (said Seaton) in that policy was envolved. Pitts now asserts that he was forced into the sale by the Seaton mob when he was in the enemy's territory. It is our belief that the Seaton mob is trying to prevent a possible glutting of the market of Beta Button common.

On Other Hills

After making plans for a luncheon and thoroughly organizing it, an absent minded professor at Michigan State kept his guests waiting while he went blissfull on about his usual routine.

The School of Journalism at the University of Missouri is celebrating its twenty-sixth year this fall. The school was the first of its kind in the world.

Walter Plewe, Marquette university halfback, who got his first glimpse of an American football nine years ago, is now rated as one of the finest punters in Marquette history, and has given several spectacular demonstrations of placing the pig-skin out of bounds within the enemy's 20-yard line.

And they have other famous players too, this institution at Marquette. They're afraid somebody will steal their football signals so the captain calls the signals in Italian. Another player can call 'em in German; and another in Greek.

How would you like to scrub your way through college? They do just that at the University of Wisconsin, where the university employment office has placed several men students in domestic positions this fall, due to the scarcity of other employment.

Three hundred naughty fraternity and sorority pledges at Oklahoma university recently "revolted" and danced on the roof of a hotel, thereby violating the rule forbidding co-eds to have dates on week nights. They face possible suspension.

Attention, football players: The University of Oklahoma advocates the practice of chasing burglars and stopping riots as good training for football luggers.

Freshmen at Fort Hays State college proved to be high in everything except English in the mental tests for 1932.

Northwestern university co-eds who are loyal to the lovers, "far, far, away," have formed a "Widows" union whose members will not date. Wonder if the guys in the ol' home town have a good time too?

The local chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon was recently flattered at Indiana university when a newspaper carried a headline as follows: S. A. E. to Open at Hagerstown. The story revealed, however, that it was a society of automotive engineers.

Prof. Albert Einstein, the genius who knows his multiplication table, has accepted an appointment as a resident faculty member of the Institute for Advanced Study, now being organized at New Jersey.

The University Daily Kansan speaks of William H. Murray, Alfalfa Bill, himself, as "that eminent exponent of the handlebar mustache and shoestring necktie," just because he declined an invitation to attend a football game. But wait. Pull out the handkerchief. The paper also says "he looks like ancient lithographs of Kentucky sheriffs and hardriding western constables." Boy, won't this make Bill sore?

For the first time in history, girls were members of the student body at Furman university, when it re-opened for its 107th year of educating youths.

A student at Oregon State college was ousted from the college library when he made his appearance in the halls on roller skates.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"Back Street"

Press agents told the truth when they said "Back Street" was the most powerful drama released from Hollywood studios this year. They would have added more to that statement by saying it is the best show produced since the introduction of talkies. The settings were natural. The characters were perfectly cast. The story is a living story as you all know from reading Fannie Hurst's novel.

If you liked Irene Dunne as the co-star in "Cimmaron" you'll be impressed even more by the good work she has done in this picture. As a young girl she is lovely. As an older woman she is attractive. And as an aged, tired and worn woman she is beautiful.

John Boles departs from his former singing roles, and does some of the best acting seen on a Manhattan screen. Portraying a successful business man past his forties, Mr. Boles is at his best.

The story is that of a woman who gave everything to the man she loved and in return had his love, and nothing much else. But "Back Street" did more than most pictures or books, it proved that lasting love is enough to make two persons happy, even if one of them does have to live in the back streets of the other's life.

See the show, and don't take popcorn.—E. D.

"Pack Up Your Troubles"

Laurel and Hardy are as funny as ever in this full-length comedy. This silly pair of comedians kept the audience laughing all Thursday afternoon. And that's something for a college crowd.

Stan Laurel's inane facial expressions and Oliver Hardy's idiotic movements bring out most of the laughs. The lines aren't particularly clever, but when executed by these two seasoned players, they aren't so bad.

Laurel and Hardy go to war, ride around in no-man's land in a tank, capture the whole German army, turn god-fathers, rob a bank, and finally find the child's grandparents. Every possible situation is created for these two to caper through.

Take pop corn to this one.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Night After Night"

"Night after Night" is another semi-gangster picture. George Raft, as the owner of a speakeasy, meets Constance Cummings, former owner of the old mansion wherein the speakie is housed. She is drawn to the place by memories of her old home. Raft, an ex-boxer, is trying to attain dignity and poise so he can talk intelligently to the class of people who come to his place. The plot revolves around the business of running a speakie and the business of winning a girl entirely out of an ex-boxer's class. If you like semi-gangster pictures, you will like this one. The short features are good.

SORGHUM HARVESTING MACHINE DEVELOPED

New Harvester Makes Possible Rapid Drying With Less Decay.

Professor P. J. Zink, associate professor in agricultural engineering, has developed a special machine for the harvesting of sorghums which is being tested at the Hays experiment station this fall. The machine is made from two old head cutting platforms mounted at different levels. The first and forward platform with its reel cuts the sorghum immediately below the heads, while the second one cuts the stalks on the ground, and the heads on a third canvas which, in turn, dumps the heads on top of the stalks.

This prevents the heads from making contact with the ground and prevents decay while drying sufficiently to be threshed. As soon as dry, the windrows thus formed are gathered with a regular combine with windrow attachment and threshed. The machine pulled by tractor and has power takeoff from the tractor also. It cuts three rows at a time.

The new machine is the result of trouble encountered in the harvesting of sorghums grown in wheat producing sections. If the heads are allowed to dry sufficiently on the stalk so that they be threshed, the date is late in the season—sometimes in December; and the moisture content is so high that the seed will not keep in storage. If cut when ripe and allowed to dry in the windrow, the crop can be taken care of in a more satisfactory season and the moisture content reduced so that the grain will keep in storage.

Most farmers do not gather eggs frequently enough to enable them to market a quality product, a survey conducted by the Iowa State college revealed.

MORE PRACTICAL HELP EXPECTED BY FARMER

Giles Presents Facts to Extension Workers in Meeting Here Tuesday.

That farmers of Kansas are expecting more practical help from the farm bureau this coming year than they have had in the past was the fact presented to the Kansas extension workers in their program here Tuesday by E. E. Giles, president of the Pawnee County Farm Bureau.

Giles emphasized the importance of farmers living closer to the farm. He included in his "live at home" program the use of "the ax and the wood pile to replace the purchase of coal, the killing and curing of home meats, and a well filled cellar containing canned vegetables and fruits for the winter use."

With relation to organization, Giles stressed the need of a closer relationship between farmers in their farm production, farm marketing, and social activities. He cited how the farmers of Pawnee county through their Farm Bureau had pooled their interests in marketing the certified Pawnee Chief alfalfa seed that has become nationally famous as a high quality, high producing seed, produced and marketed by organized farmers.

The speaker was emphatic in his statements in relation to the value of 4-H club work to this county and to the state.

"The farmers want you to continue the work of the 4-H clubs. We are more than satisfied with the progress the program has made the past year, and we will always need and will always want the work of helping these young people of our communities to continue," he said.

Pink Kiser, 74, Rutherfordton, N. C., farmer, picked 190 pounds of cotton in one day.

BO'S FIVE-MAN BACKFIELD IS SOONER WORRY

OKLAHOMA FANS WILL GET GOOD LOOK AT UNIQUE BACKFIELD FORMATION.

ENTERTAIN DADS AT GAME

Graham and Russell Are Formidable Foes of Sooners—Pansze May Be Inserted Into Game.

Probable starting lineups:

Hasler	LE	Curnutt
Dalton	LT	Haag
Blaine	LG	Bashara
Michael	C	Young
Zeckser	RG	Whittington
Weybrew	RT	Corey
Shaffer	RE	Watkins
Russell	Q	Dunlap
Breen	LH	A. Pansze
Bushby	RH	Walker
Graham	FB	Stacy

Time—2 p. m.

Place—Owen field, Norman, Okla.

Officials—Referee: Les Edmonds (Ottawa); Umpire: F. E. Dennie (Brown); Head Linesman: Earl Jones (Arkansas); Field Judge: Harry Houston (Southwestern of Kansas).

Norman, Oct. 20—With neither team plentifully supplied with reserve strength, the Kansas State-Oklahoma football game here Saturday looms largely as a cutting, slashing duel between the rival starting elevens with the "Big Six" conference leadership as a stake.

Coach A. N. "Bo" McMillin, who is recovering from burns received this week from a gas explosion in the basement of his home, will bring another colorful Wildcat squad to Norman for the game, a squad that employs his usual versatile offensive style consisting of several outside and inside tackle plays, surprising power embodied in the 195-pound all-"Big Six" fullback Ralph Graham, and a medley of long and short forward passes off complicated formations.

Hundreds of dads of university students will attend the contest which has been designated as Dad's day. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

Face Five-Man Backfield.

Spectators Saturday will get a good look at McMillin's unique five-man backfield system, a style that sends backfield blockers quickly to the point of attack and permits vicious cross blocking. When the Wildcats first line up they have five backs and six linesmen but just before the ball is snapped a back will shift into either the right or left side of the line and opponents suddenly will find themselves facing either the Warner double wingback or a tandem formation off a balanced line. This shift is executed so swiftly that often the defensive line hasn't time to shift to meet it.

Dougal Russell, sophomore halfback who ran to two touchdowns against Purdue, and Emmett Breen, the other halfback, are other Kansas Aggie offensive threats besides Graham. Graham's smashes inside tackle, Russell's dodging, twisting runs outside tackle and Breen's passes are offensive weapons the Oklahoma team has been warned against and prepared for in dummy scrimmages all this week.

Graham, who has already scored eleven touchdowns this year, not only plunges and backs the Wildcat line but also calls the Wildcat signals and kicks goals after touchdown. Russell is the team's best punter and running back with Weybrew often coming out of the line to kick when Russell is out of the lineup. Breen, captain-elect of the Wildcat track team, is the safety and does most of the passing.

Pansze Won't Play Much.

Ab Walker and Dick Simms will probably alternate at the tailback position for Oklahoma Saturday with Eugene Janz also given a chance. Bill Pansze may play some although he probably won't be used except in case of extreme emergency. James "Red" Stacy will play the front back position, Art Pansze left half and Bob Dunlap will call signals from the fullback's post.

The Oklahoma line, with Watkins, Curnutt, Haag, Corey, Whittington, Bashara and Young forming the starting core and Phillips, Fleetwood, Cherry, Foreman, Tennyson and Dickinson the front line of replacements, is in excellent condition and under the critical direction of Line Coach John "Bo" Rowland have had plenty of tackling practice all week.

Both teams are high-powered offensive outfits this season. Kansas State has scored points in two figures in every game it has played this year while Oklahoma also has scored in all its games so far, making ten points against the Texas jaugernaut with both tailbacks out because of injuries and a quarterback was obliged to take their places.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

The women of the Kansas State faculty are finding an interest in the swimming class which has been organized for them by the women's physical education department every Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The more aquaticly inclined members of the faculty report to the gymnasium and receive instructions in the rudiments of side-stroke, crawl, diving, etc.

Eleven instructors have availed themselves of this privilege and more are expected next Wednesday night. Miss Loraine Maytum of the physical education department is in charge.

Frog club, swimming organization for the girls, announce the following list of women who have passed the preliminary tests for membership: Rita Brown, Edmond; Arline Smith, Topeka; Marian Wait, Superior; Ona Lee Burson, Manhattan; Jane Harmon, Manhattan; Thelma Coffman, Manhattan; L. Johntz, Abilene; Ernestine Young, Arkansas City; Helen Lou Davis, Manhattan; Elsie Gottschalk Wichita; Cora Oliphant, Offerle; Betty Wagstaff, Topeka; Wilma Womer, Topeka; Erma Jean Miller, Manhattan; Margaret Mary Reddy Baxter Springs; Ruth Dobson, Manhattan; Mae Gordon, De Sota.

Second tryouts will be held next semester. All those who did not pass the tests in swimming, or all others who are interested in this event are invited to practice with members for an aquatic pageant which will be held in January.

ARCHITECTS TO TOPEKA

Junior architects in Prof. L. Burr Smith's third-year design class visited Topeka Tuesday. They visited three outstanding bank buildings, the new high school building, and the memorial rose garden designed by Emmett Hill, a graduate of Kansas State.

About twenty-five students in architecture made the trip with Professor Smith.

SOCCER TEAMS UP TO FORM

Favorites in Nearly All Brackets Coming Through With Victories.

Soccer is still holding the center of attention in intramural competition. Most of the teams have settled down after some wobbly starts and are playing up to form, as is indicated by the scores, with the favorites in nearly all the brackets coming through with victories.

The games played Tuesday were close as far as the scores are concerned. In a postponed game, Phi Sigma Kappa and Theta Xi battled to a 1 to 1 tie. The Aggie Knights defeated Phi Kappa Tau 1 to 0, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon came out on the long end of a 3 to 2 score with Alpha Gamma Rho. Bet Theta Pi forfeited to Acacia. On Wednesday Delta Sigma Phi defeated Kappa Sigma 2 to 0, the Lone Stars won from Alpha Tau Omega 1 to 0, and Sigma Nu upset Phi Delta Theta 2 to 0.

The games scheduled for this afternoon are: Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Alpha Kappa Lambda; Theta X vs. Pi Kappa Alpha. Monday's games are: W. F. A. C. vs. Delta Tau Delta; Tau Kappa Epsilon vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; and Phi Lambda Theta vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Horse shoe singles and doubles are both still in the second round of competition.

The Browning literary society will also have its meeting at that time. Devotions will be led by Myrtle Andres, Helen Boler will be in charge of the music, and Bluebird, the society paper, will be given by Elsie Fern Selby and Caolyn Mather.

RAW FURY
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Meissonier's famous painting (1855)... inspired by the savage passion held in check by Henry IV's stern edict against duels among the nobles of his court.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.
Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

DRY CLEANERS SLASH PRICES

NO CHARGES FILED BY THE AGS

PERSONAL DAMAGES AND DIVISIONAL GRUDGE RESULT OF ATTEMPTED CRASH

PADDLES, BROOMSTICKS, CORNSTALKS, AND BARE FISTS SWING VIOLENTLY AS AGS MASS TOGETHER AND DRIVE ENGINEERS OUT OF BARNWARMER.

LUELLA GRAHAM CROWNED QUEEN BY DEAN CALL

After Crowning, Ags Suddenly Desert Dates on Floor and Moon Room and Rush to East Door to Prevent Enemy from Entering — Soon Tire of Battle.

Evidently only headaches, split lips, torn pants, and a heightened divisional grudge have resulted from the attempts of a group of engineering students to "crash" the traditional Ag Barnwarmer Friday night. Late Monday afternoon Glenn Fox, student council member in charge of disciplinary cases, announced that no charges had been filed with him as a result of the mob clash at the dance.

Nichols gym, however, plainly shows that a fight took place. The bannisters going both up and downstairs from the west entrance were broken and the newel posts smashed. The damage was estimated at $25 by G. R. Pauling, superintendent of maintenance.

Although rumors have been circulated that numerous students of both divisions suffered injuries ranging from cracked heads as a result of being hit by a bale of hay thrown from a second-story window to temporary embarrassment as a result of being deprived of trousers, Dr. C. M. Siever, college physician, states that the student health department has treated only two men. John Meredith, Auburn, a civil engineering student, received treatment for a cut on the head, and Homer Jameson. Garrison, a sophomore ag, was treated for a severely bruised arm. However scratched faces, split lips, and limping legs can be seen around the campus.

Make No Statement.

Neither Dean L. E. Call of the division of agriculture nor Dean R. A. Seaton of the division of engineering had any statement to make regarding the affair. Mrs. Mary P. Van Zile, dean of women and chairman of the faculty council of student affairs, stated that she regarded the tussle as an example of mob spirit and said that she considered it fortunate that none of the students engaged was seriously injured.

The tussle started just as intermission began at the dance. Vigilant ag police had been catching outsiders who had gained entrance and had sent them through a paddle line and out the door. The dance had proceeded smoothly, Luella Graham, Topeka, had been crowned as queen by Dean L. E. Call, and nothing thrilling seemed in store for the ags, the vets, the ag engineers, and their dates. Suddenly someone at the east door of the dance floor shouted and ags deserted their dates on the floor and in the moon room to rush to the door in an attempt to prevent 100 or more engineers from entering.

Ags Mass Together.

Paddles, broomsticks, cornstalks, and bare fists swung violently. The ags massed together and drove the invaders out by sheer force, most of the fighting taking place along a line between the two groups. A few engineers fell and were left inside the gym until the ags escorted them out with paddles. Blood remained on the floor when the encounter stopped and several ags were partially disrobed. Shortly afterward an attack came at the west door and it was in this encounter that the railings were broken. Athough the engineers failed to gain entrance at the west door they captured several ags sending two, Kermit Davies, Emporia, and E. J. Gantenbein, Elmo, home sans overalls.

Both forces evidently grew tired of the battle and the dance ended peacefully with ags inside and engineers outside. Cleanup kept the ag students busy until 2:30. Now post-mortems of the battle are being held in Aggieville drugstores and restaurants.

Miss Vera Smith spent Sunday in Junction City with friends.

NINE SPEND SECOND WEEK IN QUARANTINE

Phillip Hackney, Wellington, Returns to School Ten Days Too Soon.

Nine students at 1408 Fairchild are spending a second week in probation quarantine. Phillip Hackney, Wellington, who lives at 1408 Fairchild, contracted scarlet fever and after being released by a Wellington doctor returned to school ten days too soon.

Hackney, who was examined by three doctors here, was in the college detention hospital for nine days and was allowed to go to his home ina private car. The state quarantine law required him to remain there until November 2, or 28 days, but upon being released by a doctor he returned October 22.

"We don't desire to keep any student out of school longer than is necessary," Dr. C. M. Siever, head of the college health department stated Monday, 'But we must protect others. And if we don't enforce the quarantine laws then we are responsible to the state health department."

The students who lived at the same house with Hackney were quarantined seven days after Hackney first took the disease. The health law states that these students were exposed to the disease a second time when Hackney returned, so it is necessary that they observe a second week of quarantine.

Doctor Siever explained that the symptoms of scarlet fever are sore throat, vomiting, and a skin eruption. And if there are any questions about quarantine or disease they should be taken up with the student health department.

In Thick of Campus Politics

Undergraduate politics at Kansas State college at Manhattan have not reached the heated stage of the Woodring-Brinkley-Landon race, but chances are there will be several strenuous campaigns before the school year is out. Whenever these school political affairs occur, the group of students shown here will be in the thick of it. They hold strategic positions in undergraduate organizations. Heading the list is (1) M. L. (Duke) DuMars, president of the student council, which makes him ex-officio president of the student body. DuMars is from Agra and is a senior in industrial journalism. Other members of the Student Governing association council shown here are (2) Robert Alexander of Independence, Mo.; (3) G. S. Fox, Rozel, vice president; (4) Esther Row, Larned, secretary; (5) Ward Colwell, Onaga, editor of the student newspaper; (6) John I. Miller, Prescott, president of the college's 275 "Ag" students; (7) S. R. Mudge, Salina, president of the 700 engineers; (8) Eleanor Wright, Concordia, president of women's Pan-Hellenic; and (9) D. F. Pocock, Le Roy, men's Pan-Hellenic president.

STUDENTS AND TOWNSPEOPLE ALIKE SWAMP MANHATTAN CLEANING ESTABLISHMENTS TO GET BENEFIT OF NEW LOW PRICE.

SLASH MONDAY BRINGS COST DOWN TO 25 CENTS

Firms Make Various Cuts Throughout Day As Cleaners Learn of Competitive Reductions — First Slash Comes Late Saturday Night.

Wardrobes of college students as well as the townspeople of Manhattan went to cleaning shops in large quantities Monday morning, following the most drastic cut in cleaning and pressing prices ever entered into by the local establishments.

Within two days cleaning and pressing prices on men's three-piece suits dropped from 85 to 25 cents and charges on all other apparel accordingly. These unreasonably low prices were greeted by a large volume of business from everyone because it is impossible for such prices to continue.

The break in the Associated Cleaners organization in Manhattan came Saturday when the Manhattan Cleaners announced a cut to 50 cents on men's suits and similar reductions. Other cleaners in the organization met this with a drop to 35 cents, the announcement of which appeared Sunday morning in the daily paper.

Yesterday this price was met by the Manhattan Cleaners and the advertisement in this issue of the Collegian announces a drop to 25 cents by the Associated cleaners.

The associated group incudes: A. V. Dry Cleaning, Barber Cleaning and Dye Works, City Cleaners, Crowder's Cleaning and Dye Works, Campus Cleaners, Elite Cleaning and Dye Works, Gillett Tailors, and the Nu-Way Cleaners and Dyers.

COMMITTEE FOR CAMPUS CHEST NAMED MONDAY

TO DRAW UP PLANS FOR THIS YEAR'S ARRANGEMENTS.

MAY NOT HOLD ANNUAL DRIVE

Money Collected Last Year Remains In Treasury—Fund Formerly for Needy Students on Foreign Campuses.

Student members of the Campus Chest committee have been selected by the organizations they represent, and in collaboration with the faculty members of Campus Chest will meet soon to draw up plans for this year's arrangements.

Unless a need for a campus drive arises, none will be held this year, since money collected last year remains in the treasury.

The Campus Chest was created originally for the purpose of "giving or denying permission to any organization to solicit funds on the campus for any cause." Prior to last year, the money solicited from students for the fund was sent to needy students and organizations on foreign campuses. Last year, the committee decided to establish a Campus Chest fund out of which students on the Kansas State campus could borrow money in small amounts, not to exceed $15. No interest for the use of the money was charged, but all borrowers were expected to pay back the money as soon as possible.

The fund, which is still in existence, has aided many students. Applications for loans are made to Prof. J. E. Hamilton of the physics department, and are paid back through the business office.

TO ATTEND Y. W. MEET

Dorothy MacLeod, Y. W. C. A. secretary, will go to Emporia tomorrow where she will speak at a membership dinner of the Y. W. C. A at the Kansas State Teachers' college. Miss MacLeod will talk on "What the Y. W. C. A. Can Mean To a College Girl."

Dr. Howard T. Hill, head of the public speaking department, will speak in Lincoln, Nebr., Thursday, at the opening session of the Nebraska State Teacher's convention on the subject "Teacher and the Community." There will be two banquets in the evening, one for the women which Ruth Bryon Owen will speak, and the other banquet for men which Dr. Hill will be the speaker. In the afternoon session he will discuss "Contribution of Dramatics to Community Life."

Friday, Dr. Hill will speak in Norfolk, Neb., on the same subjects at the teacher's convention held there.

TO SPEAK AT FORUM

Ruth D. Kolling, executive secretary of public welfare commission of Kansas, will be the speaker at student forum Wednesday noon in Thompson hall, on the subject of "What Does our Poor Relief System Profit Us?"

PRESENT NOMINEES

The senior election of officers next Thursday will bring about the advent of a new political party to the campus. Scarab, senior political organization, upon the assumption that both old parties, Vox Pop and Theodoric, are in a state of disorganization, has submitted a list of nominees from its ranks.

The nominations follow:

President, Lawrence Daniel, St. Francis; vice-president, Bob Zebold, Little Rock, Ark.; secretary, E. O. Merkley, Manhattan; treasurer, John Myers, Meriam; marshal, Gaylord Munsen, Junction City; devotional leader, Harold Kugler, Abilene.

Custodian Has Reminded Students of Time 13 Years

If John Lambert ever was tardy at Kansas State college, three thousand students might likewise be late, for he is the custodian responsible for ringing the big bell in the tower of Anderson hall that tells the students when it is time to start to class.

For 13 years Mr. Lambert has rung the bell every morning and noon and before the college assemblies. In all that time—except for his vacation every year—he only once has missed his duty. "I went to sleep that time," he confesses, and students who have been tardy for the same reason will know just how he feels about it.

Every morning Mr. Lambert sets his watch by the clock that rings the class bells for the whole college, and so makes sure of keeping the big bell exactly on time. He and the big bell have become pretty good friends during the 13 years they have worked twice a day together, and Mr. Lambert proudly points out how well kept the big bell is, despite its great age. Cast in the year 1861 at West Troy, N. Y., the bell is made of solid brass and is capable of sending a tuneful din throughout the college neighborhood. Only twice in recent years has it been out of commission, those occasions being when the clapper was surreptiously removed—presumably by fraternity pledges under orders.

So twice every day when school is in session, Mr. Lambert climbs to the tower of Anderson hall and tolls the bell that tells the students the fateful hour is about to strike, and the campus statisticians calculate he has prevented several millions of potential tardies during the 13 years he has had charge of the big bell.

THE APPOINTMENT MISPLACED

Now that the stadium drive, which is a good thing, is almost over the Collegian wishes to protest emphatically against further appointment of a non-student to act as chairman. That is far from being a good thing. In fact it bears all the earmarks of being a purely partisan proposition.

The chairmanship of the stadium drive involves payment of a salary and a commission upon pledges made. It is a job that belongs distinctly to regularly enrolled students — not townspeople.

It is neither the intention nor the place of the Collegian to attempt to carry on the business of the stadium corporation, but it is the place of the Collegian to maintain an interest in the undergraduates of the college. The chairmanship of the stadium drive in the past has properly been placed in the hands of students. In this year when jobs are scarce and applicants are plentiful the action of the stadium board stands out more boldly than would have been the case a number of years ago—when prosperity reigned.

When consulted in regard to the situation, Dr. J. V. Cortelyou, secretary of the board, maintained that Dick McCord, the appointee who is not enrolled this semester, is a loyal Kansas State supporter and will return to school as soon as is possible.

A number of the organized houses have not required pledges to cooperate wholeheartedly toward the success of the stadium drive as has been the custom in the past. The decision can easily be traced to the fact that a non-student was appointed to take charge of the drive.

THE MORE SIGNIFICANT CHANGES—

Now is the season of the year when the freshmen begin to feel that they are at last university students and not just visitors in a strange place. They have had their share of college dates and dances, they have been to their first football game, they have had their first exams, written their first freshman themes, and made their first week-end trip home from college.

Now is the season that they start to use "we" in speaking of the student body instead of "they." They do not wear the high school sweaters and honor society pins quite as often as they did the first week, nor does their conversation smack so much of the home-town flame. They have learned to speak casually of the "libe," "psych," "comp," and to say "nooking" and "bridging," in the appropriate places. They have learned just which people are the BMOC and then can even identify the keys of some of the honorary fraternities.

Of all these superficial changes even the freshmen are well aware; they are part of a conscious process of learning. The remarkable thing about their transformation is that the most significant part of it goes on quite unperceived by them. The really lasting changes, the important differences between them four years from now and themselves as high school seniors will have come about so unobtrusively, so gradually and so subtly that they will not be able to say just where certain ideas had their turning point or where certain habits began. There is no way for the layman to allocate these changes in character, these acquisitions of poise, learning and thinking habits, but the process is continual and intensive, none the less. The senior can compare himself with the freshman and see when and where the veneer of the more superficial differences was applied, but the subtler internal changes he can only acknowledge as existing; he knows no more than the freshman how they came to be.—Indiana Daily Student.

The Snooper

Attention Ags! Press the tongue firmly between the lips, inflate the jowls, and blow a heavy blast for the engineers for their moronic exhibition at your Barnwarmer Friday night. The idea of crashing the party had the earmarks of being conceived by the embryonic minds of a group of non-fraternity men, if that means anything. It was the greatest show of high-schoolery staged on this campus in many days.

The show started soon after Luella Graham, of the Topeka Grahams, and Steve Vesesky's choice for the queenship, (nice bit of politics, Stephen V.) ascended the throne of bailed hey-hey. The guests were highly entertained for a while as the agrarians disposed of the smaller fry by running them through a paddle line. Then all hell broke loose (to use a fetching term and one which will bring you out of the coma you are probably in, you quarter-wits when the engineers, bad cess to them, stormed the north door, the south, door, the fire escapes, ventilators, transom, and clothes-chutes.

The Ags then gathered and massaged the skulls of the intruders and occasionally, they bitterly regret, some of their own brethren. The massaging tools consisted of broom handles, cotter-pins, single-trees, paddles, and stalks of corn, less the ears. Believe it or not, somebody made a vest for some luckless engineer out of a bale of hay, which reminds us of the story about the man who said coffee wouldn't hurt anybody, until 500 lbs. of it fell on his head. We've never heard who it was that flung the bale of hay but it is the current opinion that he is not the kind of fellow you would want to meet in a dark alley, especially if he had just found a grub-worm in his oatmeal.

Anyway, Layton ended the dance with that leathery old hymn, "After the Brawl is Over," and a damaged stairway bore mute evidence of a mighty struggle. Even the bannister had been torn down and used to conk the sore heads of engineer and ag alike. The Snooper, who has figured in many a nasty brawl (that is, figured he might as well crawl under a table until it blew over) was there, and if you looked close enough you might have seen him, a small man clothed in a flowing black shawl, peering through thick green bi-foculs, and scribbling on bits of corn husk.

Scrooge Bilgewater Martin, age undetermined, passed out of our lives today following a long illness which might have been anything but brain fatigue. Scrooge, born in a damp cellar and aged in a charcoal barrel, is well known among us as the sole survivor of the class of '01 to '17. The brains will be shipped to Texas where they will go into the banana vending business. The hogs have et the body. It has been many a rigorous year since the young Scrooge, and we hold our smarting nostrils as we repeat the name, came among us selling whip-sockets fashioned of genuine leather. He went from bad to worse and from worse to Sigma Alpha Epsilon and years later under the name of Oleson, which is about as crummy a name as we can think of right now, we found that he had made his bale of frogskins writing hair-raising stories for bald headed men (Cappers Weekly '03). But it is a changed Scrooge whose sudden demise we are now mourning. Suffering from the rigors of ceaseless study and strange week-end maladies he suddenly gave up the ship and Cora Oliphant and laid his prostrate form at the feet of Dean Durland begging an honorable withdrawal of both his worthless hulk and a strange substance known as money from the college ledgers.

On Other Hills

Hurrah! Local boy makes good! Jackie Cooper, the infant of movie fame, has been chosen for a position of cheer leader at the University of Santa Clara.

And speaking of ex-stars, our lover Buddy Rogers, has just been initiated into Jazz Hounds, a pep organization at the University of Oklahoma.

Forty-two trunks containing the music library of John Philip Sousa were recently bequeathed to the University of Illinois by the "Music King."

Purdue has inaugurated a method of instruction which they call the cinema method, to replace the lecture system previously used. Freshmen in mechanical drawing are being instructed by means of motion pictures which were made at the university last spring, showing a draftsman at work under proper conditions with correct methods.

They like to go to school at the University of California. This year there was an increase in enrollment of approximately seven per cent over last years' count.

Over $15,000,000 has been received in royalties from oil wells by the University of Texas during the past 11 years.

A "no-kissing" edict was recently passed by hospital officials at K. U., when students visiting ailing members of the opposite sex were caught in the act by chaperons. The students were told that health must be considered before morals, and that a cold or contagious disease might be spread campus-wide by an innocent kiss!

Here's the most nearly perfect college romance. At Northwestern university, the engagement of the most beautiful and most popular co-ed to the school's ideal man has been announced.

After election, here's something else to worry about. An astronomer at the University of Chicago says the sun is wasting away. But he believes also that it will go on shining for 15,000 billion years.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, has received 30 academic degrees. The degree, LL.O. has been conferred on him 17 times.

Whether or not the freshmen at Ottawa university win the annual class brawl, the entire school will be guests of the freshmen class at a fried chicken dinner after the fight.

"EASY COME, EASY GO"

The Manhattan Theatre opened its season Thursday evening, October 20, with "Easy Come, Easy Go," a three-act farce comedy by Owen Davis.

The story of the play gyrates around the efforts of two bank robbers, one of whom is a raw cub, to find obscurity in a quack health sanitarium. The farce is constructed along conventional lines, with the usual climax at the end of the second act and the customary happy ending with the favorites paired off for life. There are occasional snappy lines and humorous situations.

Liebmann Langston and Donald Williams made a good pair of crooks. Mr. Williams seemed to slip easily into character as a hard-boiled yegg and to remain there without discomfort. Mr. Langston's role called for frequent reversions to his normal state of honesty and romantic concern. Though he did these returns well, his crook activities were more convincing.

Helen Pickrell, as Molly, the nurse at the sanitarium, did a nice job of tying the fragmentary play together. Her comedy part was well taken, and her merriment and laughter so natural as to make one believe she was really enjoying the complexities of her assumed situation. Donald Porter, as Mortimer Quale, did a difficult part well and was instrumental in leading the second-act climax to a high success.

Mr. Heberer, coach of dramatics, deserves much credit for having brought his cast of sixteen, fourteen of whom were without previous experience, to such a high degree of perfection. The entire cast was composed of college students, and though the play calls for mature character parts with one or two exceptions, the illusion of maturity was pretty well sprinkled about the health farm.

As an added feature to the entertainment offered by the Manhattan Theatre, Miss Helen Durham and Mr. Richard Herzig, winners of the Atwater-Kent audition over radio station KSAC, sang their contest numbers. Miss Durham sang on Thursday night and Mr. Herzig sang on Friday night. 'Entre' acte music for the play was furnished by the college orchestra under the direction of Mr. Lyle Downey.—H. W. D.

Piggly Wiggly Ink Service Fills Pens And Gives Advice

If you are a fountain pen user, you may already know that it ruins your pen to fill it with one ink after another ink has been in it. According to a bit of helpful advice from the Piggly Wiggly ink service station in the library, the chemicals of one ink react with those of another ink to discolor the ink and ruin the pen. The wise writer will accordingly use the same ink exclusively, or wash out his pen with water before re-filling with another ink.

"This chemical reaction should be a well-known fact," Miss Grace Derby, associate librarian said, "yet it is amazing how few fountain pen users are aware of it."

The little service station that offers this advice doesn't go begging. It has a steady patronage from students in the class reserves department. A penny brings enough ink to fill a fountain pen and that, according to some fountain pen advertisements, is enough to write more than a half mile.

PEARCE ARTICLE APPEARS

Profesor C. E. Pearce, professor in machine design, is the author of a 40-page article recently appearing in a report of the highway research board of the National Research council. The article is the result of work done for the council by Professor Pearce during the summer of 1931 and deals with tests of rail steel reinforcement bars. The purpose of the analysis compiled by Professor Pearce was to disclose the merits of reinforced bars made from rail steel as compared with bars made from other materials. This special investigation was the result of controversy arising among users of various kinds of reinforcing steel and a committee was appointed to make the investigation and secure impartial data.

12TH AND BROADWAY

"What on earth are you up to now?"

"FINDING things out, smarty! I thought I'd examine the tobacco in a cigarette.

"Look here... this is Chesterfield tobacco. Notice its lighter color... you don't see any dark heavy types, do you? I guess that's why Chesterfields are milder.

"I'm told that uniformly lighter color is due to cross-blending. It sort of welds all the tobaccos into one.

"And here's something else. Notice that these long shreds are all cut the same width. It stands to reason they burn smoother and cooler.

"I don't pretend to be an expert but it looks to me as if they make Chesterfields right.

"Here, light one. That's the best test after all. They Satisfy."

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . One of our colleagues in dirt slinging, social chatter, or whatever these columns are called, has found himself a duchess. The inevitable has occurred—the president of our worthy student council is engaged. Fern Collins is the one who will be his inspiration from now on in "Among the Three Thousand"—it used to be John Reinecke. To think he met her on one of those daring journalism press trips—and we had never thought any good could come out of them. . . . The Kappas must plan to win that scholarship cup this year the way they're campusing their below-C-average students . . . . And have you noticed how Queenie Graham walks around in a daze now that she has ascended the throne of Agdom . . . .

. . . . There's the story that is told on Evelyn Osborne, the Chi Omega from the South (yes Oklahoma), who went back to her native state for the game. It was the wee hours of the morning when Mark Babb deposited her at what was supposedly the Theta house in Norman, last Saturday night. Finding none on first floor of the would-be sorority house, Miss Osborne proceeded to second. A pajama-clad male Normanite met her at the top of the stairs to investigate her presence in the Theta ???? house—pardon milady, but she was in the Beta house. Just one of life's most embarrassing moments . . . . And did you know that Mark Babb played the part of water boy for the Kansas State team at Norman—what these college men won't do to get by the ticket taker . . . . And Tyne Pearman served well as handy man for the broadcasting crew . . . .

. . . . But here's the best on none other than our famour Chili Cochrane. He's an ice man you know, and the other day upon entering a house (to deliver ice of course) he was confronted with a small boy who immediately remarked to his mother, "And shall I go out and play now Mother?" . . . . We see that Orrin Grover is in the role of taxi man again . . . . Do you remember the slightly discolored eye that Don Wyatt carried around with him recently? Well, it took just three days' application of beefsteak to bring its normal hue back again . . . . Ray Spilman and Frank Burns seem to be at sword's points again over the affections of a certain coed . . . . And now—sleep come on and take me . . . .

ENGINEERING NEWS

The farm shops of the shop practice department are undertaking to do repairs and small building jobs for various departments of the college. No charge is being made for labor and only a very small charge for the use of machinery above the cost of material is asked. Professor E. C. Graham, in charge of the vocational group, has found that much of this work can be done as problems for the various classes that he has in that work, thus saving the usual high cost of labor involved in many of these jobs.

Professor R. G. Kloeffler, head of the department of electrical engineering, took a group of students to Norman, Okahoma, Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22, to attend a regional conference of the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Robin Compton, senior electrical, submitted a paper entitled, "Transmitters for Broadcasting Service." The other students who composed the group are J. P. Kesler, B. E. Hammond, and G. D. Ferguson. Thirteen other papers from students of engineering schools were presented.

IS HONORARY MEMBER OF ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Roy Owen Pence, Instructor in Milling Industry, Joins National Scouting Fraternity.

At a meeting held last Thursday, October 20th, in Alpha Phi Omega Hall, Royce Owen Pence, an instructor in milling industry at the college, was made an honorary member of Alpha Phi Omega, the national honorary scouting fraternity. The following list of pledges were also announced: Ernest M. Hilyard, Rooce; Paul G. Gibson, Chanute, and William Donald White, Kansas City, Mo.

The fraternity will be hosts to boy scouts from the central field of the Jayhawk area, which includes Abilene, Concordia, Junction City, Salina and Manhattan, November 5. These scouts will be in town for the purpose of participating in the annual Boy Scout Circus to be held in the evening at Nichols Gymnasium. The fraternity also plans on having their guests attend the Kansas State-Iowa State college football game after lunching in the college cafeteria.

AERIAL ATTACK IN LAST PERIOD BRINGS O.U. WIN

KANSAS STATE HELD SIX-POINT LEAD UNTIL START OF LAST QUARTER.

NEBRASKA PROBLEM NEXT

Bo Conducts Monday's Practice With Short Signal Drill and Wind Sprints—Not Discouraged About Loss.

The Oklahoma Sooner football aggregation opened an aerial attack in the last quarter of the game Saturday to win 20 to 13 what looked like a sure Kansas State victory.

Oklahoma took the lead early in the game when Dunlap passed to Art Pansze for a 31-yard gain and a touchdown. Bushby recovered a blocked punt on the Kansas State 31-yard line, and Graham and Russell started a drive down the field which resulted in a touchdown just as the quarter ended. The other Kansas State score was made by Russell, just a few minutes after the second quarter opened.

The score remained Kansas State 13, Oklahoma 7, until the final quarter when Dunlap, Sooner quarterback, passed to Stacey for 18 yards and followed it up with a pass for a touchdown to Walker to tie the score 13 to 13. Then a few plays later Dunlap intercepted Graham's pass to Breen and ran for a touchdown.

Coach "Bo" McMillin, confined to a local hospital with burns, was unable to make the trip with the team, but was out yesterday afternoon for practice.

The practice consisted of two lectures and a short signal drill with wind sprints. "Bo" talked to the boys mostly about the coming game this week with Nebraska and mentioned their fault in the Oklahoma game. He did not seem discouraged with the showing against Oklahoma Saturday, and believes that Kansas State has a strong chance for a victory over Nebraska this week.

Sports Hi-Cups

W. S. Coblentz, varsity squadman, is rated as the hardest "dummy scrimmager" on the squad. He always goes at the same rate of speed.

Some of the townspeople have reasoned that the cause of the defeat at Oklahoma was because the city jail was just across the alley from the hotel. Several young women were locked up and some of the boys spent most of their time "talking" to them until the cops put a halt to the 'game".

In the Wells-Roberts hotel the Kansas State football squad ate in a dining room that even the bell hops could not find. It was on the fourth floor in a double bed room suite.

Dan Blaine was so overjoyed with the waitresses that he even asked one to marry him.

The reason for the proposal was that she served him two meals at dinner.

Dave Griffiths, Chronicle reporter, swears that he got enough dope on his trip to Oklahoma to make the football team pay hush money for a month.

Walter Zeckser: "The sweaters just like we got for almost "nothing" in Lafayette cost one dollar a piece in Oklahoma City."

After the game Saturday the team had to push the darned bus in order to get back to Oklahoma City.

The Roughnex, O. U.'s pep organization, had more pep when Oklahoma was behind than the Kansas State Wampus Cats develop during a whole season.

When we, the Kansas State rooters, go to Nebraska next week, something in the way of pep is going to happen.

A pretty co-ed, going to Topeka, took up most of a certain Beta football player's time all the way home from O. U.

Lee Morgan: "I just couldn't help catching those passes down at Oklahoma."

Several El Dorado boys, after they had decided to spend the week end at home, changed their minds just because they would have to come back to school Monday. Who can imagine Dan Blain not wanting to be in El Dorado over a week end?

Clovia, X team, Phi Beta Phi, Kappa Delta, and Tannahill-Burson; Group III, Delta Delta Delta, McCutchen-Evans, Zeta Tau Alpha, Y team, and M and M; and Group IV, Alpha Delta Pi, Winners, A and M, Van Zile hall, and Appel-Anderson.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"Bring 'Em Back Alive"

The picture "Bring 'Em Back Alive" at the Dickinson this week offers you something new in animal pictures. Combats between the lords of the Malayan jungles take up most of the picture. The story, if it can be called that, also shows you that the real lord of the jungle is the white man whose cunning is baffling to the beast which knows nothing but brute strength as a means of beating off his enemies. If you are tired of plots filled with synthetic murders and love and want to see some nature in the raw, you will enjoy this kind of picture. The shorts are good.—A. S.

AT THE VARSITY
"Grand Hotel"

The long waited for, the most talked-of-talkie, "Grand Hotel," has justified the greatest expectations. Here is a show which will go down in history as one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most distinct accomplishments. Vicki Baum's book was wonderful, but the show taken from it is even more superb. The tremendous cast helps, naturally, to put the show over. There are the Barrymore brothers, better than ever as they act together. Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford are excellent in new roles. Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, and Jean Hersholt, living up to expectations, are truly great. With a host of others, these well known stars are together in a single cast.

If you've ever read the novel, "Grand Hotel," you will know that the show should not be missed. If you haven't enjoyed the book, go see this magnificent production of the goings-on in the finest hotel in Berlin. It's one of the best character-study shows that has ever been to Manhattan.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Divorce In The Family"

If you don't think Jackie Cooper in "Divorce in the Family" at the Wareham is the "one hundred per centest guy" you ever saw, you're unusual.

It's the most true to life story the movies have put out in some time and Jackie Cooper will run any of them a good race for being the best actor in Hollywood. You'll laugh when he tells his mother he's going to see the judge fellow and get that divorce thing fixed up so his dad can come home, but you'll probably get that certain smarting sensation around your eyes at the same time.

Lewis Stone's acting as the divorced husband who digs up bones in far away places is just as good as Jackie's. Conrad Nagel as the step-father has an unsympathetic role which he handles well even to the authentic anger when his newly-acquired son cuts up a $75 anatomy chart in his office to make a kite.

COMMISSION TO ELECT

The men's freshman commission will meet Tuesday, October 25, 1932 at 7:30 p. m. There will be an election of officers, followed by a talk by Dr. Nelson, local doctor, who will speak on "Hygiene of Sex."

DELTS AND SIG EPS LEAD GROUP ONE IN SOCCER

Will Probably Play Semi-Finals Monday—Horseshoe Tourney to End Saturday.

Competition in group I of intramural soccer is showing that Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon are about the class of the group. The Delta have come through four conflicts with other teams without a loss, and have shown a good scoring punch in each.

Yesterday afternoon the Delta Taus had another track meet, this time at the expense of the W.F.A.C., winning handily by a 7 to 0 score. In the other two games played yesterday afternoon, Tau Kappa Epsilon won from Lambda Chi Alpha 2 to 1, and Sigma Phi Epsilon defeated Phi Lambda Theta 2 to 1. The victory of the Sig Eps kept them in the running in group I, as they have now won three games and will meet the Delts in what will probably be the championship game of their group next Monday.

Both of last Friday's games were close affairs. Theta Xi barely took a 1 to 0 game from Pi Kappa Alpha. Alpha Kappa Lambda won a tough battle with Phi Sigma Kappa 2 to 1.

Tomorrow's schedule is: Acacia vs. Alpha Gamma Rho; Aggie Knights vs. Beta Theta Pi; Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Phi Kappa Tau. Wednesday's games are: Phi Delta Theta vs. Delta Sigma Phi; Lone Stars vs. Sigma Nu; and Kappa Sigma vs. Alpha Tau Omega.

The first round in horse shoe doubles was finished yesterday. The second round in horse shoe singles is now in progress, and all games must be played by Saturday.

Travis Siever of Broughton spent Monday here with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Siever.

Among The Ags

Whether she gilds the lily or not I can't say, but Miss Fern McCormick, secretary to Professor Throckmorton, surely gilds the poppies. She has a winter bouquet of gilded poppy pods, silver-coated wheat, and pussy willow a la naturel which is well worth a look. She also has a bouquet of some more elusive plants which are arranged in a basket on top her desk.

At last, after all the years of hopes, prayers, and vetoed appropriations, ground has been broken for the new dairy barn. No longer need the cows of Kansas State blush with shame when they compare their habitation with that of other cows in other states. In fact so elegant sound the plans of the new structure that I've half been expecting jeweled pins of some kind to be provided for the bossies and their keepers. Perhaps a revival of the ancient order of grip, stool, and pail.

And that makes me think—how long has it been since you hea... of a "moo club" initiation.

The nice things that Doctor Marlatt, chief of the U. S. bureau of entomology, said about the abilities of the K. S. grads (especially grads in entomology) should make all the insects multiply and beware.

All members of Wesley Foundation are invited to meet at the student parsonage Saturday at 5:30 for a hayrack ride, destination unannounced.

Palmer, 1601 Fairchild, stating that his son, Karl A., who was a student in mechanical engineering at the college from Sept. 1930 to June 1932, has successfully passed a special examination conducted by the United States Navy Department. He left Kansas City Saturday, for San Diego.

Dr. John Robinson Hart, a member of the University of Pennsylvania faculty, was a dinner guest at the Kappa Sigma house Wednesday evening.

WITH CLIVE IN INDIA

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the noted artist, Karl Godwin ... inspired by the fierce and brilliant assault by Clive and a handful of followers, outnumbered 20 to 1 by savage hordes of bloodthirsty natives, at the Battle of Plassey—the birth of the British Indian Empire—as described in the famous Henty book, "With Clive in India."

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies . . . the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"
That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

COUNCIL NAMES SENIOR OFFICERS WITHOUT BALLOT

ABSENCE OF OPPOSING POLITICAL PARTIES CAUSES ACTION OF S. G. A.

SCARAB HAS ONLY NOMINEES

Fact That There Were Not Enough Offices May Account For Lack of Candidates.

With the absence of opposing parties in the election of senior class officers held yesterday, Scarab, senior political organization, was voted by the student council as victorious in the annual political scrap.

For the first time in the history of political organizations at Kansas State, Scarab was the only party which submitted nominees from its ranks. Vox Pop and Theodoric, old parties on the hill, showed evidence of a state of disorganization when no candidates were submitted to be voted on by members of the senior class.

There was almost no interest shown in yesterday's election, in fact, not enough to justify holding it, according to the student council committee. The fact that there were not enough offices to be filled, probably accounted for the many political parties not entering names of their candidates in the election.

Following are names of newly elected class officers: Lawrence Daniel, St. Francis, president; Bob Zeboid, Little Rock, Ark., vice-president; E. O. Merkley, Manhattan, secretary; John Myers, Merriam, treasurer; Gaylord Munsen, Junction City, marshal; and Harold Kugler, Abilene, devotional leader.

The date for the election of senior class officers was decided at a meeting of thhe student council almost two weeks ago, and the names of the candidates should have been in the hands of Esther Rowe, secretary, by October 25.

Although it is the original intention of thhe senior class to have only one election this year, it is possible that another election may be held at the beginning of the second semester, M. L. (Duke) DuMars, president of the student council, said yesterday.

SPEAKS ON WELFARE PROGRAM AT FORUM

Ruth Kolling, Secretary of State Public Welfare Commission Outlines Work.

Discussing "A Modern Welfare Program," Miss Ruth Kolling, secretary of the Kansas public welfare commission, spoke at the regular student forum, Wednesday noon, in Thompson hall.

The welfare program of today as outlined by Miss Kolling is the placing of all public welfare work on a high professional plane to accomplish prevention of increased ills; re-education and re-adjustment of those who become state charges; their rehabilitation to useful citizenship, after their return to their communities; and the co-ordination of public and private agencies.

Miss Kolling pointed out that one of the greatest evils of the present welfare program is the lack of adjustment means in placing orphaned children.

The speaker said there were vast expanses of work to be opened up in this welfare field in Kansas. The work has been put on a scientific scale and those who are best acquainted with it believe a professional welfare worker should be appointed.

SPEAKS IN TOPEKA

L. A. Wilhelm, Arkansas City, graduate student in the poultry department, attended a meeting of the Kansas Poultry and Egg Shippers association in Topeka Wednesday.

Wilhelm spoke before the meeting on "Scientific Implications of Egg Grading."

A nine year record was broken when for the first time since 1923 Washington State failed to score against Southern California in the recent football game.

Beware of Storing Coveted Sheepskins In the Cedar Chest

Disillusion yourself. You cannot tuck away the old sheepskin in the cedar chest to preserve it for future generations. Because if you only knew, that clean-smelling fragrance in the redwood chest will deal havoc to those long-sought and much-prized scrolls known as college diplomas.

That is the sum and substance of an advice recently received at the college from an ink manufacturing concern. According to the ink company, the moth-killing aromatic oils of the cedar soften the ink used on diplomas, and in a short time ruin the lettering.

Anyway, this affords an excuse for having it framed and hung in the guest room.

There will be a joint Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A. cabinet hike next Tuesday at five o'clock in the afternoon.

Dean L. E. Call, in approving the acceptance of the invitation, makes the following statement: "I feel that this is a distinct honor to Doctor Parker and the institution, and I am delighted that he has received the invitation to give the lectures."

One of the lectures to be given by Doctor Parker will have to do with disease resistance in crop plants. Another will deal with resistance to insect injury in crop plants. The lectures will probably be given during the week of January 23. One of the lectures will be prepared in manuscript form for publication at some future date with a group of these memorial lectures.

READ PRIZE PIECES

Two prize winning pieces by college students were read before Quill club at its meeting last evening in the office of Prof. H. W. Davis. Dorotha Hadsell read "Ballad of Betsy Staire" by Shirley Barker, and Helen Sloan, '31, read, "A Thing of Beauty," a short story by Lorene Pearson.

All Kansas State undergraduates are eligible to compete for the short story prize this year, whether or not a member of Quill. The final date for the submission of entrance menuscripts to the local chapter of Quill is November 5.

Professor C. H. Scholer and George Railsback, of the department of Applied Mechanics, will go to points in southwestern Kansas for the purpose of inspecting samples of concrete which were planted there in 1925. VAN ZILE CO-EDS DANCE OFF WITH PROM HONORS

WINNING DANCING TEAM AND BEST DRESSED COUPLE LIVE IN DORMITORY.

GRAND MARCH IS FEATURE

Winsome Girls With Soft-Cheeked Escorts Join in Costume Parade—Serenade Fraternity Houses Afterward.

Van Zile hall danced off with the honors at the co-ed prom held in recreation center last night. Both members of the winning dancing team, as well as both of the best dressed couple live in the women's dormitory.

Coy co-eds and their feminine friends, 116 of them, danced in and out, around the corn shocks and under the black cats and streamers. The master of ceremonies called for a grand march. Handsome tuxedoed shieks and rugged farmer lads, all of them rather soft cheeked strutted around the room with their equally dainty partners.

Then the girls were asked to choose their favorite partners for the contest dance. They danced gently, gaily, about the room for awhile. The music stopped and all but a half dozen couples left the floor. At last the winners, Pauline Crawford, Luray, and Gwendoline Fisher, Marion, were announced.

Winners in the costume competition were Lenore Jones, Chanute, dressed as a harvest hand, and Esther Mundell, Nickerson, almost hidden in a big sunbonnet. Compacts were awarded to the winners as prizes.

When the last dance ended, the girls left for "cokes" in Aggieville, and made their plans for serenading fraternity houses later in the evening.

Erma Jean Miller, Manhattan, had charge of the program, prizes, and decorations. Jack Burke's orchestra played for the dance. The prom is an annual dance for women only, sponsored by W. A. A.

Courageous Teacher Nabs Hired Girl as Crime Perpetrator

The other night one of the engineering professors, whose name is not disclosed, awoke thinking he heard the front screen door close. A peek out of the window. Sure enough, there went a man away from the house—certainly to report to a confederate and perhaps return with a truck and steal all his belongings.

Our professor, being none of these timid, shrinking souls, put on his slippers, stole downstairs to get ready for the returning robbers. As he entered the kitchen, he stood ready to switch on the light, when beheld a hand behind the door. A ferocious lunge and he had the victim in a cast iron grasp by the wrist. It (the victim) screamed one horrible scream and the brave professor turned on the light to make the discovery that the was holding the hand of the hired girl—and her lover blocks away thinking he had left her safe and happy.

If any college professor advertises for "female help wanted," you may make a fair guess as to who the brave professor is.

Mrs. Charles Corsaut will spend the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Archer in Salina.

McMILLINMEN AND MANY STUDENTS MOVE TO NEBRASKA SOIL TO DO BATTLE WITH STRONG CORNHUSKER GRID TEAM AT LINCOLN STADIUM

CAMPUS AND AGGIEVILLE WILL BE PRACTICALLY DESERTED TOMORROW.

EXPECT NEARLY 700 TO GO

Declare Holiday So Students May Make Trip Without Missing Classes—Will Sit in Special Section.

The campus and Aggieville will be practically deserted tomorrow when Kansas State migrates to Lincoln for the annual Wildcat-Husker football game.

Tomorrow has been declared a holiday on the hill so that those who are planning to make the trip to the game at Lincoln can do so without missing any classes. It is expected that nearly 750 students and townspeople will make the trip to Huskerland either by special train or auto to cheer the team to victory and witness one of the best games on the 1932 Kansas State grid schedule.

A special train has been scheduled for by the Union Pacific railway for the convenience of students and townspeople in going to Lincoln. A rate of $2.50 will be charged for the round trip. The special will leave Manhattan at 7:00 o'clock tomorrow morning and arrive in Lincoln at 11:00, giving everyone plenty of time before the game begins at 2 o'clock. On the return the special will leave Lincoln at 7:00 o'clock in the evening and arrive in Manhattan at 11 o'clock.

To add to the Wildcat cheering section, Prof. Lyle Downey will have his 104-piece band at the game, decked out in their well-pressed uniforms and shining horns. Approximately 85 athletes and coaches will make the trip, including the freshman football squad.

For the past week tickets for the game have been on sale at thhe athletic office. Reserved seats can be obtained there for $2.20, which will be located in the section given over to the Wildcat rooters. This will keep the entire Kansas State aggregation together for more and better cheering. So far almost 300 tickets have been sold for the game, more than twice as many as were sold to K-Aggie boosters who years ago. It has also been reported here that unreserved tickets to the grid battle can be obtained at the stadium at Lincoln for $1.10.

This request is made so that senior students may be checked as to their requirements for degree, in order that proper assignments can be made for the spring semester. Each student will be sent a list of his requirements as soon as they can be completed. No fees for graduation need be paid until next spring.

BO STRESSES DEFENSE AGAINST PASSES IN RECENT PRACTICE PERIODS.

REGULAR BACKFIELD READY

Russell, Breen, and Shaffer Have Recovered From Saturday's Injuries—Coaches Spend Much Time With Reserve Material.

Preparing for the game with Nebraska Saturday, Coach "Bo" McMillin put his squad through a long workout last night, stressing defense against passes mostly. At the conclusion of the workout he gave them a short lecture.

Tomorrow night's practice will be a short one for the first string, as "Bo" intends to give them a brief signal practice and send them to thhe showers. The rest of the time will be devoted to work on the reserve material, giving them signal practice and dummy scrimmage.

The regular backfield will be ready for action Saturday, Russell, Breen, and Shaffer having recovered from injuries received in the Oklahoma game to be back in the lineup. Stoner has been alternating in the backfield during this week's practice. All linemen will be ready for service.

Reports from the Cornhusker camp indicate that they will be even more powerful than last week when they defeated Kansas university. Like Kansas State, Nebraska has a strong offense while the defense is rather weak. Both teams have been working on defense considerably this week.

BETTY CO-ED AND JOE COLLEGE TO REIGN AGAIN

To Be Boy and Girl Most Typical of All Around Students.

Betty Co-ed and Joe College will again reign as that boy and that girl most representative of the typical all round co-ed and her collegiate boy friends in a contest to be sponsored by the Manhattan Theatre.

The honors will be bestowed after a vote of the entire student body as well as all faculty members. Independents along with members of organizatios are eligible providing their scholastic records average a C or better. Nomination for candidacy may be made by a petition signed by twenty fellow students and one faculty members. Petitions are to be made to "Betty Co-ed and Joe College Contest."

The awards will be a banner bearing the inscription "Joe College, K.S.C. Fall Semester 1932-33", and a pillow cover inscribed with "Betty Co-ed, K.S.C. Fall Semester '32-'33". These will be presented at the next Manhattan Theatre production on December 8 and 9.

The final voting will take place the first part of December. Individuals and organizations are urged to get their petitions signed immediately, although. The deadline for entries as yet has not been set.

This idea was successfully carried out two years ago when Lawrence Pratt and Mildred Purcell, both of Manhattan, were chosen as Joe College and Betty Co-ed. A somewhat similar contest was held four years ago to determine representatives of Joe, Jack, and Jim College.

IT IS TO LAUGH

Yesterday's senior class election will go down in history as being one of the quietest ever held on the face of this experienced old earth.

After deciding that class elections have turned out to be popularity contests in the past, the student council deemed it wise to hold a senior class election only. The decision resulted in the fact that there were not enough offices available to rouse the Vox Pop and Theodoric wheel horses from apparent slumber. Consequently, Scarab, senior political organization, and incidentally, interested in campus politics for the first time in several years, walked off with the offices with no effort whatever.

By a vote of 4 to 1, the student council decided to declare the nominees of Scarab elected, and eliminate the expense of holding an election. It is difficult to place the blame of such a flagrant disregard for student duty upon any one party or group. However, after observing the situation from all angles, the entire student body looms as being basically at fault.

Interest in class elections indicate fairly accurately the interest which will be taken by students in politics in general after their graduation. Yesterday's display of pure and simple mental laziness strengthens the Collegian's opinion greatly that many students of Kansas State will spend the remainder of their lives weeping because "we aren't getting a fair political deal."

BUT MANY STILL GO FISHING ON ELECTION DAY

The socialist party, headed by Norman Thomas, has received only a fraction of the number of votes polled by the major parties in the Literary Digest presidential poll.

The party probably won't carry even one state in the coming election. It may never have a successful candidate. But the votes it draws are not wasted.

Voters who are dissatisfied with major party administrations and inept platforms and who agree with the minor party's policies, might do much better to vote for the socialist candidate than to stay away from the polls in November.

By balloting in favor of Norman Thomas, they register a protest vote. When the party obtains enough followers to make its strength noticeable, the major parties will be forced to incorporate the social policies in their platforms.

A minor party vote is not necessarily a vote thrown away for a hopeless cause. Supporting such parties is one of the most effective ways the public has of getting the major parties revamped.—Oklahoma Daily.

The Snooper

There has been a bitter complaint registered here by a Miss Saum who has something to do with the woman's physical education department regarding the cockroach story of a few issues ago, while on the other hand there have been no complaints forwarded by the cockroaches themselves. It is the opinion of the good Miss Saum that the story did not uphold the holy sanctimony of the gymnasium and therefore should have been left out of the press. Miss Saum, who apparently was nauseated by the cockroach story and whose character, quite the opposite from that of the cockroaches under discussion, is unreproachable, does not seem to realize that if that story had been removed from the press it would have been done only with the aid of the mounted police, an assortment of wood rasps and other tools not at our immediate disposal. We trust that the good Miss Saum will overlook our great blunder and harbor no ill feelings about the story. To our readers, and I suppose there are a few who have read down this far, especially the good Miss Saum, we say that if you don't believe that there are upwards of ten million cockroaches nesting in the eaves and crannies of the gymnasium just try throwing a piece of raw hamburger in one of the basement windows.

One morning not so long ago the Snooper found himself wandering around in the misty, moisty morning in his incessant search for choice bits of news overlooked by other less industrious Collegian slaves. The air was full of family's Sunday conveyance, is a capital offing from twig to twig waiting for something to happen. It happened.

Racing in from the west came two Chi Obaggas, namely M. J. Pae and A. Reed, and two II. K. A.'s namely the rotundular H. Phillips and the chestnut haired Cris Covington. They thundered on through the deserted streets of Aggieville and it was a hard time the Snooper had keeping pace with them.

After a breath taking run down Moro to Tenth street up which the party turned, it was revealed to an astonished journalist, who had thought all the time that they were playing a game of hare and hound, that such early morning exercise was taking away both poundage and hippage from the scaffolding of the participants. The daily (found that out too) races to the summit of country club hill takes just an hour and ten minutes to the round trip, barring accidents.

Parking your car on the campus, whether it be just a pile of animated scrap iron or the family's Sunday conveyance, is a capitol offense, and if you insist on cluttering up the campus with it you may get cobbed out of your semester fees and four months of misinformation gathered in your various class rooms. Even the president of the student council was called on the carpet for the offense. He pulled a couple of good strong strings and got out of it but you may not be so lucky. Soooooo, if you don't want to receive a good cobbing at the hands of the authorities, you will heed this well intended advice.

On Other Hills

A fair co-ed at Louisiana university takes the cake wherever she goes. Named the prettiest girl when in high school, and again at Converse college, she was recently chosen "beauty queen" at the university, as well as president of the co-ed student body.

A German school at Emmerich, known as the gymnasium, is celebrating its 1,200th anniversary this year. Many famous statesmen and ecclesiastics have been among its students.

It takes 40,000 keys to open the locks of the classrooms and laboratories at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where valuable scientific instruments are kept.

Dads' and Mothers' days will be combined this year at Baker university, because of economy. For many years the two events have been separate features of the fall program at the school.

A professor at the California Institute of Technology says football coaches are now complaining that college students are too interested in their studies. Nice that somebody gives 'em credit for cracking the books.

How would you like to follow this schedule for a year? Work at a gasoline station from 10 p. m. until 6 a. m. Run from one to four miles before breakfast, sleep until noon, attend classes until 7 p. m., and after studying for a couple of hours or so, dash down to the gasoline station and start all over again. This is the routine of the captain of the Detroit City college cross country team.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is favored for president by three-fourths of the students at St. Benedict's college. The vote was Roosevelt, 90, Hoover, 16, and Thomas, 12. But get this: Five freshmen cast ballots for Al Smith.

Graduates returning to Southwestern college are now greeted by oil derricks peering skyward on the campus. Five wells on the campus are now producing oil.

The nursing department at Marshall college, W. Va., has offered free baths to any girl who will agree to act as a model bather.

Coaches shouldn't worry if they lose their jobs. Coach Stanley Backman, of South Dakota university, was ousted, rehired, and then promoted on the football staff all within a week's time.

"Pigging", a new word of the English dictionary, has been copyrighted, patented, and reserved by the University of Oregon. The word, according to its originators, denotes attention paid to unmarried girls. "Hogging" probably will be a newer word to denote attentions paid to married women, suggests the Oklahoma Daily.

Please Walk on the Grass" is the sign appearing on the campus at Washington and Jefferson college. When the president of the college, who encourages students to walk wherever they please on the campus, was asked for an explanation, he said: "Why shouldn't students walk on the grass? I want to walk on it myself. I'm more interested in the students than I am in the grass."

It has been 37 years since Kansas university has beaten a Nebraska football team on Kansas soil. Defeat to K. U. last Saturday came from too much passing. Every Nebraska score came as a direct result of an intercepted forward pass.

Frosh at the University of California are required to carry a Bible with them on the campus.

Students in agriculture at McGill university were given a real treat recently when they were taken to the largest brewery in America to learn how to make beer.

Here's revenge for the great portrayer of American youth, James Montgomery Flagg, who last year declared that "all ugly girls go to college." The co-eds at Ohio State university nominated the artist for the degree of "B. S." (Bad Sight, not Bachelor of Sciences).

Music Department Presents Recital In Assembly Wednesday.

Professors Max Martin, Charles Stratton, and Richard Jesson were presented in recital by the department of music at student assembly Wednesday morning.

"Old Irish Song and Dance," a violin solo played by Professor Martin and "Intermezzo," a piano-organ duet by Professors Stratton and Jesson were the best liked numbers on the program.

HERE are entirely different kinds of tobacco.
Blend them and you get a different taste.
Cross-Blend them and you get a better taste.
While blending mixes the tobaccos together, Cross-Blending "welds" and "joins" their flavors into one.
Imagine doing this with the world's finest cigarette tobaccos—many kinds of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco!
What you have when you've finished is Chesterfield tobacco—better than any one kind, better than a blend of all kinds—really a new kind of tobacco flavor that's milder, more fragrant and a whole lot more pleasing to the taste.

Wherever you buy Chesterfields, you get them just as fresh as if you came by our factory door

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Here's hoping it's a good day tomorrow—for with President Farrell letting us loose for a day, we just can't have bad weather . . . . There's a mob going to Nebraska, they say—we should have a fair rooting section to spur the McMillin boys on to that victory . . . . Maybe Red Blaine's dream of play No. 99 the other night will help him some in the Saturday game—and it should do more than just knock him out of bed as it did so recently . . . . With football on the mind, we'll wager you don't know what football player and all-round athlete is planning to say "I do" about Thanksgiving time. That's two important wedding announcements to anticipate . . . . All in the same line of thought, a young Tri Delt freshman recently asked the housemother who "Bo" McMillin might be—'s funny that Erma Jean or Meredith hadn't already told you, little girl . . . .

. . . . Just sorta reminiscing—do you remember "way back when"—Harry Miller and George Boone used to make numerous trips to Topeka to see Bradley and Swan—Skradski gave Marjorie Lemon a tear—Ken Harter was seen with Harriet Swan so frequently—Bus Boyd went with Lee Morgan's girl (yes, Leora)—Mayor Bliss was in love with Charlotte Remick—Johnny Correll rushed Mildred Beard—Dave Horschem spent all his time with Roberta Downie—Mark Babb wooed Marjorie (Mrs. Kelly Slaughter now)—Frank Prentup went to K. U. every week and to see the blonde—"Duke" DuMars drove 20 miles every Sunday to see Vera Trusler—Ned Kimball went steady with Dorothy Cortelyou—Bud Harrop gave up everyone for Frances Fockele—Milt Ehrlich took Marian Crocker everywhere—Swede Lutz had his pin on Norma Koons (Mrs. Morrison of Great Bend at present)—Charley Team courted Marian Waite—and Everett Hughes dated Katherine Reid . . . .

. . . . Be sure to read the write-up of the coed prom—Franklin Thackrey wrote it—now Franklin . . . . Orville Nuffer isn't making the trip to the Nebraska game this year—we wonder why . . . . Isn't it too cute for words, the way the Tri Delts walk on the campus holding hands? . . . . The editor's car is becoming a famous hide-out for some of our more popular freshmen . . . . Has H. B. Summers a lease on either the Palace or Canteen—or is he just conducting an endurance sitting contest in both places? . . . . Red sweaters seem to be the newest note in fashions for the male . . . . What will the A D Pis do for a president after Doris Paulson gets out of school? . . . . See you at the Nebraska game . . . .

AT THE DICKINSON
"The Big Broadcast"

When you hear the familiar voices over the networks, you'll now know what the person looks like that owns one. For "The Big Broadcast" satisfies that curiosity all radio fans have concerning the stars of the air.

Bing Crosby not only croons but does a little acting as the lead in a rather incidental plot the picture has. He's nearly as nice to look at as he is to hear.

Stuart Erwin, with his big dumb face, is good for a lot of laughs. He keeps things moving as the monied man from Texas who buys the broadcasting company for which Bing works. He stages a "big broadcast" with many radio stars appearing, and outside of a little romance, that's about all there is to the story.

But here's the reason why the show's good—Cab Calloway and his band, Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, George Burns and Gracie Allen, the Boswell sisters, Kate Smith, the Mills brothers, and Arthur Tracy, the street singer. Enough one evening for anyone. And besides all that Leila Hyams, that beautiful blond, is the girl in the case.

Don't miss this show. It's worth a dozen nights of radioing.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Wild Girl"

A romance in the redwoods with villains galore and Charles Farrell as the dauntless hero. The sound effects by Eugene Palett are worth the price of admission.

Joan Bennett is the untamed young heroine whose charm leads her into all manner of strange events in this story of California's wild early days. "Wild Girl" is a departure from the usual film of "early days," however, and the unusual cast, including Ralph Bellamy as a silk-hatted gambler, makes an incredible story seem real and probable.

Barroom shootings, man-hunts and love at first sight—but you'll like the show.—E. G.

Women's Sports

A wild-game hunt was enjoyed Thursday noon by the technique V class of archery composed of Junior majors in women's physical education, at the Rotary cabin. The class was accompanied by Miss Helen Saum, head of the women's physical education department.

Wild animals had been painted on posters and hidden in the wood surrounding the Rotary cabin and points were given according to the accurateness of the arrow near the animals' heart. The Pocahontas team consisting of Erma Jean Miller, Helen Morgan, Leora Light, and Helen Tolin won first place with a total of 19 points.

The other two teams were Captain John Smith, which won second place, was composed of Myrtle Andresi Catherine McKinney, Dorothy Maltby, and Alice Widsey; and Akita team, third place, consisted of Cora Oliphant, Evelyn Young, Zeta McCutchen, and Mary Lou Clark.

Desert air is wet

. . . by comparison!

Making telephone equipment presents many an interesting problem to the engineers of Western Electric—manufacturer for the Bell System.

A case in point is the drying of telephone cable before putting on the protective lead sheath. This step is of utmost importance, for the tiny copper wires cannot carry your voice properly unless their paper insulation is thoroughly dried. To this end, Western Electric engineers devised special drying ovens in which the air is thirty times drier than desert air!

The same ingenuity and thoroughness go into every step of making cable, telephones, switchboards and many other kinds of telephone equipment. The dependable apparatus that results is one reason why Bell System service is dependable.

ENGINEERING NEWS

A considerable number of the engineering faculty will go to the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, either Friday or Saturday of this week for the sectional meeting of the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education which is being held at that time.

A complete program is not yet available, but it will include a visit to the State Capitol building, evening meetings Friday, and departmental metings Saturday forenoon. Professor R. G. Kloeffler will lead in the discussions for the electrical engineering department.

Professor L. V. White, of the Civil Engineering department, is the secretary of the section and Professor F. A. Smutz is the member from Kansas State on the program committee. Dean R. A. Seaton is president of the national organization of the society, having been elected last summer at Corvallis, Washington, to that position. The society includes members from all the engineering colleges in the United States.

Professor R. G. Kloeffler, department head of Electrical Engineering, returned Sunday from Norman, Oklahoma, together with a group of electrical engineering students, where they have been in attendance at a regional conference of the student branches of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The students who made the trip were B. E. Hammond, J. P. Kesler, G. D. Ferguson, and Robin Compton, who delivered a paper on "Transmitters for Broadcast Service."

SOCCER DEVELOPS INTO INTERESTING SITUATIONS

Two Brackets Have Almost Certain Winners and Others Are Toss-Ups.

Group competition in intramural soccer has developed into some interesting situations. Two of the brackets have winners almost certain now and the other two are toss-ups between several competing teams. Only one more week of play remains in the first or elimination round.

In Group I Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Phi Epsilon are leading the teams. The Delts have won four games without a defeat and the Sig Eps have won three games and met defeat once. These two teams will meet Monday to settle the group winner. The Delts need this victory to assure them of the group bracket, but if they should lose, the Sig Eps will cop the title. Other games Monday are: Lambda Chi Alpha vs. Phi Lambda Theta; and W.F.A.C. vs. Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Three teams are tied for the leadership of the second group. These are: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Kappa Tau, and Aggie Knights. All of these teams have won three games and lost one, and if the dope holds out, all three should come out victorious in their tilts next Tuesday. Last Tuesday Phi Kappa Tau defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon 4 to 1; the Aggie Knights received a forfeit from Beta Theta Pi; and Acacia defeated Alpha Gamma Rho 1 to 0.

The Delta Sigma Phi's are fairly certain to win their bracket, although they are being pressed hard by the Lone Stars. The Delta Sigs have won four straight victories while the Lone Stars have scored three victories and one defeat. Wednesday Delta Sigma Phi won from Phi Delta Theta 5 to 0; the Lone Stars defeated Sigma Nu 3 to 0; and Kappa Sigma took a close game from Alpha Tau Omega 1 to 0.

Close competition is featuring the fourth group. Three teams are so close together that any one of them might come out as group winner. Theta Xi and Phi Kappa have each won one game and tied two and Alpha Kappa Lambda has won one game and tied one. None of these teams has lost a contest. Today Theta Xi meets Phi Kappa and Alpha Kappa Lambda runs up against Pi Kappa Alpha.

Ties have figured prominently in both Group I and Group IV competition. Six games have resulted in ties in the first group and eight tilts have been tied in the fourth group, all leaders in that group having either one or two tie games against them.

Progress in horse shoes is still slow. Singles competition is in the third round and doubles competition in the second round. All third round singles matches must be played by Saturday, and the second round doubles games must be concluded by Monday.

Sports Hi-Cups

When Bo decided not to have wind sprints at the end of practice last night it made everyone so weak they could hardly get up to the "K" room.

More men are coming out for football now in hopes that Bo will take the whole squad to Nebraska. Maybe it is because of the football banquet later on.

"Zeck, what are you doing down on a pass?"

Do you realize that three weeks from Saturday will be the last football game?

In practice last night Neil Weybrew was booting those place kicks almost like Cronkite used to kick them.

It will take a couple of boots this year to win the ball game Saturday.

Mike Michael to Chili: "I just haven't had that this whole season."

"If the crowd keeps increasing the team will not be able to go to Nebraska Saturday."

What do you think of a football man that will have a date the night before a game?

Charles Corsaut will referee the football game Hays vs Wichita at Wichita Saturday.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT ADDS TWO TO STAFF

New Nurses in Hospital Are Graduates From Christ's Hospital in Topeka—Only One in Hospital.

The student health department has added two new nurses to its force this fall. Miss Edith White, who was graduated from Christ's hospital in Topeka and who for the last three years has been supervisor of nurses there, is in charge of the hospital, and Miss Nora Steenback, also a graduate of Christ's hospital, is a new staff nurse.

"So far this fall there have been 37 cases in the hospital," said Miss White, "but at the present time, there is only one. That is very unusual."

"The student health department at Kansas State, has done a good piece of work," declared Dr. C. M. Siever, yesterday as he took the Collegian reporter on his rounds. "All students are urged to benefit from it in case of any illness. For many years this institution had no hospital until scarlet fever cases became so numerous that we had to confine them to one place. The only place available was the old building just south of the Veterinary building, then a favorite hang-out for rats and mice. It was cleaned, remodeled and has had one addition and now it very conveniently serves the needs of the Kansas State college hospital."

For the benefit of new students, the department has published a small booklet of general information. It may be obtained by calling at the office of the department in the Administration building.

Chance to Get Clean Taken by Collegians In Cleaning Prices

Are Kansas State collegians clean this week? Well, according to cleaning establishments in Aggieville, they certainly are. Such an increase in business! One cleaning establishment operator stated that there were four times as many clothes brought to his place of business this last week. "Yes, the work has increased, but not the profit," says one operator. They operate just about at cost when they have such low prices, in spite of the fact that they work until 11 o'clock at night. Not only students, but townspeople took advantage of this wonderful bargain—suits cleaned and pressed for 25 cents. And what clothes they did bring! In fact, they did quite a job of clean out the attics. Some things 25 to 50 years old—wedding dresses, moth-eaten suits, and some things hardly worth touching. But they're clean now.

This increased work is mostly cash and carry, the delivery having fallen off. Probably after this week prices will again go up, or when business gets down to normal again.

DIRECTORIES OUT

The student directories compiled and distributed each year by the student council will be offered to students this morning, acording to Glenn Fox, who is in charge of the booklet. Miss Dorothy MacLeod, Y. W. secretary, and Mary Alice Schnacke, president, went to Salina early Saturday morning, Ostober 29, to attend a meeting of the Kansas section of the regional council. Plans for the year were discussed under the leadership of Stella Scurlock of Kansas City, new regional secretary for the section including Kansas, Nebraska, and Colorado. An important outgrowth of the meeting was the decision to hold, sometime during one year, unemployment conferences similar to the ones held last year on disarmament. Plans for the Estes park were also discussed in a joint meeting with the men's group which was meeting there at the same time. What the student Y. W. C. A. can do on a college campus, how to carry such activities out and techniques were also considered. The session adjourned Sunday afternoon.

Other schools represented were Kansas university, Washburn, Kansas Wesleyan, Bethany, and Pittsburg Teachers.

Collect Evidences Of Life That Existed many Centuries Ago

Evidences of life that existed thousands of years before Manhattanites settled in this region are now on exhibition in the display cases recently added to the college museum in Fairchild hall.

The collection includes nearly 50 different varieties of invertebrae fossils which have been collected by the historical geology classes of the college in the last few years. Prof. A. B. Sperry and Frank Byrne of the department have directed the work of collecting, classifying and mounting of thhe fossil formations.

The fossils are uniquely mounted on small plaster paris blocks with the classification number embedded in each block. A guide book, giving the geologic age, and a short history of the specimens, is being prepared by the department and will be kept in thhe museum so that the public may obtain information about the exhibits.

Other fossil formations that once were poorly displayed in trays and plaques on the third and fourth balconies of the museum have been transferred to the new case on the main floor. They also have been mounted on plaster paris blocks and will be described in the guide book. One of the largest specimens of this group is a fossilized mosasaur's head. Mr. Byrne has remounted this ancient marine specimen so that it would conform with the new plan of thhe geogolic display. A historical sketch and a redrawn pen illustration accompanies the mosasaur specimen.

Mildred Hansen, Topeka, went home over the week end.

DYNAMIS TO THE RESCUE

Next Thursday night will be almost the last chance students and faculty members of Kansas State to acquaint themselves with the political situation. At that time Dynamis will conduct an open forum in Calvin hall with reference to the presidential candidates.

There will be three talks by students explaining the characteristics and platforms of the three nominees. The subject matter of the speeches will involve material that does not usually appear in metropolitan daily papers so late in the campaign. The meeting will be the one chance for uninformed persons to obtain a slight grasp of the issues being presented. It will give others an opportunity to verify beliefs they have already formed.

The Collegian has remarked a time or two before about the importance of knowing who the candidates are and the measures they desire to promote. This department still believes that it is vitally important to students that they learn the "ropes," so to speak, that they may vote intelligently and effectively.

THE REMARKABLE MR. QUIGLEY

Mr. E. C. Quigley, the 200 pound meat-ball from St. Marys who referees our football games, apparently has an utter disregard for the rules of the game as it is supposed to be played. He hurls his excessive poundage into the air and brings it down skillfully upon the already thoroughly tangled players. From this strategic position he surveys the situation and gives his usually fairly accurate decision.

Does the great Mr. E. C. know that the penalty awarded a player for such a deed is 15 heart-rending yards? Probably so, but his queer antics bring remarks from the crowd which smell strongly of disgust. It is sincerely hoped that Acrobat Quigley will confine his enthusiasm after this small bit of criticism to handsprings and other calisthenics less detrimental to the players.

TAKE A NAP—

The average number of sleeping hours of college students is estimated to be six a day.

Strong constitutions can stand this pace for a long time. Weaker constitutions also can weather the grind provided the action during the waking hours is not too strenuous. A student's daily activity is not on the par with a lumberjack's exercise, but neither is it one merely of absorbing books with a few intermittent jaunts to a nearby classroom.

Undoubtedly there are times when students should do a little "catching up" in sleep. Evidences of this need readily can be seen in so many bleary-eyed students nodding in lectures, slouching across the campus, complaining of the least irritable incident and exhibiting a general sluggishness.

If you have a cold and run-down feeling, if you're worried about the election, if your beautiful romance is hovering over the rocks, if your check hasn't come, if you've flunked your first quiz, if some one has swiped your soap box, if the "fine young thing" has called up at 7 o'clock and broken the date, just take a nap and you'll be all right again. — Indiana Daily Student.

OPPORTUNITY STILL

There is a tendency on the part of many of the younger generation to deplore the lack of opportunity in present times. All too often the complaint is heard that "The big boy has gobbled up all the opportunities." True, the opportunities of the future and the process of getting ahead will be quite different to what it has been in the past. Opportunity is going to be less synonymous with the chance to grab more money. The crash of '29 has made a far wiser folk of us all and we have painfully learned that the opportunity road is not always the road of quick returns.

But opportunity shall continue to knock, perhaps oftener and louder in the future than in the past. The history of both business and statesmanship supports the conviction that not all the leaders of tomorrow shall be the sons of today's presidents and industrialists. Back of the plows in Kansas and back of the counters of some remote crossroads store, in comparative obscurity, are the builders of tomorrow's empire. Abraham Lincoln was once 'back of the counter' in a little crossroad store of a frontier settlement. His rise did not come from any mythical source but by hard work. "I will prepare myself and maybe my chance will come," said he, and when his chance did come his readiness made of him a man of destiny. No more need we; the clerk, the student, the manual laborer, and the bookkeeper, be deterred from preparing ourselves. Our opportunities are as sure to come as did Lincoln's.

Each decade brings forth it's crop of the so-called big fellows whose background can not be distinguished from that of the so-called "forgotten man." These big fellows of tomorrow, shall come from the ranks and shall be those of the present who somehow shall manage to find an opportunity while others whimper. What number of little fellows serving in a small way today shall be found serving in a big way tomorrow depends largely on how many refuse to regard opportunity as obsolete or as beckoning only to the other fellow.

Do not wait for opportunities—make them; two hands and a clear brain have made the opportunities of most of our successful men. Exercise your God-given gifts and you will find plenty of chances for self-betterment and for service.

"Each day opportunity stands outside your cottage door, and bids you wake and rise to fight and win."—The Collegio.

The Snooper

Friday evening the good people of Wamego assembled in their cupolas to discuss the great noise which seeped through the atmosphere from the distant city of Manhattan. Aproned matrons and village graybeards shook their heads in common misunderstanding of what the h—(naughty word, censored by the ed.) was going on. Little did these good old souls, and some of the village heels, know that Pi Kappa Chi was throwing its annual rub. Praise be to Allah it's not a once a monther.

The affair took place in the vicinity of Country Club hill; as far north as the northermost green and as far south as the southermost edge; as far east as the eastermost green, (this is beginning to sound silly) and as far west as Aggieville.

The evening's entertainment was varied. Two local cloak and suit venders supplied much of the entertainment, but most of the evening was taken up in such games as "authors," "bob for the apple," "weave a basket," "tear out a partition," "tump over the locker," "tear up the joint," and "sow in the hole," for which some of the club members not present supplied clubs. Each, all, and everyone put their heart and soul into the games and it was unanimously agreed that it was an evening of good, clean, wholesome fun, much to the chagrin of the management.

So great did the spirit of the affair become that the contests were carried into Aggieville. One of the elder members of the crowd, not to be outdone by the younger fry, and partly to work the chill out of his bones, gave an illustrated rendition of "Horatio at the Trestle" and so closely did he hold the attention of his audience that when he came to the part where the great Horatio sheaths his cheese-knife and leaps into the Tiber, 13 women had to be revived with smelling salts. The orator was forthwith presented with a handsome steam-heated tricycle midst cries of "huzza," "bravo," and more "huzza."

If you gag yourself with a chicken bone, the effect obtained will in a small way demonstrate the convulsions some of us went through when we heard the one about Mark Babb, Everett Hughes, and Bus Boyd, and the quandry they got into on the way home from Nebraska. They got lost someplace and somebody, grubbing about in his brain for a solution, came upon the R. S. of A. Troop 7 method of following the North Star. After many tense moments of stargasing they located the star and followed it for 60 miles. They found out that they were just 60 miles EAST of where they started from. That is about as bad as the man who was so cross-eyed that he went all over the southeast looking for the northwest mounted police.

My wad for today.

On Other Hills

A professor at Oklahoma A. and M. says that one of the biggest reasons why a student fails in college is that he does not study! Lack of concentration, cutting classes, teachers, textbooks, O. U. football team, his landlady, the moon, the weather, and the fact that the student has no brains are other reasons for flunking out, according to the professor.

A straw vote for 15 leading American colleges show a decided choice for President Hoover, who totaled 4,812 votes. Norman Thomas, socialist candidate, piled up 2,078 votes, and Franklin D. Roosevelt drew 1,693. In five of the colleges, Thomas received a plurality over both Hoover and Roosevelt. In 20 eastern colleges President Hoover was a 3 to 1 choice over Roosevelt with Thomas running a close third. Roosevelt was a 7 to 1 favorite in 11 southern institutions. Nine mid-western colleges gave the president a two to one lead, which was increased to almost four to one in seven far western colleges.

The football team at Sing Sing faces a serious problem now, since their star halfback has graduated. Coach John Law, former Notre Dame captain, believes the other institutions are out scouting Sing Sing and they are consequently being cheated by the best players.

Have you ever heard of William E. Upshaw? He is the prohibition party's presidential candidate, and out of the first 100 votes passed by students at Colorado School of Mines, he polled 80 of them. The remaining 20 were divided among Norman Thomas, Roosevelt and Hoover.

Judge for Yourself

Why can't the people who go to assembly keep still long enough to hear the program and allow others to hear it? Wednesday morning was no exception to the usual rule of whispering and rustling paper. The usual airships made from the programs given out at the door were present.

The fault probably lies with the performers as much as with the students, and of course, some students are more to blame than others.

Why do we always have to sing the Doxology? Why not try "Onward, Christian Soldiers," once in awhile. Or if we must sing the Doxology, why not sing the "Amen"? If not the other song suggested, then why not some equally well-known hymn that everyone likes to sing?

During the whole program Wednesday morning, there was evidently only one thing that reached most of the students, if one judged by the amount of whispering and paper rustling. That was the first organ and piano duet. Two people sitting behind this writer talked during both of Professor Stratton's piano solos, and they weren't the only ones talking.

Perhaps the remedy lies in revising the programs. Perhaps it lies in the students staying away from chapel if they feel an irrepressible urge to conversation. Perhaps the reason why Professor Stratton's solos were not more appreciated was that he picked things that the average student didn't grasp readily. To one who has studied music, it was a different matter.

The "Old Irish Song and Dance" by Professor Martin and the first piano and organ duet by Professor Stratton and Professor Jesson met with more favor. Why not turn the ratio around and please the student audience most of the time? The performers need not sacrifice their artistic taste in doing so. There was nothing cheap about either of those two numbers. Six compositions were on the program. Let us say four things for student enjoyment, the other two of a deeper type. Perhaps within a year the student body would be trained to listen through such a program as was given Wednesday morning and not whisper.

Why aren't students ladies enough and gentlemen enough to either keep still when they go to assembly, or stay away entirely? Even getting up and leaving before the program is over is better than the continual disturbance.—Esther Wiedower.

Jerry Porter, Jewell, a freshman in physical education, has withdrawn from school.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"The Phantom President"

George M. Cohan may have raised the very dickens with Hollywood directors while this show was being produced, but they must have known their public—because this picture is just what George M. Cohan would have it be, even if he'd had the final word.

"The Phantom President" is as comical as the present political campaigns. It's chuck full of baby-hoo, but the lines are a lot more clever than those delivered by the presidential candidates.

Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, as a part of the medicine show, is right in his element, but as Cohan's campaign manager, he's a scream. When he delivers a radio speech you'll die laughing. Good song hits and a lot of the old chit chat make this one of Durante's best performances to date.

Claudette Colbert is unusually charming. . . . and her gowns are the best seen lately.

Cohan, as the medicine man, campaigns for Cohan, the presidential timber. He puts the latter across to the voters, and after a heroic scene, puts the former into the White House.

It's a good timely story put into one of the most entertaining of pictures. You can even take peanuts to this one.—E. D.

AT THE VARSITY
"Red Dust"

Subtle handling of this risque drama enacted in the tropical rubber country has permitted Kansas movie goers to see a show which censors otherwise would have never allowed over the state line. Now that it's here, see it.

Jean Harlow, that enticing platinum blond, does a lot for herself and the picture. For once she is cast in a part to which she does justice. As the fast talking, fast living woman of the tropics she meets her equal in Clark Gable, fascinating plantation manager. Gable, striving always for the unattainable, succeeds in interesting the cool Mary Astor in his love making while her engineer husband, Gene Raymond, lies ill with fever. Gable later sends him on a surveying party, and does his wooing of the lovely Miss Astor in the presence of his former infatuation, Jean Harlow.

But either Gabriel's horn or the call of the wild caused him to forsake that which it offered him, and seek consolation in another of his kind.

The repartee is light and amusing. If you aren't too smug, you'll like it.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Madison Square Garden"

"Madison Square Garden" is the picture at the Wareham. Jack Oakie is the star. The story is woven around the Garden and the business of boxing and wrestling. Oakie is a boxer under the care of an old timer in the business. The old man gets the chance he has waited for all his life, to be matchmaker of the gardens, but being a trainer for Oakie and a young wrestler keeps him from having the job. Naturally, being good sports, Oakie and the wrestler quit the old man and force him to accept the position of matchmaker. The rest of the story shows up some of the crooked tricks of the fight game. Marion Nixon furnishes plenty of love interest. It is a good show.—E.R.S.

Miriam Dexter, graduate student in journalism, was a week end guest of Mrs. E. B. Malott at her home in Abilene.

What is Cross Blending?

an Artist might explain it this way...

"Let's say you're painting clouds. You've got your primary colors here on the palette. But you haven't the clouds until you blend certain colors into the special tone you want.

"This is very much what happens in making a good cigarette. And I gather that what Chesterfield means by Cross-Blending is what an artist does with colors. Their Domestic and Turkish tobaccos—many varieties of each—are the primary colors. They blend and cross-blend these tobaccos until they get the special tone they want—in other words, the Chesterfield flavor.

"And just as each color you use acts on the others to change and enrich them, so each Chesterfield tobacco partakes of the fine qualities of every other.

"You 'weld' different kinds to get a better kind. That's Cross-Blending!"

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Now that all the excitement of last week end has sorta died down, we're back to the old routine. We haven't thawed out completely from a ride to and from Lincoln in a rumble seat—but we'll bet our hangover from that isn't much worse than some of the other fellows' who didn't as much as ride in a rumble seat . . . . One of the best gags we heard in Lincoln was on the Kansas State booster (female of course) who upon seeing the Nebraska rooters spell out "Bible is O. K.," exclaimed, "What a blasphemy, don't they consider the Bible a good book? . . . . We hear Ralph Graham was accused of stealing a knife in one of the Lincoln restaurants—not starting a hope chest are you Rammer? . . . . And there was the freshman who almost caused a free-for-all in the station because of a Nebraska banner concealed under his camel-hair coat . . . . Did Ethel Stewart and P. D. Pryor have a good time in Lincoln—just ask them . . . .

. . . . What about the brass-button escorts you had Saturday night, Dan Partner, and Doc Mathews? . . . . Do you know that Russell was considered quite the ideal football hero by the Nebraska coeds? Better watch him, Helen Louise . . . . It's rumored that Wally Zechser spent some 10 or 15 minutes attempting to adjust one of the train seats last Saturday, which, after a call for help from Wally, the porter fixed it in less than a second. All you had to do was push that little button, Captain . . . . We wonder why Chili Cochrane quit his ice job—perhaps too much publicity . . . . What's so important about intramural basketball news that it can't be given to Collegian reporters without two or three trips being made to the intramural office after it—perhaps "Pop" Washburn could enlighten us on that matter . . . .

. . . . We see where Brick Garrison had to cut down on his chiseling this last week end—for Catherine came to town . . . . It seems that Orrin Grover has been keeping one continual open house while his mother has been out of town. Does that account too, for the fingernail polish, you have been using, Orrin? . . . . And did Pete Smith enjoy his day's visit at the Pi Phi house, Saturday? . . . . A comedy team that would give even Laurel and Hardy competition—Bell and Lutz. Their act in the Palace, Friday night, is worthy of mention—as is Mr. Bell's recitation of "Horatio at the Bridge" the same evening . . . . How about boosting your fraternity brothers a bit in "Among the Three Thousand," DuMars? . . . . The best yet—upon being assigned Pi Phi soc. (short for society) for her Collegian beat, Jaconette Lawrence came to the editor with the innocent complaint, "I'm sorry but we haven't organized our soccer team yet."—And to think she's an editor's daughter . . . . We've more news, but no space, so wait until Friday . . . .

VARSITY SQUAD WATCHES DRILL FROM DISTANCE

INJURIES PREVENT VETERANS WHO PLAYED AT LINCOLN TO JOIN IN SCRIMMAGE.

TO USE DIFFERENT ATTACK

Few Light Practices Will Be Experienced by McMillinmen as Bo Trains Them for Iowa State—Bargain Prices Prevail.

It was announced at the athletic office yesterday that the price of admission to the Iowa State-Kansas State game Saturday would be $1 plus t e 10 per cent tax, making the total $1.10.

Because of serious injuries and bruises the varsity squad was privileged to watch from the sidelines last evening while the men who did not see action in the Nebraska game scrimmaged the freshmen.

The varsity reserves did not look the best against the freshman formations and several times during the scrimmage the varsity backs wewre thrown for severe losses.

Bo McMillin is planning a different attack against Iowa State and it will probably mean that the next couple of days wil be devoted to scrimmage instead of the light practices that were taken last week. The freshmen have already been given the Iowa State plays and will probably perform with them before the varsity first string tonight.

Will Be Grudge Battle.

The game Saturday will be a grudge battle as it will be remembered that Iowa State lucked out last year at Ames when the Kansas Staters were doped to win the Big Six. It was because Rambling Ralph Graham had received a knee injury and was forced to remain in the hospital when the team left for the Iowa State frontier, that caused the K-Aggies to stumble and fall when they had the ball within 4 yards of the Iowa State goal line.

Although Kansas State has lost its chances for the Big Six title, it means that a win must be recorded in order to hold the third place position which it now snares wth Kansas university.

After the scrimmage last night the varsity teams were given a couple of new plays and then retired to the lecture room where the Nebraska game was discussed.

Breen Badly Injured.

Emmett Breen, El Dorado, is probably the most severely injured player. An injured shoulder, received in the Oklahoma game, caused him some pain Saturday and it was only because he was seriously needed that he remained in the game until the last few minutes.

Raymond Doll, Ellinwood, is still watching practices from the sidelines due to a leg infection received early in the season. This injury will probably keep him from the lineup for the remainder of the season.

Although Iowa State has not won a game in the Big Six so far this season they have a team that held Nebraska to the same margin of win that the K-Aggies did last Saturday. Nebraska beat Iowa State - to 6.

Women's Sports

Intramural tennikoits will come to a close Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock when the two winning teams will play for the championship.

Last night Kappa Kappa Gamma played the Winners and Beta Phi Alpha played the X team to decide group winners, and tonight the group winners will play to decide who will be in the finals tomorrow night.

With the closing of the tournament, the class teams will be chosen and the class contests played off.

Tennikot players are asked to watch the bulletin board to learn the personnel of the class teams. Schedules for the tournament will also be announced.

DR. CARR TO SPEAK IN FORUM WEDNESDAY

Dr. Floyd Carr of New York City will speak on "Our Thinking World —the Need for Inter-Racial Fraternity" at forum Wednesday noon upstairs in Thompson hall.

At present Dr. Carr is field secretary of the Board of Education of the Northern Baptist convention. He is a popular speaker on modern social and religious problems.

Edna Marie Brown spent the week end at her home in Burr Oak.

NEBRASKA VICTORIOUS IN LAST FEW MINUTES

One of Closest Contested Battles Ever Played in Nebraska Stadium—Russell Is Star.

BIG SIX STANDINGS

	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Nebraska	3	0	0	1.000
Oklahoma	2	0	0	1.000
Kansas State	1	2	0	.333
Kansas	1	2	0	.333
Missouri	0	1	1	.250
Iowa State	0	2	1	.166

(Note—Tie games count one-half won and one-half lost).

Scoring in the last minutes of play, Nebraska university eeked out a 6 to 0 victory over Kansas State last Saturday in one of the closest contested battles ever to be played in the Nebraska stadium. The game was featured by thhe almost perfect ball carrying of Dougal Russel, Kansas State back. About 20,000 saw the game.

All during the first half the McMillin men played in Nebraska territory but coming back strong in the second period the Cornhuskers evened the yardage and gained enough edge to put over a touchdown just three and one-half minutes before the end of the game.

An intercepted pass started the Cornhuskers for their touchdown after the K-Aggies had carried the ball from their own 20 yard line to past midfield in 4 plays.

Mathis made six yards around Kansas State's left end and Hokuf made a first and ten on a left-end run from punt formation.

A Wildcat offside helped the Cornhuskers but two more plays cost them six yards. Fahnbruch then passed over the center of the Kansas State line for 14 yards and a first down.

Masterson carried the ball on five successive plays to the Wildcat three-yard line and as the Kansas State line closed in Nebraska sent Boswell on a wide sweep around left end for the winning count.

Both teams were evenly matched, each gaining 11 first downs. It was not until the last quarter that either team got within the 20-yard line. Russell's quick kicks kept the Nebraska offensive bottled up and it was seldom during the first two periods that the Cornhuskers were not in the shadow of their own goal line.

Sports Hi-Cups

Every week, all fall, the Collegian has received three letters of publicity from Iowa State. The Iowa State team plays here this week and not a bit of publicity.

In memory of the post season game with Wichita last year, it was recalled how F. R. fried hamburgers for the boys at an early hour of the morning, the day after.

Do you remember what that Wichita game did for Pete Fairbank? He put out his pin while the spell was still upon him.

The Kansas State freshmen almost walked away with the town at Lincoln. They even collected the flags from the streets.

Who were the girls that Walter Zeckser and another football player courted all the way home from Nebraska? That was some bridge game, Wally.

It it hadn't been for Bo, a certain freshman would not have made the return trip on the special. A certain old man insisted upon his staying because he wanted a flag from the city of Lincoln.

If that man should have happened to strke Bo, there would have been only pieces of him left.

If Bo couldn't have licked him with his one hand, then there would have been about 25 football players that would have liked the chance.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Heads Engineers

Prof. R. G. Kloeffler, head of the department of electrical engineering, was elected president of the Kansas-Nebraska section of the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education last Saturday at Lincoln, Nebraska.

Kansas State Has An Underworld of Intricate Tunnels

Although it is unknown to the average person Kansas State college has a very expansive underworld. It is made up of an intricate network of underground tunnels.

The tunnels extend from the Power Plant to the various buildings on the campus. They are arranged systematically and vary greatly in respect to size and length. The longest tunnel extends from the Ag buildings to Nichols gymnasium. It is about 2520 feet in length and is the main tunnel of the system. The oldest tunnel now in serrvice was built in 1900. As new buildings have been built so has the underworld system been modified.

This system contains electric circuit conduits, telephone conduits, high pressure steam for laboratory purposes and low pressure steam for heating purposes, and returns from all buildings to the main power plant.

In so great an undertaking as the construction of this wonderful system disaster, injury, tragedy, and careless accidents have played their parts. Accounts are told of accidents in which both men and animals have been the victims of serious injury and even death. All in all the underworld system of Kansas State is successful engineering feat even though it has been tragic in some instances and has been constructed over a long period of years.

ONE MORE DAY FOR QUILL MANUSCRIPTS

Membership in College Writer's Club Much Competed for This Year.

The next to the last day for submitting manuscripts to Quill club finds an exceptionally large number already turned in by students seeking membership in the college writer's organization. Available memberships this semester are being keenly competed for, according to an announcement by the committee on manuscripts at the chapter meeting held last night in Kedzie.

Saturday, November 5, is the final date for submitting entrance manuscripts to Prof. C. E. Rogers or Miss Ada Rice.

Prof. A. W. Breeden of the department of English gave a synopsis of his proposed novel, "Disdain" before the club last night. The story is that of a young man whose opinion of himself is very superior, and he accordingly takes a lofty attitude toward his associates. Already old and blase at 32, he finds little joy in life. The story develops around his experiences. Another member of the club, Elizabeth Walbert, read extractions from a diary.

V. D. Foltz, assistant professor of bacteriology, spent the week end in Delphos.

In the spring they will come together again for an exhibit here.

"A great number of people have visited the galleries during the exhibit," said Prof. John Helm, jh., "considering it was student work of art."

Prof. John Helm and Robert Lockard are preparing the pictures to be sent along on the circuit with the Associated School of Art.

DR. CARR SPEAKS IN FORUM

Board of Education Officer Says There Is Need for Greater Inter-Racial Brotherhood.

"Our Shrinking or thhe Need for Inter-Racial Fraternity" was the subject discussed before about 60 students and faculty members by Dr. Floyd Carr, New York City, at student forum Wednesday noon in Thompson hall.

Great progress in transportation and communication between races was given by Dr. Carr as the main reason why there is a greater need for inter-racial brotherhood.

The white race, or three-tenths of the earth's population, controls nine-tenths of the tillable soil. In many places, the whites are greatly disliked because they have taken advantage of other races. As a solution to this prevailing unrest, Dr. Carr suggested that we, as members of the white race, should apply the golden rule in our relationship with other races. Furthermore, we should "study geography until there is no foreign country and study race until there is no foreign man."

Dr. Carr, who is a popular speaker on modern social and religious problems, is a field secretary of the Board of Education for the Northern Baptist convention. He was accompanied by Rev. Lawrence Black Topeka, who is Director of Religious Education for the state of Kansas.

Barbara Lautz and Lucille Allman, two Kansas State students who have recently traveled in Europe will speak at forum next Wednesday. They will tell of some of their European impressions.

Journalism Seminar Sees Exhibition of Old-Time Newspaper

An issue of the Manhattan Express, with a date line saying Manhattan City, Kansas, Jan. 4, 1859, was among the collection shown to journalism students by Mrs. Sue Carmody Jones in journalism seminar, Thursday. On the front is a column of trade directories, advertising carpenters, blacksmiths, etc. Among the inside ads is one for Higinbotham's dry goods store, where saddles, lumber, nails, and grain are advertised along with caps, boots, and shoes. An article urging the citizens of Manhattan to vote for the state constitution is found on the editorial page.

Mrs. Jones, a former Kansas State student, is the chief of the manuscript section of the State Histroical library in Topeka. She has held the position of editor of the woman's page of the Topeka Daily Capital and has also done publicity work for a fuel company in Topeka.

Another interesting paper in Mrs. Jones' collection was an issue of the Vicksburg Daily Citizen, dated July 2, 1865, two days before the fall of the confederate stronghold. It is printed on the blank side of a strip of wall paper and is full of the tragedy hovering over the city.

The oldest paper shown was the Ulster County Gazette, dated Jan. 4, 1800.

DR. BRUMBAUGH SPEAKS IN STUDENT ASSEMBLY

Says We Are Living in Age of Trophy Gathering and Grades Are Like Medals.

"We are living in an age of trophy gathering," Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh, dean of students at the University of Chicago, stated in assembly yesterday. Trophies, the subject of his talk, are considered by Dr. Brumbaugh to have little essential value in themselves, but their importance lies in what they represent of effort and success in the individual.

"Grades and diplomas belong in the same category as cups and medals," Dr. Brumbaugh continued, 'And in the field of education we are inclined to substitute the grade as the achievement for the completing of the course." He suggested that K.S.C. might in time follow the example of a few other colleges in discarding the grade system.

"The new emphasis in education is on thhe ability to think independently in broad terms of war and peace, of the governmental problems which now concern the whole world. A well-rounded education also equips the student with a sense of values and self-direction."

"The trophy should be a symbol of an ability to undertake a share in the work of the world," concluded Dr. Brumbaugh.

Miss Ruth Hartman entertained Sunday night at her home, 1616 Osage, for Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Melching.

HUSKER WIN MAY CAUSE A CHANGE IN GRID TACTICS

M'MILLIN SEEKS NEW SIGNAL CALLER TO RELIEVE GRAHAM OF ADDED DUTIES.

STARTING LINEUP UNCERTAIN

Various Combinations Have Been Tried This Week to Send Against Cyclones Tomorrow —Pep Meeting Tonight.

Kansas State football fans will again gather in the college auditorium tonight for the purpose of generating pep and enthusiasm in both themselves and the Wildcat pigskin aggregation. After speeches and yells in the auditorium the crowd will answer the invitation of the Varsity theater management to attend the second show free of charge. According to K. U. Benjamin, president of the Wampus Cats, who are in charge of the meeting, the feature of the affair will present itself in the form of an "Owl Show" at the theater at 11 o'clock.

By David G. Griffiths

Still stinging under two Big Six defeats, the Kansas State Wildcats have been going through extensive signal and defensive drills in preparation for the Iowa State Cyclone invasion tomorrow.

Although Iowa State has not won a single Big Six encounter, they were beaten by the mighty Nebraska eleven by the same 6 point margin as were the K-Aggies. The Cyclones lost to Nebraska 6 to 12 indicating that their offensive, at times, can even be more powerful than would be judged by the fact that Iowa State played Missouri to a scoreless tie.

Seeks New Quarterback.

Besides worrying about the game with the Cyclones, Coach McMillin has also been casting around for a new quarterback. It is not that Graham, who has been calling the signals from his fullback position, is not capable but it is thought that the responsibility might be too great and interfere with his playing. Coach McMillin has indicated he may assign some one else to the signal calling post.

Lee Morgan, Hugoton, has been doing most of the signal calling this week, alternating with Breen and Russell.

Last evening the first two varsity strings went through the entire

When In Doubt, Stew, Is Principle for Meal

When in doubt, serve stew. That principle serves to a "T," Miss Edith Limbocker finds. And the old woman who lived in a shoe certainly hadn't any more children's tummies to fill at lunchtime than does Miss Limbocker. But it doesn't worry Miss Limbocker in the least that two dozen hungry nursery school youngsters eagerly await the emanations from her kitchen table in the home economics building.

You see, this isn't just plain everyday stew of the Mrs. Mulligan type. It's more like the old beggar's nail soup. You start out with almost nothing, and before you've finished that stew is just chuck full of delicious nutritious foods.

The old nail soup maker might begin it this way.

"My dear lady, this stew would be fit for a fine merchant if only there were a little beef or lamb for it." So of course, in goes a small piece of meat, cut fine and seared brown with onion.

"And the town's best lawyer might feast upon it if we had a few carrots and turnips for it." So that goes in, too.

"Why even the governor would love this stew if only we had some tomatoes and peas for it." And that brings them.

Potatoes and corn go in to make the dish fit for the bishop, and even the king himself couldn't complain after there had been added a bit of celery, a few beets and some string beans from Jack's beanstalk.

And lastly, just to make it the finest food ever for growing boys and girls, this modern "woman in the shoe" completes the dish with some finely chopped kidney or liver. It's easy to eat, too, after she thickens it a little with flour—stays on the fork, you know.

And there you are—the best "nail soup" a little boy ever ate. Willie thinks so, and Billie thinks so, and so do Gene and Johnnie, for every one of them down to the twenty-fourth agree that it's "just larra-pin."

Kansas State Grad Invents Control Nozzle

St. Louis buses and filling stations are now using a contrivance invented by a Kansas State college man. It is an automatic-control nozzle, developed and patented by Amos Oliver Peyne who was graduated in mechanical engineering here in 1922.

The contrivance which oddly resembles a big revolver is about one and one-half feet long, weighs about seven pounds, and is made of aluminum. The nozzle may be attached to any faucet, hose, or pipe attachment for the flow of liquids. As the container reaches its capacity the suction of the fluid reaches a smaller pipe within the end of the nozzle through which the liquid flows and instantly shuts off the flow of liquid.

The advantages of the invention are that it saves time as one person may fill several tanks at the same time, and that it lessens fire hazards since the flow of liquids is stoped instantly, prevently any overflow.

The nozzle is used by the Greyhound Bus company and several other concerns in East St. Louis are giving it a test. Although his invention is patented under the name of the A. O. Payne Products company no manufacturing concern has yet purchased it.

Mr. Payne entered Kansas State college as a freshman in 1916 in electrical engineering and withdrew in April 1917. He enlisted in the army in aviation and arrived in France in August of 1917. He was stationed at Chatillons-Surseine, France, and received a commission as Second Lieutenant in the aviation service.

WELCOME TO THE CONVENTIONS

Today and tomorrow more than 60 delegates of W. A. A. from 14 colleges of Kansas will be guests of Kansas State college. They will convene here in the primary interests of their organization, that of furthering the benefits of physical education for women.

The Women's Athlatic Association at Kansas State is one of the most powerful and ambitious organizations on the campus. Its sponsors various movements directed toward the entertainment of students and provides an atmosphere of constructive development for its members and would-be members. Membership in the society involves acquiring points which are awarded aspiring girls for aptitude in physical and mental tests. Its membership requirements are rigid and those girls who become members of W. A. A. are fully entitled to the privileges of the organization.

The Kansas State student body and faculty extend their welcome to visiting delegates to the W. A. A. meetings.

In order that mid-western bankers, farmers, and others who risk money upon land, may realize the value of it, nearly 150 persons have congregated at the college for a two-day convention to discuss land valuations. In this particular meeting farm management and soil and crop management will be the problems chiefly undertaken.

A meeting of this sort emphasizes the condition which has been brought about within the last three years—that of preparedness. No longer will interested persons invest money in rural lands with only a slight knowledge about what they are worth. The depression has furnished the country with a condition of watchfulness—a period of cautiousness. The battle against the depression has returned many to the levels of common sense.

The Land Valuation convention here today and tomorrow the embodiment of the reactionary forces which drive out depressions. The college welcomes it.

After reading a headline in the Oklahoma A. and M. Daily O'Collegian about students being dealt a blow by ruling at Missouri university, we found that the lead in the story had to do with Columbia university in New York. The headline deck announced that free movies are being given at K. U., while the last paragraph in the yarn told about students at Kansas State Teachers' college being admitted to shows upon presentation of activity books. We've heard of flies in the editor's beer, but never in such numbers as must have settled into the beverage of Editor Thompson.

MOVIES FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Ever since the advent of motion pictures there has been much discussion concerning their value as an educational medium. The talkies have added fuel to the fire until certain imaginative individuals forsee the time when the speaking picture will replace the professor in the lecture halls of the schools.

All are agreed that news reels, educational features and the like have some value as an instructional method. But what of the regular feature pictures. Therein lies the bone of contention. Pictures such as "Scarface," featuring that fine foreign importation. Paul Muni, and "Bad Company" have set the tongues of movie opponents wagging.

No sooner, however, than flood of condemnation has fallen upon the head of box office-conscious producers, than some well-porartyed, heart-rending picture such as "Lovers Courageous" or the equally pleasing "Young America" makes its appearance upon the scene and the critics take a slap in the face.

As applied to college students, the question is one of recreation. The student needs a certain amount of diversion and the motion picture house affords the most likely source. But instead of selecting a show like those commendable pictures mentioned above, the young college male is very much more likely to choose the theatre featuring the platinum blonde siren of the moment.

Perhaps this is the natural thing for him to do inasmuch as he seeks some sort of light, spicy entertainment which will provide a direct contrast to the dull drugery of hours spent in the classroom and study hall.

So if Jean Harlow playing in the "Platinum Blonde" or "The Red-Headed Woman" proves to be a pleasant contrast to school work, why, thinks our college male, should he not take advantage of it.

It is lamentable, however, that the pictures which are of real cultural value do not draw a greater student patronage. Perhaps if this "heavier" type of drama could be made equally entertaining it would attract the so-called higher class of customers among whom the college student is alleged to be included.

Or perhaps if the favorite of the male college students, as noted and notorious Jean Harlow, could be played in a "heavy part" in an educational picture, such as "Ben Hur," it would remedy the situation. At least it could not hurt it.—The Daily Nebraskan.

The Snooper

This column will be a shortie. The reason is, that last week-end's festivities has blanketed the usual merry-making, hence our best news coffers are empty. Friday night's sinners are this week going about reciting bits of gospel and breathing prayers over their blackened souls. Three to one bets are being placed against the chances that the Beauvrais party which takes place next week will be a duplicate of the Pi Kappa Chi offering. There have been rumors of investigations. There have been investigations of the rumors. Nobody knows anything yet but we shall see what we shall see.

While we were all at the pep assembly last Friday a disappointed class of students was locked in Anderson hall. Many tried vainly to descend the drain pipes in order not to miss an assembly, which is a dreadful thing. Not the assembly, mind you, but the missing of one. How they yearned to be waving banners and cheering and jeering and singing the dear old songs of our noble school! In an inhuman attempt to restore order the instructor, who begs us shyly not to reveal his name (its Buckingham, if you must know,) got the class to sing songs and coin poems about the football team. One of them thought of a very clever one. It goes, "High up-pon a gol-dun hil-lock." Doesn't it thrill you to the bone? Well, a small bone anyway.

Do you know Duke DuMars? What? You wouldn't want to? Well, he is the boy with the steam-fitter's ears who tells the student council what is what, and why. He writes a column for the Mercury called "Among the Three Thousand," and another one about sports. He also gets his picture at the head of the column. Anyway, he clips the stuff for some sort of credit, either a set of dishes or a homespun table spread or, as once was the case, a red rubber step-ladder. Since the picture has appeared, Duke clips that too, which gives him an extra inch. The danged old schemer! Next year he is planning to have a picture taken on stilts to put at the head and foot of the column. This is mere rumor, however, and we wouldn't want you going around quoting us about it.

Last evening Duke wrote a very pleasing biography of the very bony Pi Phi who compiles the choice bits of scandal on the opposite page. He revealed her name and Eugenie (dad burn it, I didn't mean to tell you) got as tough as a boot about it and ran shreiking into the night to find the able Mr. Prentup, whom she once declared to the Collegian force to be the "swiftest thing she ever hopes to know." The able Mr. Prentup, however, is not interested in the babblings of a mere woman and has as yet not done anything to avenge the wrong of the wrathful Eugenie.

On Other Hills

In the midst of political bandwagons and howling candidates, a literary artist at Oklahoma A. and M. has compiled a coed dictionary of campaign terms. For example: Campaign—Giggle water. Ritchie—a man with two Cadillacs. Rally—Highbrow pronounciation of really. Candidates—A fellow who brings chocolates when he calls. Oration—Some new kind of diet. Democratic—One of the university traditions.

Students at Ohio State university who fail to pay their bills for room and board may be dismissed from school. This is the first time this has ever happened in the history of the institution.

At last! Tired bridge players can now play bridge an hour or two longer without becoming entirely exhausted. Two professors at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have invented a machine which will shuffle and deal out four bridge hands in four seconds.

Students at the University of Detroit want more coeds in class, or none at all. There are only 77 women enrolled in the university out of a total of 3,620.

The University of Colorado may have a new gymnasium, if their application to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan of $650,000 is granted.

Money is also needed down in Arkansas. Application for a loan of $175,000 to finance construction of two 75-room dormitories at the Arkansas State college was made to the R. F. C.

A student at the University of Texas rides horseback five miles each morning to class. He came west to the university seeking new experiences and new country.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, has tacitly admitted his preference for Norman Thomas for president of the United States.

Cross-Blending

WHAT IS IT.. and how does it improve cigarette taste?

YOU'VE heard how fruit of one variety has been crossed with fruit of another to produce a new and more pleasing flavor. The loganberry, for example, is a cross between the raspberry and the blackberry.

Chesterfield's Cross-Blend gets the same result—better taste—by a different method.

It welds together the different kinds of several varieties of tobacco. Many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco, and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco are all merged into one—Chesterfield tobacco.

This welding or Cross-Blending goes beyond ordinary blending or mixing tobaccos together. It actually makes every kind of tobacco in Chesterfield partake of the qualities of every other type.

It's the Cross-Blending of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos that gives Chesterfields a distinctive, better taste.

They are milder. They have a flavor and aroma which, we believe, you will like.

they're MILDER — they TASTE BETTER — Chesterfield — They Satisfy

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Now that the would-be biographer DuMars and the know-it-all Sorrells have considered it their moral obligation to inform their reading public (they think they have one) that we edit this column—we write with a free conscience tonight knowing that we aren't fooling you all any longer. The whole affair is quite ludicrous (better look that up in Webster, DuMars and Sorrells) due to the fact that we were not attempting to conceal our identity. For bitter remarks and icy glances each Tuesday and Friday mornings had long ago convinced us that we had been found out. Since Biographer DuMars erred on the Stephens degree we were supposed to have received, and Snooper Sorrells couldn't spell our name correctly perhaps we should take time out to write an accurate life story. But with such able detectives as DuMars and Sorrells about, we probably would find ourself mistaken on our own autobiographical facts. The school is really too small for such personages as our two brilliant contemporaries—together with Brinkley, they belong in Eutopia (you probably think that's just another Harlem, Duke and Eggs—try Webster again.) But the world is composed of all sorts of people—so ever so often we must expect a couple scalawags—and that word Messrs. Sorrels and DuMars, is defined as "animals of little value" . . . .

. . . . To continue our dissertion upon the two highlights of the Kansas State journalism group—we wish to say that you've missed a big moment of your life if you haven't known "Grantland Rice" DuMars and "O. O. McIntyre" Sorrells. They're the two specimens loose on the campus that you thought had escaped from the Fairchild menagerie—even the nursery school children run from them. You can easily recognize DuMars by his Valentino sideburns, and Sorrels by his shock of clipped ringlets — also the latter answers to the call of "burr head." That look in DuMars eyes isn't innocence—it's just that he still believes that a girl promises to marry you when she takes your pin—live and learn DuMars—Syd Robinson did. And Sorrells is still that schoolboy sweetheart who insists that buzzards won't eat Mexicans because the red pepper topers are too spicy . . . .

. . . . In case you haven't noticed already, we had no dirt for tonight, so we spent our idle time writing upon Nothings.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON

Lee Tracy is getting ahead in the movie world. Each picture brought to Manhattan starring this personality plus Tracy is just a little better than the previous one. . . although "Blessed Event" still ranks among the best. Tracy steps out of the columninst role, (honest!) to be the boy congressman who attempts in a meager way to upset the invisible government in Washington in "Washington Merry-go-round."

Politically conscious America will no doubt do considerable thinking after it has seen this picture—that is, it will if it hasn't already read the book. Because Lee Tracy with all his vim and vigor succeeds in convincing the general public there is something behind thhe Potomac besides the White House. As an upstart congressman bent on bringing back "these United States" Tracy finally waves the arms of justice over the heads of the hidden power—and the gun goes off.

Constance Cummings is charming to look at, and pleasing to hear.

You'll like this show if you're interested in politics, if you care for Tracy, or if you're rather enthusiastic about Miss Cummings. . . . . and that makes three reasons why you ought to see this picture.—E.D.

AT THE VARSITY

Joan Blondell and Ann Dvorak vie for honors in this picture named after a song—or was it the other way? Anyway, the time is a rather lovely thing.

The screen version of "Three on a Match" covers three girls, the two mentioned above plus Bette Davis. These girls go to grade school together—one graduating to enter the reform school, another a business school, and the third an exclusive girl's school. They meet in later life, and change positions in this crazy world of ours. The two who went out into the world on their own, make a better showing than the pampered darling. A rather old plot, dressed up in new and convincing colors.

Warren William, first the husband of Ann Dvorak, the rich young girl, and later the husband of Joan Blondell, does some good work.—E.D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"SIX HOURS TO LIVE"

What would you do with just six hours to live? Brought back to life after his murder by a substance many times more powerful as radium, which supplied him with energy enough to live for six hours, Warner Baxter, portraying a famous diplomat from Sylvania, is faced with just that problem. In his six hours of life he casts his vote which saves his country from ruin, prepares his fiancee for life without him, and ruins the machine which gave him life. He does not reveal to the anxious police the name of his murderer, but nevertheless gets his revenge.

This picture holds one tense with the incredibleness of it. Every action of the great scientific machine is shown as Baxter is brought back to life. It is a picture that is worth seeing and one which will remain in your mind long after you have left the theater.—V.H.

Dr. W. E. Grimes, head of the agricultural economics department, returned Thursday, November 3, from Beloit, where he spoke before a farm bureau meeting.

COMPLETE ELIMINATION SOCCER ROUNDS TODAY

Winners for Two Brackets Have Been Determined and Other Two Will Be Decided Today.

The first or elimination round in intramural soccer will be completed this afternoon. Winners have been declared for two of the brackets, and the other two will be determined after the games this afternoon. The dates for the semi-final games have not as yet been decided upon.

In group 1 Delta Tau Delta was victorious, winning four games and tying one. Sigma Phi Epsilon was a close runner-up, winning three games and tying two. An exciting game which ended in a 1 to 1 tie, was played between these two teams Monday. Phi Lambda Theta won from Lambda Chi Alpha, 2 to 3; and W. F. A. C. defeated Tau Kappa Epsilon 3 to 0.

An interesting situation has developed in group 2 with a three-way tie between Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Aggie Knights. Each has won four games and tied one. The Phi Tau's will play Sig Alph's today and the winner of that game will play the Aggie Knights next Tuesday to determine the champion. BASKET BALL NEXT IN INTRAMURAL GAMES

Send Out Entry Blanks to Organizations—Is Hoped Other Groups Will Enter.

Entry blanks have been sent out for mens' intramural basketball which will start about November 14. The blanks are due back in the intramural office November 9.

As there is plenty of room for more teams it is hoped that other groups which have never entered intramural competition will organize. All that will be necessary is to get a group together, fill out an entry blank, and get a permit to practice in the gymnasium.

Permits are now being issued and the gymnasium is available to organizations on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings from 6:00 to 9:00 o'clock. As a large number of groups are expected to enter the competition each organizations will only be allowed one night a week for practice.

BASKETBALL PRACTICE SOON

Only Light Workouts Are Being Held Until After Football Season—Skradski Is Captain.

By the time the referee sounds the whistle that closes the 1932 football season, the Kansas State basketball team will be well under way with its practice. Only light work outs have been held for the past two weeks owing to the fact that such men as Ralph Graham, Dougal Russell, Emmett Breen, and Lloyd Dalton, lettermen from last year, are still out for football.

This year's team finds "Andy" Skradski, two year letterman, filling the shoes of Elden Auker, all-Big Six guard of last year, as captain of the 1933 courtmen. Two varsity squad men carried over from last year are Harry Hasler and Dan Blaine, who will don the practice togs immediately after football season. Newcomers to the squad are: Don Hutchinson, Oren Stoner, K. J. Phelps, H. E. Drier, Jim Freeland, and Ralph Marshall.

The change in rules makes it necessary for the fast aggressive team to be used more than any other type of team C. W. Corsaut, coach of the Kansas State cagers, said, and practice at this pre-season period, is to determine what particular type of aggressive play the Kansas State five will display on the court. The basketball fans, however, may rest assured that this year's team will continue to use the type of ball handling that has placed all Kansas State teams among the favorite attractions of the Big Six conference.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted." That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Volume XXXIX — The Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, Manhattan, Kansas, November 8, 1932. — Number 17

ACTIVITY FUND DISTRIBUTED BY BUSINESS OFFICE

ACTION OF STUDENT GOVERNING ASSOCIATION APPROVED BY PRESIDENT FARRELL.

TO TWELVE ACTIVITIES

Seventy-Two Per Cent To Be Used By Athletic Department—Almost Identical With Last Year.

Funds derived from student activity fees amounting to)0 have been distributed by the business office of Kansas State college to be used by twelve activities o: the hill, after action taken by the Student Governing association committee for distribution of the funds was approved by President Farrell.

The funds, which are derived by the sale of student activity books, are distributed on a yearly basis to the various departments in which they are to be used.

Seventy-two per cent or a total of $15,120 has been distributed to the athletic department to be used during the current academic year.

The Student Governing association received 6.02 per cent of the total fund, or a total of $1,264.20. A total of $1,243.20 has been distributed to the college band and orchestra from the funds. Other activities including debate, glee clubs, and oratory, received 6.67 per cent of the total amount in the fund.

Six judging teams of the agricultural division received 9.39 per cent of the total of $21,000 in the fund. Distribution of funds for jugging teams were as follows: Apple judging team, $148.00; Dairy and Dairy products, $363.30; Grain, $216.30; Meats, $216.30; Poultry, 168.00; and Stock, $840.00.

The percentage of money distributed to various activities this year are almost identical with those given out last year. Due to a decrease in enrollment this year, however, the total amount of funds available from student activity fees reached a new low point. Last year approximately $25,000 was distributed from student activity funds, making this year's funds $4,000 lower than last year's total.

DISCUSES UNEMPLOYMENT

Dr. Randall C. Hill of the economics and sociology department, said in his radio speech last Wednesday that it was important to understand the basic causes of unemployment in order to consider relief activity. He said that if the back ground and basic causes are not understood that any programs which are proposed are not likely to be affective. He classified unemployment as cynical, seasonal, technicological, and personal inefficiency. A few of the proposals made for unemployment relief to which he called special attention are the shortening of the working day, the public works program, the planning of production, and unemployment insurance. He did not attempt to evaluate these proposals, but merely pointed out what was being done in the way of unemployment relief.

KANSAS STATE HARRIERS VICTORIOUS AT LAWRENCE

Low Score of 29 Points Wins—Landon and Pearce Make Best Times.

While the Kansas Wildcats were avenging a 6 to 7 defeat of last season at the hands of the Iowa State Cyclones, the Kansas State two-mile team was taking long strides to win the Big Six two-mile event at Lawrence with the low score of 29 points.

Although Glenn Cunningham, Olympic runner representing the University of Kansas, nosed out Don Landon of Kansas State for first honors, the Kansas State team won the event by having the other five members of the team place high in the competition.

Don Landon and M. W. Pearce, the two high men for Kansas State, ran the race in the fastest time in their college careers. Both men were just a short distance behind Cunningham who ran the race in 9:32.4. M. E. Nixon, Manhattan, also ran a short distance behind the winners.

One of the highlights of the race was to see Dean McNeal, after experiencing a bad side ache in the middle of the race, pass 12 men in the final lap and a half. "It was a great sight," Coach Haylett said after the race.

Iowa State placed second with 40 points; Nebraska third, 43; Oklahoma fourth, 53; Missouri fifth, 70; and Kansas university sixth with 73 points.

The members of the Kansas State team are: Don Landon, Topeka; M. W. Pearce, Miltonvale; M. E. Nixon, Manhattan; C. D. McNeal, Boyle; Joe McNay, Manhattan.

"Dr. J. R." Roscoe Pitts Is Dark Horse in Race For Kansas Governor

The spectators of the Kansas State-Iowa State football game were afforded quite a surprise when "Dr. J. R." Roscoe Pitts announced his candidacy for the governorship of Kansas Saturday.

Upon inquiry by newspaper men as to why he announced his gubernatorial hopes so late, Dr. Pitts said, "Well—ah-you-see-see-ah-th-th-that-ah," which statement greatly clears his stand on the current pressing issues.

At his announcement speech it was practically agreed upon by those present that the new independent candidate is undoubtedly a dark horse. This is due to the fact that Pitts has offered Kansas voters something unique for politicians: he had a concrete platform the stadium railing. However, it was so small he nearly toppled off in making his dramatic appeal to the masses.

TRY-OUT WINNERS SELECTED

Student Faculty Commission Selects Entrants for Stunts in Aggie-Pop.

All work and no play for many is the result of the selection of the winners of the Aggie-Pop try-out by the student faculty commission. However, as in all contests, some have more work and then get to display their stunt at the Aggie-Pop December 2 and 3.

The entrants in the long stunt are: Chi Omega, Tri Delta, Kappa, and Pi Phi. The Phi Kappas, Betas A.T.O.'s and Eig Alphs will present the short stunts.

"We are going to have a real Aggie-Pop" said Mrs. Mary Myers Elliott of the public speaking department, who is in charge. "Splendid material was submitted for the elimination judging."

The competition has been keen between the organizations which will be represented in the production, therefore from all indications this should be the best performance since the original Aggie Popular Night was started 17 years ago.

The following stunts will be presented: Chi Omega—The Deserted Studio; Delta Delta Delta—Just Imagine; Kappa Kappa Gamma—The Pink Lady; Pi Beta Phi—Night Club; Phi Kappa—The Balcony Scene from Romeo and Juliet; Beta Theta Pi—The Suspended Hour; Alpha Tau Omega—The Shooting of Dan McGrew; Sigma Phi Epsilon—The Bathing Beauty Contest in the year 2000. The Orchesis dancing sorority will present "Trees", a non-competitive number.

The long stunts will be judged on beauty, cleverness, and presentation; the short stunts will be judged on cleverness and presentation. The quality of the production for both performances will be taken into consideration for the final decision.

Learned Professors Are Coffee Topers; Students Take Milk

Faculty members are the coffee topers on this campus, according to Miss Iva Welch, supervisor of the college cafeteria. The cups of coffee they hand over the counter are to these dispensers of knowledge. Most of the students prefer milk. In fact, milk is preferred by 75 per cent of the cafeteria patrons.

And it is the 20-cent vegetable plate that both faculty and students find the most attractive. This fall, the cafeteria has been offering special plates, 15, 20, and 25-cent plates at lunch, and a 35-cent dinner plate at night. The patrons are finding the special plates both attractive and well-balanced in nutritive value. Miss Welch estimates that 70 per cent of the patrons take the special plate.

Scouts Swarm Over Campus In Second Annual Convention

Last Saturday seemed to be Khaki day at the college. With the R.O.T.C. students of Company B, infantry, and of Battery A, artillery, having their regular drill and with 1,210 Boy Scouts from 61 Kansas troops swarming over the campus it seemed that khaki must be the smart thing to wear.

The scouts had arrived in order to participate in the Second Annual Circus which was held in Nichols gymnasium at 8 o'clock Saturday night. It was under the direction of Richard Relistab, field executive, and the executive committee including L. P. Washburn, professor of physical education. Plans for the entertainment of the scouts had been made by the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary scouting fraternity for college men.

Just before noon the scouts grouped in a parade formation and marched from the community house to the college cafeteria where a special luncheon was served to them. After the luncheon the scouts marched in a body to the football stadium where they made a colorful unit with their flags and banners.

MAY BUILD TRANSMITTER

The Kansas State Radio club met Friday night November 4, at 7 o'clock in the studio of KSAC to discuss the building of a short wave transmitter. H. S. Bueche, assistant professor of electrical engineering was in charge of the meeting. This is the first meeting of the club this year. A committee of four was appointed to take charge of planning and constructing the transmitter.

STUDENTS CAST ABSENTEE VOTES IN THIRD WARD

NON-RESIDENTS WILL VOTE AT 1122 MORO FROM EIGHT TO SIX TODAY.

REQUIRED TO SIGN AFFIDAVIT

Must State Residence and Ward—Will Be Given State, National, and Local Tickets.

Student voters who are non-residents of Manhattan are casting their ballots today at 1122 Moro in the third ward, created under a special election board to handle the absentee vote for the general election.

From the opening of the poll at 8 o'clock this morning until they close at 6 o'clock tonight, 500 students will have marked their tickets, City Clerk Charles Lantz estimated.

Citizens voting absentee ballots will be required to sign an affidavit stating their residence and ward. They will then be given the state, national and local tickets.

"In marking the local ballot," the city clerk advised, "write in the blank provided, the name of the candidate in your home locality whom you wish to vote for. Be sure to mark the 'X' in the square after his name, or the vote will not be counted for him."

Manhattan is in the fourth congressional district. A student in another district will be necessitated to write in also the name of his candidate for congress. Since the last general election, three counties have been added to the fourth district from the fifth, namely Clay, Dickinson, Geary and Riley. These counties will of course, have their candidates' names on the ballot.

After the absentee ballot has been marked and returned to the election board, it is sent to the Riley county clerk, who mails it to the home county of the voter. There it is checked to ascertain that the ballott is legal and the voter entitled to cast his ballot. It is then treated as a regular ballot.

Just like a merchant at Christmas time, County Clerk E. E. Huse urges students to "vote early."

"The ticket is a lengthy one," Mr. Huse said, "and the election board may be unable to handle a last-minute rush."

Returns from the election will start coming in at 7:30 at the "election party" at the Community House being sponsored by the Manhattan Mercury-Chronicle. The party will afford local, state and national returns, and will probably last well up into the night.

Y. M. C. A. SPONSORS FRATERNITY FORUMS

Appoint Committee to Make Arrangements Between Speakers and Fraternities.

Fraternity Forums are being sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. again this year. A committee has been appointed to make arrangements between speakers and fraternities.

The idea of these forums was first conceived two years ago and was met with good success. Last year interest in the movement lagged but this year the fraternities have been responding heartily to the cards that have been sent to them by the committee which is comprised of Joel Kesler, Overbrook, chairman; Donald Miller, Hanover; Leonard Izzard, Carthage, Mo.; and Evan Davis, Topeka.

Deans, professors, professional men and business men are on the list of speakers who may be obtained. The speaker is usually entertained at dinner before his speech.

"The contact established in this way will further amiability between speaker and organization," Mr. Kesler said.

PEARCE TO SPEAK

Students Interested in Aeronautics Invited to Attend.

Professor C. E. Pearce is giving one of a series of lectures Thursday, November 10, between 5 and 5:30 o'clock on "The Science of Aerodynamics." All college students interested in learning to fly a glider and in being a member of the Glider club are invited. The purpose of the club is to make new experiences of the glider. Every active member is allowed to fly and every students has the privilege of being a member.

IT'S STILL TO LAUGH

To the Editor of The Collegian:

It was with a good deal of interest that I read your recent editorial "It Is to Laugh," dealing with the current campus political situation. I agree with you that someone has a laugh coming but am not all sure that the Society of Scarab is the group that should be doing the laughing, even though they successfully installed a group of their own members as officers of the senior class, without competition from "party" tickets.

The two-party system (or multi-party system) at Kansas State was inaugurated while I was an undergraduate. Members of Scarab felt that something was lacking in campus life because of the manner in which organized groups named one "slate" of class officers and put them into office on a dozen or so votes, without opposition.

The political parties were organized, fraternities and sororities cooperating, and their voting strength was split as evenly as possible. Each enlisted non-organization people in its ranks.

Later a group, headed by members of Chi Omega, decided that non-organization people were not sufficiently represented, and formed a third party, the Theodorics. Remnants of the older parties combined into the Union party, and elections went on with great vigor.

During my senior year Scarab members decided that the two party system was functioning very well, that the division of strength was fairly equal, and that so long as there was healthy competition there should be no change originated by Scarab. It was further agreed that if one party should become too powerful, so that competition would be wiped out and the elections once more become a matter of passing out the honors to organizations in rotation, Scarab would again step in and see that the party system survived.

In other words neither the organized houses or the non-organized groups were to be allowed to dominate the political situation at Kansas State.

Now we have the spectacle of Scarab, with a great show of cleverness, slipping in and assassinating its own child—competitive class elections and the party system. Yes, someone has a laugh coming.—R. I. T.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN OPINION

In the last days of the reign of Calvin, the Cool, Herbert, the Heir Apparent, went forth to do battle with Al, the Pretender. For many moons the fierce battle raged hot between the two happy warriors, and the red blood of oratory was spilled with abandon on the fertile fields.

In some circles it was rumored that Al was an alumnus of the College of Cardinals, and many times it was whispered that he was subsidized by the Pope. In return it was charged that Herbert dropped his H's in private and secretly wished to be a great democrat.

But whenever the issue was in doubt, Herbert and his guard could be counted upon to come through with another chicken in the pot. Poor Al found little solace and fewer votes in his vision of beer.

It was a grand battle. Never in the memories of even the oldest of old timers were there more platitudes in cleverer hands. Never were candidates so thoroughly stripped in order that they might be seen for what they were. Never were there such ringing declarations in favor of the American home, our noble traditions, the Bible, and the flag. Never were controversial issues evaded with greater skill and daring.

Four years past. The shrill winds swept down from the mountain heights, and the people shivered as they awaited deliverance from the elemental storm. Then appeared Frank, known among his friends as the Old Potato, and in a mighty voice challenged King Herbert once more to gird his armor and do battle for the Lord.

During the tournament, Gracious Frank rode up and down the land shouting for economy, a new deal, and the dealer's choice. King Herbert proclaimed that they also serve who only stand and hesitate.

But onto the field there crept an unknown figure who tilted not at windmills and who spoke to a point and with courage. Hopeless Norman, the Visionary Idealist, they called him.

And the people waved their votes and cheered lustily for all three of the noble horsemen. Some voted for what they wanted and got it. Others voted for what they wanted and got it not. Still others voted for what they wanted not and got it in abundance.

Now let us all gather round the fire as the campaign literature burns merrily in the grate. And let us all shout together: "Ain't Nature Grand!"—Kenneth Montgomery in the University of Denver Clarion.

The Snooper

Probably the biggest price paid for an intoxicant this year was eighty (80) dollars a pint. The horrid stuff was smuggled in from a private stock in the east. Possibly as far east as the notorious Wamego. The purchasee wishes to remain out of the public eye, so we can't divulge the name but as a special request he suffered the rare beverage to undergo an examination by a local chemist. It is said to have contained smatterings of fusel oil, traces of cup grease, traces of ether (ether strawberry or vanilla), and a small percentage of iron filings. Our staff immediately mixed up the ingredients in their respective percentages and the result was a ham on rye and two quarts of near beer. This was very confusing and very disappointing.

One of the local Greeks got the stuff for the express purpose of nursing a bunion (although I told him frankly of my success with turpentine and lard), and being found out by the chapter, he was made to pay two dollars and a half. What he really had (I've just been funning you), was a half ounce of alcohol. If your slide rule is handy figure it out for yourself. It comes out neatly to a cool 80 a pint.

In an attempt to crush out hostile opposition to their rushing activities, Delta, Delta, and some more Delta, have revised their old rushing rules and now come forward with a set which they firmly believe will prove more fruitful, so a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma tells us. Space does not permit a complete survey of the new rules but book three, volume three, article nine, section nine contains a phrase which will give you the gist of the new project. It is "blow loudly upon thine own bugle sister, or verily, the same shall not be blown upon." The old axiom neatly sums up the whole covenant. Kappa Kappa and of course the Gamma tells us the inner workings of article ten, section three. To stomp out opposition from the Kappa quarter the Deltas are circulating propaganda to the effect that the local Kappa chapter is in the familiar nine-hole with their national chapter. If the new methods prove successful the Tri Deltas hope to have Kappa, Pi Phi, Chi Obagga, and the rest singing the "Empty Bed Blues" within the calendar year.

Bulletin: A late report has it that the reason for the two and a half fine mentioned in paragraph two was that the whole chapter had nervous twitchings over the thought of the stuff (the half oz. of "A") being misplaced in a batch of mashed potatoes, as the purchasee was found dressing the bunion in the skullery. Being in the potatoes the stuff might go unnoticed until some of the boys, thinking they were at a country club party, started ripping pictures off the walls and biting chunks of mohair out of the divan.

A fair romance seems to be working up around the lives of Doc Hill's tender little secretary, Kay Brewer, and one of Aggieville's oldest bar flies, i. e., e. g., to wit, to wit, the terrible Sigma Nu, Stub Wickham. Cecil Miller is another contender for the prize. Kay is from Wichita, and is a handsome little wren.

On Other Hills

Paul Host, captain of the Ramblers at Notre Dame, is one of the best campus reporters and an honor student in journalism. He acted as a judge at a beauty contest last spring.

The beauty contest at Iowa State will be a strictly campus affair this year. Judges who pick the winners will be selected from members of the college community. They believe campus people who know the contestants can judge their claims to beauty better than Clark Gable or Robert Montgomery.

After three students at the University of Wisconsin voted illegally at the fall class election, severe measures were taken and an effort made to clean up traditional fraud and repeating in class elections. Extra-curricular activity was taken away from the guilty students.

The University of Minnesota now offers an extension course in embalming.

Students who find it difficult to "batch" their way through school at Brigham Young university are now aided by offerings of free vegetables from the school's garden.

One hundred eighteen hours credit and a '33 rating was given a student at the University of Illinois, after attending school one semester. Yet, during the semester, he carried only 12 hours work. The remaining 106 hours were gained through special examinations in Greek, Latin, German, French, and history.

Fraternity boys at Marquette university have their names, characteristics, and peculiarities, listed with the police. Sure, its for protection, silly.

Although Amos Alonzo Stagg is 70 yeaers old, and rady to retire as director of athletics because of his age, petitions were circulated on the campus at the University of Chicago, seeking the retention of the "grand old man."

Student Recital

The music department presented the first student recital of the year Tuesday afternoon from five to six o'clock in the auditorium. Patricia Irwin, Marjorie Pyle, Katherine Peterson, and Clara Jean Martin all of Manhattan; and Richard Herzig, Salina, were the students who apeared in solo numbers. Accompanists were Mabel Russell, Manhattan; Alice Bozarth, Lenora; and Julia Crow, Silver Lake.

Patricia Irwin sang "The Poet Sings," Watts; and "You'll Love Me Yet," Kernochan; as the first numbers on the program. The second was better done than the first. Miss Irwin has a nice, clear voice, but the effect was spoiled by accompaniment slightly too heavy.

"Faust Fantasie" by Sarasate was the violin solo played by Marjorie Pyle. Miss Pyle's numbers are always good and this one was no exception. It was somewhat too long for a first recital, and the audience had difficulty in sustaining the necessary mood. Coming between lighter numbers as it did, the transition was difficult to make.

Katherne Peterson's voice is rather too heavy to sing solos the type of "The Lark Now Leaves His Wat'ry Nest," Parker; and "My True Love Hath My Heart," Cole. She was fortunate in having an accompanist who was in sympathy with both compositions.

Clara Jean Martin's piano solo, the Allegro from Schumann's "Faschingsschwank" had a little too much sameness toward the first to be especially effective. Later in the composition there was a nice observance of dynamics.

The closing number on the program was the Prayer from Massenet's "Le Cid" sung by Richard Herzig. Herzig has a voice of a peculiar trumpet-like quality which was very effective in the closing measures of the composition.

Of the accompanists, Julia Crow was probably the most sympathetic. She seemed a little hesitant in accompanying Mr. Herzig's solo, but she was always with Miss Peterson. There was evidence of nervousness in almost all of the performers. Probably this was only "first recital" stage-fright. Each of them have had some experience before audiences, and each seemed to lose most of their fear after being on the stage a few minutes.—E. W.

BAPTISTS HEAR KAMMEYER

"The Potency of Words" was the subject discussed by Dr. J. E. Kammeyer, head of the department of economics and sociology, at the Theta Epsilon, Baptist girls' sorority, meeting held Tuesday night in the gymnasium.

There were about 30 members and patronesses present. The next meeting will be held at the regular meeting place, November 15.

TURKIES GO EAST

According to Prof. L. F. Payne, head of thhe department of poultry husbandry, a flock of more than 100 turkies were shipped to Boston early this week, through the Perry packing company. The turkies were raised on the college poultry farm and weigh on an average of fifteen pounds each, being two and one-half times as large as a Plymouth roaster.

TAU EPSILON KAPPA MEETS

Tau Epsilon Kappa, an organization composed of the girl architects, met Thursday at 4 o'clock. At every meeting some type of a drawing is done by each member. Yesterday, a life sketch of a model wearing a Checkozslavakian costume was done. The garment was furnished by the art department.

F. B. Wolberg of the dairy husbandry department and Prof. C. H. Kitselman of the veterinary division left today to inspect dairy herds at Larned and Hutchinson.

Miss Margaret Ahlborn and Mrs. Henry Ahlborn will be dinner guests tonight at the Ellen Richards Lodge.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"Trouble in Paradise"

Here's a show you'll feel like walking out on the first reel or so. But stay, for your staying will be justified by many more reels of good wholesome fun. The team of Miriam Hopkins and Herbert Marshall is almost as good a one as Wheeler and Woolsey. And the addition of Kay Francis puts over the show. Of course the usual laughs come from the acting of Charles Ruggles and Edward Everett Horton.

The story is quite romantic since it centers about two women and their one man. Two super crooks in the persons of Marshall and Hopkins have a clever time fooling all Europe with their suave tricks of pick-pocketing and robbery. It is exciting when they attempt to rob the French woman portrayed by Miss Francis. At this point, the hero almost deviates from his path of wickedness to that of a respectability—and all because of the woman from France. The ending will cause you to forget all about the boring beginning of a witty show.—E. E.

AT THE VARSITY
"One Way Passage"

A far cry from reality, still "One Way Passage" with Kay Frances and William Powell is refreshingly interesting. On a trans-Atlantic liner going from Hongkong to San Francisco, a man, condemned to death for murder, and a woman with a brief time to live, meet. Romance for them is hopeless, but their attempt to keep the truth from each other and the way the situation works out make a good plot.

The drunken, light-fingered crook played by Frank McHugh complicates matters quite successfully and makes life difficult for the "copper" who is taking William Powell back to San Francisco and then to San Quentin. His manner of chortling gleefully at police of every nationality is original to say the least.

You'll also like to see and hear Aimee McPherson Hutton and Walter Huston in a debate on the prohibition question which is one of the several shorts offered by the Varsity theatre in addition to the feature.—D. H.

AT THE WAREHAM
"HAT CHECK GIRL"

"Hat Check Girl," the picture at the Wareham this week is more speakeasy life. Although pictures of night club life are growing stale to most of us, this picture is worth seeing. Sally Eilers is the girl. Ben Lyon is the rich man. They meet at a party of one of the night club's customers. Sally being popular with the night club people, comes as a guest. The editor of a scandal sheet furnishes the barrier between the wasn't the murderer after all and Ben is accused of the murder. As you have probably guessed, he wasn't the murdered after all and everything turns out rosy. The short subjects are bad.—A. S.

Elizabeth Gaston, Manhattan, went to Lawrence Saturday to attend the K. U.-Notre Dame game.

Elizabeth Battersby spent the week end at her home in Salina.

Chesterfields are Milder—

Chesterfield Better

You know how it is. If a cigarette is mild—that is, not harsh or bitter, but smokes cool and smooth—then you like it and don't worry about how many or how often you smoke.

And if it tastes right—that is, not oversweet, not flat—then you enjoy it all the more.

The right kind of ripe, sweet Domestic and Turkish tobacco . . . the right ageing and blending . . . make Chesterfields milder, better-tasting . . . They Satisfy!

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Now that our column war is over we'll settle down to giving you some good old dirt again—that is if we can muster up enough to fill the column. . . . From all appearances, Iowa State was a little rough with the Purple Horde, last Saturday. There's scarcely a player who doesn't "bear the earmarks" of a rough time over the week end. And naturally it's all blamed on the poor Cyclones who blew in from the East . . . . Speaking of the game, we'd like to know just who it was that was escorted from the west half of the stadium some time during the game? . . . . And about these Wampus Cats and the difficulty they encountered Saturday—we thought it was just the "K" men who were supposed to paddle freshmen. We may be wrong, but it wouldn't hurt to brush up a little on that tradition . . . . And as for K. U. Benjamin, we would suggest that he stick to his post on the Engineering News and let the Wampus Cats become a less significant thing in his life. Too much authority might ride you for a fall, Mr. Benjamin . . . .

. . . . And did Sally Shafer ever tell you how that big brute of a Brookover wrote out all her little Orchesis notices—that's just too sweet for words . . . . And it was only the other day we overheard this remark from none other than Jane Harmon, "And you know, I just can't be trusted away from home,"—so that's been the trouble, little Kappa . . . . And again someone has called the old familiar bluff of Jake Faulkner—this time the daring person wasn't a football player and neither did he wait until the end of the semester—whatta man! . . . . Have you ever noticed what quiet children the Chi Omega freshmen can be—particularly those two or three who are required to attend journalism seminar—just try to hear the speaker some time when they're about . . . .

. . . . Ask either Helen Sloan or Gladys Tracy (of the athletic department) about their memorable trip to the Kansas State-Nebraska game a week ago. The story goes that upon their arrival at Lincoln, they opened their bags to discover just two quart bottles of ???? among the contents. Further investigation proved that the two "rubbing alcohol" bottles contained nothing but good old pure aqua. Perhaps Frank Myers or some of the other members of the athletic force might be able to account for such a practical joke . . . . Bill Scales tells us that it takes just two weeks to tire of the average Kansas State coed—is that the reason he's making the rounds of the sorority houses? Have you ever stopped to think it might be the other way around, Bill? . . . . Well, the wedding we had scheduled for Homecoming "occurred" (as a freshman reporter would say) last Saturday—Edith McCauley married Paul Peak—so we've only the football player's marriage to anticipate now. And to those who would be curious we weren't thinking of George Wiggins as the prospective bridegroom. He was married Saturday . . . . No more—the rest of the gossip will keep . . . .

Commencing with Russell's dash for a touchdown in the first three minutes of play, Kansas State turned back the Iowa State Cyclones last Saturday by a score of 31 to 0. Except for one touchdown in the first three minutes of play however, the Cyclones held back the parade until the third quarter when the Wildcats scored twice in the first 7 minutes of the second half.

Iowa threatened to score late in the second quarter when they advanced the ball to the K-Aggie 5-yard line only to lose the ball and have the Wildcats kick to safety.

Russell Scores First.

Russell made the first touchdown by skirting the Iowa State left end for a run of 68 yards. Graham failed to kick the point. The second score was also made by Russell on a dash of 21 yards after Breen had made a 25 yard advance.

The third score was made by Bushby, who plunged over from the four yard line after three passes had advanced the ball from the Cyclone 44-yard line. The fourth score was a pass, Morgan to Breen, a 56 yard gain.

Graham added the final score on a plunge through center. After a bad kick by the Cyclones, the K-Aggies took the ball on the Iowa State 27-yard line and in 5 plays Graham made the score from the 15-yard line.

Inflict Many Penalties.

The game was slowed up by numerous 5-yard penalties and injuries on both sides. However, the McMillinmen were called for off sides so ofter the first half that the penalties amounted to 60 yards.

Ralph Graham received a painful eye injury early in the game when some Iowa State tackler accidently jabbed a fingernail into his eye. The eye ball was scratched by the nail but after a bandage was placed over the eye, Graham continued the rest of the game.

Dougal Russell had to be taken from the game in the first quarter when he was severely shaken by a hard Iowa tackle. Russell was able, however, to be put back in the game in the second period.

Lloyd Michael, star center, broke a front tooth and severely cut his lip when he and some opponent came together as he was sliding through the line to make a tackle. Ken Harter, second for Michael, had to be taken from the game in the fourth quarter when he sprained an ankle.

Berger Recovers.

Paul Berger of Manchester, Mo., right tackle on the Iowa State team who suffered a slight concussion in the game Saturday, is reported to have recovered by the time the Iowa State reached Kansas City late Saturday night.

Because of the rest this week Coach McMillin did not make some of the regulars report for practice last evening. He spent the entire working on the younger men who will compose his next year's varsity squad.

The players who did not report for practice last evening were Lloyd Michael, Walter Zeckser, Dan Blain, Harry Hasler, Shelby Neelly, Henry Dalton, Neil Weybrew, Leland Shaffer, Tom Bushby, Ralph Graham, Emmet Breen, and Dougal Russell.

When Ward Colwell editor, looked at the story of the "Iowa Game" which the reporter had just brought in he remarked, "Oh, so this is the Hi-Cups column, huh?

Just wait until Friday and see the Freshmen tangle with the Varsity. Probably there will be some more injuries then.

It took Bo all Saturday evening to look after the cripples and injuries which resulted from the game.

It seems that it was Landon who was second in the two-mile event at the Big Six meet at Lawrence Saturday instead of Pearce as was announced.

Both of these boys are from Kansas State but as Landon ran the race in the fastest time in his life, he surely deserves the credit.

Among The Ags

The best story of the season is told on C. A. Aubel, professor in the department of animal husbandry. He went into one of Prof. F. W. Bell's classes and lectured for five minutes before he discovered that he was in the wrong room.

And the happiest event we've seen was A. C. Thompson and Assistant Dean Hugh Durham rejoicing over the fact that the Barnwarmer didn't lose any money

And the most incongruous sight was "Porky" Wilhelm playing nursemaid to the 32 hens that he keeps in the new-fangled two-story "hen battery" that looks somewhat like a hotel only different. It does have running water in every room however. Wilhelm, by the way, is getting places in the poultry world. And when his experiments with the flavor and color of eggs are completed he'll be in a position to go a long ways.

The way these boys trying out for judging teams gripe about the grades that they get on "reasons" for their placings of various classes is really educational. I wouldn't doubt that some of the boys learn more about the farm in those classes than they picked up in the preceeding 20 years on the old home place.

Stories about the scrap at the barnwarmer are still circulating. They are now getting to the stage where they're just large enough to be thrilling but not quite whopping enough to be ridiculous.

Now that the first of the queens has been chosen and crowned (without being kidnapped even once) we can look forward to numerous repetitions of the old sport. If all the candidates would just pass out candy it would add zest to the procedure. And it works too, girls, look what happened the last time!

Nobody has mentioned football beetween departmental clubs. Last year they played football in December, basketball in May, and must have been contemplating ice-skating at commencement time.

And judging from all the second-tellings, that smoker that the ags ecs held must have been reeking with very, very ripe stories. It was held in connection with initiation too, which probably doesn't mean anything.

Prof. R. M. Green settled the depression in his talk before Ku Klux, beg pardon, Tri K, and the ag ecs settled everything else in their session—so we turn the column over to our understudy with a clean conscience and a sigh of relief.

Now that "all is quiet on the western front" of the dairy department, with the dairy cattle and products teams having shown their prowess in the art of judging, the poutry department introduces eight entrants for the poultry judging team, strutting their stuff so the department can crow about something.

That reminds me of the stentorian mocing I heard near the dairy barn when the dairy products team returned home after placing second in the Detroit contest. What a welcome home!

The hort department not to be outdone has five contestants trying out for the apple judging team which will consist of four of those trying out. It seems like most of the young sprouts plants four years ago will come into bearing.

Kenneth Hoagland can be seen washing the whitewash off the window panes of the greenhouse north of the hort building to let the rays of "Old Sol" in. No wonder the lettuce is reported to be doing well.

I just recently heard why Professor Bradley has been nicknamed dean of the hort department. It seems that he once received a letter addressed to him as Dean Bradley. That's a real distinction.

L. E. Baldwin, '21, who was formerly chief engineer for the United Power and Light corporation, visited at the college Monday. Mr. Baldwin is now engaged in consulting engineering work at St. Petersburg Fla.

Foreign Students Find Information Service Valuable

The International Student Service is an organization seldom heard about which is doing notable work in aiding foreign students in all the universities of the world. At its headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, it publishes a monthly paper, "More Facts", which furnishes foreign students in all parts of the world valuable information they should know. Information is given on such subjects as new immigration laws, news from foreign schools, current political developments of interest to foreign students, and a variety of other subject matter.

An interesting fact brought to light by this publication is in regard to the new immigration laws concerning all foreign students in the United States. Formerly, no bond was required of the student applying for admission and only a one way passport. However under the new law, the applicant must put up a bond which may be as much as $500 and "a passport or other travel document which is valid for his return to his own or to other foreign country."

It also reports that at the Swiss university sanatorium at Leysin, "Moral Depression" is eliminated in their student tuberculosis patients by calling outstanding professors to lecture on various subjects. Results have proved this greatly facilitates treatment of the disease.

The International Student Service is financially supported wholly by contributions given by parties interested in carrying on its work. During the summer it placed 61 colonies in Holland, Wales, Switzerland and Germany.

THE FALL OF TICONDEROGA

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by F. C. Yohn...inspired by that horror-filled dawn when the bloodthirsty savages fell on Ethan Allan's gallant "Green Mountain Boys" of Fort Ticonderoga fame. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

INDOOR RIFLE RANGE NEARS COMPLETION

Improved Facilities Will Create Greater Interest and Will Allow More to Fire.

The new indoor gallery range for Caliber .22 rifle firing in the northeast corner of the stadium is nearing completion. It is expected that the improved facilities will create greater interest and enthusiasm and will permit a larger number to fire. The targets are equipped with carriers permitting inspection and scoring of the target at the firing point.

It is planned to have two team squads, each consisting of 20 members. The men's team will participate in postal matches with a large number of schools throughout the country and later in the season will compete in the William Randolph Hearst Trophy match as well as in the seventh corps area matches.

The women's team has telegraphic matches scheduled with the teams of the University of Vermont, Wyoming university, the University of Washington, Seattle, Washington, and challenges from other schools are being received daily. The women's team of last year competed in twenty-seven matches, winning seventeen and losing eight while two were undecided. This is considered to be very fine as a record, inasmuch as these matches were fired with teams with large schools throughout the country.

The range season will extend through March, 1933. All matches are being arranged so as not to conflict with scheduled holidays and final examination periods. Any student in good scholastic standing is eligible for membership on the teams. Tryouts, except for those matches limited to R.O.T.C. students, are being held now and those who have not reported, and still desire to do so, are urged to go to the range in the stadium, preferably in the afternoons, from Tuesday to Friday.

Both of the teams made excellent records during the past year. The men's team competed in eighty-four postal matches, winning thirty-eight and losing forty-six. In view of the fact that the old range was small and did not permit the members to practice sufficiently and that a large number of matches were decided by a few points, the record was unusually good.

It is contemplated that Kansas State will be represented in the Missouri Valley shoulder to shoulder matches in the spring.

FLOWERS LINE CORRIDORS AT FLORISTS SHOW

EXHIBIT INSTALLED AS PART OF THIRD ANNUAL SHORT COURSE.

ATTENDANCE GRATIFYING

More Than 60 Register First Day, Six Being From Out of State — More Thursday.

Snapdragons, roses, giant chrysanthemums, and carnations filled the first floor corridors of the horticulture building Wednesday and Thursday when a flower show was installed as a part of the third annual florists' short course sponsored by Kansas State and the Kansas State Florists' association.

It is the second time, according to Prof. Walter B. Balch of the department of horticulture, that a flower show has been held by the association, the first show having been held in Wichita in 1929. Although the practice was discontinued because of the expense incurred the display this year aroused a great deal of interest. About 150 floral pieces were displayed on three long tables, on the floor, and on one side of the stairs leading to the second floor of the building.

Nearly all the flowers were furnished by Kansas florists. One table was filled with especially "made-up" pieces prepared by Miss L. M. Keeshan of Junction City who gave demonstrations before the school showing how she prepares floral displays ranging from Easter corsages for children to sport corsages for the co-ed going to a party.

Attendance at the two-day short course was especially gratifying this year, Professor Balch said. More than 60 people registered the first day, four of those being from Missouri and two each from Nebraska and Oklahoma. Several more enrolled Thursday.

The first day's program was directed to the retail florists and included, besides Miss Keeshan's demonstrations, talks by R. C. Hill, associate professor of economics W. B. Balch, associate professor of horticulture, and H. W. Davis, head of the department of English. Thursday was growers' day and the program featured talks by Prof O. H. Elmer, Prof. H. E. Myers, Prof. C. A. Logan, Prof. G. A. Filinger, Dean L. E. Call, Prof. P. L. Gainey, W. Pendergest, Prof. J. P. Calderwood, and a talk by William Hasselmann, president of the Kansas State Florists association.

M. C. Oberhelman, Randolph, and J. H. Tietze, Kansas City, wert injured slightly Tuesday morning when the car driven by Oberhelman collided with one driven by T. L. Mathias, Manhattan. The wreck ocurred at the corner of Seventeenth and Laramie streets.

Mathias and two companions in his car were uninjured. Oberhelman sustained a slight knee injury and Tietze was bruised and cut.

Damage to Oberhelman's car was estimated at $80 and that to Mathias car was estimated at $15.

ENTERTAIN AT MEETING

Max Martin and Richard Herzig Give Solos.

Max Martin, violinist, and Richard Herzig, tenor, gave solos Monday night at a meeting of the American Legion which was held in the community house. Mr. Martin played "Irish Song and Dance" by Spalding, and "Valse" by Chopin. Miss Alice Jefferson of the department of music played Mr. Martin's accompaniments.

Mr. Herzig sang "Border Ballad" by Cowen, and "Take Joy Home", by Bassett. Miss Julia Crow was the accompanist.

Four students of the Mason school of dancing gave several numbers. The students who took part were Corinne Duffey, and Phil, James, and Joe Mason. Mrs. Mason played the accompaniments.

Foreign Students Find Campaign Interesting

"I like Roosevelt's International Policy very much but I think Hoover is the better man," said E. A. Perez, Panama, when interviewed by a Collegian reporter. "The United States had two very good candidates. The campaign was carried on very well, much better than in my country. Down there we elect the man, up here you vote for the idea."

Salvador Della, from the Phillipine Islands, found the campaign interesting. "I somehow liked Hoover better," he said, "but both are 'swell' and would serve their country equally well. Both had good platforms. I can't see that there will be any great change."

Inge Kjar, Denmark, looking at the campaign from the viewpoint of economics, exclaimed, "You spend so much time and money on the campaign and then talk about the depression at the same time. How can you do that?"

Tibor Rozsa, Hungary, said, "My strongest impression from the campaign was the absolute freedom allowed every party and candidate to express their platforms and views. In Europe the radio is not allowed for campaign purposes and is controlled by the government. The large scale campaigning was a surprising factor also. The national radio hook-ups and the long tours which both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt took were astonishing.

"I had always believed that the American people were not very interested in politics but all I have heard for a month is talk of parties, candidates, platforms, chances of winning, and opinions of people around me.

I felt that the candidates treated their subpects thoroughly, particularly Hoover. Roosevelt, however, seemed to feel the spirit of the people better.

The overwhelming majority of votes which Roosevelt received ought to be a sign of unity of the American people which will help them through the depression. I certainly hope so."

Lily Lee, China, was hoping that Hoover would win. "You have such crowds here that if there is liquor as the Democrats would have it, it will be very dangerous," she said.

TELL OF EUROPE IN FORUM

Barbara Lautz and Lucille Allman Tell of Experiences Last Summer.

Those who attended student forum Wednesday noon took an enjoyable trip to Europe with two Kansas State students, Barbara Lautz, La Junta, Colo., and Lucille Allmen, Manhattan, acting as guides.

Miss Lautz gave a vivid description of the trip she made last summer, traveling with 10 American girls from other college campuses, through England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Czecho, and Slovakia.

As the only girl representing the middle-west at the International Student Conference, she said that she enjoyed most of all becoming acquainted with students from many other countries.

"Winter Sports and University Life in Germany" was the subject discussed by Miss Allman who was a student at the University of Munich last year. Skiing, according to Miss Allman, is the principal sport for German students.

Drawing on her experience as a student, she told how German subjects are taught without recitations or written examinations. Each class period consists of a lecture. In order to complete any course, a student is required to pass an oral examination given when the student feels that he has mastered the lecture material.

TUMBLING TEAM TO PERFORM AT HALVES

Nucleus of Tumblers Started by Moll—May Exhibit in Towns.

C. S. Moll, tennis and swimming coach, has just started what is the nucleus of Kansas State's tumbling team. Mr. Moll is attempting to build a tumbling team for entertainment during the halves of basketball games this winter and if the team is successfully developed it will go from town to town giving exhibitions.

There are five boys now working out for thhe team. They are: Stanley Roberts, Chanute; Buford Baker, Chanute; G. T. Trussler, Junction City; E. A. Vech, Stuttgart; and W. E. Chappell, Chanute.

Coach Moll is looking for more boys for the team. Anyone having more than average ability in this line is asked to see him and try for the team.

Doctor Frick Says Few Dogs Desire to Get An Education

Dr. E. J. Frick, head of the veterinary clinic, says that there are a few dogs who desire an education. Early this week as Doctor Frick was entering the veterinary hospital a streak passed him which proved to be a greyhound which hails from Florida.

As the keeper was cleaning out his cage thhe dog escaped with the intentions of a playful afternoon. Doctor Frick took up the chase, not with theh thought of playing with the dog but with the idea of catching it. After chasing the greyhound all around the ag buildings and in the quadrangle north of the library Doctor Frick called the stable to bring another dog, in lash, to help catch the visitor from Florida.

The Florida dog, in a very playful mood, would not let the doctor get any closer than a hundred feet. Finally, the dog entered the library. Just as Doctor Frick was coming up the steps, out came the dog with the help of the janitors foot. After the canine had made a complete visit of the campus he was successfully corralled in front of the engineering building.

HIGHLIGHT OF ASSEMBLY WILL BE PATRIOTISM

AMERICAN LEGION, CIVIC CLUBS, AND R.O.T.C. JOIN HANDS FOR PROGRAM.

COMMANDER TO BE SPEAKER

E. W. Carruth, State Head of Legion, Is Well Known Over State as Speaker—Veterans on Stage.

Music, patriotic songs, and speeches will be the highlights of a special assembly today, when the American Legion, three civic clubs, and the entire R.O.T.C. join hands for the annual Armistice day observance program.

E. W. Carruth, Herington, commander of the department of the Kansas American Legion, will be the speaker at the assembly.

Carruth was unanimously elected state commander of the American Legion at a convention held in Topeka last September. He is well known over the state as a speaker, and is probably the most popular commander the American Legion has ever elected.

Before his election to the state commandership of the American Legion, Carruth held the position of state vice-commander. Previous to this time he filled the offices of state membership chairman, and commander of the American Legion post at Herington.

Civic clubs, including the Rotary club, Kiwanis, and Co-operative club, will be represented at the event. The Kansas State college band and the Manhattan municipal band will furnish music.

Faculty members who are veterans of the World War, and cadet field officers of the R.O.T.C. will be seated on the stage during the program.

Three battallions of the R.O.T.C will occupy the lower floor of the auditorium during the assembly. A formation of the groups will be held on the field east of the auditorium and platoons will march in column of two's into the auditorium.

NEBRASKA U. CHANGES PAPER TO TABLOID SIZE

Daily Nebraskan Makes Change In Order to Keep Publication Going.

In the battle to keep the university's newspaper a going institution, the University of Nebraska has changd the Daily Nebraskan, student publication, to tabloid size.

The first issue of the new sized newspaper appeared November 8, after a meeting of the newsaper board definitely completed arrangements for the necessary recognition. Immediately after the meeting, the staff proceeded under new regulations of space limitations.

Previous emergency retrenchment measures had included a 10 per cent salary slash and personnel reductions.

A lowering in advertising revenue was given as the chief cause of the reduction in page size. An editorial in the first issue of the tabloid states in part:

"Written more concisely and with greater economy of wordage, the Nebraskan will continue to give a complete daily report of campus affairs, in a manner time-saving to the reader."

Play Proved Popular Last—Hold Tryouts for "The Combat."

Rev. B. A. Rogers announced that the play "The Tinker" will be presented again this year by the Wesley Foundation students. It proved very popular last spring and summer at its performances throughout the state. Tryouts will be held the first of next week to fill the vacancies in the cast, Ralph Conrad, Gwendoline Fisher, and Raymand Hughes, who took part in the play last spring will assume the same parts this year. They plan to give the play sometime before Christmas and again next spring at various places near Manhattan.

Tryouts will also be held for a one-act play "The Combat" which is a religious drama. The young people plan to present this during the first part of December.

ADVANCED CREDIT REPORT ANNOUNCED BY DURLAND

Students Enrolled Here Have Credits From 172 Other Institutions.

Based upon information furnished by the registrar, Professor M. A. Durland, secretary of the committee on relations with Junior colleges and art colleges, has completed the annual tabulation of advanced credits at Kansas State. This analysis shows that students enrolled at Kansas State this semester have credits from 172 other institutions including Shanghai college and Yensing university in China and the University of Hawaii.

Forty-seven state schools outside of Kansas are represented and 29 junior colleges. One-nundred seventeen students are enrolled from 14 Kansas junior colleges, 159 from Kansas liberal arts colleges and 113 from the other state schools. The Kansas State Teachers college at Emporia has the largest representation at Kansas State with 38, followed by Kansas university with 32, Hutchinson junior college 25, Washburn 24, Kansas City junior college 22, Fort Hays State college 22 Kansas State Teachers college at Pittsburg 21, and the University of Wichita 20.

The total number of these students is 550 as compared to 602 for the first semester of 1931-32. This is a decrease of only 8.6 per cent as compared to a decrease in the total enrollment for the college of 14.7 per cent. One-hundred seventeen junior college students from Kansas are enrolled at present and 73 from junior colleges outside the state. This is no decrease from last year's figures.

The division of engineering draws the largest proportion of its enrollment from such students. 27.7 per cent of the engineering students have advanced credits from other schools, 23.1 per cent of the home economics students, 21.9 per cent of the veterinary students, 21.7 per cent of the general science students, 14.2 per cent of the agricultural students and 22.3 per cent of the college as a whole.

MISS MORRIS TO SPEAK

GRAIN JUDGERS LEAVE TODAY

Work Out on Hay and Grain in Preparation for Tomorrow Morning's Contest—Seniors Go Tomorrow.

Final selections for two of the judging teams that will represent Kansas State at the annual American Royal Livestock show, Kansas City, were announced Thursday by the team coaches.

Prof. F. W. Bell, coach of the senior livestock judging team, has picked the following men for this team: E. C. Coulter, Willis; A. C. Thompson, McCune; L. R. Daniels, St. Francis; J. I. Miller, Prescott; G. R. Munson, Junction City; and C. G. Page, Norton. Prof. J. W. Zahnley, coach of the grain-judging team, has chosen the following men for this team: Glenn Fox, Rozell; Herbert Clutter, Larned; Andrew Erhart, Timken; and Lester Chilson, Oberlin. Both of these teams will compete in Kansas City tomorrow.

The grain-judging team left for Kansas City early this morning. The team is working-out today on hay and grain in preparation for tomorrow morning's contest. The senior livestock judging team will go to Kansas City this afternoon.

Placing in the livestock judging contest will be made tomorrow and reasons for placings will be given orally by the team members tomorrow afternoon. The team will judge horses, sheep, hogs, and beef cattle. There will be twelve classes to place and eight sets of reasons to be given. Announcement of team and individual ranking in both the grain and livestock judging contests will probably be made late tomorrow night.

The grain judging team will return to Manhattan Sunday. The livestock judging team will spend the first three days of next week in practice-judging at the American Royal in preparation for the International Livestock Exposition which opens in Chicago November 26.

Monday, November 14, is Kansas Day at the American Royal and Kansas State will be represented there by its eighty-piece band. Tuesday it will be represented by the meats judging team. Members of the meats judging team, as announced last week by Prof. L. J. Bratzler, are: J. I. Miller, Prescott; J. R. Munson, Junction City; L. R. Daniels, St. Francis; and Harold Kugler, Abilene.

COSMOS PULL TAFFY

The feature of the program at the Cosmopolitan meeting held Thursday, November 10, was a taffy pull. The meeting was held at the Wesley foundation recreation center, with Rev. and Mrs. B. A. Rogers, hosts. Tibor Rosza of Hungary, spoke, and visitors were present.

Villian of Next Play Will Be Unmolested

Who are "The Spider's" accomplices?

Maybe you will be sitting near one of them when you go to see the second Manhattan Theatre production of this year, to be presented December 8 and 9. Maybe the girl sitting across the aisle from you that night is the leading lady. Maybe the man sitting next you will suddenly rise from his seat, go up on the stage, and take a part in the play. He may be the deepest-dyed villain who was ever dyed, and you won't know it until he leaves his seat.

But everyone else will be as unknowing as you until the night of the mystery play, "The Spider," for, according to H. Miles Heberer, director of dramatics, the cast of this sensational play will not be announced. The characters will be scattered among the audience the night of presentation.

The only character to be announced will be the person who takes the role of the Spider. The rest of the cast must remain a mystery.

Fads and Insanity Go Hand in Hand in Styles

If we could but see ourselves as others see us!

Roosevelt affirms that the greatest curse the country has ever known is prohibition. But long sufferers disagree—all the odds are on "fads." Think of the thousands of people who have had their peaceful night's rest disturbed by grotesque visions of "whoopee hats," "red ties," "Princess Eugenie's," huge ear rings, toeless sandals, leg o' mutton sleeves, and bell boy corduroy suits, to say nothing of T. H. T. (the hairy truth) which was revealed when boys dispensed with garters and started to roll their own.

Credit for the latest insanity at Kansas State goes unanimously to the stronger (?) sex. This newest product of a mental hallucination is commonly called a "jailbird turtleneck'—to be more explicit—a high necked sweater circled by ghastly stripes preferably of scarlet hues.

As if that weren't enough—the boys have adopted corduroy caps with ear flaps that tie under the chin—is there no end to this crime wave?

After the flouncing feathers of last year the new snug hats are a relief. But won't girls ever learn that it takes a "type" girl to wear a "type" hat? Would a lacy baby cap look chic on Grandad? No—and neither does a little toque suit a tall person with a small head.

Fads are all right—but when indulging use discretion!

THE AFTERMATH

Now that the election has spent itself there are a few persons who are gagging on bitter political pills. Guy Helvering will be able to console himself by riding over the Kansas highway system and thus see what he has accomplished in the last two years. Meanwhile, Harry Woodring will no doubt hie himself to Washington to stand expectantly before the Roosevelt pie counter. His pill has been sugar coated thickly.

J. R. Brinkley, doctor by reputation and politician by "request," will use as a chaser for his bitter pill the slight satisfaction of knowing that the good people of Kansas no longer expect him to attempt the gubernatorial race. It is positively without doubt that the doctor will spend the next few weeks denouncing various election boards and city administrations for throwing out his votes and barring his watchers from the voting places.

Other defeated candidates will possibly return to their law offices and go back to work where they left off. However, there will be universal murmurings on the parts of the losers. Whether aloud or under their breaths each and every one of them will mumble at some time that "politics is funny."

TWO GENIUSES FROM EUROPE

Professor Finklestein of Poland, visiting in the United States, is a psychological miracle. He is being observed with sensational attention by the academic world.

A few days after his arrival he was taken into a classroom. There on the blackboard had been drawn a large square divided into 25 smaller squares in each of which were 25 different numbers Professor Finklestein glanced at the figure on the blackboard for one second. Then he turned, back to the blackboard and recited correctly every number and the place located. One hour later he was asked to repeat this recitation. Without hesitation he did so with perfect accuracy. Others of his mental feats were equally astounding. He added a column of four digit figures more rapidly than the average individual adds a column of single digit figures.

Soon Professor Albert Einstein will also come to America. With these two geniuses of the Eastern world within our borders, we students of the Western world are now quite ready to see the American status of culture and intellect make further inroads on the alleged superiority of European intellectual and cultural attainments.—Florida Alligator.

The Snooper

Haw! Ho! Chuckle! And a series of boisterous guffaws! This time we offer a fair story on the Kappa's self-appointed Kansas State sweetheart, i. e., Ptomaine Harmon, the chronic headache. This time we find her in a laundry wondering who a mysterious Mr. Joe Zilch, alleged to be from Lawrence, shorted out on her last Saturday night and left her at home tearing up old shirts for amusement. Somebody played her a lousy trick, and the worst part of it is that one of her own sisters, as we understand it, did part of the dirty deed.

Chronic was called by someone who gave a fake name, which we have said was Joe Zilch because that wasn't it. The fake said he was from K. U., wanted a date with her, and threw her an ardorous line. The feel-bads fell for it, but was just about to give it up as one of those things and take another date when Joe called again on Friday and reassured her. One of the Kappas (nosser, nosser, we won't tell) told her it was long distance and Jane believed it. Now hold onto your seats, we are coming to the climax. At 10 Saturday night Joe called and told her that inasmuch as his car had broken down he would be unable to enjoy her proximity. "This is a —— (censored) of a time to be telling me," quoth the wrathful Kappa.

Tuesday the Collegian phone rang and a husky voice asked for the Snooper. Being approximately the third phone call the Snooper had received in the last four years, he was naturally very much interested. It was Kay Brewer, mentioned in the Tuesday morning column. She was as tough as the proverbial boot. Kay asked that her name not be mentioned, so for the rest of this paragraph we will refer to her as a "Mrs. Mitchell." "Mrs. Mitchell," (that's Kay, but you're not supposed to know it,) said that the office force was giving her the familiar merry-berry and that she was indignant and "dern you why don't you run a retraction of them statements?" Being of a very obliging nature the Snooper vowed that he would, so here it is. It is hereby and forthwith declared that the crack made about a "Mrs. Mitchell" in Tuesday's column be hereby retracted. Given under my hand and seal this eleventh day of November in this year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirty-two. Signed in the presence of Elmer, the custodian. The Snooper.

Did you see a crowd hanging around the bill board next to the Canteen during the first part of the week? Well, there wasn't any. That was just put in to make you read the rest of this. Anyway, several people were seen going into contortions in an effort to read what the Varsity theatre sign said. We tried looking at it from a side view and then when no one was looking we tried peering at it from between our legs. It was found out, however, that it read approximately the same both ways. It was finally decided at a round table discussion held in the auditorium that what the ten letters, l-i-f-e-g-i-n-s-i-b-e, was the pig-latin expression for the two words "life" and "begins." Sure enough, when somebody complained to the Varsity about it they came out and told us and tittered about it, evidently thinking it was a great joke. The new sign is a wow.

On Other Hills

A freshmen-sophomore tug of war battle will be held next Saturday between halves of the Nebraska university-Pittsburgh game at Lincoln. The event, which was won last year by the freshmen, will decide whether or not freshmen are to continue to wear their red caps. Incidently, there will be no school for Nebraska students Friday afternoon.

The freshmen at the University of Colorado were not so lucky this year. They will be required to wear their green caps until further notice, since they won only one of the two freshmen-sophomore contests held on Homecoming day.

Auburn university, one of the oldest schools in the country, requires the attendance of all students at chapel exercises, which are held for a short period every day, except on Saturday. The university was founded in 1857 as a Methodist school.

Every year, an endowment of $200,000 is required to pay the water bill at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

They have an "Athletics for All" policy at the University of Wisconsin. The climax of the activity will be reached this fall with an increased and expanded program of intramural competitions.

Young executives who have lost their jobs can now enroll in a special "depression course" at the Harvard business school. The new course was suggested by Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, J. I. Straus, and George Whitney. A reduction of about 25 per cent in board and room rates has been effected for students enrolled in the course.

Freshmen at the University of Oklahoma believe in carrying out the old tradition of the school. They wear their red caps at all times, and are decked out in full freshmen uniform at pep meetings and football games. The Ruf Neks and Jazz Hounds, the two pep organizations, patrol the city to see that the rules are carried out.

Students of the University of Arizona have tried the plan of separating men and women into different rooting sections with great success. The fact became apparent after separation that boys made a lot more noise when their style was not cramped by feminine company, and the girls, when unaccompanied by men, forgot to be lady-like.

Collecting bird's eggs is the hobby of the head coach at San Jose State college. He now has a collection of more than 10,000.

A co-ed at the University of Alabama will be provided a scholarship this year, as a result of preceeds from dime dances held at the university.

Women students at Southern Methodist university have formed a "perfect date" club to which the most attractive girls on the campus belong.

And since we're on politics, we might note that President Hoover won the presidential straw vote at Stanford university, his alma mater. Hoover received 328 votes, Roosevelt 251, and Thomas, 216.

"No telephone calls after 8 p. m." is the new ruling at Iowa State college dormitory for girls. Call after call comes in after the board has closed from young college swains trying to get everything "all arranged" for the week-end, or the "like" date the next night.

Would you send your girl to college? A questionaire sent to Princeton graduates of the class of '22 reveals that in their opinion the average girl can struggle through life pretty nicely with the equivalent of a high school education and that they would not send their daughters to college.

A professor at the University of Pennsylvania has mastered 140 languages, which is believed to be all the languages there are in the world.

POULTRY BREEDERS' CONFERENCE FRIDAY

To Stress Practical Point of Breeding at Meeting November 18.

The practical point of view of breeding poultry is to be stressed rather than the theoretical side of the subject at the third annual Kansas poultry breeders' conference, sponsored by the poultry department of Kansas State college, Friday, November 18. The meeting will be open to all interested poultrymen.

Talks to be presented in the morning of this one day session are: "Mendel's Law of Inheritance", Dr. R. K. Nabours; "Proposed Breeding Programs for California Poultrymen," Prof. L. F. Payne; and "Effects of Production Breeding on Vigor," Prof. H. M. Scott.

"Time of Weighing Eggs to Obtain a Dependable Measure of Average Egg Size," Prof. W. O. Wilson, and "Inbreeding and Systems of Breeding," Dr. D. C. Warren, will be given in the afternoon session.

The purpose of the conference is to offer to the poultrymen of Kansas the opportunity of discussing the problems which arise from their efforts in the field of breeding for standard and production qualities.

Running Water and Delivery System Is Best in Egg Factory

Egg factories with running water for each hen in her individual compartment, facilities for absolute regulation of diet, and a delivery system that all but packs the eggs automatically—such a picture is given by publicity for the newest development in poultry management, "hen batteries"

Kansas State has one of these batteries, the only one in the state so far as poultry department officials can ascertain. The two-story "hen cage" is the property of the Kansas Poultry and Egg Shippers Association and is being used by L. A. Wilhelm, Arkansas City, a graduate student in poultry, in connection with experiments to ascertain the relation between hen nutrition and the color and flavor of eggs.

The battery is of all-metal construction, and is about four and one-half feet high, four feet wide, and ten feet long. It accomodates 32 hens, each fowl having an individual compartment 12 inches wide, 18 inches high, and 18 inches deep. The floors and sides of the compartments are made of heavy one-by-five galvanized wire, the large meshes allowing feathers to fall from the cages readily. The cages are in two decks, each deck having two rows of compartments. The compartments face toward the outside and the floor of each slopes to ward the outside extending its end, being turned up to form a tray into which each egg rolls as soon as laid.

By means of a fairly simple drip system each hen is provided with running water in an individual cup. Each hen also has an individual feed hopper so that it is possible to feed each a prescribed and exclusive ration.

Fowls seem to thrive in the cages without their customary exercise, says Wilhelm, experiments having been conducted in the east in which birds were confined for four years successfully.

The battery is a product of the Jamesway Manufacturing company of Fort Atkinson, Wis., manufacturers of many types of poultry raiser's equipment.

Batteries are still in the experiment stage, says Wilhelm, however they are being used in commercial production in the eastern states. A large hotel in Miami, Florida, has been turned into an egg plant by the installation of a string of the cages. What their future will be in a commercial sense remains to be seen

TRENCHMOUTH NOW A COMMON DISEASE

"Trenchmouth, technically known as vincents angina, is quite common at the student health dispensary," says Dr. C. M. Siever, in a recent interview with the Collegian reporter.

"Very little was known in this country about vincents angina before 1914 but since the World war trenchmouth cases have become much more numerous. It may be mistaken for diphtheria or sore throat but can easily be determined by a microscope, which is the only positive way of detecting it. It is contagious and is spread by the saliva, however it is not highly infecticus, and its treatment is well known and highly effective. Persons with the disease should keep their mouths clean, use their own drinking cups, and follow such means of prevention as common sense would suggest in case of moderately infectious diseases and of course receive proper medical treatment. The most common predisposing cause is unhealthy conditions of the teeth and the gums. These cases are soon cleared up by proper treatment but in many cases it is necessary for the patients to get their teeth and gums out in order for permanent cure." Students with this disease are not quarantined as it is unnecessary with the above precautions.

The Cuckoo Birds are Jailbirds Now!

THIS picture will bring back memories to a lot of people of the days when the boys went marching away with flags flying and bands playing.

Chesterfields were very popular with those men who went overseas. They were "rookies" then. They're "old vets" today. And that milder, satisfying Chesterfield flavor is still their steady choice . . . after fifteen years!

It was mildness that first attracted smokers to Chesterfield. And it's mildness and better taste that is winning new friends for Chesterfield today . . . all over the country.

Next time you're short of cigarettes, ask for Chesterfields. They satisfied in '17, and you can't beat 'em today.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . With the Beauvais dinner dance and the Pi Phi party scheduled for this week end, we should have plenty of scandal for our yellow column next week. For after a Bovoe party (we've heard it called such) there's always plenty to tell—at least that's what someone informed us . . . . The Pi Phi's must be hard up for dates this season, for we hear that Elwyn Athey (that Sig Alph pledge) turned down three different bids to their party—then finally, in desperation, said "yes" to the fourth Pi Phi who asked him. They have just that "never-give-up spirit," Athey . . . . And we were so afraid that our noble president of the so-called Bovoe would be minus a date for Friday night after Mildred turned him down, but he tells us that a sister (one of Mildred's of course) has condescended to go with him. We're relieved then, Clay . . . . While on the subject of parties—we understand that the Kappas are asking nigh to a dozen stags apiece. At that rate their party should be an echo of the recent scandal-stirring Pi Kappa Chi brawl . . . .

. . . . We no longer have a need of the Vogue or any other style magazine now that we have three walking fashion plates in our midst. No doubt you haven't recognized them, for those derbies do shade their countenances somewhat. Yes, we're speaking of "Clark Gable" Richards, Hayden, "Harry Langdon" Phillips, and Ed "Robert Woolsey" Kelly. They're too ducky for words in their new headgear. We wonder if the election could have brought about such conspicuous action or have they been absorbing "Ballyhoo" again? And the main purpose of any ballyhoo is to attract attention in case you didn't know, girlies . . . . While we think of it, an old K. S. C. student—she was here two or three years ago—is to put on a pin this week end. You probably know her, for her visits to Manhattan aren't so infrequent . . . . And they say—that Mary Carney (she was here last year) is buying her silverware—isn't that significant, Swede Anderson? . . . . To continue the discussion of old students—Louise Coleman, the Kansas State sweetheart of the year just past, is sporting a diamond on that telltale finger—yes, Doug Cain, the Beta, is the man . . . . Harry Rooney (last year's Phi Delt) is directing Red Cross work in Haddam—and of all persons, Harry! . . . .

. . . . What about Glen Ankeny and Beryl Brummett going to a varsity on Ruth Stile's student council pass? . . . . And what Delt pin may be put out before too long? . . . . Has the Kappa-Tri Delt fight over a prospective pledge ended now since the girl has pledged? . . . . Did you know that Jimmy Ketchersid at the Sig Ep house earns quite a livelihood by selling to his brothers candy, gum, etc., that comes out of his dad's drug store in Hope? . . . . And is Harry Miller ever sitting at home this week end now that Janet Murdock is dated days ahead with Carl Smith? . . . . And is Ella Fouts really serious with the Sigma Nu this time? . . . . Look for the next column on asbestos paper—for the aftermath of the Bovoe party will be—whew!!! . . . . (SISTERS, SISTERS, WHAT CAN THIS MEAN?—)

Three of these books, The Matriarch, A Deputy Was King, and Mosaic, are a Jewish family "saga." KANSAS STATE GRAD TELLS ABOUT AFRICA

According to a letter recently by Dean L. E. Call of the division of agriculture, Dudley Moses who at the present is in Umbogintwini, Natal, Union of South Africa, is developing pasture and putting down more turf plots. Moses has also started an intensive fertilizer experiment on Kikuyu grass, to get an idea of possible returns from increased dressings.

Moses came to Kansas State from the University of Illinois and received his master of science degree in agriculture here in 1924. In his letter he writes that wool is being sold for five to eight pence per pound in South Africa.

"Here in South Africa, my own view at present is that while things have not improved much, there is a slightly more cheerful outlook," he writes. "Sheep for instance are being sold for from three shillings six pence to six shillings, whereas four years ago very ordinary animale were fetching seventeen shillings six pence to twenty-five shillings.

"It must be borne in mind, that compared with the pre-war years, most South African wool growers have increased the wool yield for sheep by fifty per cent up to one hundred per cent in many cases. There is no doubt that this is the time to buy land and go in for farming."

Moses writes that at the South African agricultural colleges, the student attendance has decreased.

LITTLE REST FOR WILDCATS THOUGH THERE IS NO GAME

M'MILLIN PUTS MEN THROUGH LONG SCRIMMAGE THURSDAY NIGHT.

B'S FROSH PLAY SATURDAY

Varsity Team Will Vacate Stadium in Afternoon for Annual Freshman Game—Injuries Are Still Noticeable.

After spending most of the week learning new plays and formations, Coach Bo McMillin put his Kansas Wildcats through a long scrimmage session Thursday evening against the "B" team in order to see the plays actually work.

Although the McMillinmen do not have a game this week they have been working hard on conditioning so that every man on the squad will be in shape for the Kansas State-Kansas university game November 19.

On Monday night several regulars were excused from practice so that coaches could work on the younger men but Tuesday the full squad reported for practice.

Although a good number of minor injuries still prevail most of the players have recovered enough to play in scrimmage.

Oren Stoner, Sabetha, has a back injury that kept him from scrimmage last evening. The injury, although not considered serious, is very painful.

Ralph Graham whose eye injury kept him on the side lines during the first part of the week is back in actual practice again.

Lloyd Michael still has a foot injury that bothers him to some extent. He also broke a tooth in the game with Iowa State that has caused him some trouble. Tom Bushby's charlie horse which he contracted last week, is almost well. He was able to scrimmage last evening. Ken Harter has also been kept from scrimmage because of an injured leg.

The varsity team will practice tonight after the high school game but they will not have practice Saturday. Instead of a practice Saturday the B team will have a full time game with Swede Anderson's freshmen Kittens.

Sports Hi-Cups

With Tom Bushby's name changed to Tom-Tom, the peanut man will now probably go out of business.

Do you know that a good many things have happened to Bushby lately, now he even walks 37 miles for exercise.

Monday night some few men were excused from practice, so to make the "few" a more general term, some that were not excused stayed away.

Mike Michael stays in condition by pushing his Ford instead of the Red Grange way, carrying ice.

In scrimmage last night the varsity went the full length of the field on the first play.

Some of the boys seem to find it too cold to come out for practice these nights.

Women's Sports

Dancing is one of the next activities to be included in women's intramurals. A poster on the bulletin board in the gymnasium explains the rules, and teams are requested to sign up immediately.

There will be three meets held to determine the group winners, and the group winners will meet in a final tournament. The girls are to choose and work out their own dances and costumes.

To enter the tournament a team must have two or more entries for social dancing, two or more for folk dancing, two or more for clog or tap dancing, and one or mor entries for interpretive dancing.

The dances will be judged on a basis of ten points, six points on performance and four for originality. Only half the members on a team may be physical education majors.

The last tennikoit ring was no more than thrown in the last tennikoit game when volley ball was announced as the next sport in intramural athletics for women.

Practice for intramural volley ball starts next Monday, and all team wishing to enter must sign their members' names on the poster on the bulletin board in the gymnasium.

There will be four practices before the tournament starts, and every member of the team is required to attend every practice.

There will be classes in beginning volley ball during the week for the girls who do not understand the game and who wish to play.

At the Theatres

AT THE VARSITY
"They Call It Sin"

They called it sin because she didn't know the identity of her parents; because she fell in lovt with a married man; because she fell in love with a married man; accepted the attentions of a show producer with a notorious reputation, but they didn't call it sin when she gave up didn't call it sin when she gave up the man she loved in order to dissolve the eternal triangle. This is a show that will hold your interest to the very end and then leave you wondering if it should have ended the way it did. Loretta Young, as Marion Collins, and David Manners, as Jimmy Decker, are the stars of the show with George Brent, as the doctor friend, outstanding. Una Merkel, as Dixie Dare, the showgirl, is funnier than ever. This is a sweet romance—not particularly different because of the same old murder gag connected with it—but you won't waste your money in seeing it. It will sorta bewilder you, but you'll like it a lot.—E. E.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Sherlock Holmes"

Can you picture the American gangster with his machine gun methods bucking the famous Scotland Yards of London? It is given to you in the picture "Sherlock Holmes," at the Dickinson. Clive Brook is the famous detective.

Sherlock Holmes uses his deductive powers to trap a notorious criminal, Ernest Torrence, with whom he has been fighting for several years. At the trial the criminal prophesies that the judge will hang before he will, and that Holmes will be hanged for the murder of the inspector. The first prophesy comes true and Holmes escapes being hanged for murder by using his wits. It is a good show.—R. S.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Age of Consent"

A truer portrayal of college life than has been depicted for many a month played by Dorothy Wilson and Richard Cromwell in "The Age of Consent."

The story deals with a boy and girl in college who become engaged and finally make up their minds to "chuck" school and get married. Complications arise when the boy is nearly forced to marry another girl. An accident, fatal to the college play boy is a tragedy which brings the romance to a happy ending.

The plot in itself scarcely holds the interest, but the emotions portrayed should furnish food for thought for many college students.

This is Dorothy Wilson's first starring picture.—M. G.

Physical Education O.K. to Make Living But Nil as a Hobby

Physical education is a good way to make one's living, but it is nil as a hobby as far as the instructors of the women's physical education department are concerned. So dogs and cats rather than calisthenics occupy the interests of these teachers outside class room hours.

Miss Katherine Geyer recently brought a dog home from Kansas City, a tiny shadow of a dog weighing less than two pounds. It is a Manchester toy terrier. As yet, no name has been settled on the dog, a beastie hardly grown big enough for a name, but Miss Geyer is debating between "Snooky" and "Nippy." She hopes to bring him up as a proper physical education dog, and he seems to be developing a liking for balls, especially golf balls. Miss Geyer confesses that right now his passion seems to be chewing up shoes, but she is hoping he will outgrow this with his puppyhood days.

Miss Bernice Patterson has an orange Persian cat that answers to the name, Mimi, and really answers to the name, for Miss Patterson says that the cat will come only when her name is called, and refuses to even look up when addressed as "Kitty."

Mimi is being brought up by the strictest health rules and has cod-liver oil every day. She too has all the possibilities of being a physical educaton major, but she doesn't care for sports and games, Mimi likes graceful dancing and jumping.

Miss Helen Saum and Miss Lorraine Maytum have no pets, and Miss Maytum fears that pet fleas may soon overrun the gymnasium.

All four of the instructors like animals, and any stray dog or cat may find a warm welcome in the office of the women's physical education department.

EXHIBIT IN LIBRARY

"Due to the large number of photographs that have come in for the photographers exhibit it will be necessary to display them in the library instead of in the architecture gallery as it was formerly announcel.

The photographs will be on exhibit for two weeks, starting Monday November 14. Sixteen photographers have entered their work, and 86 pictures have come in and more are expected.

"I am very pleased with the work that has been turned in," said Prof. John F. Helm.

Dr. Howard T. Hill will speak at the Waterville high school, Friday, November 11. The subject of his talk will be "Armistice Day as a Gateway to Peace."

"Outlook of Farm Prices" was the subject discussed by Prof. R. M. Green, department of agricultural economics, at the farm bureau meeting held in Topeka, Thursday, November 10.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

TO BE TAKEN AT

FACE VALUE

When you pick up this newspaper and read the announcements of this city's local merchants, or those of national advertisers, you need never think to question the sincerity and honesty of their statements.

This reliance on Advertising has been brought about by Advertising, and is one of Advertising's greatest contributions to the satisfaction and ease of modern living.

An advertiser deliberately attempting to deceive takes the quick, short road to ruin. The insincere or extravagant statement may have its brief day. But the greater the attention it attracts, the sooner the public will discover and destroy its deceit.

The cornerstone of successful shopkeeping always has been "keep faith with the public"; give honest values and truthfully represent the merchandise and its service. This principle had to find its expression in Advertising—for Advertising is nothing more than the owner of a store or a factory talking with people in their homes about such things as shoes and soap, radios and rugs, blankets and clothing.

It pays to read the advertisements. They are first-hand news of what is being invented, fashioned, and perfected in the workships of the world for your well-being, comfort and convenience.

GRADS HAVE BIG DAY SATURDAY

STUDENTS AND ALUMNI JOIN IN ANNUAL REUNION

HOMECOMING FRIDAY AND SATURDAY WILL BE EVENTFUL CELEBRATION.

NO CLASSES SATURDAY

Will Hold Pep Meetings Friday Night and Saturday Morning—Start Off With Bonfire And Parade.

It will be an eventful celebration next Friday and Saturday when returning alumni and students of Kansas State college join in the annual reunion and events of Homecoming Day.

Heading the list of homecoming events will be two pep meetings, Friday and Saturday, where students and alumni members will gather in an effort to arouse enthusiasm in preparation for the annual Wildcat-Jayhawker battle scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Parades, a reunion dinner, decoration contests, two varsity dances, and the football game, are listed among the highlights of the annual celebration.

Announcements that there will be no classes Saturday were made yesterday by Dr. J. T. Willard, vice president of the college. On Friday night a pep meeting at the city park will start the celebration. A bonfire and pajama parade will feature the event. The meeting will begin at eight o'clock, and plenty of music will be furnished by the college band.

Another pep meeting, in which more alumni members will probably attend, will be held Saturday morning at ten o'clock in the auditorium. Plenty of good speakers will be on hand, and plans are being made to create a good deal of enthusiasm for the last pep rally of the season.

Purple Pepsters, Kansas State pep organization, will meet the Kansas university delegation at the Union Pacific depot at 12:30 o'clock Saturday.

Decoration of fraternity houses, an annual event during homecoming, will take place again this year. Houses will be judged Friday afternoon by a committee consisting of three members not yet chosen. Alpha Rho Chi was the winner of the prize last year and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity was adjudged winner of the decoration event on two separate years. A limit of fifteen dollars has been set for expenses on house decorations by men's Pan-Hellenic organization, sponsors of the event. A silver cup has been offered to the fraternity winning the prize three times.

Varsity homecoming dances will be held both Friday and Saturday nights at the Wareham ballroom. June Layton and his orchestra will play for both dances.

MARYVILLE DEBATE TONIGHT

Rowena Johnson and Donald Gentry Speak for K. S. C.

Political subjects are the basis of the radio discussions given over radio station KSAC. Tonight at 10 o'clock Kansas State will participate in a debate with Maryville Teachers college of Missouri. The subject is "Should public opinion of the United States condemn the Soviet government of Russia?"

Donald Gentry, Manhattan, and Rowena Johnson, Fort Scott, will speak for Kansas State. Wilbur Heekin, and Wallace W. Culver are representing Maryville Teachers.

HOME EC CLUB ME...

The Margaret Justin Home Economics club will meet Thursday, at four o'clock in Calvin Hall, L58. Social welfare work for Thanksgiving will be discussed, and plans for other projects will be announced. Miriam Buck, Abilene, will play piano solo, and Sigrid Unsret's book "Kristen Lavransdater" will be reviewed by Mary Holton, Manhattan.

DISPLAY ART WORK

An exhibit consisting of India and Persian prints, Russian lacquer work, and Egyptian bags will be put on display today in Anderson 68. This exhibit should be of especial importance to all students interested in art.

SPEAKS ON TELEVISION

Dr. J. O. Perrine of A. T. and T. Will Talk Here Friday.

"Television—Its Fundamental Physical and Psychological Principles" will be the subject of the talk by Dr. J. O. Perrine of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, Friday evening, Nov. 18 at 7:30 in C24. This talk is being sponsored by the Science Club and the Kansas State student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Dr. Perrine is an eminent physicist and inventor and at the present time he is associate editor of the Bell System Technical Journal. It is believed that his talk will be of interest to members of the college faculty, engineering students, all students interested in science, and to many citizens of Manhattan.

YEARBOOK PICTURES DUE BY NEXT FRIDAY

Only One Fraternity Has Not Yet Made Arrangements According to Editor of Royal Purple

Fraternity and sorority members must have their pictures for the 1933 Royal Purple taken not later than Friday, November 18, if they are to be included on their chapter pages in the yearbook, according to an announcement today by Franklin Thackrey, editor.

Any organization members who work and are unable to come to the Royal Purple office during school hours may telephone the editor at 4144 or 3-7206 and make special arrangements to pay their assessments. Only one fraternity has not yet made arrangements for its pictures. Some sororities have already had more pictures taken for this year's book than they had in the 1932 book.

Although the percentage of sorority members who have kept their appointments is much larger than that of fraternity members, there are still a few in almost every house who have not yet had their pictures taken, according to the editor of the yearbook.

OFFICER OF LEAGUE TO SPEAK AT FORUM

Clark M. Eichelberger, Chicago, Will Talk on Far Eastern Crisis.

Clark M. Eichelberger, Chicago, secretary of the midwest office League of Nations association and editor of the League of Nations Chronicle, will speak on the "Far Eastern Crisis" at student forum Thursday noon in Thompson hall.

Mr. Eichelberger, according to information furnished the Y. M. C. A. office, is one of the foremost speakers upon the subject of foreign affairs. He attended the first meetings of the League of Nations council which debated the Manchurian crisis, and he is almost an annual visitor of the League of Nations and traveler in Europe. His lecture is an analysis of the League's efforts to settle the Manchurian and Far Eastern difficulty.

This meeting is the last forum scheduled for this fall. The spring meetings will start in February.

Robert Harris, Topeka, visited Margaret Ballard here over the week end.

SQUAD STARTS FINAL WEEK OF GRID PRACTICE

INJURIES ARE PREDOMINATING IN SQUAD—PREPAR.. FOR BATTLE SAT...

END SPECTACULAR SEASON

Game With University Will Climax Good Season for Both Teams—Dope Figured in Several Ways.

With injuries predominating, the Kansas State football squad started its final week of practice last night before the annual K-Aggie-K. U. grid battle next Saturday which will climax a most spectacular ball season for both teams.

Although the McMillinmen several injuries at the present time Coach Bo McMillin hopes to have all his Wildcats ready for the game Saturday.

The practice last night started rather slow but after the punters and passers had their exercise Coach McMillin took one team and Oss Maddox the crew to drill them with the new signals which have been devised. After a long signal drill the practice came to a close with a short dummy scrimmage against the freshmen who had been instructed in the Kansas university offense.

Lloyd Michael Injured.

Lloyd Michael, veteran Kansas State center, is in the student hospital with a swollen gland in his neck. The swelling was caused, probably from an infection which resulted from a cut he received on his lip in the game with Iowa State. Late yesterday afternoon the hospital officials were instructed not to let anyone see him for fear that the illness may develop into some serious disease.

Ralph Graham, who has been suffering from an eye injury in the Iowa State game, was limping last night because of an infected ankle. The ankle was not considered serious, however.

Tom Bushby, Belleville, is not entering into real scrimmage because of the charley horse which he has been nursing for several days. Leland Shaffer is also nursing a bruise which has hampered him for some time.

Game Moved Back.

The game Saturday was formerly scheduled for the middle of October but was moved back to November 19 so that the climax of the grid season would also be the battle for the Kansas football supremacy. In the past Kansas university has always played Missouri on the Saturday before Thanksgiving.

Dope for the game can be figured in several different ways so that sports writers are predicting the best game in recent years. Kansas university held the powerful Notre Dame team to a 24 to 6 victory while the Nebraska eleven tied Pittsburgh U. 0 to 0. Nebraska beat Kansas State 6 to 0, and then to tie up the circle Pittsburgh trounced Notre Dame.

Mike Ahearn Recalls First Win Over K. U.

(BY M. F. AHEARN)

Many times the water has gone over the dam since the football action of which I write. For several years prior to 1906 the Kansas State football team had hoped and yearned for just one victory over the Jayhawk, but unkind fate and a strong Kansas university team decreed it otherwise.

Then came the season of 1906, and victory, sweet victory. Before the game there was not a soul in Manhattan, hardly enough to prophesy a win for Kansas State. Did not the K. U. team boast of Donald and Bruner, mighty tackles, Fortner, drop and place-kicker par excellence and many other famous gridsters? Had not K. U. beaten the mighty Cornhuskers the week before 8-6? And if memory does not play us false it was Fortner's two field goals that accounted for all eight points. What chance had the men of Kansas State? "Not a Chinaman's chance," said the Jayhawk supporters. This game, played just before the Missouri game, was to be a breather, a practice tilt for the university and when the Jayhawk was humbled he was humbled indeed. How did it happen? Well, I am coming to that in due time.

The game was the ding-dong variety with play confined to the middle of the field and neither side having much of an advantage. The university worked the ball to the Kansas State 40-yard line where they were held for downs and Forter dropped back for a try at a field goal. Back came the ball into "Lefty's" outstretched hands. He dropped it to the ground and kicked. Just as the ball was rising, a purple jersey flashed in front of the ball and it rolled back and to the side. Carl Mallon, playing left helf, scooped the ball while on the run and was in the clear and K. U.'s goal only sixty yards away. Mallon negotiated the distance in nothing flat and not a Jayhawker was able to check his advance. The goal was kicked and the scoreboard showed seven points for Kansas State to nothing for the university. Who blocked the kick? Little Dutch Heinrichs, Kansas State's 160-pound center. Never before had the town and the college and every Kansas State supporter had such a thrill.

EICHELBERGER IN CHAPEL

Secretary of Am. Ass'n. of League of Nations Will Speak Thursday.

The speaker in chapel next Thursday November 17 at 10:15 o'clock will be Clark M. Eichelberger, secretary of the American Association of the League of Nations. His subject will be drawn from phases of the international question now confronting America.

Eichelberger is from Chicago, where the headquarters of the American League are located. This organization has as its object, the moral support of the action taken by the world league of Nations at Geneva as it applies to America.

The Armistice day address was delivered in chapel by E. W. Carruth, state commander of the American Legion for Kansas. Members of the R. O. T. C. in uniform filled the seats on the first floor of the auditorium, and faculty members of the Legion sat on the stage behind the speaker. The college band played several military selections.

"Fourteen years ago," he continued, "America became the champion of freedom and self-determination. To the everlasting credit of Woodrow Wilson, a war-weary world received peace."

"To-day the desire of the Legion is to inculcate respect for government. Our destiny is to progress toward a mastery of war and an understanding of peace," concluded Mr. Carruth.

DISPLAY PHOTOGRAPHS IN LIBRARY GALLERY

Professional and Amateur Photographers Cooperate to Make Exhibit a Success

More than 100 photographs now on display in the library gallery exceeds the expectations of the architecture department for the photographers exhibit.

Given, associate professor of public speaking; George Wiley, Chanute; and Prof. L. R. Quinlin stand out as being far better than the average.

The Royal studio, Browne studio, and Pasley studio are the professional photographers that entered pictures. The amateur photographers are: Miss Ada Rice, professor in English; Harvey E. Davidson, building and repair; Miss Helen Hostetter, assistant professor of journalism; Prof. H. H. King, chemistry; E. C. Aubel, associate professor of animal husbandry; J. T. Willard, vice president; Prof. E. T. Keith, journalism; E. J. Wimmer, assistant professor of zoology; Prof. L. F. Payne, poultry husbandry; Louise M. Everhardy, associate professor of art; V. Twenty-three photographers submitted pictures for the exhibit. This is the first time there has been an exhibit of this kind here. The display will be up for two weeks.

AN UNSUNG PART OF THE COLLEGE

Late last night Collegian staff members were unable to confirm the report that Dwight Ball's death in the college hospital yesterday was the first ever to occur there. However, if the report is true, the college health department under the direction of Dr. C. M. Siever should come in for a goodly amount of commendation.

The number of cases receiving treatment by the hospital staff each school year reaches a total which no doubt would surprise many who are unfamiliar with its routine activities. A great number of the cases treated are those of injured athletes, many of them with slight injuries, but some who are in serious conditions. The college hospital handles almost exclusively contagious diseases contracted by students. Other cases requiring the same amount of care and attention are also treated there.

The activities of the hospital and the health officials of the school go unsung until a situation of this nature arises to emphasize clearly the commendable work which is being carried on.

PERSPECTIVE

History abounds with stories of the great names of the past, men who had few books to read. It is always mentioned in the biographies of Lincoln that he had access to few books. Washington, too, had a meager library when a boy, historians tell us. And the fact is always listed as a handicap, a drawback.

The point may be well-taken. However, the modern tendency seems to be toward people with too many books. Readers are surfeited, inundated by the flood of volumes. One hears everywhere the plaint, "Oh, there are so many books that I should read, that I never get around to reading any of them." The enormity of the mass of bpoks, worthwhile books, which should be read, appalls the potential reader.

If the student who has this defeatist attitude will pick out a list of the really good books of the ages, being aided in this admittedly difficult task by someone with true rare judgment, and will confine his reading to those, he will come nearer to achieving true education than if he dipped and skimmed through the confused mass of available books.—University Daily Kansan.

THE DILEMMA OF THE AVERAGE VOTER

During the past four months the American voter has been the center of a barrage of political progaganda. Some newspapers have handed him biased editorials and partisan news reports; over the radio politicians have told him their views, have been called liars, and have in turn refuted these accusations.

Out of the melee of conflicting reports the man who has time and interest may sift out the truth and vote intelligently. But the average voter who devotes only a few minutes to newspaper reading, who picks up his views on the street car and in the work shop, has no chance for the necessary rational consideration.

The average voter can hardly be condemned for unintelligent voting. He doesn't know what papers are partisan. He hasn't the time to figure out what part of speeches are true. He has become distrustful of political medicine men. He has only his own prejudices and mental stereotypes to tell him for whom to vote. The result may be seen next month.—The Oklahoma Daily.

The Snooper

"Whoooooops! Girls, you MUST come ovah! We Betas are always up to something tricky. This time it's the duckiest rummage sale imaginable. What is it for you Mrs. Moskowitz, women's unmentionables? Department three please. Over here we have the latest creations of Omar, the Tentmaker, and can you imagine where they came from? You WOULD think of the Kappa house, you danged old rummy!" The house of Beta shook Aggieville last week end with the announcement of it's rummage sale. "Everything goes," they said, "from the cheese on rye left over from last year's pig dinner to the Gunn's go-to-war model Cadillac. We know we're licked and we're doing a fade-out, see? Our charter goes to Kappa Sigma and our pledges go to S. A. E., since they ratholed all our prospects this fall anyway. We're moving to a little vine-covered cottage on First Street. It's equipped with a duck, a cow, and a bin full of Jonathans. The crepe over our fireplace is symbolic of the man that nobody found on the second floor."

Seriously, we are wondering what the, how the, and similarly, why the, but the Betas are not putting out any info. as to their sale. Our guess is that somebody forgot to pay his bill. If that is it, we suggest rummage sales for Sigma Nu, A. T. O., S. A. E., II. K. A., Farm and Home (or is it Farm House?), T. K. E., Delta Shelters, the dorm, the Rexall, the Palace, the Canteen, and any others that haven't been mentioned.

The two week-end parties were washouts as far as hue, cry, and ribaldry were concerned. All of that took place in the hotel. The ballroom was merely a place to go when the rest cure was needed. The music was merely to entertain the chaperones. Good will tours to all points of interest on floors two and three were the main events of the evening. One of the fire hoses was found to measure a fraction over 50 feet. We've always entertained the idea that they were used in cases of conflagration but they also prove to be excellent material for sounding the depths of elevator shafts. The back, or freight elevator is much slower than the front, or guest elevator. The back one does the '-don't-know-how-many-floors in about eight seconds, whereas the front one with an open throttle will do it in three seconds flat, barring major accidents. Last year during the time trials the front one did it in two and eight-tenths. If you inquire around you will find that the back, or freight one, is the much more comfortable and scenic trip, and gives one time to throw goboons over transoms on floors one, three, and five. Inquire at the Pi Beta Phooey house for additional information.

Live Stock Note: The bull pups, Whiskey and Soda, lately of the vicinity of the Spanish Village, are doing nicely at their new home, the H. K. A. house. Soda has gotten over his dislike for pancakes and milk and can now consume a whole ham without any ill effects. The dogs concealed themselves in a burlap bag one night and weren't discovered until the following day when they were found in bed with Maxwell and Vinckers. Soda disliked his rations of milk and cornpone from the start and showed it by action in a very disgusting manner. All that is over now and they are both fitting themselves nicely to their new surroundings.

On Other Hills

If your name is Brown, you might stand a good chance on making the football team in various universities. For instance, at Brown university, two tackles named L. C. Brown and R. K. Brown were opposed in a game with Springfield last month by a halfback named R. B. Brown. Other Browns well known in football circles are Captain Brown, Southern California; Brown, Army; Brown, Georgia; Brown, Oregon, and Brown, Wesleyan.

For 61 years there has been a ban on dancing at Ohio Northern university. Last Saturday the school had its first dance since 1871, after an increase in opposition from the student body. But 61 years is a long time for any college not to allow students to participate in the gentle art of dancing.

Whether or not you inhale, here's something you can put in your pipe and smoke. Drs. Frederick Coller and W. G. Maddock of the University of Michigan report that when you smoke you cool your fingers and toes from one to nine degrees while at the same time your blood pressure and pulse rate increase. The experiments were conducted on persons of college age to determine the effects of tobacco on the circulation of the blood as a part of the study of the mysterious Buerger's disease.

Helen of Troy has been revived. Harriet Louise Touton, junior at the University of Southern California, was named 1932 Helen of Troy to reign as queen of the campus "hijinx" (whatever that is) on Dec. 5. This "whatever it is" is held in connection with the homecoming celebration at the university.

Hobos displaying tin cans, gunny sacks, and patches, were thick on the campus at K. U. last Friday, in celebration of the annual Hobo day, annual pre-Missouri-Kansas game rally. Contrary to the order of the day the embryo lawyers appeared in their "Sunday best."

Don't worry if you flunked a couple of subjects this nine weeks. Here's what a professor at K. U. says: "There have been many flunkers among the geniuses of the world, so cheer up!" He doesn't think great minds will respond to the dull, mechanical, routine situation, created in our school system.

Hero worshipping co-eds and autograph collectors were probably somewhat embarassed recently when an imposter, claiming to be the famous Bert Metzger, all-American guard at Notre Dame three years ago, visited the University of North Carolina campus. Before being identified as a fake, he was "wined and dined" by scores of admiring students. He is still at large.

Do you have pink tooth brush? If you were a student at the University of Wichita, and could prove that you were a victim to this malady, you are eligible to the new coeducational Greek society, Alphatosis Forority. Rushing takes the form of a foot race.

Freshmen and sophomores will get one more chance to fight it out at Oklahoma A. & M. A pushball contest will be held on the campus, in which the boys are allowed anything but kicking and slugging.

START INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Contests Open With Number of Fast Teams Entered to Represent Different Organiations.

The intramural basketball season starts this week with a number of fast teams entered to represent the different organizations and independents.

Eighteen games will be played during the week representing almost twice as many organizations. The independent teams in the past have shown the greater amount of winning ability but this year it looks as though every team will give a real battle for the top berth.

Women's Sports

Members of the Purple Pepsters will entertain the members of the Kansas university pep club, the Jay Janes, at a luncheon next Saturday noon just before the K. U.-Aggie game.

Plans are being made, according to Dorothy Maltby, McPherson, president of the Purple Pepsters, to hold the luncheon in a private dining room at the Wareham hotel. Each member will be responsible for the entertaining of one Jay Jane.

The Purple Pepsters are also planning a stunt to be given in the grandstand during the game.

The sophomore majors won the class tennikoits tournament by defeating the senior majors in a close game last Thursday. The class team were made up of the best players in the intramural tournament. Each of the four classes was represented by two teams, one of physical education majors and one of non-majors.

The members of the winning team are Elizabeth Battersby, Saline, Rita Brown, Edmond, Arlene Smith, Topeka, Lois Stingley, Manhattan, Lois Rosencrans, Manhattan.

Intramural volley ball teams are practicing this week, and the tournament will start next Monday.

At the Theatres

AT THE WAREHAM
"Kongo"

Hollywood make-up artists went on a spree and you'll have a hard time recognizing Walter Huston as "Dead-Legs Flint," a fiendish monomaniac who has built up an intricately devised system of revenge against one man, whom he finally finds in his power in the midst of an African jungle.

All the hideous thrills and gruesome horrors of voodooism seem to be represented and will both fascinate and repulse you. Virginia Bruce (now Mrs. John Gilbert) does an outstanding portrayal as the white girl who is the victim of a horrible joke of fate. As a derelict doctor, half-crazed by drugs, Conrad Nagel shares honors with Huston and Miss Bruce. Lupe Velez flits in and out, vaguely complicating things and fascinating the men.

It's not a pretty picture. But if you like your blood running cold now and then, go to "Kongo" with this exceptional cast.—E. G.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Hold 'Em Jail"

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey are growing a little stale. As two novelty salesmen, framed and convicted, they have a perfect set-up for what could be one of the funniest shows this year. But they fail to click. For some reason their cracks aren't as funny as they once were. However, they still have the same facial expressions, and you can laugh at them.

Edna May Oliver is funny though. That terribly homely face of hers goes into all sorts of contortions when she practices her vocal lessons. She gets a lot of the laughs.

Wheeler and Woolsey, after getting themselves in the bad graces of the warden, win his favor when they carry the ball over the goal line in the annual clash with the rival prison. Their method of making touchdowns was at least novel.

Betty Grable, the lovely blond with those nice eyes, isn't given a chance to do anything but look beautiful and dumb.—E. D.

AT THE VARSITY
"Life Begins"

If you still believe in the stork, I'd advise your seeing "Life Begins." For the story is laid in a city hospital maternity ward. Babies are born, babies die; mothers live, and mothers die. Life, in this show, begins in the delivery room or ends there.

Loretta Young, one of Hollywood's sweetest looking actresses is beautiful as the expectant mother who is released from prison only long enough to give birth to the child of Eric Linden, her young husband. Miss Young is serving a 20-year sentence for the murder of a man. . . . but for some reason you never know who he is nor why she killed him.

Eric Linden as the expectant father is a pathetic figure. He does some of his best work to date in this picture.

Aline McMahon, the office girl in "Blessed Event," steals part of the show as a sympathetic nurse in the maternity ward. And Glenda Farrell, the unfortunate chorus girl who becomes the mother of unwanted twins, is perfectly cast. When she sings Frankie and Johnnie you laugh at the ridiculousness of it all, even though tears are streaming down your cheeks.

The directors are to be commended for their delicate handling of this story, which despite its frankness, is not offending.

It's a powerful picture, one you'll never forget.—E. D.

Watch that forward pass in one of our new Metallic Turbans—very chic and smart. They come in high shades and give color to your ensemble—and to the game—reasonably priced at $1.90 and $2.90. Wareham Hat Shop—Wareham Theatre Bldg. Adv.

They're Milder

Calling a cigarette mild doesn't make it mild. Chesterfield starts at the beginning, by using the right kind of mild, ripe tobaccos . . . Then Chesterfield ages and cures its tobacco just right. And scientific research has perfected a unique method of "Cross-Blending" that makes Chesterfield consistently milder and better-tasting.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . To Hal Doolittle, noble member of Sigma Nu, this challenge is given: Bring boxing gloves, bare fists, water pistol, or tennis racket—the duel is on. The writer of this column would like to meet you behind the stadium (or in front if you prefer) with the necessary equipment above-mentioned to fight one of the deadliest duels ever to be fought. Now that you have insulted our ability to get around to parties (and the truth does hurt) and have ridiculed our appearance to the degree that you have described us as a short, skinny, curly-haired spectacle-trimmed, bull-necked "know-nothing" MALE, we are determined to avenge the wrong done us. We wish the next column to carry in banner head, the announcement of the complete extinction of one useless city-bred bone-head Sigma Nu, known to the erstwhile public as Halbert Hollingsworth Doolittle of Kansas City, Mo. The name Eugenia, my son, is a derivative of the masculine name, Eugene, but in case you haven't learned—the ending "ia" designates that our name became feminine upon derivation. And to think we have often been so unfortunate as to dance a round or two with you at a varsity. That alone deserves vengeance. With "King of the Freshmen" Smith and Marjorie Lyles as your seconds, prepare to defend the blasphemous remarks made in the presence of the white star chapter concerning the writer of this "dirt" column before Thursday dawn . . . .

. . . . Beauvais—long may it live after it's complete fade-out Friday night. We shall long remember it, though many are the memories which fail when that party is recalled . . . . The Pi Phi's and Chi Omega's ran neck and neck for honors as to the greatest number of representatives there . . . . And Dame Rumor has it that just ten couples (if not more) had the audacity to crash the dinner and dance—that didn't take nerve, just downright brass . . . . Ned Kimball had a bad time getting to the party, it seems. With hopes of getting a bid to the Pi Phi party (we assume that as others have) he asked a maiden to the Beauvais wrangle. It seems that this young coed had done our Neddie a bad turn in not giving that much sought-after bid to her party. With reckless fervor, on the day of the Bovoe fling, he forced (if our hero could do such a thing) one of the fraternity brothers into taking the girl instead, for the younger Kimball was plenty perturbed that such an innocent girl could do such a dirty trick as not to ask our Beta highlight to the Pi Beta Phi affair. After a piece of the maiden's mind had been delivered to our villian via the telephone (that's the spirit, Dorothy), Tom's little brother weakened and condescended to take the girl. But oh! the prevarication that our Neddie did attempt to feed the innocent Pi Phi. But my! how the chapter and Dorothy did guffaw to think that "Intelligencia" Kimball thought that his story had "gone over." All in all, the incident is just another example of childishness—just that "baby pink and baby blue." . . . .

. . . . And who can give us the answer to these few inquiries?—Why is Harry Hasler's derby no more? . . . . Did Elizabeth Mountain really buy her own corsage for the Pi Phi party? . . . . Why did Max Frockele sleep in the Pi K A front yard one night last week end? . . . . Why did Brick Garrison insist upon visiting the Pi Phi house, Saturday night (or Sunday morning?) . . . . Who broke a date with Red Clency to a party this last week end? . . . . Does Jack Going really have water on his knee? . . . . Did Mark Babb locate the right fire, Friday night? . . . . Will Barney Swain ever learn Don Collins name isn't Harter? . . . . Will Davie Umberger's fall at Beauvais teach him a thing or two? . . . . Was Ella Fout's suntan back as revealed by her formal, Friday night, real or acquired? . . . . Does Ernestine Merritt really like Steve Vesescky? . . . . And last but not least aren't you glad I am signing off for a spell? . . . .

Something for pipe smokers to think about!

ABOUT 1864, farmers began to grow White Burley Tobacco. A few casks were taken to the St. Louis Fair in 1867 and sold for 58c a pound.

White Burley Tobacco is used to make Granger. It is the best pipe tobacco that grows.

You will notice the difference as soon as you light up your pipe of Granger. It burns slower, smokes cooler and never gums a pipe.

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the noted artist, N. C. Wyeth . . . inspired by the infamous Captain Kidd's fierce raids on the gold-laden Spanish galleons (1696), which made him the scourge of the Spanish Main. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

EYES OF KANSAS ON GRID CLASSIC

Grads and Undergraduates Plan Big Day

STUDENTS AND ALUMNI ASSURED AN UNUSUAL DAY

GALAXY OF EVENTS WILL START WITH PEP MEETING TONIGHT IN PARK.

Plenty of Bitter Scrapping Will Be in Evidence in First Battle Since 1927.

With two great pep rallies listed among the events for the annual Homecoming celebration, students and alumni members are assured one of the most outstanding Homecoming days since the oldest grad was graduated.

The galaxy of events will start with a rousing pep meeting tonight in the city park, where a huge bonfire will be the big attraction for enthusiastic rooters. The band will be there to, to add to the cheering and noise-making and lead the parade to the downtown section where a free show awaits the throng of game enthusiasts. More than 100 flaming flares and torches will be seen amidst the marching mob as they parade to the theatre tonight. The pep meeting will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The last pep meeting of the season will be held in the auditorium Saturday morning, at 10 o'clock. As this is the final chance football fans will have to display their enthusiasm for the game against K. U. tomorrow, it is believed this rally will attract a large number of students and alumni. Dr. H. H King, head of the department of chemistry, will act as chairman of the meeting. Prof. M. F. (Mike) Ahearn, director of athletics, heads the list of speakers. His subject will be "High Lights of the Past." Rev. W. U. ("Bill") Guerrant and Henry Cronkite, Aggie football captain of last year's team, are also listed as speakers. The college band will also be present at the pep meeting.

A tug-of-war between members of the freshmen class and upperclassmen heads the extra entertainment at the football game Saturday. A good sized rope, 100 feet long has been secured and the class struggle will take place between halves during the football game. This is the first tug-of-war that has been scheduled since 1927, and plenty of bitter scrapping will be in evidence when the upper classmen defend themselves against members of the freshman group.

In accordance with an old time custom during Homecoming, fraternity houses have been decorated, and a committee consisting of three members will judge the decorations this afternoon between 4

PROF. CHARLES AUTHOR OF MAGAZINE ARTICLE

"New Farm Crops Are Made to Order" Published in Farm Publication.

Prof. F. E. Charles of the department of journalism is the author of an article published in the October and November issue of "Better Crops and Plant Food." The article, entitled "New Farm Crops Are Made to Order," is a discussion of crop-improvement work in the Kansas agricultural experiment station.

Professor Charles tells of the plant breeding and testing work of Kansas State as a typical example of how new varieties of crop plants are developed. He discusses in some detail the work of Dr. J. H. Parker, plant breeder at Kansas State, of Prof. H. H. Laude, supervisor of station and cooperative variety tests, and of Dr. S. C. Salmon, formerly in charge of variety testing at the Kansas station and now head of wheat investigations for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Miss Amy Kelly, state demonstration leader attended the farm women's program at the American Royal yesterday.

START WEEKEND FESTIVITIES DAY AHEAD OF TIME

MORE THAN 300 STUDENTS STORM WAREHAM FOR PRE-HOMECOMING DANCE.

Learned That Band Was to Rehearse and Various Organizations Are Notified.

Homecoming events and weekend festivities took place a day ahead of schedule last night, when more than 300 students stormed the Wareham ball-room at 10 o'clock for the first mid-week dance of the semester.

The pre-Homecoming dance was a result of rumors circulating over the campus yesterday afternoon to start the annual celebration one day ahead of the proposed time. Plans for the blowing of the college whistle, the signal for all that the dance was on, failed when students designated to perform the

LIGHT PRACTICE SESSIONS FEATURE FINAL MANEUVERS OF WILDCATS

INJURIES ON BOTH SQUADS HAVE BEEN PREVALENT DURING PAST WEEK— MITCHELL WILL NOT PLAY.

TICKET SALES HAVE BEEN REPORTED FAIRLY HEAVY

Dr. F. C. Allen Issues Statement to Press that Good Weather Prevails—Heavy Snow in Eastern Part of State Cause Drop-Off In Sales.

Light practice sessions will be the schedule for the Kansas university—Kansas State college football teams this afternoon as they complete preparations for the annual Kansas classic Saturday afternoon on Ahearn field. The Jayhawkers will arrive in Manhattan for the game about 12:30 o'clock Saturday noon.

A final check of the injuries on both squads shows that all but five regular players, four at Kansas and one at Kansas State will be ready to start the game Saturday. Lloyd Michael, Wildcat center, will be the only one from the college here who is not likely to start the game. Michael has been confined to his bed since last week and was able to get up for a short time Thursday afternoon. He is still in the hospital and is likely to remain there until Saturday. He has been running a temperature and Thursday was the first day he did not have a temperature.

Smith Not to Start.

Carnie Smith and Ray Dumm will not start the game, having been on the injured list, but both will enter the game, it was indicated by Coach Ad Lindsey. Dick Weaver and James Brazil are the only Jayhawks who will not play, Lindsey stated. Weaver received an injury in the Missouri game that will keep him from the game and Brazil will be kept out because of scholastic reasons.

The stadium field here is in excellent condition for the game and Dr. F. C. Allen, who was in Manhattan Thursday, agreed that the weather here was ideal for the game. In fact he notified Lawrence papers by telephone to that effect and issued a statement to the press associations. He also broadcast over the radio station KFBI urging fans to attend and not to hold back because of the snow in the eastern part of the state.

Ticket sales for the game have been fairly heavy. Lawrence and Kansas City sales fell off the early part of this week when the heavy snow storm hit that section of the state.

Coach A. N. McMillin continued to work on his defense for the Jayhawk contest. A freshman team under Chili Cochrane executed Kansas plays while McMillin and his assistants watched the defensive play of the varsity. All of those likely to play in the contest tomorrow were inserted into the lineup from time to time.

Work on Offensive Plays.

The last part of the evening's session was given over to working on offensive plays. All of the plays likely to be used were executed under the watchful eyes of the coaches.

Early this week the practice sessions were somewhat ragged because of the cold weather, but the players apparently got warmed up by Thursday night and were doing their work more satisfactory. The coaches continued to discover mistakes which they called to the attention of the various players.

Ken Harter worked out at center for a time Thursday night, this being his first time since the Iowa State game. Jack Wiseman received much attention during the session. It is likely he will take Harter's place in the lineup should Harter get hurt. John Meyers also took a turn at the center position. Harry Hasler was back at right end and apparently is likely to play there during the game, alternating with Shelby Neelly.

Coach McMillin will use a team of veterans against the invading Jayhawkers and attempt to overcome any jinx which may exist. Kansas has won every game played on the local field since Coach McMillin came to Kansas State college and although the Wildcats have taken the games at Lawrence they hope to win this home game. Another jinx to overcome is that Kansas has won every game played away from home this year

4-H HOLDS DANCE

The Collegiate 4-H club held a dance in recreation center, Friday night. Music was furnished by Jack Burke's orchestra. About 200 were present.

N. U. and O. U. Are Decided Favorites In Chamqionship Race

When the Oklahoma university football team defeated Iowa State Saturday they assured themselves of a first division berth in the 1932 Big Six conference race. The O. U. team Monday night began work on perfecting an offense that will confound the big Nebraska squad Nov. 19.

The game is extremely crucial to both teams as If Coach Lewie Hardage's Sooners should check in a surprise victory they would be at least sure of a tie with the Cornhuskers for the championship. And if Missouri then should defeat or even tie Nebraska at Lincoln on Thanksgiving day, Oklahoma would win a clean cut pennant. Nebraska is of course the decided favorite.

The runners up for the championship are Kansas State and Kansas university. If Kansas State beats K. U. then the K-Aggies will be in third place or even second if Oklahoma and Nebraska should tie but If K. U. wins then the Jayhawkers will take this position.

Missouri comes next with only one win in the conference, that of defeating the mighty Oklahoma team in a flashing 14 to 6 victory. Iowa State is the under dog. Although the Cyclones have not scored a win this season, they held the Missouri Tigers to a scoreless tie.

BETTY CO-ED AND JOE COLLEGE REIGN AGAIN

Nominations Must Be in the Hands Of Don Compton by December 1.

Kansas State will soon be able to claim a real Betty Co-ed and Joe College to be representative of the student body.

Nominations for these candidates may be made by a petition signed by twenty students and one faculty member. These petitions must be made to Betty Co-ed and Joe College Contest, Manhattan Theatre, and be in the hands of Don Compton in the public speaking office by Thursday noon, December 1.

Election will be by popular vote of all students and faculty members in Anderson hall, Tuesday, December 7.

Awards for the winners of the contest have been ordered and will be on display in Aggieville the week following Thanksgiving vacation. The Joe College award is a felt banner bearing the lettering "Joe College—Kansas State College—Fall '32-33," and the Betty Co-ed award is a felt pillow bearing the lettering "Betty Co-ed — Kansas State College—Fall '32-33."

The three high candidates in both sections will be given reserved seat tickets to the next production of the Manhattan Theatre, "The Spider," to be produced December 8 and 9. The winners of the contest will be announced the night of the play.

All candidates must have a C average for the present year.

Game Tomorrow Is Swan Song for Eight Kansas State Players

When the whistle blows for the game to start tomorrow, eight Kansas State Wildcats will be suited up for their last game in which they will ever participate in college football. Although nine men are graduating from the ranks of Bo McMillin's school, only one back, Emmet Breen, ElDorado, will be lost to the team for next season. Breen came to Kansas State from Bethany college where he attended one year. He has played two years of football for Coach McMillin and it is a great loss to the K-Aggie team to lose a man like Breen. Breen has also lettered in track and basketball.

Captain Walter Zeckser, Alma, three year letterman at guard, will also be a great loss to the K-Aggie eleven next season along with Lloyd "Mike" Michael, star center. Michael has likewise lettered three times and is considered one of the best centers in the middle west.

Ranking along with the other two linemen is Neil Weybrew, Wamego. Weybrew plays a tackle position and when he gets mad, is plenty tough. Harry Hasler, ElDorado, end, will also be playing his last game against K. U. Both of these men have played three years for Kansas State.

WELCOME GRADS AND K. U.

To the alumni, Kansas university students, and friends of this college, Kansas State extends a sincere welcome. May they enjoy themselves while here.

Alumni returning to the campus they love so well will find an enthusiastic group of students ready to greet them and listen to the stories of former college days. Fraternity and sorority houses are opening wide their doors to old members and those of Kansas chapters. The faculty is looking forward to seeing its students of bygone days. Manhattan friends and merchants are anticipating the renewing of acquaintances.

University students will find a spirit of hospitality prevailing. Kansas State is proud to have other native sons and daughters visit the college, and enjoy the social life in Manhattan.

Kansas State, unlike Missouri, will not criticise its guests after they have gone. It will be only glad that they came. And will hope they'll come again.

WHAT PRICE COLLEGE

Is college worth the price? Does the good received balance the disillusionment and moral and intellectual laxity sometimes developed?

Many writers have said that college makes the man but they have failed to mention that it sometimes breaks him. They have spoken of the enlightenment he received socially and intellectually but they have passed over his mental and physical breakdowns. The modern youth comes of college age, buys a raccoon coat and sets out to pledge a fraternity. He has not been prepared for the heartbreaks or the disillusionments in store for him. So he goes blissfully to college, perhaps he pledges, perhaps he doesn't, but whether or not he is a fraternity man he finally bumps up against social problems which are, by his old standards, unconventional. He may in time reach that state where he is unable to distinguish the right from the wrong. Or again, he may, if overworked during his university career, go into life physically and mentally broken.

Of course, the majority are not so affected but the mincrity's outlook is warped and their health broken. Does college pay for them?—University Daily Kansan.

Colleges and Radicalism

It is a rather well-beloved belief of the folks back home that American colleges are hot-beds of radicalism. On the surface this would seem to be correct. The undergraduate political activities which are mentioned are usually those of ate is really the most consrv taoin shrdlu cc But when compared with the altivities of European universities, the American undergraduate is really the most conservative person in the world. Whereas revolutions in Europe have almost always originated in the universities, the American undergraduate is almost totally uninterested in politics.

It is rather common knowledge that the average college man in this country holds to conservative beliefs because it is easier to maintain the traditions than to cut new paths.

What the American college conservative should try to do is to develop his opinions in logical form. In any school where a fair degree of academic freedom is maintained, it is only natural to expect that there will be a sharp division of opinion.

Conservatives who have reached their viewpoint through the process of logic can exercise as much influence as any radical on the campus. But when conservatism is used as a cloak for indifference, or mental laziness, the natural result will be that those individuals who have reached a radical position through logical reasoning are the ones who will exercise the most influence and receive the most notice.—The Silver (A) Gold.

The Snooper

Get out your woolens and hot water bags, the week-end is going to be a big one but a cold one. For the first time in their lives the freshman fraternity group will witness and be a part, an integral part, of homecoming. Scrority pledges will put up with the whims of tottering, jabbering, old ladies. Fraternity freshmen will sleep in clothes hampers, coal bins, and makeshift hammocks. They will be kept in constant motion to supply homecomers with near beers which with a simple twist of the wrist will be encounters) and will probably meet the freshmen in pitched battle during the four quarters of the game. As an added feature, there will be a game between the Kansas State and Kansas university football teams at the half.

Also, at the pep meeting tonight at the auditorium the freshmen are coming dressed in "fairly old clothes," equipped with torches, lanterns, and bonfires, and will be "prepared for events unforeseen". We, as upper classmen, were not conscious that we had the freshman student body so thoroughly irritated. Last year 10,000 howling freshmen started to march through Aggieville in protest of the cap regulations, and a drunken Greek stood on the corner and wouldn't let them go by. (borrowed).

Russ Thackrey, one of the Simon Legrees of the journalism department, has ceased tearing his few hairs since the corrected sign, "No Journalism Lecture This Week" has been put up. Russ come very, very far beers.

And you may see a wrathful freshman group at the game too and also. The freshmen held a mass meeting the other night and organized into the "Freshman Society for the Prevention of Further Paddling at the Hands of Certain Mugs We Don't Like." They will come to the game with especially constructed paddles hidden in their long side-whiskers. The fraternities are not in on this. On the other hand, the upperclassmen have received a shipment of riot guns, tear bombs, and soft pies (for short range explained with illustrations and gestures that the word "seminar" which had been in the sign before, meant a student discussion of scientific problems. The journalism lecture, he said, was not that and therefore could not be so termed. At that very minute signs were being put up to the effect that there would be no journalism "seminar" this week, Miss Hostetter used the word in the Industrialist, and the editor of this rag used it on the front page. Within the last two days fresh signs have been put up, "There will be no journalism LECTURE this week", and Russ gets a much needed rest.

Another story from this department has it that Dorotha Hadsell, in writing up a show review, got her oceans mixed up and informed Collegian readers that a scene took place "on a trans-Atlantic liner from San Francisco to Hongkong."

On Other Hills

Seventy-five grads of Oklahoma A. & M. recently asked the school for the latest songs and yells of their Alma Mater. In preparing for the homecoming event, it was decided the antique yells and songs that used to have effect on the school would not be appreciated now.

Three Iowa State students have found a way to successfully defeat the depression. They have formed the Iowa Engineering Company of Des Moines, a commercial physicist concern to give themselves employment.

Prohibition is a big issue at Southern Methodist university of Dallas, Texas. A prohibition club, the purpose of which is to strengthen public sentiment for law observance and enforcement, educationally, rather than politically, has been organized on the campus.

Reports of mid-semester grades at the University of North Carolina show that 1460 students are flunking. This is a little better than half of the student body, as there is a total enrollment of about 2800.

Horseshoe pitching contests are now being held by sororities at the University of Tennessee. Although this is the first year the girls have participated in such an event, it is reported the game has aroused a good deal of interest.

Students at the University of Utah, who have shown an interest in the Russian language, might get a chance to learn the lingo in the class room, with no credit given for the course.

After a maximum loss of $526.79 on one dance last year, the all-campus affairs at Ohio State will be assured of making expenses this year. A recent edict prohibits the dances unless they are guaranteed against loss by a sufficient number of students.

Blind dates are in fashion at the University of Nebraska. A blind date chart will feature the November issue of the Awgwan. A list of the names of girls who accept blind dates, their telephone numbers, and their addresses, will appear in the issue to satisfy the desires of men students of the university.

JUDGING TEAMS PLACE AT AMERICAN ROYAL

Meats, Livestock, and Grain Judging Teams Win in Annual Contests at Kansas City Show.

Beating Iowa State by only three points, the Kansas State meat judging team won another first place in the American Royal contest at Kansas City Tuesday, November 15, scoring 2,296 points out of a possible 2,700.

All three active members of the Kansas State team were high in the contest. John I. Miller made the highest individual score, 814 points out of a possible 900. Lawrence R. Daniels, St. Francis, was fourth high individual and Gaylord Munson, Junction City, was eighth. Harold Kugler, Abilene, acted as alternate. Prof. L. J. Bratzler, of the animal husbandry department, coached the team.

SWAN SONG FOR EIGHT WILDCAT GRIDSTERS

Lining up at another position is Shelby Neelly, Hopewell, and at another tackle is Henry "Hank" Dalton, Ottawa. These two men are old stand bys in the K-Aggie offense and will be a sore loss to the team next season.

L. B. Pilcher, Glasco, will also be ready for his last game. Pilcher was hurt in the early part of the season and has not been able to be in the lineup since. It has only been in the last two weeks that he has been able to scrimmage.

These eight men have made up the bulk of the defensive team this season and it will take Coach McMillin some little time next fall to develop another eleven like the one of this season.

Miss Helen Saum and Miss Katherine Geyer of the physical education department motored to Kansas City Thursday to attend the American Royal show.

M. A. Seaton, extension poultryman, went to Crawford county yesterday to inspect poultry.

It haunted clerks for generations

"The first of the month" used to be a time of feverish activity for ledger clerks. But the Bell System accounting staff — breaking away from tradition — simplified the keeping of accounts and rendering of monthly statements to customers.

They applied a modern system of rotation billing to the telephone business which now spreads this work evenly throughout the month. In cooperation with manufacturers, they devised special typewriters and bookkeeping machines. Thus they did away with inefficient rush and achieved greater accuracy, speed and neatness.

This is but one example of a point of view found throughout the Bell System. Even long accepted routine is constantly studied — it's always worth looking for the more efficient way!

THE young man is saying the reason he smokes Chesterfields is because they satisfy.

The young lady agrees with him She says: "They click with me, too. I'm not what you'd call a heavy smoker. But even I can tell that they're milder. Besides, I always have a kind of feeling that Chesterfields taste better."

She's right. Chesterfields are just as pure and wholesome as Nature and Science can make them. And we have upwards of 90 millions of dollars invested to ensure their mildness and better taste.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . With Homecoming in sight, we've decided to get everything we know off our chest this time—for no doubt after this week end we'll have enough news for the column the rest of the season. Perhaps we'll get to run an editorial next time similar to the one the M. U. school paper ran after their Homecoming activities. But then we're all better souls—and we know our alumni are—than the folks in the "show-me" university . . . . We've just hit upon the idea to run this as a "Do-you-know" column. We do—so we want you to be just as wise—and the stadium should buzz, Saturday . . . .

. . . . We're taking in the past, present, and future—with malice toward everyone, and friendship toward no one . . . . So here goes—DO YOU KNOW—that Cece Miller has proved to himself the old saying "Absence makes the heart grow fonder—for somebody else", consequently he has written to Greensburg for the pin he put out last summer? . . . . that we had the above item in our copy last time but it was unmercifully cut before it got to the printer by none other than Jaconette Lawrence—and we ask you why that should have been any business of hers? . . . . that Orin Grover called Max Fockele a sissy and purty nigh upset our Pika mascot? . . . . that the Phi Sigs have a rule that freshmen must go to chapel unless they have dates—punishment for the bachelors? . . . . that Thelma "Tiny" Large isn't really as snobbish as she would appear? . . . . that Lee Morgan bought a new tux collar for the Pi Phi party and then didn't get to go? . . . . that Katherine Reid chews gum with wim, wigger, and witality? . . . . that Pete Fairbank gave the definition for buttress as a college coed? . . . . that Johnnie Moore (Alpha Xi of last year) is married to Harold Mangelsdorf (former K. S. C. student and a Phi Delt) and is living in Boston Mass.? . . . .

. . . . Just a stop for breath and—now DID YOU KNOW—that it is rumored that Johnny "Nosey" Barr and Katherine Hugenin, in a stage show at the Dickinson, Saturday night, are to tie the knot that will commence their connubial partnership—and that, Innocents, refers to matrimony . . . . that Ione Hill and Swede Salisbury are never seen without one or the other—developing another college romance? . . . . Wek Coblentz was discovered plucking Betty Wagstaff's eyebrows in the Alpha Xi parlor? . . . . that Duke DuMars and Frances Bell exchanged none-too-pleasant words over the telephone last Tuesday night? . . . . that Ralph "Rammer" Graham is what the college miss would term "a perfect dancer"? . . . . that someone thought Beauvais was an organization for architects? . . . . that John Wilcox has a "sweetheart" (that's so old fashioned sounding) at K. U. ? . . . . that it would be best for the Pi Phis never to travel in Hungary since the arrow is so symbolical of ??? over there? . . . . that Hal Doolittle threatens to seek revenge for what we printed about him last time—that Sigma Nu's can vouch for the truth of the statement we published? . . . .

. . . . If you're still with me—HAD YOU KNOWN—that Emmett Breen is giving one of the Sigma Nu freshmen background for a wild west story—and that Dannie Blaine says Emmett is getting his knowledge for the background from the Wild West and Cowboy magazines over at the Rexall? . . . . that Arline Smith and Elmer Black are also seen together so frequently? . . . . that Leland Shaffer (the football player) is called "Romeo" because he's supposed to have had three dates in one afternoon? . . . . that Tad Brooks was seen hanging out the Scheu's washing one morning—and also, that he set the breakfast table for the family one night before he left Louise? . . . . that John Rever (the Phi Delt alumnus who used to give the "going-to Germany-to-school" rush talk each fall) is assisting with the football team at Parsons and is also a popcorn vender with two popcorn machines of his own . . . . that Sid Robinson makes at least one trip to Lawrence every week to see Lewida—and she doesn't have that pin back yet? . . . . that Big George Maddox (Oss' little brother) is known as Golden Locks? . . . . that Joel Kesler is opposed to drinking? . . . . that Pete Pocock has often been mistaken for an alumnus? . . . . that Beryl Brummett is bothered with hiccoughs? . . . . that they say Jo Donnelly is the happiest when she's with Cece Stoner? . . . . that Mildred Mowery (Tri Delt) and Ralph Exline (Delta Tau) began their courtship in high school days? . . . . that Lloyd Sconce (another football player) is a married man with two children? . . . . and that this is enough--we're exhausted? . . . .

At the Theatres

AT THE VARSITY
"You Said a Mouthful"

No matter what else is said about Joe E Brown's latest picture, "You Said a Mouthful," it is entertaining. Maybe it's not as funny as some of the things he has done, but it isn't boring—and that's a lot to say about a full length comedy.

Mr. Brown does some commendable work in this production. His "strange interludes" are particularly good.

Ginger Rogers is even more attractive than usual. Nice looking girl, that Miss Rogers.

Farina, left to Mr. Brown by his dear aunt Minnie, adds some laughs.

The story concerns a mistake in identity, with Mr. Brown (Joe Holt) being mistaken for a marathon swimmer.

This picture fits in with the spirit of the week end—E. D.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Air Mail"

Flying the mails is a he-man's job according to Universal producers, who in "Air Mail" have dramatized the life of a pilot, and given it that last touch of romance. Not romance in the usual term of the word, but romances of the skies.

Ralph Bellamy, who by the way has the nicest eyes, is chief of the desert relief post. Two of his pilots crash, one in a fog, and another on high tension wires during a snow storm. Bellamy grabs the mail sacks after each accident and carries them on to their destination. He's one of those "the mail must get through" sort of persons.

Pat O'Brien does the most convincing bit of acting in the picture as the cocky pilot who lets neither women nor storms keep him out of a plane.

Gloria Stuart furnishes the important female role, while Slim Summerville adds the comedy.

If you're air-minded you'll probably like this show. There are more than several inches of film devoted to the best stunt flying ever seen on a Manhattan screen. —E. D.

Beta Theta Pi

Beta Theta Pi announces the pledging of Joyce Wright, Topeka, Friday, November 11.

Graduate Party

Pi Beta Phi

Mrs. R. W. Torrey, Virginia Burch, and Miriam Clark spent Tuesday in Topeka. Mark Kannel, Steve Vesecky, and R. L. Parker were dinner guests Thursday evening. Ruth Helstrom, Joan Lytle, Lola Hodge, McPherson; Helen Teter, El Dorado; Marjorie Bradley, Topeka; Mildred Smith and Marny Rankin, Kansas City, will be week end guests.

Morrow-Hartzell

The marriage of Miss Ruth Morrow of Youngstown, Ohio, to Dr. Harold Hartzell, of Carrollton, Mo., over two years ago was announced Tuesday evening at the Lambda Chi Alpha house. Dr. Hartzell is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha and received his degree of doctor of veterinary medicine from Kansas State college last June. The couple were secretly married at the Presbyterian church parsonage in Junction City on May 29, 1930.

Dr. and Mrs. Hartzell left Manhattan yesterday morning to visit their parents before going to Butte, Mont., where Dr. Hartzell will open a hospital for small animals.

Martin Steffey left Wednesday for his home in Valley Falls to attend his grandfather's funeral.

EICHELBERGER TELLS OF CHINA AND JAPAN

Secretary Says Peaceful Negotiations Will Be Made Between the Countries.

"Peaceful negotiations will be made between Japan and China within another year," is the belief of Clark M. Eichelberger, secretary of the American Association of the League of Nations, as stated in the Student Forum yesterday.

Mr. Eichelberger outlined the situation as it now stands between the two countries so definitely that everyone present felt better acquainted with the countries. The League of Nations, he said, has been working for a long time on a solution and has now organized a report that shows both viewpoints in an unbiased manner. The solution offered by the League of Nations is that China should receive Manchiquo again and only the inhabitants of that country should have control of local governments such as the police force and the like.

The speaker concluded with the statement that he hoped that the people of the United States would take an interest in the matter and realize how closely related the situation is to ourselves.

CHINESE PLANTS SENT HERE

Several new varieties of Chinese plants are being sent to the college botany department from the national museum in Washington.

AIRS WORLD FAULTS IN ASSEMBLY SPEECH

States Three Crises Confronting League, Economics, Disarmament, Far East,

"War has been outlawed by the terms of the Kellog-Briand peace pact, and peace has replaced it as a means of settling world disputes," stated Carl M. Eichelberger, speaking in Thursday's assembly on "The International Situation Today."

"The world's attitude has been revolutionized," he continued. "Before the World war there was no international community and practically no international morality. Now, through the League of Nations, a medium of arbitration for even the most insignificant nations has arisen."

Eichelberger spoke of three great crises which confront the League this winter: economic, disarmament, and Far East. "The economic crisis results from the nations' desire to be self-supporting in the event of another war. Each country has surrounded itself with walls of tariff, has withdrawn from economic international economic relations. This condition will result in either primitive self-dependency or a new economic system," he continued.

That the president of the United States has advanced the most practicable plan for world disarmament in proposing a one-third cut in all nations' arms is Eichelberger's opinion. The Russian proposal for total disarmament, France's desire to be protected by an international police force, Germany's cry for equality he considers inadequate. "The arms conference to be held at Geneva next week will be of vital importance and significance," he declared, "And should France and America agree, the trend toward world disarmament will be furthered."

He stated that Japan acted in open defiance of the Kellog pact last winter, and contrary to the League agreements. "However," he said, "The Lytton report demonstrates the power of the League to investigate and settle a war situation by peaceful methods."

"We must think of politics in terms of foreign affairs. The day has passed when the greatest thing one could do for one's country was to die for it; now we must live for it," concluded the speaker.

THE JUGGERNAUT OF THE JUNGLE

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous animal painter, Paul Bransom... inspired by the savage charge of the African rhinoceros crashing through the untamed jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

The program for November 16 consisted of: "The Relation of the Dairy Industry to the Milk Inspector," Prof. W. H. Martin; "Newer Knowledge of the Food Value of Dairy Products," Prof. W. H. Riddell, who will also demonstrate how to determine the softness of curd in cows' milk. Professors W. J. Caulfield and W. H. Martin demonstrated laboratory analysis of milk samples for butter fat, total solids, sediment, and acidity. Professor Caulfield also demonstrated the Hartvet Cryoscope for the detection of added water in milk.

Thursday's program consisted of: "The Collection and Care of Bacteriological Samples," and "Bacteriology Analysis of Milk Samples," by Prof. A. C. Fay, department of bacteriology; "Human Diseases Which Are Transmitted Through Milk," Dr. E. G. Brown, secretary of the state board of health; "Rural Sanitation," E. Boyce, state dairy engineers; "Dairy Farm Inspection," J. B. Jarvis, milk inspector, Topeka, who with M. H. Miller and L. H. Hadley directed the field trip to inspect the dairy farms in the vicinity of Manhattan. Dr. E. R. Frank, department of veterinary medicine, demonstrated the methods used to detect mastitus in the dairy herd.

Today's program will include talks by M. M. Miller of the U. S. public health service on pasteurization plant inspection and inspection of the pasteurization plants in Manhattan. The afternoon speeches will include: "Undulant Fever and Its Relation to Milk." Dr. C. H. Martin will be in charge of the milk judging demonstration.

The program for Saturday will consist of a talk by Prof. A. C. Fay, department of bacteriology, on plate counting laboratory work. The rest of the afternoon will be taken up with the business meeting of the Kansas association of state and municipal dairy inspectors, and will be in charge of T. I. Dalton, president. The caurse will conclude with the attendance at the Kansas State-Kansas university football game at 2 o'clock.

ANNOUNCE DIME DANCE

Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. Will Hold Mixer Saturday Night.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. groups have announced another "dime dance" mixer to be held Saturday, Nov. 19, at recreation center in Anderson hall.

The admittance price is 10 cents to all and a program of games and dancing is planned to last from 8 to 11 o'clock. Harold Higginbottom's reproducing outfit which was used at the all school mixer will furnish the music for dancing.

The two "Y" groups are planning an extensive program for the benefit of students who will remain in town during the Thanksgiving vacation period. A dance and other entertainment is being planned by the program committee which consists of Fred Hill, William Gildersleeve and Velma Capper.

A joint program and Christmas party for the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and the 4-H club groups together will soon be announced.

Things in Art

TAOS PAINTINGS

Brilliant oil paintings by Taos painters dominate the walls of the architecture gallery.

The figures on the canvasses seem alive and ready to speak to you any moment as you look at them, marveling at their beauty and expression. The colors are rich and warm, the breezes of the desert can almost be felt as you stand there.

"The Navajo Blanket," by E. Irving Couse is among the most beautiful. The Indian buck, sitting in fire light, is done in rich shades of brown, lights and shadows play on his face as he examines the bright gorgeous blanket. $1,200 is the price asked for this picture, the highest price of any painting on display. E. Irving Couse paints for the Santa Fe railway company so can easily ask this amount for his pictures.

"The Indian Oven," by Ernest L. Blumenschein, with its purple shadows, romantic sky, mountains in the background, a 'dobie house, Indians standing around the oven, is splendid.

"The Sun Dance," by Brett, is modernistic and unusual with Indian women in vivid blankets swaying to the beats of the drum. Rhythm is felt as you watch them, waiting for them to stomp their feet.

The establishment of the Taos Society of Artists dates back more than 20 years when two painters happened into this quaint old village in the mountains of New Mexico. Satisfied that here was all the artist desired—the enchantment of the vast mountains, the beautiful coloring, and picturesque natives—these artists set to work. Other recognized artists joined them and the society grew steadily. They are isolated and creating pictures that are typically American. The society hopes to establish there an American School of Art that will be the greatest national aesthetic development since the days of the Greeks. The widespread awakening interest now evident, leads them to hope their dreams may be realized.

"My Gateway" is the only oil by Victor Higgins who is famous for his skill in his use of transparent and opaque colors, colors that come out and recede. One critic says, "The way the skies arch into the distance instead of dropping behind the hills and nearer objects stand out until you feel you could put your hand behind them, the extreme lightness of his cloud masses, the clarity of his atmospheric effects are some of the things which manifest his success."

Most of the artists whose oils are on display are connected with the national academy. No two persons in the architecture department agree as to which of the 19 paintings is the best. One chooses "The Indian Oven" by Ernest L. Blumenschein, another "My Gateway" by Victor Higgins, and still another believes the two small canvasses by Ufer to be the best. You will have your favorite also when you view the gorgeous oils.—H. D.

Among The Ags

Prof. W. H. Martin thinks the value of the latest dairy creation, that of noiseless milk bottles and milk cans, wasted on the "other" Kansas State students. He recently told an elements of dairy lecture class that students' ears have become attuned to the racket of rattletraps running 'round, so they'd probably think the milk wagon was just another spluttering, collegiate model T Ford.

Mixing bridge with flour milling is bad business according to Tibor Rozsa, Hungary. That's his reason for not being able to find a good co-ed bridge hand among the ags in the United States.

Pruning grape vines and eating apples from the apple bin at the hort farm has become a favorite past time with the hort lab classes.

Even the farm shops are becoming popular. The architects' exhibit will use show cases built there and which are to be displayed over most of the state.

As a barber, Raymond Wagner is among the best when it comes to fitting hogs for showing purposes. Last year he won second place in the little American Royal held here. And if any of the Kansas State livestock placed in Kansas City, it will have been due to his talented fingers.

Faces still radiate mirth when the latest "west ag building catastrophe" is retold. Just lately, everything in the poultry husbandry department stopped when the elevator there, stalled midway between first and second floors with Prof. H. M. Scott on it. For a whole hour Professor Scott waited before he was rescued from his plight.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Salmon have returned to their home in Washington, D. C., after a few weeks visit here. Mr. Salmon, who was a former faculty member here, is now conected with the department of agriculture in Washington.

The occupants of the Ula Dow Cottage and Ellen Richards Lodge changed places Saturday. The girls have been at these respective houses three weeks and will spend three weeks at their new residence.

CHOOSE POULTRY TEAM FOR COLISEUM SHOW

Five Students to Represent Kansas State at Chicago—Scott Is Coach.

The five members of the poultry team to represent Kansas State at the Coliseum show, November 25 and 26, at Chicago, were chosen Wednesday. Those on the team are: M. Vautravers, Centralia; R. T. Harper, Manhattan; Gilbert Moore, Louisburg; J. J. Wardell, Manhattan; and T. B. Avery, Coldwater.

The team will drive by automobile and will stop at the University of Nebraska, Iowa State college University of Illinois, and Missouri university experiment stations to visit the poultry plants and experimental departments. Prof. H. M. Scott coaches the team in poultry. L. A. Wilheim, graduate student, aids in the judging of eggs.

ORCHESIS HOLDS INITIATION

Twelve New Members Initiated In Honorary Dancing Sorority.

Twelve new pledges were initiated into Orchesis, national honorary dancing sorority, Tuesday night in the women's gymnasium. These girls were selected in two tryouts from 51 girls. Each new girl will be in charge of a meeting during the year with assistance of older members. Those initiated were, Ernestine Young, Arkansas City; Evelyn Young, Arkansas City; Lucille Allman, Manhattan; Lucille Johntz, Abilene; Ambrosia McClaren, Galena; Mary Sperling, Stafford; Marianne Ozment, Manhattan; Margaret Patterson, Kansas City; Arlene Smith, Topeka; Lois Stingley, Manhattan; Ivernia Danielson, Manhattan; and Jeanette Moser, Blue Rapids.

ATTEND CONVENTION

The Presbyterian gospel team attended the county convention for Presbyterians at Ellsworth Sunday, November, 13. Those representing the team were: Eugene Hobson, Atchison; Ralph Hendrickson, Daton, Ohio; Florence Melchert, Ottawa; Juanita Shields, Lost Springs; Selma Turner, Manhattan, and Ruth Davison, Manhattan. The group furnished the program at the morning services at Buckeye and the afternoon and evening services at Ellsworth.

Professor A. P. Davidson and Professor L. F. Hall are attending the American Royal Livestock show at Kansas City this week. They are connected with the Future Farming department. They plan to return Thursday.

COMPILE MENTAL TEST RANKING OF FRESHMEN

Edith Woodruff and W. S. Scott Highest in Rank of First Year Students.

According to results of the freshman mental tests given at the opening of the semester, Edith Woodruff, Clde, and W. S. Scott, Topeka, both of the general science division, are highest in rank of the first-year students. The grades have been compiled by Prof. J. C. Peterson, head of the psychology department.

The scores are reported in terms of percentile ranks, as has been the custom. The percentile rank indicates what per cent of the entire freshman class the score equals or surpasses. A rank of 50 means that a student surpasses 50 per cent of his fellow freshmen; the rank of 90 indicates that 90 per cent have been surpassed. Separate ratings are given according to mathematical, linguistic, and general ability.

An announcement will be made later as to the time and place of the make-up test for the freshmen who missed the tests which held on September 14 and 15 in the college auditorium. It is expected by Doctor Peterson that about 12 freshmen who were enrolled late or who missed some of the tests last fall will take this make-up test.

Those freshmen desiring to learn test grades may do so by calling at the psychology office, room 30, in Education hall.

TALKS TO SOCIETY

Miss Louise H. Everhardy of the art department talked to the Women's Home Missionary society at the Methodist church, October 21 on the subject of "Symbolism in Indian Life."

On November 4, she talked on the same subject to the Women's Home Missionary society at the Christian church.

NEW BOOKS IN LIBRARY

The college library this week added another miscellaneous group of new books, which include several of particular interest to journalists. The list includes: "Writing Journalistic Features," Reed; "Magazine Making," Bakeless; "School Press Management and Style," Greenawalt; "The Teaching Unit," Waples and Stone; "History of Roumania," Iorga; "Contemporary Roumania and Her Problems," Hale and Tobin; "The Roumanian Handbook," Forter and Rostovsky; "La Roumania Agricade," and "Curriculum Making in Agricultural Colleges," Wheeler; "Economic Policy for American Agriculture;" "Home Architecture," Newcomb and Foster; "Stop, Look, and Listen," Hinshaw; "Planning for Residential Districts;" "Home Finance and Taxation;" "Negro Housing;" "Housing and the Community," and "Household Management and Kitchen," all from the President's conference on home building and home ownership.

KAPPA PHI ENTERTAINS

A Chinese foreign mission program was put on by the girls of Kappa Phi at the Wesley Foundation League meeting Sunday evening at the Methodist church. The idea was one which was adapted from an Oriental tea held at the Kappa Phi national convention at Montreal, N. C. Those who took a major part in the program were Mary Elizabeth Aliman, Margaret Van Orsdol, Zelda Kieven, and Olga Larson.

Thelma Jacobs has gone to her home in Concordia for medical treatment. She plans to return to school November 28.

Ruth Mears spent the week end at her home in Simpson.

Other teams entered ranked in the following order: Colorado, Texas A. and M., Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Pennsylvania.

Iowa State was first in the grain-judging, Oklahoma, second, Minnesota, third, and Nebraska fourth. The grain-judging team returned to Manhattan Sunday. The livestock-judging team is practice-judging at the show the first part of this week in preparation for the International Livestock Exposition which opens in Chicago November 26. The team will probably return tomorrow night.

Last year the grain-judging team placed first in the American Royal contest and the livestock-judging team placed second. Prof. J. W. Zahnley is coach of the former team and Prof. F. W. Bell of the latter.

Purple Pepsters, pep organization, will meet the special train of K. U. rooters at the Union Pacific depot at 12:30 o'clock Saturday. A luncheon in honor of Jay Janes, K. U. womens' pep organization, will be held at the Country club immediately after the train arrives in Manhattan.

Members of the K. U. football team and K. U. coaches will have a steak dinner at the cafeteria in Thompson hall, Saturday evening.

INTEREST GROUPS MEET

Prof. F. L. Parrish, of the history department spoke Monday night on "How one builds a life philosophy today" at the Philosophy of Life interest group. Frances Resser, chairman of this group, has been arranging a series of talks and discussions on philosophies.

All other Y. W. interest groups met also last night, however, the members of the one on dramatics visited various others. Edith Dobson, Manhattan, reviewed a travel book for those interested in modern books. The leadership group discussed and practiced parliamentary drill. International group discussed their hot spot map, and Lucille Allmann, Manhattan, talked. Industry people met with the Social service commission to work on a campus social service project. The group which is studying the life of Jesus continued its discussion of the paradox which seems to be the center of Jesus' philosophy.

Student Recital

Beginning with two numbers by the romanticist, Mendelssohn, and closing with a not too modern Etude by Bortkiewicz, the department of music presented Tuesday the second of a series of student recitals which are being given this semester. The recital, which was held at 5 o'clock, was attended by a small audience, mostly music students and faculty members.

The program: piano, "Consolation," and "Confidence" (Mendelssohn). Betty Stanley; voice, "French Lilacs" (Ware), Eleanor Otto; violin, "The Son of Putza" (Keler-Bela), Emily Rumold; piano, "Etude," opus 15, no. 9 (Bortkiewicz). Alice Bozarth, Mabel Russell and Clara Jean Martin were the accompanists.

There is something wistful about the two pieces of Mendelssohn which opened the program, which gave the listeners the feeling that the composer must have been essentially religious. Both pieces are taken from the group known as "Songs Without Words."

"French Lilacs" was much of a contrast to the austere Mendelssohn numbers. Although Harriet Ware is a modern composer, this song is neither discordant nor "queer"—it has both delicate melody and pleasing accompaniment.

"The Son of Putza" is typically Hungarian dance music. It has the style of a folk tune and is somewhat Liszt-like in character.

The closing Bortkiewicz Etude is rather brilliant without being superficial or banal.

The students, both soloists and accompanists, did well, and they showed nice feeling for tone, good training and excellent stage presence. An enjoyable recital.—R.T.

KAPPA PHI MEETS TONIGHT

Persons of National Repute Mean Little to Journalism Students

Perhaps they've missed their true calling! What would these men say were they to know the identification they received on a recent news quiz given in the journalism department?

Upton Sinclair, that well known author was said to be the president of the Sinclair Oil company. Theodore Dreiser, another nationally known writer, was identified as a movie star. Felix Frankfurter, former president of the Harvard law school and a probable member of Roosevelt's cabinet, was thought by one bright student to be a comic character. George W. Norris, the widely known senator from Nebraska, was supposed by another student to be the husband of Kathleen Norris. And perhaps the best yet is the identification received by Burton K. Wheeler, the Republican senator from Montana. One of the brighter collegians thought Mr. Wheeler was the comedian in the movies.

SHOW INTEREST IN AGGIE POP

Competing Organizations Choose Stunts and Managers—Begin Practice Early.

Early practices for Aggie Pop stunts on December 2 and 3 indicate great interest by various organizations.

"Competition for the cups to be awarded will be stronger this year than it has ever been before, not only from the standpoint of clever and original ideas presented, but from the fact that unusual talent is being discovered in rival organizations," Mrs. Mary Myers Elliott, director of the production, stated after reviewing the stunts.

Cups to be awarded will be larger this year than they have been for several years. The large cup, for the best long stunt, will be 11 1-2 inches tall which is two and one quarter inches taller than last year. The cup for the short stunt will be nine and one-half inches tall, three inches taller than last year.

Competing organizations have chosen the following stunts and managers: Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Pink Lady," Helen Pickrell, Washington; Chi Omega, "Deserted Studio," Maxine Blankenship, Downs; Delta Delta Delta, "Old Cave," Mildred Mowery, Salina; Phi Beta Phi, "Night Club," Gertrude Cowdery, Lyons; Beta Theta Pi, "The Suspender Hour," Tom C. Vaudeville Within Vaudeville Theme Of Theatre Drama

The patrons attending the mystery play, "The Spider, December 8 and 9, will be apt to think they have made a mistake and got into the wrong playhouse, for with the rise of the first curtain on this mystery drama they will be greeted, not by an elaborate drawing room, nor a living room in someone's apartment—instead the lifting of the curtain will disclose a vaudeville act with a variety show in progress. However, they will be witnessing one of the most profound and thrilling mysteries that ever baffled the heads of the New York police department or ever kept an audience guessing for two hours and a half.

The action of "The Spider" is supposed to happen in the Tivoli Theatre, devoted to the presentation of high class vaudeville. The star act on the bill is Monsieur Chatrand and his mind-reading act. Now things begin to happen fast and furiously. It is while the mind-reading hypnotist is working in the aisle of the theatre with his blind-folded medium facing the audience from the stage that one of the most mysterious murders ever recorded happens before the very eyes of the public and within their very midst—a murder that no one can explain and yet everyone has seen. Three of the most exciting acts ever staged follow before you know just who "The Spider" is.

An unusual feature of this play will be its setting. It will be a setting familiar to all Manhattan Theatre goers—Manhattan, Kansas itself. The cast has been chosen, but remains as big a mystery as the play itself, as they have all been pledged to secrecy about the parts they are to play.

Rules for the nomination of candidates for the positions of Betty Co-Ed and Joe College are:

1. Nominations may be made by a petition signed by twenty students and one faculty member.
2. Petitions must be in the hands of Don Compton in the public speaking department office by Thursday noon, December 1.
3. All candidates must have a C average for the present year.

GAMES THIS WEEK

Thursday:
Missouri vs. Nebraska at Lincoln
Oklahoma vs. George Washington University at Washington D. C.

RESULTS LAST WEEK

Nebraska 5, Oklahoma 0.
Kansas 19, Kansas State 0.
Iowa State 34, Drake 13.
Missouri 0, Missouri Alumni 7.

Nebraska university clinched the Big Six championship Saturday by defeating the Oklahoma university eleven by the unusual score 5 to 0. A goal from placement by quarterback Bernie Masterson and a safety accounted for the score.

Nebraska, although sure of the title, has still to play the Missouri Tigers on Thanksgiving Day and then the Cornhuskers meet Southern Methodist at Dallas, December 3.

Nebraska's victims up to now are Iowa State 12 to 6; Kansas 20 to 6; Kansas State 6 to 0; Iowa 14 to 13; and Oklahoma 5 to 0. Nebraska probably missed national renown only because of a 6 to 7 defeat by Minnesota. The 0 to 0 tie with Pitt acted as a help instead of hindrance to the Nebraska prestige.

Elmer Schaake, quarterback and power driver of the Kansas university eleven, led his team to a 19 to 0 victory and also placed Kansas university in a tie with Oklahoma university for second place honors. Oklahoma lost one other game to the over inspired Missouri eleven losing 14 to 6 on their own field.

After a poor start the Kansas university eleven defeated their two old rivals, Kansas State and Missouri university, showing power that could possibly during the whole season win a title.

If Missouri upsets the dope and defeats Nebraska they will step ahead of Kansas State to take fourth place in the conference. Iowa State, 1831 runner-up, concludes its season without a conference victory.

The Oklahoma university eleven left yesterday for Washington D. C. where they will meet the George Washington university eleven on Thanksgiving day. In a game last Saturday Missouri university's alumni trimmed the varsity eleven by a score 7 to 0.

Browsing Collection Ranges from Gutter Songs to Shakespeare

The browsing collection, at the west end of the reference department in the library, is a miniature model library. It is a balanced collection of worthwhile books of every type. These range from the wholesome "Court of Boyville" to the lowest depts of perpetual gloom by Krki. The works of Shakespeare are balanced by "Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing." This collection contains "The Iliad" and a volume of "Gutter Songs," i. e. "Joe Brown's Bar Room," "Little Brown Jug" etc. compiled by Carl Sandburg. Although the books are non-technical there are instructive ones on political science, economics, and psychology, written in the laymen's language.

The oldest written story in the world is contained in a book of "Famous Stories." This story, written by an Egyptian scribe, is aptly concluded with "Who speaks against this roll—may Tahuti smite him."

The browsing collection was founded by Phi Kappa Phi, honorary scholarship society, which recognizes outstanding schoiarship in all divisions. They bought the nucleus of the present group of books. The library has added to it each year at the suggestions of the faculty members.

STUDENTS BEGIN TREK FOR HOME WEDNESDAY NOON

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS COMMENCE OFFICIALLY AT 12 O'CLOCK TOMORROW.

PLAN FOR STAY-AT-SCHOOLS

Y. M. and Y. W. to Hold Thanksgiving Party Friday Night in Recreation Center—Churches Will Entertain, Too.

Thoughts of turkey and cranberry sauce will be uppermost in the minds of Kansas State students tomorrow when the whistle at the power house sounds the signal at noon for the first winter vacation of the school year. Thanksgiving holidays begin at 12 o'clock Wednesday and will continue until Monday morning.

With mid-semester examinations completed two weeks ago and most weekly quizes out of the way, many students will devote their entire time during the vacation to visiting with the home folks, and friends in near-by towns. Larger cities surrounding Manhattan will attract a good number of students, who wish to do pre-Christmas shopping or visit friends or relatives.

Students who remain in Manhattan are assured a good time during the holidays by various church organizations and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. on the hill.

Hold Thanksgiving Party.

The annual Thanksgiving party will be given by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. on November 25 in recreation center. It will be similar to dime dances which have been given by the two organizations during the semester. Dr. G. C. Seeley, local osteopath, will exhibit his skill in magic to students and a musical program will be presented by members of the Y. W. C. A. The remainder of the evening will be spent in dancing. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

Churches of Manhattan are also planning programs for students who remain in Manhattan during the vacation. Students of the Baptist church have been invited to a dinner to be held Thanksgiving noon, at the home of Dr. A. A. Holtz, 4 Denison avenue.

The Goodfellowship meeting of the Congregational church will be held in conjunction with the young peoples' organization of the Baptist church Sunday evening. During the evening service at the Congregational church, a short play, "The Angelus" will be given by high school students of the church.

Recital Wednesday Night.

A recital by Miss Helen Martin, blind and deaf pianist, will be given at the Congregational church Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Miss Martin appeared in a chapel program last fall. Half of the proceeds derived from the recital will go to the St. Martin's society fund for sending young people to summer camp.

Open house will be held in the recreation room of Wesley foundation on Thursday evening. On Thursday afternoon students are invited to the Methodist parsonage. Regular meetings of the W foundation will be held as usual.

A GOOD SPIRIT

During the past football season the students of Kansas State college are to be congratulated on the fine spirit they have shown.

There has been a great deal of enthusiasm at all times. But at no time has anyone been unruly or out of place. This was demcnstrated at the pep meeting before the K. U. game when the students were asked not to crash the downtown shows. They acted accordingly and there were no complaints from any source. A few tried to crash the shows, but it was learned that they were high school students trying to take advantage of the opportunity and get something for nothing. The three theatres cooperated before each home game and gave a show to the pep meeting crowd and a vote of thanks goes to them as well as to the students.

A CHANCE TO SEE THE LIGHT

The Thanksgiving holidays will provide innumerable advantages to homing students.

On the surface, there will be that long-awaited chance to "get away from it all,"—to relax from the tedious hours of study—a chance for the boys to sit before the fire and smoke, without a thing on their minds, and a chance for the girls to sit by the kitchen sink and tell their mothers about collegiate styles.

But underneath that glossy surface there will be afforded a chance for a little meditation which will no doubt bring about a realization to some students that they have muffed their opportunities during the last ten weeks. Quite a number will formulate the opinion that it is high time they get back and settle down to work for the remainder of the semester.

Various and sundry flunk slips which were sent out last week to lie on father's desk until the holidays may bring forth a bit of parental inspiration for collegiates to make noble sacrifices for the sake of study.

It is highly possible that the most fervent offerings of thanks will be given because they saw the light before too late.

THE WOMAN WHO CANNOT SPEAK

A madwoman in Geneva, if she could talk, should be able to tell the world one of the strangest stories of the World war, one still obscure and unauthoritative.

The woman is the notorious Mademoiselle Docteur, the German spy whose career was beyond the wildest flights of rococo melodrama, a tragedy of blood against the starkest of backgrounds.

Mlle. Docteur, Anna Marie Lesser, was a woman of great charm and intelligence. She loved a spy and worked with him until his death. Later she became one of the most dangerous and most valuable of German operatives.

Her war career was filled with incidents of breath-taking escapes, of careless heroism. Then in 1918 the war ended. A few years later Anna Marie Lesser went mad, crazed by drugs.

She is alive today, protagonist of a new legend. If she could talk, she might tell a story that would be worth listening to. More than most she could tell of the brutal reality of war. —Oklahoma Daily.

The Snooper

If the makeup man plays blind man's bluff with the type in this column again today, a disgruntled Snooper is going to indulge himself in the extreme pleasure of skipping the rope with a twelve foot length of duedenum. Friday's offering read like the incoherent wanderings of a drunken brain. It proved to the world that you can't pick type out of a handbasket in grab-bag fashion and make it read like anything you've (or I've or they've) read before. The beer in paragraph one was associated with Russ Thackery in paragraph three. Russ was found to be explaining the phrase "soft pies" and the freshmen and sophomores were throwing "seminars" at ten paces at Saturday's horrible truth. Anyway, don't be surprised if you read in an early edition of The Chronicle, "GORY TORSO FOUND IN BURLAP BAG AT BOTTOM OF BLUE."

Today we nominate for oblivion (apologies to Ballyhoo), two of the local joy boys whose recent activities have proved to Aggieville society that their brains should be numbered with the dead. One showed his true colors by noisily protesting to a harmless quotation of the over-the-back-fencer and another, a publicity seeker and would-be orchestra director, who sought vainly to ditto the glory extended the extremely successful Mr. Bell (one of Aggieville's mad hatters; can'tcha guess t'othern?), by infesting the orchestra platform for a goodly nine-tenths of the time at the last few varsities.

The first nominee is John "Mouthy" Barr, the great jokester who wilfully gives out but cannot take, a practical joke. Fortunately, no one knew Mr. Barr very well until he bugled noisily over the quotation in the last Collegian. (See "Over the Back Fence"). The bugling left a bad taste in the mouths of those who knew him and left a bad impression of him in the minds of the many who had not suffered his acquaintance. Besides acting sorely impossible at Aggieville hang-outs, he further exposed his inner fiber by calling upon Professor Rogers of the journalism department and Dean Babcock of the general science division, and making smelly remarks about the misused powers of the press and the tryanny of the printed page. Both of these worthy gentlemen gave him the familiar "royal berry" and stoutly upheld the sanctity of the Collegian's richly cultural reading matter, thereby scoring a point for the staff.

To the second nominee, Mr. Ivan Maxwell of Pi Kappa Alpha, we extend an outstretched hand loaded with wreaths of crepe for his numbed brain. This dim bulb insists upon making himself monotonous in attempting to draw the attention of the crowd to his extremely amateurish gestures and girations before the orchestra. Seeing the popularity afforded Mr. Bell at recent parties (Mr. Bell's activities were appreciated by orchestra and dancers alike), the II.K.A. worry-wart insists that he impose himself upon the orchestra and an unappreciative audience. An amateur of Mr. Bell's caliber is a rarety. He has been well known in collegiate circles for many a semester. But for a rank and unknown amateur of the Maxwell class (you probably don't know who I'm talking about yet), to attempt to draw applause and taste the sweetness of popularity is a sure indication that his cerebral screws need no small amount of tightening. The Snooper sincerely hopes that this bit of publicity for the worst offender is considered by the many other would-be sensational band directors.

The Kansas City Star's idea of the latest thing in noisy rooting sections is a bunch of loud mouthed Pi Phis plus the housemother. The Star is usually right. The Sunday issue showed a group of yelling Pi Phis. Under the picture was the explanation, i. e., (the girls of Kansas State prove to be the best rooters of the school.)

LOOK BEFORE YOU SIGN—

Various "high-pressure" book agents working around college campuses always are on the lookout for a new "line" to sell their products. The latest to be used on this campus is one in which the agent offers to give the student an encyclopedia free, provided the student agrees to pay for various supplements of the work as they are issued.

To all appearances this is a harmless scheme. The rub comes in that the printed supplements are often expensive and in the long run entail a considerable amount of money. After the student has signed the order he has little or no comeback. There is nothing illegal about the selling methods, so it remains for the student to be careful about accepting such "gifts." Before you sign anything, make sure just what you are getting.—Indiano Daily Student.

Notre Dame received $28,225.11 as their share of the receipts of the Kansas-Notre Dame football game last November 5. The official attendance at the game was 17,887.

How would you like the idea of going to the movies to learn your lessons, instead of listening to lectures or cracking textbooks? At Ohio State university, a psychology professor produces the films in his laboratory and then shows them to his lecture classes. Exchange films are also made to send to other universities.

You might also be interested in attending classes at the University of North Carolina, where smoking during examination is allowed. It is also permitted during some lecture courses.

Sixteen sports recognized by the Navy were recently listed by the United States Naval academy. They were: football, baseball, basketball, rowing, lacrosse, boxing, wrestling, swimming, water polo, gymnastics, fencing, rifle shooting, track and field, cross-country, soccer, and tennis. Take your pick.

A professor at the University of Michigan has unearthed several liquor flasks, rat traps, and market baskets, all made of stone. The remnants date back to 143 B. C., and were found in Mesopotamia.

Here's something else for students enrolled in public speaking courses to worry about. A machine for the teaching of speech has been installed in the speech department at McGill university. The new equipment eliminates the personal element in the student's criticism of his own voice by making a record which is criticised by the entire class.

A sophomore at the University of Colorado, who bet on Hoover, recently paid off his wager by directing traffic along an avenue, while he was clad only in abbreviated white shorts and a sleeveless undershirt. He was arrested for impersonating an officer, but released later when the police decided that shorts and undershirts were no standard for respectable traffic policemen.

Chesterfields are Milder—

Chesterfields Taste Better

As smokers become more experienced, they demand milder cigarettes. Chesterfields are milder. Their mildness is just as much a feature as the beauty of their package.

The tobaccos are mild to begin with. Patient ageing and curing make them milder still. And Chesterfields contain just the right amount of Turkish—not too much—carefully blended and cross-blended with ripe, sweet Domestic tobaccos.

Chesterfields are milder. They taste better. That's why "They Satisfy."

OVER THE BACK FENCE....

.... We've just two topics (if either could be considered such) to waylay this time. One is our erstwhile friend Johnnie Barr, who would gladly see our throat cut, and the other is the sisterhood along sorority row known as Beta Theta Pi ....

.... To Johnnie Barr we give the toast of good sportsmanship. No truer good sport could have been found within the radius of one square inch than Mister John "Can't-take-it" Barr. No doubt none of you had ever known such a wonder man existed until the Barr explosion practically wrecked Aggieville last Friday morning. It seems that the great kidder of Aggieville couldn't take the medicine he has been dishing out the last few years or so. Because we printed a rumor which would have been taken lightly by anyone but the poor sport, Mr. Barr, Aggieville reaked last week end with the dirty stench of someone's attempt at blowing off. And it is said that Mr. Barr made a statement to the effect that he hoped no damage would be done to the editor of this paper but he did desire strongly that the editor of this column should be kicked out of school (that's an awful defamatory statement to make before so many witnesses, Mr. Barr.) And already we hear that Mr. Barr has prepared another of his practical jokes to play upon Mr. Lutz (beware of the man who will serve you with papers for a damage suit, Swede.) So Mr. Barr, you can give it, but you foul out on the taking of the same medicine ....

.... And this paragraph we dedicate to the organization characterized by those "baby pink and baby blue" hues—and we would say mostly "baby pink." Again the would-be collegiate Beta Theta Pis have pulled one of their asinine practical jokes. With the dexterity of a carnival wrestler and the slyness and "sleuthness" that one could stretch his imagination to picture in Neddie Kimball, Davie Umberger, Donnie Hutchinson, and Cecie Miller, the overly popular member of sorority hill borrowed (they're not old enough to be acused of stealing yet) the Pi Phi symbol which decorated the house during Homecoming. To think that such an innocent appearing sisterhood could be guilty of that high schoolish trick. And we had just commenced to think that the children on Sunset were absorbing a little of the refinement that Neddie Kimball attempted to teach his proteges when he moved in with them a week or so ago. We do however extend our sympathy to the men in that house who were entirely unaware that such a kindergarten stunt was being pulled. For we can imagine that had Pete Fairbank, Tommy Johnson, or Harry Miller been about, the playfulness of the youngsters at the Beta house would have been stopped before it gained the headway it did. And to the others of the house who threatened to blackmail the editor of this column if this story came to light, we wish to say that we are taking full and personal responsibility for the paragraph just printed, and we will (which expresses promise) meet you face to face for any sort of a battle you may desire ....

McMILLINMEN OUTCLASSED IT ANNUAL BATTLE

KANSAS UNIVERSITY SCORES 19 POINTS IN SECOND AND LAST PERIODS.

ABOUT 10,000 SEE GAME

Many Homecomers See Wildcats Go Down To Defeat at Hands of Jayhawks.

Scoring in the second and last periods, Kansas univtrsity's football team completely outclassed Kansas State in the annual rival grid battle staged for the K-Aggie homecomers Saturday by a score of 19 to 0. The closest the McMillinmen came to the goal was the seven yard line just before the half ended.

A crowd of approximately 10,000 persons saw the game. The day was cold and there was no wind to benefit either team.

The Kansas university team proved its superiority by holding the Wildcats to 85 yards from scrimmage although the McMillinmen did pick up another 78 yards from passes which made the summary show only seven yards less than the Kansas team.

Schaake Outstanding Player.

Elmer Schaake, Kansas university quarterback, was the outstanding player of the game, being assisted by Bernard Gridley and many of the other Kansas university backs. Ormand Beach was the player who stopped the Wildcat plays on the line of scrimmage.

Ralph Graham received an injury early in the first quarter which kept him from carrying the ball and making gains. Graham tore three ribs loose at the start of the game but the extent of the injury was not determined until after the game was over. The injury did not keep Graham from remaining in the game, however.

Michael Enters Game.

Lloyd Michael, center, who has been in the student hospital for the past week, played in the game during the second quarter butd ue to his weakened condition was unable to start the second half. Harter also had to be taken from the game because of injuries received in the Iowa State game that had not sufficiently healed.

The first Kansas touchdown resulted when Kansas State attempted to kick with the ball on their own 20-yard line and as a Kansas player broke through the line it was necessary for Russell to run with the ball.

Kansas took the ball and on seven plays Schaake went over for the counter. Schaake also kicked goal for the extra point.

In the fourth period Kansas university pushed over two counters with only one extra point. The first resulted when Schaake, Nesmith and Gridley, with the aid of a 12-yard pass, advanced the ball toward the goal and Schaake went over for the score. His kick was blocked. The next score resulted when Gridley broke away on the K-Aggie 33-yard line and ran to the Kansas State 3-yard line. On the next play he went over for the score but Schaake's kick was wild.

At the Theatres

AT THE WAREHAM
"Congorilla"

The picture at the Wareham, "Congorilla," gives the audience something new in animal pictures in spite of the fact that it is another Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson production. The picture is the first to record the actual sounds of the jungle and wierd native music. In this respect it surpasses the usual "high school auditorium" type of lecture-picture. It is interesting and you will like it. As to the selected short subjects, there could have been a better selection.—A.S.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Tess of the Storm Country"

In this dressed-up version of the age old story, the sweet Janet Gaynor and the hondsome Charles Farrell, score another hit—making their eleventh. But they are the only reasons why the picture is a hit—two good reasons being sufficient.

Little Janet talking the language of a sailor, is hard to take. And her acrobatic stunts are equally as difficult to swallow. But she's still the same darling child that has made the public call her "America's Sweetheart."

Charley, as the son of a rich old skinflint (to use Miss Gaynor's words) falls in love with Miss Gaynor, a squatter in the storm country. She saves his life, she mothers his sister's child, and gets nothing but harsh words from his father. The father of Charley is too mean to be true. He even objects to having a dying baby (his daughters' but he doesn't know it) baptised in his church.

Professor Peppy, the little monkey, furnished comedy.

If you like Gaynor and Farrell you'll like the picture.—E. D.

AT THE VARSITY
"Prosperity"

Marie Dressler's last picture (she is retiring from the screen in case you didn't know) is the best piece of work she's done. And when you see the picture, you'll agree that it is Marie Dressler's in spite of the fact that Polly Moran is the co-star.

The laughs are not as numerous as those promoted by other pictures in which these two have played, but they are louder. Likewise, the more serious moments are just that. Anita Page is even more charming than ever. Her new hair dress is particularly becoming. Norman Foster is given a chance to do a little work, and that little bit is commendable.

The bank of which Miss Dressler bestowed the presidency on her son, Mr. Foster, is forced to close its doors when Miss Moran starts a run on the institution. Miss Dressler, who believes the confidence of the town is worth all, attempts suicide in order to obtain insurance. But the son rallies around and saves his country.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

THREE BROADCASTS A WEEK

Present Programs Consist of Pictures of Football Stars—Will Obtain Apparatus for Direct Pick-up Later.

The official television broadcasting license for operating station W9XAK, Kansas State college's new radio-television station for experimental purposes, was received recently from the federal radio commission by Prof. R. G. Kloeffler of the electrical engineering department, who is in general charge of the local unit.

The license provides for unlimited time operation subject to time division between similarly licensed stations if interference is caused by simultaneous operation. The frequency of the new unit here is between 2100-2200 kilocycles. The license is good until May 1, 1933, when it may be renewed.

The station which is situated in the basement of the engineering building will be in charge of L. C. Paslay of the electrical engineering department, who will be assisted by H. H. Higginbottom and W. R. Mitchell. They will broadcast Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8 to 9 o'clock in the evenings.

At present, the television broadcasts are still in the experimental stage, although a report from an Elmira, N. Y., receiving station sent information that station W9XAK was coming in stronger than the television stations in New York City. The broadcasting done now is from film and the pictures are of some Kansas State faculty members and stars of the football team. These pictures are to make up the regular schedule until the apparatus for direct pick-up or broadcasting persons and objects directly from the studio, will be completed. Experimental work in connection with the station will serve as thesis work for graduate students.

Farm House Bachelors Cook and Wash Dishes While In Quarantine

There are short weeks and long weeks. Even with popcorn and apples, bridge games and pinochle, cooking and dish-washing, last week was a long one for ten Farm House boys. They saw the K. U.-K-Aggie game from divans in front of the radio. Homecoming alumni stopped at the door. The boys missed the Thanksgiving turkey altogether. Old jokes were told new ones were invented. Studies were caught up for a week ahead. But now the sign is down.

"It may not be good news to the rest of the students, but it's sure good news to us!" said a Farm House member on being released from quarantine for scarlet fever last Friday. The fraternity was quarantined for scarlet fever for a week after the disease was contracted by Marvin Vautravers Centralia, a member of the Poultry Judging team. Vautravers is doing nicely according to Dr. C. M. Siever, college physician.

MUCH TALENT FOUND IN AGGIE POP PRACTICE

Blues Singers, Chorus Girls, and Specialty Dancers Are Discovered.

Blues singers, chorus girls, and specialty dancers are being discovered as the nights of Aggie Pop, December 2 and 3, draw near.

The Stone-Collins, an eastern ball room dance, originated by Fred and Dorothy Stone, famous musical comedy stars, will be exhibited for the first time in the west by Chi Omega's "Key Capers."

Drama and suspense characterizes the Delta Delta Delta stunt, "Just Imagine," and comedy drama is hilariously portrayed in "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," entered by Alpha Tau Omega.

Aggie Pop audiences are due for a surprise in the discovery of the identity of the Beta Theta Pi athlete tenor in "The Suspendor Hour," and perhaps few realize the ability of Rosemary Schmidt, Junction City specialty dancer, who will add color to "The Pink Lady" by Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Other thrills, surprises, and laughs are scheduled in "Night Club," Pi Beta Phi; "Trees," noncompetetive stunt by Orchesis; "Bathing Beauty Contest in the Year 2000," Sigma Phi Epsilon; and "Balcony Scene from Romeo and Juliet," Phi Kappa.

Dean Rodney Babcock, head of the general science division, will present the cups to the winning organizations on Saturday night.

PRE-SEASON TILT WITH K. U. OPENS COURT SCHEDULE

SOPHOMORES PROBABLY WIL CARRY LOAD FOR FIRST SIX GAMES.

FIVE LETTERMEN RETURN

Graham, Breen, and Dalton Shet Football Togs to Join Basketbal Squad—Captain Skradski and Boyd Complete List.

The Kansas State basketbal team will begin the hardest schedule ever to be attempted by any court team at this college Friday night, Dec. 2, when they meet Kansas university in a pre-season game at Lawrence. The conference schedule starts Jan. 7 with a game with Oklahoma university at Manhattan.

In the first six games Coach Corsaut plans to use his younger men in order to have them ready for the conference season when it begins. In the first games probably Jim Freeland, K. J. Phelps, Manhattan; Dougal Russell, McDonald Pa.; Oren Stoner, Sabetha; and D. C. Hutchinson, Hutchinson, will see most of the service. All these boys are promising sophomores,' Coach Corsaut said yesterday, "and I want them to have all the experience possible.

Along with these sophomores Corsaut has five lettermen returning to make up his first string combination. Captain Andy Skradski, Kansas City, and Francis Boyd, Phillipsburg, will probably have the bulk of the responsibility upon their shoulders until after Christmas vacation as the other three lettermen returning are football players and probably will not be in the best of condition until that time. "Owing to the change in the basketball rules fans will probably watch a much faster game of ball this season than last," Coach Corsaut explained. "as the game now will be played with a fast break-

PRESIDENT FARRELL SPEAKS IN SEMINAR

Says Present Financial Condition Will Cause More Efficient Research Work.

Among the many effects of the present financial condition will be a more efficient type of research work and a concentration of effort in the core relavent fields, President F. D. Farrell said yesterday afternoon in a talk before the agronomy seminar.

President Farrell pointed out that in the last two decades, scientific study has spread out over such a wide area as to be of little value in some respects and prophesied that the present condition would remedy this situation.

"It will also limit the number of questionaires that come to my desk from candidates for Ph. D.'s," he added humorously.

In speaking of the migration of plant industries, Farrell said that many communities in the United States are based on false foundations because the crops grown there may not be well adapted to the existing conditions. He predicted a slowing up of the expansion of wheat production to the cheaper lands of the west and a concentration on better utilization of present farm lands.

He outlined briefly the effect of disease and insect pests on the adaptability of certain crops to a locality and the recent research that has been made in plant "vitamines" or those minute quantities of chemical elements which are essential to plant growth but which, to too great quantities, are destructive.

Yesterday's seminar was the first of a series of 11 dealing with agronomy and related lines of work. Prof. R. I. Throckmorton presided.

WILL HOLD MOCK LEAGUE

Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. Plan Session to Encourage Interest in International Affairs.

College students will soon be enabled to see a session of the League of Nations. Inspired by Clark M. Eichelberger, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are planning a mock league to encourage interest in international movements

The league at Geneva has delegates from 57 countries so it will be impossible to have a foreign student as his country's delegate for each of the countries at this mock session. To represent as many as possible, the Y's plan is to invite delegates from other schools to participate.

Each country may have three delegates who will have their own section designated by its flag and a placard bearing the name of their state.

The business enacted will be eletcion of temporary and permanent chairmen and working out the agenda.

Discussion will take place on only two or three of the issues such as slavery, opium trade, Danzig corridor, disarmament, the economic crisis, and the Far East situation. In case the latter is discussed, a full report by the Lytton commission will be on hand.

The language department will be asked to furnish translators if the speech by a delegate is in a foreign language, and speeches and debate will be limited. It has not been determined yet whether speeches shall be prepared or spontaneous.

Professor Finds Gold While Looking For Parasites In Bears

"Bears that roll in wealth" was a phrase that caused some comment when introduced in Botany I courses by Dr. F. C. Gates in one of his lectures. Dr. Gates told of some experiences of a forestry professor of the University of Wisconsin, who, when he was in Alaska last summer hunting for new forest fungi, purchased four silver tip grizzly bear hides from Indians at Whitehorse, in the Yukon. He turned the hides over for examination to a fellow staff-member an expert on animal parasites. Searching for the parasites, the expert carefully combed out the fur and then "panned" the dust in a small dish of water, much as gold is panned by prospectors.

Panning his bear dust, the professor was pleased to find fleas, dead and dried up. But, behold, what was that! Looking more closely, he saw yellow flakes that gleamed out characteristically and unmistakably—gold from the Alaskan Yukon.

But don't buy your pick and shovel just yet. "Bear-panning" is far from a get-rich-quick possibility. The gold is real enough, but much too scarce in bear hides. Yet the story would seem to prove that bears are literally "rolling in wealth" on the shore of some quiet Yukon stream, picking up stray flakes of the mineral that old sourdoughs have given years to find, ever since the great strikes of the '90's.

DEAN JUSTIN SPEAKS

Dean Margaret M. Justin gave a report at the experiment station luncheon Saturday noon covering the meetings of the home economics section of the conference of the association of land grant colleges held at Washington. Dean Justin stated that the meetings of this section showed little of the spirit of depression which was obvious at the general sessions. The chief consideration of the meetings, according to Dean Justin, was the better functioning of home economics divisions through curriculum and through research activities.

"THIS IS A PHONOGRAPH RECORD"

When a radio station lacks talent there is some excuse for the monotonous statement that "this is a phonograph record, made exclusively for broadcast purposes." But for station KSAC to repeat the same apologetic remark day after day, there is cause to wonder as to the reason.

Sometime, during each day, KSAC announcers burst forth with the news that the following selection is an electrical reproduction. Then they no doubt hie themselves to the north windows of the studio to gaze passively at passers-by. This action has been noticed a time or two.

How many persons, if asked pointblank, whether or not there is a lack of talent at Kansas State would answer in the negative? We feel safe in hazarding a guess that the percentage would be ridiculously low. There are a number of students who have performed in a creditable manner before Kansas State audiences—easily a sufficient number to fill in the periods of KSAC broadcasts taken up by recordings. There is a wealth of interesting and instructive material developed daily in various laboratories and class rooms which could be presented by faculty members or students.

Why not hold radio tryouts? Allot each winner a specific time daily or weekly during which he or she may contribute original entertainment or instruction to KSAC listeners. It would take only slightly more time and effort on the part of continuity writers to mould the individual presentations into a well-rounded program. And it would improve the quality of the broadcasts immensely.

AROUND HER NECK SHE WORE A YALLER RIBBON

Co-eds at Northwestern who left sweethearts at home have banded themselves together in a society and sworn fidelity to their old town lovers. They wear yellow ribbons as symbols of their devotion. And we're just thinking that the girls are either awfully silly or weren't getting many calls anyway.

The boys back home won't be any better off, even if they can rest assured their girls are having a lonely time being faithful in the big college town. It may be some solace to the one and only to feel confident his best girl is evading the temptations of a college romance, but that solace is a cheap recompense for the lassie who is making the sacrifice.

It is the duty of every young man and woman to have as many dates as possible; to associate with the opposite sex at every possible opportunity. To our mind there is no greater little tragedy than the case of two folk who have been in each other's arms from grade school on up. These childhood romances often terminate only with the altar, and some few not even then. It is a beautiful thing, of course, to see a boy and girl who have been in love and have been keeping company most of their lives; beautiful, but not fair to either one.

Every girl should have the advantage of many acquaintances. No two boys are alike, and she is cheating her character and her personality if she ties herself down to one boy early in life and stays tied. The same is true of the more burly sex.

No, we don't sympathize with the Northwestern girls who are wearing yaller ribbons for their lovers far away. The song is pretty, but the sentiment isn't very sensible. Whenever a girl is separated from her true love, we think she should place his picture at the bottom of the trunk, daub her face to its prettiest, wear a wide and beautiful smile, put on her best dress, and start forgetting him. A vacation from devotion is what she needs. Then, when her separation is over, she can jump back into his arms perfectly content. And that's our idea of how fidelity should be practiced.—The Daily O'Collegian.

AH-H-H, THE BEAUTY OF AN ADDING MACHINE!

Many students entering or attending college fail to recognize the prime motive of an education. Their ambition for specialization is so great that they fail to see the importance of broadening their culture.

One might say "I can't eat beauty." That is right, but if satisfying the instinct of hunger is all that a person desires, he would have been better off to have obscured himself somewhere in a cavemans grove.

Specializing, one necessarily and naturally should become believed to the extent of seeing beauty in his own creations. But that is not enough. Visualize, if you can, a business major who would be limited to seeing beauty only in an adding machine or in a column of figures; or a lawyer's happiness fulfilled only when he could see his client smile or a victim wince when the judge pronounced the sentence.—The Oklahoma Daily.

The Snooper

I fully and sincerely intended to rise yesterday morning at an early bell and draw out a lengthy and informative article on what has been going on of important note through the holidays. But if it is your impression that one is able to sit at a table on Thursday noon and distend one's intestinal tubecules through the process of consuming a brace of baked guinea hens, a half-pound of pickled lemon peels, numerous large pieces of soggy brown-bread, French fries, currant jelly, a section of mince pie, and wash it out of your adenoids with apple cider and still be able to awaken on a following Monday morning with anything but a foggy impression of the past four days, your brain is badly muddled.

I could probably hold your attention for a while with Gus Rayburn's old bromide about the man who was so deaf or the one about the Greek who said all Greeks were liars, but being a Greek himself was a liar according to his own statement and therefore lied about the Greeks being liars. The problem lies in the fact that if he lies about them being liars then they were not liars and hence his statement that all Greeks were liars was correct. After about ten pages of that your eyeballs would start clicking on you so we had better drop it here and you can settle it at your leisure.

The Michaelmas festivities are but three weeks in the offing. Three weeks in which to rummage through old papers to find out where you left off before Thanksgiving. This week the merchants will be filling their windows with synthetic snow and plaster-of-paris icicles and numerous Santa Clew (plural for Santa Claus), will be wringing dime store hand-bells over a sign which requests you to "Keep the Pot Boiling." You are supposed to throw money in the pot but old aspirin bottles will give the correct "bong." Nails and bone buttons draw tough looks from Santa, (from experiences in '15-'31.)

From what we have been able to glean from Aggieville merchants, the pre-Christmas vacation drained the shopping district of its usual trading element, that is, the usual coke and sundries traffic. The shop keepers passed quiet afternoon knitting for the poor of gaming for rodents in the dark recesses of the basements. The Palace doughnut supply, not being diminished by the usual trade in this article was left over from last Wednesday noon, hence each individual nut by yesterday had assumed a billiard ball constituency which could not be softened even through repeated submersions in the "old tennis shoe" coffee vended by that place.

Owing to the extreme shortness of this column, it will be necessary to quit here.

On Other Hills

Sweethearts and lovers at Middlebury college in Vermont are now enrolling in a course in lovemaking, in which demonstrations are given by the seniors. For those famous couples on the campus who just can't bear to be apart, this course would be perfect. And even the faculty members attend the love making course at Middlebury.

"Send me to jail, instead of college," might be the cry of energetic sons to fathers, since prison football has become so popular. The Sing Sing football team coached by Johnny Law, former Notre Dame captain, recently defeated the Port Jarvis police team, 7-0. The boys from the "big house" got more than a score though, since they succeeded in flattening out six cops as well as avenging last years defeat of 13-0.

Here's where housewives and musicians can cooperate and cut the old budget. A professor of music at the University of Missouri is the inventor of an aluminum violin. After the musician has practiced for an hour, the housewife could use the instrument for a popcorn popper.

Every member of the faculty and employee of the college at Oklahoma A. and M. has been asked to contribute to the fund for the city's poor. The goal for this year has been set at $7,500.

Men in armour will dance with fair maidens at the annual dance to be given soon by the Knights of the Hook at the University of Washington. The co-eds are not sure it will be so easy dancing with the knights donned in cast-iron shirts and steel boots.

Things unusual happen at the University of Wisconsin. They have formed a club at the school called the International Order of Unaffiliated Goats, composed of students who have depledged or been kicked out of some Greek-letter organization. The password is "Baa."

There is one class at the University of Indiana which students never cut. It is an English class with three members—a Japanese, a Greek, and a Porto Rican.

Sororities at Colorado university spent a total of $3,150 for fall rushing, two and one-half times the allotted amounts. Pi Beta Phi spent $600, while Kappa Kappa Gamma used $450. Alpha Chi Omega used only $112 of their hard earned dough for rushing purposes.

A Sterling silver cup is offered by the club to be awarded annually to the college making the highest rating among the top twenty essays, and if won three times by one college it becomes permanent property. Tennessee and Iowa have each won the cup one year. Kansas State college has won it twice.

NEW BASKETBALL TACTICS

Displaying something new in basketball, the huddle, the Whiteshirts, an independent basketball organization, were leading an easy victory over the Trojans last night at the half by a score of 34 to 2. This new huddle is something new in basketball and has not before been seen on the local court. After each goal the whole team would run back into a huddle, just as a football team does to get its signals, and then they would be ready for the next toss up. "It is something new," said Frank Prentup last night, who referred the game, "and they did it without a loss of time too."

In the other intramural games the Lone Stars defeated Kappa Sigma 22 to 6; Beta Theta Pi 15, Phi Delta Theta 7; Phi Kappa Tau 22; Sigma Phi Epsilon 18. Because of the lateness of the game, the score of the game between the Aggie Knights and W. F. A. C. could not be learned. Farm House and Tau Kappa Epsilon postponed a game that was scheduled for 9:00.

Grace Mary Gustafson of Marysville was a luncheon guest of Gladys Bulkstra at the Ellen Richards Lodge yesterday noon.

The girls of Ellen Richards Lodge are to entertain with a formal dinner tonight at their home. Dean Margaret Justin will be the guest of honor.

Forrest Pettey spent Thanksgiving at his home in Clay Center.

Miss Bernice Patterson spent Thanksgiving at Kingman as the guest of Esther Hobson.

Chesterfields are Milder—

Chesterfields taste Better

To make tobaccos mild and mellow for Chesterfield cigarettes, just about four miles of warehouses are filled with mild, ripe Domestic leaf, stored away to age for two years.

The greater part of 90 million dollars is invested in these tobaccos. Is it surprising that Chesterfields are milder? That they taste better?

Everything known to Science is used to make Chesterfields right! They're mild—and yet They Satisfy.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Too much cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie, we guess, 'cause we just can't get down to the business of hunting around for dope on someone . . . . Another thing — we're terribly sorry to announce that the football player whose marriage we predicted for Thanksgiving put one over on us. He either changed his matrimonial plans or otherwise he's keeping the wedding a deep dark secret—but we do know that he didn't report for the first basketball practice yesterday although he is back in town . . . . And now we want to tell you about the honor that has befallen us. Just so recently we received an invitation to join an organization designated on this hill as the "H" club. The invitation written by Dick Seaton and sent in behalf of the Beta Theta Pis entreated us to become a worthy member of the society known as the "Heel" club. We do extend our thanks to the Betas for the offer of fellowship in their lofty organization. We have often heard it said that they were concealing the true name of their fraternity with the three Greek letters, but this is the first time they ever admitted it in black and white . . . .

. . . . We wonder if Pete Smith looked up his old school day sweetheart down in Strong City while he was home for Thanksgiving . . . . And now that we can print it—will Ken Harter continue to write his Collegian sport stories under the name of Dave Griffith? . . . . Why does Eleanor Wright take off the Phi Delt pin at sundown? . . . . Kinda looks as if Jim O'Malley were attempting to be another Jimmy Richards . . . . What's this we hear about the quietness and meekness of the Tri Delts in the Rexall—you have to be hard of hearing to appreciate them there we understand . . . . And with that Adios . . . .

Phi Lambda Theta

Phi Lambda Theta held formal initiation November 20 for the following men: Clinton Roehrman, White City; Loyal Mock, Osborne; Wallace Thurston, Elmdale; and Harold Love, Wilsey. To a Cow Its Name Is as Important as That of Its Keeper

People don't like to be called "hey," and neither does a cow, is the opinion of the "cow psychologists" at Kansas State.

The calves' given names are often names of the farm to which the cow belongs, or the name of the ancestors, and then again just any name that chances to come to the foreground may be chosen by Prof. A. D. Weber, of the animal husbandry department, who names the calves here at Kansas State.

The surname is taken from the male line of the family. For example, one family of Hereford cattle is called the Domoninos, and there are the Prince Domoinos, and the Lady Domoninos. There are two other famous families in the animal husbandry department, they are the Shorthorn family and the Abebrdeen-Angus family.

The birth certificate of a calf is recorded more accurately and more fully than that of the birth of a child. Besides being named, the calf has a registration number, and if it is a Hereford calf the number is often tatooed in the ear. The name, numbers, date of birth, ancestors, and many other such details are recorded. This enables the buyer of a cow to trace the pedigree back more than 60 years, in some cases.

Nick names are often given to the cows, as they are much easier to remember. O. N. Cross, keeper of the cows at Kansas State for the last two years can be heard calling his cows—"Mary," "Martha," "Merygold," "Lassie," and other such names. "All I have to do is go to the door and call them," said Mr. Cross, proudly, "and they come a-runnin'. They all recognize their names, and even though it does take a while longer to call them, it is a lot easier than chasing them all down."

"The family name of good cattle is as important to authorities, as the human family names are," said Dr. C. W. McCampbell, head of the department of animal husbandry.

OFFERS "DEPRESSION" COURSE

Special Program at Stanford Will Save Students One Year.

Because of the unemployment prevalent among recent college graduates, the Stanford graduate school of business, according to a recent announcement by Dean J. Hugh Jackson, will alter its usual provisions of admitting new students only at the beginning of the autumn quarter, and will admit qualified applicants into the regular classes of the school at the opening of the winter quarter, January 3, 1933. During the succeeding three quarters (winter, spring, and summer) these students may complete the first year's work in the school. They will thus be prepared to enter the second-year class in October and will become candidates for the M. B. A. degree in June, 1934. This means the saving of a full year for students who otherwise would be unable to begin their two-year graduate program until October, 1933.

Lois Darby has returned to school after a two weeks' absence. She has been in the Charlotte Swift hospital with pneumonia.

Franklin Thackrey returned to school Monday after a week's visit with his father who has been in a Kansas City hospital.

Dr. R. C. Smith and family spent Thanksgiving day at Lincoln, Neb., as guests of Prof. Don B. Whelan of the department of etomology at the University of Nebraska.

Betty Stanley, Wichita, will be unable to return to school until Wednesday because of an infected foot. She is at her parents' home in Wichita.

Selma McGinnis, Manhattan, is convalescing at the Park View hospital from an appendicitis operation, which she underwent Friday, October 28.

Dr. Edward J. Wimmer, assistant professor in the zoology department, spent the Thanksgiving vacation with his family in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Richard Jesson, of the department of music, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Melching, Chicago.

Dr. E. R. Frank, assistant professor of surgery and medicine, who has been ill with influenza is again able to resume his classes.

The chemistry department has recently received two Ionium discs from the Kniggie Institute at Washington. They are to be used in the department for the determination of atmospheric potential gredient.

Miss Mary Hope Morris, who obtained her M. S. degree in zoology here in 1929, visited at her home in Manhattan during the Thanksgiving holidays. Miss Morris is now an instructor at Hutchinson Junior college.

At the Theatres

AT THE WAREHAM
"A Bill for Divorcement"

The stage has furnished real superb as the frank English girl Billie Burke, Katherine Hepburn and John Barrymore. Katherine Hepburn, acknowledged by Hollywood to be their find of the year is supberb as the frank English girl who meets sportingly a heartbreaking situation, when she discovers that her suddenly returned father had been insane, rather than shell-shocked. John Barrymore makes one feel, as usual, that no one else could have played his part as the husband who comes back to a wife of whose divorce he is not aware, and to a daughter he doesn't know. The well-built plot affords many fine scenes, such as the timely singing of English Christmas carols.

Katherine Hepburn, by the way, has a most charming natural grace that contrasts to the artificiality and poses of most Hollywood charmers, and has the most agreeable of young men, David Manners, to play opposite her. It's well-done and satisfying—you feel that you've seen and heard a worth-while production.—E.G.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Call Her Savage"

Ranch life agreed with Clara Bow. She's returned to Hollywood with flying colors.

Before her temporary retirement from the screen, Miss Clara Bow did some nice work, but as compared to her performance in "Call Her Savage" it is unworthy of more than mention.

Miss Bow for once is given a story which justifies her playful antics. She is given every opportunity to do those things which she does best.

The story carries Miss Bow from a Texas ranch to Chicago society, and from there to New Orleans' water front. Here Miss Bow almost surpassed her own ability as she walks the streets for her sick baby. She returns to New York, and then comes home to her mother's death bed anly to learn her father was a half breed. And so is Gilbert Roland. The ending is happy.

Monroe Owsley, as a man about town, is very well cast. And Thelma Todd, the smart looking blond, also does some creditable work. Mr Roland and Estelle Taylor are not given a chance to do much.—E.D.

AT THE VARSITY
"I Am A Fugitive From A Chain Gang"

This is the most different show Manhattan has ever seen. And probably all movie goers. Deplorable, unbelievable conditions as they exist in prisons is portrayed in this picture with the lid taken off the prisons.

Paul Muni, as a fugitive, is one of the best actors seen here in a long time. He carried the story, and takes up most of the reels, yet the audience never tires of watching him as a prisoner nor as a successful engineer.

Glenda Farrell was excellent, as was the remainder of the supporting cast, including the bosses of the chain gangs.

If prisons are as horrible in reality as they are on the screen, the country should be infested with desperate ex-convicts. Certainly they would have no desire to reform.

It's an unforgetable picture. See it . . . E. D.

NEBRASKA TAKES LION'S SHARE IN ALL-STAR PLACES

CORNHUSKERS NAME FOUR MEN ON NEARLY ALL NEWSPAPER SELECTIONS.

PICK GRAHAM UNANIMOUSLY

United Press Selection Gives Kansas State Three Positions on First Team—Graham, Russell, and Zeckser.

Nebraska university, Big Six football champion, gained the lions share of the honors on the Big Six all-conference eleven, placing four men on the first all-conference eleven. In some selections Kansas State was awarded three places while again in others only "Ramming" Ralph Graham, fullback, was placed on the teams. In the selections by the United Press, besides Graham, Dougal Russell and Captain Walter Zeckser were placed on the first eleven. Russell was given a berth at right half and Zeckser the right guard position.

There were certain qualifications deemed necessary for a place on the teams. First of all ability; then experience; then gentlemanly conduct; then sportsmanship. The player who loved to play the game was the player whose name the coaches sent in to be placed on the first all-conference eleven. The number of games played also featured in helping the players to make the first eleven.

No coach could want a greater combination than Dunlap, Oklahoma; Schaake, Kansas; Mathis, Nebraska; and Graham, Kansas State. In this combination there is ability galore in every phase of the game. In the line there is not much distinction between the first and second teams. Lawrence Ely, Nebraska, was conceded a slight edge over Paul Young, Oklahoma, although Young was on last year's all-conference team.

On the first two teams, Nebraska was awarded eight places, four for each eleven. Kansas and Oklahoma drew four each and Kansas State drew three. Missouri was awarded two and Iowa State one.

Following are the selections of the Kansas City Star:

First Team

Ends—Steve. Hokuf, Nebraska, and Charles Schiele, Missouri.

Tackles—Corwin Hulbert, Nebraska, and Pete Mehringer, Kansas.

Guards—George Atkeson, Kansas, and Ellis Bashara, Oklahoma.

Center—Lawrence Ely, Nebraska, (captain.)

Quarterback—Bob Dunlap, Oklahoma.

Halfbacks—Elmer Schaake, Kansas, and Christ Mathis, Nebraska.

Fullback—Ralph Graham, Kansas State.

Second Team

Ends—Lee Penney, Nebraska, and Edsel Curnutt, Oklahoma.

Tackles—Percy Gill, Missouri, and Gail O'Brien, Nebraska.

Guards—Walter Zeckser, Kansas State, and Warren DeBus, Nebraska.

Center—Paul Young, Oklahoma (captain).

Quarterback — Dougal Russell, Kansas State.

Halfbacks—Dick Grefe, Iowa State, and George Sauer, Nebraska.

Fullback—Ormand Beach, Kansas.

Women's Sports

Volleyball and dancing are the next sports to be taken up in the extensive program which has been outlined for women's intramurals. Archery, horseback riding, and tennikoits were run off earlier in the semester and competition is already narrowing down. However, with two more sports this semester and a number next semester, any team has a chance to come to the top.

A cup is presented each spring to the team with the highest number of points from the year's sports. Last spring Alpha Xi Delta and X Team tied for first place.

Intramural sports have a twofold interest, for in addition to playing on her own team each girl eligible to make the class team and play in the class tournaments. Class teams are made up of the best players from each intramural team. W. A. A. points are awarded to players on teams and additional points are given those on class teams.

Intramural dancing will begin this afternoon with 13 teams entered. The following schedule has been announced by Miss Lorraine Maytum, who is in charge of the sport.

COACH FACE STOUGH SEASON

Patterson's Wrestling Squad Loses Five of Eight Lettermen From Last Year's Team.

Coach Buel Patterson, Kansas State wrestling coach, faces a tough coaching season, losing five of eight lettermen from last year's dual meet wrestling team. A loss to Oklahoma university kept them from winning the championship last year which was won by Coach Patterson's team in 1931.

Lettermen back this year include June Roberts, last year's Big Six 155-pound champion and also winner of the A. A. U. championship in the 155-pound class; F. M. Bozarth, 165-pounder, and Joyce Miller, 175-pounder.

Lettermen lost include last year's captain, Bill Doyle, Big Six 145-pound champion, and national intercollegiate 145-pound champion in 1931, who was unable to participate last year because of illness; J. H. Watson, 145-pounder; Wayne Burbank, heavyweight; Pepiro 135-pounder; and Patterson, 135-pounder. Heinz, 135-pounder, will return next semester.

Besides the three "K" men returning, Coach Patterson has the following squad men back from last year: Thiele, heavyweight; B H. Scott, heavyweight, a 245-pounder; Warner, 145-pounder; Watson, 145-pounder; New 1, 145-pounder; Walters, 126-pounder; McDonald, 126-pounder; Teagarden, 135-pounder; Fowler, 135-pounder; Roberts, 155-pounder; Thomas, 155-pounder; Beatch, 165-pounder; Webb, 165-pounder; and Swift, 175-pounder.

Coach Patterson has been working with a squad of 70 men and expects a squad of 95 or 100 men as soon as some of the men who were out for football report for practice. Red Arnett, a promising man in the 155-pound class, will be unable to participate this year because of an injured elbow.

The schedule of this year's meets has not been made out but will be announced shortly after Christmas. However, the first meet has been arranged with Kansas Wesleyan, a dual meet. Bill Doyle is coaching this team and the outcome will be watched with interest. Another meet will probably be held with Central State Teachers, at Edmond, Okla. The "Big Six" championship will be determined by a tournament this year, instead of the round robin method of dual meets which has been used since 1928.

Charles Stratton, assistant professor of piano, is ill at his home.

WILDCATS FINISH FOURTH

Gridders End Season With Four Games Won and Four Lost.

The Kansas State Wildcats wound up their 1932 football season with four games won and four lost, finishing fourth in the Big Six conference. Only one team, however, Kansas university, outgained "Bo" McMillin's boys in first downs, the K-Aggies holding Purdue and Nebraska even in this respect and gaining a big advantage over all other opponents.

Missouri, Iowa State, Kansas Wesleyan, and Wichita, the Central conference champions, fell before the Wildcat attack, while decisions were lost to Purdue, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Kansas. In each of these games except the one with Kansas university, the K-Aggies played good, consistent football and finished with close scores. Ralph Graham of El Dorado, Kansas State fullback, led the conference and the middle west in scoring, making 85 points to be the nation's second highest scorer. A combined summary of the season's games follows:

Among the Ags

For several ags and ag professors, last week was no time for Thanksgiving. With the Farm Housers locked in and roundly cursing their fate (as personified by the doctors), and with the coaches of the various judging teams working desperately (they cursed only in private) on the men who must fill the vacancies in their teams, last week was a period of low spirits and high nervous tension on the north end of the campus. And all because Marvin Vautravers of Centralia, one of Professor Scott's ranking poultry judges, contracted what the doctors claim is scarlet fever. With the Thanksgiving holidays and the Chicago International Livestock exposition coming on, all the ags are convinced that the health officers couldn't have picked a worse time for starting their annual epidemic.

And as a sidelight on the big ag news of the week, we offer the following: Jim Chapman, famous editor of the 1932 Royal Purple, was conversing one night last week with an elderly woman-resident of Manhattan who suffers from a woeful ignorance of all things collegiate. "I hear," she said, "that one of the college buildings has been quarantined for scarlet fever. Farm House isn't it—where they keep all the animals?"

The winter season is popcorn-season for all the office-forces on the top two floors of the East Ag building. Carl Bower and Jim Hunter are running the annual popping tests on Dr. A. M. Brunson's popcorn, and they are being ably assisted by the stenographers, secretaries, and seed analysists. All the office work is now done to the music of crunching popcorn. The girls are experts at distinguishing Dynamite from Sunburst from any other popcorn variety by the size, shape, and taste of the popped kernels.

The first issue for this school year of the Ag Student division publication, came out last week. The frontispiece of the magazine contained a portrait of Luella "Queen of the Ags" Graham which was flanked by (or should we say, "cornered by") portraits of the four ag princesses: Geraldine Hammond, Wilma Cook, Ione Hill, and Kay Brewer. All of which calls back memories of that hectic election day just before the Ag Barnwarmin' when the entire ag student-body ate Chi Omega candy while over half of it divided its votes among the Kappa, the Tri Delt, the Clovia, and Independent. However the Chi Omega campaign tactics were so very successful that we have no doubt they will be adopted by the other ambitious sisterhoods next year. The sweet-loving ags look forward to next year's election day with the keenest pleasure.

NO CAMPUS CHEST DRIVE TO BE MADE SAYS COMMITTEE

UNLESS URGENT NEEDS ARISE, SOLICITATION WILL BE ABANDONED THIS YEAR.

APPOINT 17 TO COMMITTEE

Student Representatives of Campus-Wide Organizations Join Faculty Members in Personnel of Groups.

No campus chest solicitations will be made in February, members of the Campus Community Chest committee announced late Wednesday afternoon, following a meeting held in the Y. W. C. A. office. Whether or not the annual drive will be conducted later in the school year will depend upon the urgency of the needs that might arise, the committee said.

Money raised by the committee in February, 1932, remains in the form of a student loan fund, under the supervision of Prof. J. O. Hamilton of the physics department. This fund has been in continuous use, and is adequate for present needs. Any student regularly enrolled in college may secure small loans through the Campus Chest. No interest is made.

The purpose of the Campus Chest committee is to receive requests from persons desiring to solicit the campus for all-campus enterprises, to determine whether such requests may be granted, and to act as a collection agency on the campus for such requests as have been approved. Prof. F. L. Parrish has been chairman of this committee for three years.

The committee is composed of 17 persons; 9 of whom are students selected from nine campus-wide organizations, and eight are members of the faculty. The student members hold their positions for one year, but the faculty members hold their positions permanently. The personnel of the committee is:

Students: Ruth Stiles, student council; Merle Ross, women's Pan-Hellenic; Sidney North, intersociety council; Marcene Campbell, women's athletic association; Dale F. Pocock, men's Pan-Hellenic; Barbara Lautz, Y. W. C. A.; Veva Brewer, Van Zile hall; William Priestly, Y. M. C. A.; Donald H. Bowman, Aggie Knights. Faculty: President F. D. Farrell, Dr. W. H. Andrews, Dean Mary P. Van Zile, Dr. A. A. Holtz, Dorothy MacLeod, Jessie McD. Machir, Dr. H. T. Hill, F. L. Parrish, chairman.

Pipe Organ Puts On "Heavies" In Form Of Electric Heaters

The winds will howl, the temperature drop, and college students will shiver as they trudge through the snow this winter, but that won't matter to the pipe organ in the college auditorium, for it is now being equipped with automatic electric thermostat heaters which will keep a constant temperature in the pipes.

The heaters are being installed in the pipe chambers on either side of the stage. It is also necessary to reverse the shutters in the pipes so that they will be closed when the organ is not in use instead of standing open.

The heaters will cost $350, but this represents a saving in the long run, for unless a consistent temperature is maintained the organ requires constant tuning.

ADA RICE WILL ADDRESS PHI KAPPA PHI ASSEMBLY

Scholastic Society Initiates and Freshmen Honor Students to be Presented in Chapel.

Miss Ada Rice, president of the Kansas State chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, will speak on "The Badge of Honor" at the special assembly to be held this morning in recognition of Phi Kappa Phi initiates and freshman honor students.

Miss Rice, who was granted both her B. S. and M. S. degrees from Kansas State, has been a professor of English here for several years. In 1926-27 she studied in England at London university, and did research work in the British Museum library.

The Phi Kappa Phi initiates are seniors accorded special honor for unusually high grades throughout three years of college work. Other initiates will be chosen in the spring on the basis of their four year's work. The highest ranking initiate, Marjorie Pile, Manhattan, has made only one grade of B, all the rest being A's.

The freshman honor students are chosen on a basis of at least 24 hours of college work obtained in the fall and spring semesters. No grades from correspondence work or summer school are considered. Alice Lay Barrien, Topeka, and Buell Wesley Beadle, St. Mary's, made all A grades.

PICK CANDIDATES FOR BETTY CO-ED AND JOE COLLEGE

THREE WOMEN AND SIX MEN PICKED FOR MANHATTAN THEATRE CONTEST.

TO BE ANNOUNCED AT PLAY

Results of Student Body Vote Will Be Given at Final Performance of "The Spider."

Either Helen "Spud" Morgan Doris Paulson, or Louise Rust will be Betty Co-ed and either Stephen Ashbill, Glenn Fox, M. C. Oberhelman, W. Don White, Harry Hinckley, or Maurice DuMars will be Joe College. The results of the voting of the entire student body and faculty members will be announced at the final, Saturday night's performance of "The Spider," a Manhattan Theatre production.

The Manhattan Theatre increases its reputation for the production of plays with the presentation of "The Spider," one of the best of all mystery plays recently produced. The play was first produced by Sam M. Harris. It met with great success in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and principal cities throughout the country.

"The Spider" is the story of the most profound and thrilling mysteries that ever baffled the New York police department.

The action of "The Spider" takes place in a theatre devoted to the presentation of high class vaudeville. With the rise of the curtain a regular variety show begins that finally works up to the star act on the bill. Monsieur Chatrand, a bizarre, oriental individual who does a magical, hypnotic, mind-reading act and uses for his assistant and medium a young man whom he claims to have rescued from being put away in a public institution when he was found wandering the streets of Washington, apparently bereft of all reason. The young man is brought forth, introduced to the audience, his face hidden by a green mask, and Monsieur Chatrand begins his act. The assistant remains on the stage while the master roams up and down the aisles of the theatre, fingering a watch here, a pin there, while the medium, far removed, names and describes each object as the master touches it. Questions are asked and perfect answers given. The whereabouts of the lost are revealed and all sorts of unusual things are demonstrated. A young lady offers a locket for identification. Her escort, a middle-aged man objects. Chatrand refuses to heed his objection and holds up the locket for the boy upon the stage to describe. Just as he is about to name its contents an altercation between the magician and the lady's escort ensues—the lights go out—a shot is fired, and John Carrington lies dead, and no one, audience included, knows who fired the fatal bullet.

There follows two of the most exciting acts the most jaded and blase audience could well imagine before this most unusual and novel mystery drama is solved.

And as an additional feature, the revelation of Kansas State's Betty Co-ed and Joe College for this year will be made the night of the play.

The Girl Reserves, Christian organization for girls at the high school, and the Purple Pepsters will start a ticket sales campaign Friday. Season tickets, valid for admission to the entire four productions of the Manhattan Theatre's 1932-33 season, sell for $1.60. Single admission is 50 cents.

DR. BANE SPEAKS AT FORUM

Director of American Public Welfare Association Discusses Present Problem at Student Meeting.

Dr. Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare association, Washington, D. C., spoke on "Where Do We Go From Here" at student forum in Thompson hall Wednesday noon.

The three industries which have weathered the storm of the present economic depression, according to Doctor Bane, are: the tomato juice industry, the cellophane industry, and the public welfare industry. The latter of which he firmly believes will rapidly increase in the future through necessity. However, under the present system of poor relief, we will be called upon to aid those we are now helping until their dying day.

The big question, then, is, how are we going to best handle such a problem? Doctor Bane thinks that a form of state control similar to our present educational system would be the best type of public welfare organization.

In order to put such a system in operation, four basic principles should be followed. First, a state organization should be formed to be directly responsible for the administration and supervision of a welfare activities throughout the state.

In the second place, only public agencies should administer public welfare funds; thus, centering responsibility and eliminating graft.

A sufficient proportion of the relief funds should be budgeted for administrative purposes, as such an organization must have competent engineering.

And the last, but very important principle is that the administrative department must be composed of individuals competent and qualified to fill the positions.

DYKSTRA TO CHICAGO MEET

FOOTBALL CROWDS INCREASE

Home Game Attendance Decreases But Out of Town Games Bring More Rooters.

Crowds attending Kansas State football games at home this year number 22,833 as compared with 25,185 which attended the home games last year, an 8 per cent decrease. Out of town games this year drew an audience of 33,868 while last year's out of town games were witnessed by only 27,783, making an increase of over 22 per cent over last year's attendance.

The comparisons of each year's attendance at one game are as follows: Oklahoma: last year, 6,228, this year, 6,695; Kansas university: last year, 14,420, this year, 8,517; Missouri, last year 4,369, this year, 4,997; Iowa, last year, 4,396, this year, 5,574; Nebraska, last year, [illegible] 304, this year, 15,000.

Most outstanding is the 22 per cent increase in attendance of the Kansas State out of town games. Football as played at Kansas State under the tutorship of "Bo" McMillin evidently is gaining national recognition.

A CAPTAIN WELL CHOSEN.

With the election of Ralph Graham as captain of the 1933 Kansas State football team, prospects for a victorious season loom over the horizon. Graham, one of the most able backs ever to play ball in the conference, is also a leader of his eleven. His teammates have confidence in his decisions, and certainly in his power to carry them out. He injects into them the fight he always displays on the field, and through his determination and cooperation achieves the impossible through the toughest of lines.

These characteristics, in addition to his likeable personality, have brought him the honor he so rightly deserves. A better choice of captain could not have been made.

ALUMNI AND FOOTBALL

Kansas State college and members of its alumni set a pretty good example as to the best way to regard football in connection with other school activities. At Manhattan, football is an incident in collegiate life—an important one it is true, but nothing to get upset about. Several other schools in the Big Six conference have had violent upheavals in their coaching staffs in late years. All because their teams did not win as many games as was expected. Kansas State started out on the present season with high hopes for a conference championship. This hope was shared by many alumni although many graduates of the school frankly say that they hope the Aggies will never win a championship; that then they will never be expected to finish out in front year after year. But something happened to the team and the season shows two conference victories and three defeats. In many other schools that record would have been enough for turmoil in the athletic department, but not so at Kansas State. Mike Ahearn and Bo McMillin still have the confidence of school authorities, of the student body and of the great mass of the alumni. The situation is summed up by C. E. McBride, sports editor of the Kansas City Star as follows: "Kansas and Kansas State have finished their season, their players have given earnestly and valiantly of their services and the coaches have labored without stint in their efforts to teach all the intricate lessons that football holds. For Kansas the season as far as victories go probably may be rated more successful than that of Kansas State but the state of football as a sport and its attendant conditions are happier at Manhattan than at Lawrence. At Kansas, the gaff of an early season conference defeat couldn't be withstood and there was a shift of head coaches in mid-stream. At Kansas State football is just football, it seems, and if the team is well taught and renders a good account of itself even in defeat the college goes on its way with the business of football submerged to the business of education."—Glick Fockele, LeRoy Reporter.

The Snooper

Tonight the Aggie Pot (or Pop, or Slop), one of the dozen or shows put on by some organization that has nothing to do with the agricultural side of the school, is to take place. Each year the Aggie Pop (or Slop, or Flop), and the Aggie Fair, and the Aggie Orpheum, and some more of the Aggie something-or-ruthers vie for the student trade which, after after, all, is nothing to scream about. But why do these organizations usurp the name of "Aggie" if they feel it their bounden duty to put on a show? Why not call it the "Fiftieth Annual Hippodrome of the Class in Small Fruits and Vegetables," or something else equally as snappy?

The talent of an Ag show is one of the home spun variety. Some of them are actually worth seeing. Of course you realize that the statement is a bold one and will be challenged by the several janitors who have season passes, but after all somebody has to go to them so why not the people who read this column? When the curtain of an Ag show squeaks open fifteen minutes after the starting time (this gives the show a professional appearance), a handfull of musicians in the pit play the same number of badly tuned brass horns and the grand march is on. In it are the actors (?) in the show. There are girls dressed to represent goblins, there are some brownies, two steam fitters, a Yogi, and a peach orchard.

The goblins put on the first act. It is a series of gyrations which is bewildering to the audience. By consulting a small cardboard upon which has been compiled the various acts, they are informed that this is supposed to represent the fumes from a steam laundry. The Yogi can be seen staring out from the wings to attract the attention of an uncle in the first row. His act is next and he wants unk to be sure and see him. The curtain drops. The curtain goes up. Everybody forgets his cues and the steam fitters, the Yogi, and the peach orchard all bounce out from the wings at once, much to the merriment of several small boys in the front row. The steam fitters start a juggling and joking act while the peach orchard and the Yogi go back behind the wings to haggle with each other over who is to go on first. The steam fitters are screams. For instance: No. 1 "Who was that oboe I saw you with last night?" No. 2 "That wasn't no oboe, that was my fife." This is supposed to be extremely funny and both No. 1 and No. 2 shake with uncontrollable mirth in which the audience does not take part. The curtain goes down. The curtain goes up. The peach orchard gives a ventriloquilistic observation of a tree with a nest of robins in its hair. The curtain goes down. The curtain goes up. And so on until you are probably getting tired of reading this. You had better go and see for yourself how they end. Sit in a back row in an outside seat and take a good reliable alarm clock along. The show may not be good but at least it will be a cure for your insomnia.

On Other Hills

Operating 55 candy dispensing machines in Boulder is the way two students at the University of Colorado pay their way through school. The boys stock the machines and keep them in repair, receiving 35 per cent of the profits. Similar plans are in operation at the University of Wyoming, Colorado Agricultural college, and the Colorado School of Mines.

The University of Nebraska now offers a course to freshmen women, in which personality, expression, fashions and etiquette are studied. The "charm" class, which has been organized only recently, will be conducted under the direction of a "Big Sister" board. Bet the old folks will be surprised when these co-eds return home this fall.

Have you heard the origin of that new novelty number, "Chewing Gum"? Art Kassell, the famous "Kasseler of the air" at Chicago wrote the number after an A. T. O. rose to the heights of something or other to save the country. The A. T. O. at DePauw university won two dollars by chewing a dollar's worth of chewing gum at one time. With this inspiration, anyone could write a song.

Here's one way to end the depression, for farmers at least. At an eastern university, freshmen and sophomores will organize into groups of 15 and throw 1,200 eggs at each other in the annual class fight. This contest has been approved by authorities, for although very messy, it replaces the annual flag-pole rush of former years, which became dangerous.

Women's greatest sport, known as rushing, has at last reached a point of protection on the campus. At Denison university, sororities engaged in the rush season have employed a lawyer as a referee. Several cops and a deputy sheriff might also be useful during the season.

A new type of year book will evolve at the University of Wisconsin this year. The exclusively pictorial history of the school year will be replaced by literary features, including a collection of excerpts from the writings of one of Wisconsin's greatest poets and professor in the university.

If you were a co-ed at the University of Southern California, you would have to prove it by selling tickets at the "Dime Crawl" dances at the school. The fair co-eds are the hostesses for the night at a park plan dance, and the popularity of a lady is rated by the number of tickets she takes in.

Gentlemen no longer prefer blondes. At least if the decision of the judges at a recent debate at Wittenberg college holds true. Brunettes are much more intelligent than their blonde rivals. Three blonde co-eds debated with three dark haired lassies as to the relative intelligence of blondes and brunettes and after some delay the judges finally decided in favor of the brunettes.

The honor of being Northwestern's most unbeautiful queen was recently bestowed upon a bewigged male, when attempts to find the homeliest girl on the campus were in vain. The contest was held in conjunction with the Homecoming activities. Nearly all of the 3,291 women enrolled in the university were willing to enter the contest.

There are no "Rah! Rah!" boys or "Fight! Fight" girls at Westminster college, Fulton, Mo. This is one college where the students go to college just to study. Football at the college was abandoned last year after the board of trustees and the faculty decided the game was being unduly emphasized, and that there was a tendency in college athletics in general to rise from their rightful place to the point of folly. Wonder what the poor grads do now on Homecoming day?

Lonesome males at the University of Alabama need no longer fear the outcome of a blind date, since the dater's guide has been issued by the school. The publication will contain the names of all of the popular co-eds and their rating. It will be a feature of the "Nudist" issue of the Rammer-Jammer, the university's humor magazine.

POULTRY JUDGES WIN FIRST PLACE IN CHICAGO MEET

TEAM TAKES TOP BIRTH IN MID-WEST POULTRY CONTEST.

THREE TO RECEIVE MEDALS

Wardell, Harper, and Moore Will Also Receive Cash Prizes for High Individual Scores.

The poultry judging team of Kansas State returned Tuesday from Chicago where they won first place in the Mid-West Intercollegiate Poultry contest. The meats judging team, competing Tuesday, November 29, at the International Livestock exposition in Chicago, placed fourth.

The three men to receive medals and cash awards for high individual scoring were J. J. Wardell with 1098.3 points out of a possible 1,333.3, R. T. Harper, with 1,0809 points, and G. C. Moore with 1,021.7 points. Other members of the team were Tom Avery, Clarence Anderson, and were accompanied by Prof. H. M. Scott, coach of the team, and D. A. Wilhelm, assistant coach in judging eggs.

In the meats judging contest J. L. Miller tied for fifth and sixth place in the entire contest with 778 points out of a possible 900. The other members of this team were L. R. Daniels, G. R. Munson, and Harold Kugler. Prof. L. J. Bratzler of the animal husbandry department coached the team. The teams that entered in the meats judging contest and the order in which they finished were Ohio State, Nebraska, Iowa State, Kansas State, North Dakota, Virginia, Ontario, Massachusetts, and Penn State.

A record of the contests since 1922 and the placing of K. S. C. for each year has been: third in 1922; fourth in 1923; seventh in 1924; sixth in 1925! third in 1926; eighth in 1927; second in 1928, with Stewart of K. S. C. as high individual scorer in the contest; first in 1929, with Leary of K. S. C. as high individual scorer; second in 1930; third in 1931; and first in the contest this year.

THEY'RE MILDER
THEY TASTE BETTER
YOU would be astonished too, if you could see this machine that turns out 750 Chesterfields a minute... and every one as near perfect as cigarettes can be made.
But please bear this in mind. It is what happens before the tobacco goes into this machine that matters most. Rolling and packaging are important, but not nearly as important as the selection, blending and treatment of the tobacco.
That's why we keep telling you about the tobaccos used in Chesterfields. They're fine, mild, and pure tobaccos. We tell you about ageing and curing the tobaccos... about blending and cross-blending them... because they are things that count.
Chesterfields are milder. They taste better. Prove it for yourself... Just try a package.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Just Aggie Pop to anticipate this week end—if such is anticipated by anyone except those unlucky individuals who perform in it. From all reports though, the entertainment will be above average this year—but then, naturally, they always say that. It is said by one who should know that Harry Miller does a wee bit of Harlem dancing in an act, that Jim Richards may be the dusky maiden in the Romeo and Juliet scene, and that Bob Besler will be adorned in gorgeous red and blue lounging pajamas (which, incidentally were borrowed from the Chi Omega house.) However don't make the sad mistake of dubbing the affair "Aggie (St)op (P)unt" as did the well known Paul Eugene Fairbank recently . . . . Enchiladas is having its annual fling Saturday, consequently we should have a few worthy items for our column next week . . . .

. . . . But why should Jack Petrie be addressed as "Playboy Petrie, Campus Sweetheart" in a letter from one of the girls back home—not trying to feed her the old stuff, are you Jack? . . . . And did Lee Morgan have a hard time trying to locate the Pax party—or should we say Swede Lutz' party, for we hear he is really the one who is official host . . . . Did Genevie Johnson really think she had the mumps or was she just pulling a fast one on Luella (Ag) Graham? . . . . Brosia McClaren is seen wearing Ed Kelly's crested ring—another campus romance . . . . By the way, what's affecting some of the Pi K A's? . . . . An item about the Kansas State Sweetheart of two years ago—Vera Smith, is wearing the Sigma Nu pin whose owner is Bob Johnson (a last year's student) . . . . Jean Scheel seems to be the official escort of the three K. U. girls who are playing in a string trio at the Dickinson . . . .

. . . . Another contest—this time and again it's the Betty Co-ed and Joe College gag. It seems as if this school is forever attempting to get some of its students to the front. We've everything from Barn Queens to King of the Seniors—and we're still looking for more. The Royal Purple is to be congratulated that it kept its nose out of the contests this season. Now it's the Manhattan Theatre! Just another publicity stunt to put across the Spider play that's on its way. But why oh why did they use the worn out, weather-beaten, insipid, crass, good-for-nothing fray which results in a would-be typical college girl and boy? And what winner of a Kansas State contest such as this ever felt complimented? Rather they require the sympathy of the masses who elected them (usually about 200 vote). Naturally the winners' pictures flaunt the newspapers (due to the efforts of the Kansas State publicity department). And from these newspapers, we would suggest that the pictures go to the "Hall of Booby Fame" found somewhere in the College Humor ballyhoo section. What honor can the contestants merit when every two weeks the same popularity election is held under a different name as disguise? Praise might have been given the Manhattan Theatre had they conducted a guessing contest as to the identity of the Spider, or a count-the-bean contest—but to use and re-use that stupid Betty Co-ed and Joe College stunt is just a good way to cure all. To the candidates who have been unmercifully ejected into this election we extend our deepest sympathy—some day publicity agents will see the light . . . .

CAGERS LEAVE TODAY FOR TILT WITH KANSAS U.

TWELVE PLAYERS WILL LEAVE FOR UNIVERSITY AT NOON.

NOT READY FOR HARD GAME

Those Who Have Been Practicing For Several Weeks Will Be Backbone of the Offense.

After scrimmaging hard all week, twelve Kansas State basketball players will leave about noon today for Lawrence where they will tangle with the Kansas university Jayhawkers tonight at 7:30.

Although the squad is not in shape for a hard scheduled game, many of the suqadmen have been practicing for several weeks and will be the backbone of the Kansas State offense against Kansas. Captain Andy Skradski and Bus Boyd, Phillipsburg, have been on the court for several weeks and should show good form against the Jayhawkers. Skradski plays center or forward while Boyd holds down a guard position.

K. J. Phelps, sophomore, Manhattan, may start at the other forward position with Captain Skradski. Phelps has been showing great speed and probably handles the ball faster than any other man on the court at the present time. Don Hutchinson, Hutchinson, sophomore, will probably team with Boyd at the guards while Emmett Breen, El Dorado, letterman, may start at a forward position.

Some of the football men who have just started out for basketball this week, besides Breen, will also see action in the game tonight. Ralph Graham, forward, letterman, has been kept from regular form by three broken ribs received in the homecoming football game with Kansas university, November 19. Henry Dalton, big rangy center, letterman from Ottawa, will also be in the squabble before the game has progressed too far. Dalton is big and tall and will prove a power to the K-Aggie offense this season.

The Kansas State defense will have a job watching Big Bill Johnson, Kansas university's all-conference center. Johnson is one of the biggest scoring cogs in the Kansas offense.

"I am going to take 12 of these players," Coach Corsaut said last night, "but I have not decided just who they will be as yet."

The players who will probably make the trip, however, besides those mentioned are: Orin Stoner, sophomore, Sabetha; Dougal Russell, sophomore, McDonald, Pa.; Jim Freeland, sophomore, Manhattan; J. R. Marshall, sophomore, Kansas City; or Dan Blaine, junior, El Dorado.

ZECKSER AND GRAHAM NAMED ON A. P. ELEVEN

Russell and Weybrew on Alternating team; Press Organization, Prints Choice Wednesday.

The captain of the 1932 football eleven, Walter Zeckser, Alma, and the captain-elect of the 1933 squad, Ralph Graham, El Dorado, were Associated Press Big Six choices it was announced Wednesday. Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa., and Neil Weybrew, Wamego, three letter tackle, were selected for the alternate team of the Big Six.

Zeckser was the smallest guard to play in the conference this year. Tipping the scales at 165 pounds, this powerful defense man was formerly used as a blocking back because of his speed and blocking ability. During the 1931 season he was often used in the K-Aggie backfield.

Graham is perhaps one of the best backs ever to grace a Kansas State eleven. He perhaps has received more praise from conference team selectors this year than any man on the Wildcat squad. The Associated Press placed him in a half back position. Graham was honored also by his teammates, who chose him late yesterday afternoon as leader of next year's McMillinmen.

Russell, who received his first "K" this season, is one of the fleetest backs in the conference. Nebraska coaches said he was the best backfield man they had ever seen on the field.

Weybrew never played a season of football until he came to college and proved a mainstay in the Kansas State line. These four men, along with Lloyd Michael, who was kept from any all-star selections because of injuries and sickness during the last two games of the season, were the backbone of the K-Aggie defense.

Emmett Breen, El Dorado, is the only backfield man finishing his competition this season. Breen came to Kansas State from Bethany where he was considered their best all-time athlete and in the Big Six he is considered the most accurate of passers. Breen also is a letterman in basketball and track.

Women's Sports

The first set of volleyball game were played off Wednesday ni and the tournament promises to h a fast and hard one. Phi Omega Pi defeaed Beta Phi Alpha, Pi Beta Phi won from Chi Omega, and Alpha Delta Pi beat Van Zile Hall. The finals will be held in two weeks, with games being played nearly every afternoon until then.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR OUTSTANDING MAT TEAM

Seventy Varsity and Freshman Wrestlers Out Daily for Squad—Salina First Competition.

With 70 varsity and freshman wrestlers working out daily, prospects look bright for an outstanding mat team. The loss of Bill Doyle, Douglass, Big Six and national intercollegiate champion, through graduation and the ineligibility of Wayne Burbank, runner-up in the Big Six meet last year, will be felt. Sam Alsop, two year letterman, may return to school next semester. He is a 145-pounder. Joe Fickel, national A. A. U. champion last year and Big Six champion in 1930 and 1931, may also return to school next semester. Although ineligible for varsity competition, Fickel would act as an assistant to Coach Patterson.

The outstanding men in their respective weights are as follows: 118-pound class: P. W. Griffith Edmond; 126-pound class: C. F Walters, Manhattan, W. F. Keller, Great Bend. R. W. Winget, Garden City; 135-pound class: R. G. Fowler, Holton, Ronald Pickett, Manhattan, A. R. McDonald, Bremen, R. R. Teagarden, LaCygne; 145-pound class: Paul Warner, Whiting, Missouri Valley A. A. U. champion last year, George Watson, Clifton, Ed Lamb, Manhattan; 155-pound class: Captain June Roberts, For Ivan Thomas, Garden City. H Webb, Hardtner, Howard Bohnenblust, Leonardville, Henry Duvanel Benton; 165-pound class: F. M. Bozarth, Lenora, J. E. Veatch, Manhattan, H. T. Niles, Olivet, F. A. Vaughn. Hartford, B. C. Koh Elmo; 175-pound class: Jay Miller, Menden, Dean Swift, Olathe; heavyweight: Arthur Thiele, Bremen.

Salina Wesleyan will furnish the first competition for the squad although a definite date has not been set for the meet. Oklahoma Central State Teachers college at Edmonds, Okla., is also scheduled at a later date. All-college tournaments under Greeco-Poman, Olympic, and national intercollegiate rules are being planned.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Chandu Th Magician"

If you want to see your nightmares acted out for you in a way more weird than you can ever dream, see "Chandu, the Magician."

Edmund Lowe, as Chandu, performs his role with skill. His sweetheart, Irene War, does some squally good work.

A death ray, which has the power to destroy the world is in the hands of a mad man. Guns are turned into snakes, a flash of the hand and people disappear, a man walks through fire without being burned, stone mummies walk, and on every turn there is magic in the air. But it's almost too much when Chandu summons his power to bring a cloud over the sun!

It's a novel show, and one you'll enjoy if you like your toast dry.

AT THE DICKINSON
"Rain"

The screen version of the highly praised stage show is not a disappointment if you aren't expecting too much—and if Joan Crawford doesn't happen to be one of your idols.

Miss Crawford, as the notorious Sadie Thompson of Jeanne Eagles fame, is overdone. As a poor little sinner minding her own business is a little bit too tough to be real. However, she redeems herself somewhat while being converted. Without so much makeup Miss Crawford is quite attractive.

Walter Huston as the soul saver played his role with conviction. Other members of the cast also did creditable work.

The story you all know. Sadie Thompson, a sinner, sees the light as it is forced upon her by the over-righteous missionary. But he turns the way of all flesh and then commits suicide. Miss Thompson is saved, not for her redeemer, perhaps, but for herself.

You'd better see it if you've never seen "Rain." The story is worth your time. . . .

AT THE VARSITY
"Those We Love"

Honesty is the best policy, finds Kenneth MacKenna, as the novelist who always tells his wife the truth, until the blonde Lilyan Tashman comes over to his house and takes a bath just at the moment—you guessed it—when his wife arrives unexpectedly. Lilyan makes the most of her unpromising lines, as usual, and Mary Astor, as the wife in this domestic problem picture is beautiful and intelligent.

ELECTION TODAY PROMISES TO BE ONE OF LARGEST

STUDENTS WILL PICK BETT CO-ED AND JOE COLLEGE THIS AFTERNOON.

NOMINATE 12 CANDIDATES

Maurice DuMars Withdraws in Favor of Harry Hinckley—Contest Takes Queer Turn Monday.

What promises to be one of the largest polls ever to be taken on the Kansas State campus will be held today in Anderson hall when students will elect Betty Co-ed and Joe College. The two persons elected to the positions must be representative students of the college—in scholarship as well as in popularity and participation in campus activities.

The election is being sponsored by the Manhattan Theatre and the two successful candidates will be introduced next Thursday night as an entre-act feature of "The Spider."

The pre-election contest took a queer turn late Monday afternoon when handbills announcing Eugenia Ebling's candidacy for Betty Co-ed were distributed throughout Aggieville. In a previous issue of the Collegian, Miss Ebling, conductor of the "Over the Back Fence" column, had directed caustic criticism toward the prospective success of the venture.

The complete list of candidates, according to Don Compton of the Manhattan Theatre, is: for Betty Co-ed—Helen "Spud" Morgan, Doris Paulson, Eugenia Ebling, Lois Rust, Wilda McNally, Betty Wagstaff. For Joe College—Mike Oberhelman, Glenn Fox, Don White, Stephen Asbill, and Harry Hinckley. Maurice DuMars, who was nominated independently for Joe College, withdrew in favor of Harry Hinckley, his fraternity brother.

The polls will be located in the main hall of Anderson and will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

COMPLETE BAZAAR PLANS

To Be Held Thursday in Recreation Center.

Plans have been completed for the annual Christmas bazaar sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. which is to be held in recreation center Thursday, December 8. It is to be open to any one from 8 o'clock until 6 o'clock.

There is to be a collection of Japanese, Chinese, and European art goods. Some of the interesting articles to be for sale are engraved copper antique Surian plates, Russian tea balls, Russian bodka lamps, small desk lamps, Japanese rubbing perfume, Chinese coats, wall hanging, Jasmine tea, and various assortments of linens and silks.

All of the linens and silks are hand woven and fast colored. The linens are made at the Mission Industrial Schools by supervised workers. The designs are copied from Chinese life and Chinese landscape. All of the jewelry is from Peking and is hand wrought.

The ivory which is genuine and hand carved is from Canton. The handkerchiefs are made of pure Irish linen as Chinese linens are not suitable for such purpose.

PHI MU ALPHA ENTERTAINS

Music Faculty on Program at Banquet.

Phi Mu Alpha, men's professional national music fraternity, held a banquet last night at the college cafeteria at 6:15 o'clock. The dinner was an informal meeting at which a number of guests were entertained. The college trio, composed of Llye Downey, Richard Jesson, and Max Martin, all members of Phi Mu Alpha, played several numbers. Members of the organization gave short talks. The guest list included: M. F. Keck, Manhattan; J. R. Ketchersid, Hope; J. H. McCleskey, Abilene; K. B. Thompson, Wichita; C. H. Ludvickson, Severy; T. C. Groody, Manhattan; Val Silkett, Downs; Loyal Van Doren, Hays; J. H. Howard, Oberlin; and W. B. Purviance, Milford. M. H. Davison, Manhattan, is president of this organization.

COMMISSION MEETS

Ward Haylett Talks on "Sportsmanship at the Olympics."

Freshman men's commission met last night at 8 o'clock in recreation center and an interesting program attracted a good attendance.

There were three reels of movies showing one of the Aggie football games and also depicting various campus scenes. This was then followed with a xylophone solo by Harold Kugler, of Abilene. The feature of the evening's program was a short, interesting talk by Ward Haylett, varsity track coach, on the subject of "Sportsmanship at the Olympics."

SPEAKS IN FACULTY

At a special meeting of the faculty of the education department Wednesday afternoon, Prof. Roy Langford spoke on, "Psychology and Art," which is the subject upon which he is working for a Ph D. degree from Stanford university. The wives of the faculty were guests, and light refreshments were served after the meeting.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH" WILL BE GIVEN DECEMBER 18

Will Be Presented for the Sixteenth Time In Auditorium.

Handel's "Messiah" will be given here for the sixteenth time December 18 in the college auditorium. Prof. William Lindquist, head of the department of music, will direct the Manhattan choral union in the presentation. The union is built around the college glee clubs and the Manhattan men's chorus. The concert is being sponsored by the Ministerial association.

Soloists are Miss Gene Maurits, instructor in the department of music, soprano; Mrs. Sylvia Wylli mezzo-soprano; Mrs. L. H. Limper, contralto; Prof. Edwin Sayre, tenor; Donald Plumb, Cleburne, a K. S. C. graduate, bass.

The college orchestra under the direction of Prof. Lyle W. Downey, and Richard Jesson, organist, will play the accompaniments.

"The Messiah" was presented here annually for 15 years until 1929, when it was replaced by Bach's Christmas oratorio.

Although Handel was born in Saxony (1685), he went to England as a young man and stayed there most of his life. His music is essentially English rather than Germanic in character, and it is mostly on religious themes. He was a contemporary of Bach and Mozart. Handel died in London and was buried in Westminister Abbey.

SPECIALISTS ADDRESS PURCHASING CLASS

Purpose Is to Teach Members How To Spend Wisely.

Mole-Skin Clad Football Players Of 1909 Have An Enviable Record

BY M. F. AHEARN

In the fall of 1909 the Wildcat football team compiled an enviable record, scoring a total of 320 points to 11 by their opponents. However, it is not the purpose of this scribble to chronicle all of the glorious deeds of the 1909 gridiron machine for these records are on file and are accessible to the general public. The mole-skin clad athletes of that season won from Kansas Wesleyan 35-0, from Southwestern university 60-0. Emporia Teachers were turned back 44-0, Fairmount college, now known as Wichita university, was beaten 71-0 and Washburn was taken into camp to the tune of 40-0.

On the opposite side of the ledger we find that Kansas university scored 5 points against Kansas State. Missouri, coached by the famous Bill Roper of Princeton fame made 3 points, and Creighton university annexed 3 points. While they were making these points the Wildcats collected 58.

But one game that stands out in the memory of the fans who followed the 1909 team is the game played with Oklahoma Aggies on the 13th day of November. Dope pointed to an easy game for Kansas State and optimistic rooters predicted a win or the Wildcats by 90 or 100 points and nearly every citizen of Manhattan was willing and ready to bet the family silver that Kansas State would win by at least 60 points.

Came the day of the game. Came also the Oklahoma Aggies and in addition there came about 4 or 5 inches of rain. At the hour the game was called the gridiron was under water and it continued to rain. The report of the game taken from an old issue reads as follows: "Rain, rain and more rain but it takes more than a downpour to cause the post-ponemen of a football game. When the referee blew his whistle for the kick off at 3:30 o'clock the gridiron overflowed with water and the bleachers overflowed with about 200 bugs (probably meant ducks instead of bugs, tho' they might have been water-bugs.) The wet and shivering rooters soon forgot their discomfort as they were kept in a continuous uproar at the ludicrous performance of the players in their attempts to navigate in about 6 inches of mud and water. There were no injuries as most of the men had passed their swimmin' and diving tests although at times it was feared that the man at the bottom of the pile might be held under water long enough to cause a drowning fatality."

Neither side scored until the second half when Harold Bates quarterback for the Wildcats, booted the ball (which, with the real estate attached, weighed between 5 and 50 pounds) over the goal posts. Later in the game Bun Speer took a forward pass from Bates and making a good use of the swift current swam 50 yards for a touchdown.

One of the most amusing features was put on by Captain Cameron of Fort Riley, acting as umpire. Cameron officiated under the protection of a big umbrella. This umbrella and its owner was of material help to Speer in the forward pass play just mentioned. Following the field goal by Harry Bates, the Oklahoma Aggies kicked off to Kansas State. On the next play Bunt sneaked out and crawled under the protection of the umpire's umbrella without Captain Cameron realizing that he was sharing this valuable space with one of the players. As soon as the ball was snapped Speer started down the field near the side lines and snagged the long forward pass that Bates hurled to him. Bunt then splashed and waded the rest of the distance to the goal while the boys from Oklahoma tried vainly to overcome him by means of the crawl stroke. It might be well to mention that in those days the umpire usually took up a position similar to the one the headlinesman occupies today. This is to answer the expert's query as to how Speer became eligible without getting off-sides if he was under the umpire's parasol.

The score, as you probably have figured, was Kansas State 9, Oklahoma A. and M. 0, Kansas State gaining 100 yards upstream and Oklahoma gaining exactly 10 yards downstream.

STUDENT RECITAL TO BE PRESENTED TODAY

American, French, Russian, and Polish Composers Will Be Presented in Program.

American, Russian, French, and Polish composers will be represented in the student recital which is to be given this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the auditorium. Piano and violin solos will be presented. The program will be: "To a Water Lily" and "From an Indian Lodge," (MacDowell), Shirley Jacobs; "Berceuse" (Schutt), Ursula Hiller; "Intermezzo," opus 113, no. 1 (Sternberg), Geraldine Hammond; "Andante tranquillo," 7th concerto (De Beriot), Margaret Higdon; "Pizzicati" (Delibes), Frances Fockele; "Images in the Water" (Zeckwer), Patricia Irwin; "Waltz," opus 64, no. 2 (Chopin), Julia Crow.

Edward MacDowell was an American composer and pianist. He studied both in America and Europe. His music depicts the "moods awakened by things rather than the things themselves." The two numbers to be played are taken from the suite called "Woodland Sketches." "From an Indian Lodge" has a melody of the Brotherton Indians as its theme.

Eduard Schutt was born in St Petersburg in 1856. He has written some music for strings, but he is best known in America for his piano compositions.

Constantin von Sternberg is a pianist and composer, born in Pesorograd in 1852. Kullak and Liszt were his teachers. He now lives in Brussels Conservatory. His violin Philadelphia.

Charles De Beriot was a French violinist of the nineteenth century. He was professor of violin at the method, etudes, and concertos are well known.

Leo Delibes, another nineteenth century composer, studied at the Paris Conservatory. His operas "Lakm" and "Les Filles de Cadiz" and the ballet, "Sylvia," are probably his best known work. "Pizzicati" is taken from "Sylvia."

Camille Zeckwer was an American composer who died in 1924. A pupil of Dvorak in America and of P. Scharwenka in Berlin, he wrote several symphonies besides chamber and piano music. Some of his works have been played by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra.

The music of Frederick Chopin is well known. Although he died at 39, he composed a vast amount of music, mostly for the piano. Polish by birth, he lived in Paris for many years and died there in 1849. His music is characterized by an almost morbid sensitiveness combined with force. Besides his piano music, he wrote a small amount of instrumental music and a small group of Polish songs.

SAYS COLDS ARE MOST COSTLY OF INFECTIONS

Dr. Siever Explains That Science Has Made Little Progress Against The Disease.

A germ so small it is able to pass through a porcelain filter may be the cause of common colds. This was one of the facts brought out by Dr. Chas. M. Siever, college physician, in his talk on "Common Colds" over KSAC Thursday. "Many people think," he said, "that a cold does not amount to anything and will make light of it by saying, 'Oh, it's nothing—just a cold.'"

"There is no doubt," Dr. Siever continued, "but what if the total costs of colds was computed in terms of dollars, cost as a result of sickness and inefficiency, in terms of doctors, medicine and funeral bills; in terms of suffering, discomfort and permanent injury to health; in terms of pneumonia, nephritis, heart and other organic diseases resulting from colds, we would probably conclude that is a far more important infection than tuberculosis or any other of the infectious diseases.

"It is a disease against which science has made little progress. It is estimated that the average cold per person each year is from three to five. It is true some seldom have colds, but on the other hand there are some who are never quite free from them.

Kansas State Chapter Asks Other Chapters to Convention in Kansas City.

The Kansas State chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, has extended invitations to the chapters of Kansas university, Missouri university, Oklahoma university, and Nebraska university to attend a district convention of the organization in Kansas City Friday and Saturday, December 9 and 10. About 15 undergraduate members of the Kansas State group and Professors C. E. Rogers, R. I Thackrey, and F. E. Charles will attend the meetings.

The program of the convention will open with a business meeting Friday afternoon when chapter problems of membership, finances activities on campus, and activities off of the campus will be discussed. Frank Stoll, special correspondent for the Kansas City Board of Trade who was initiated as an associate member of Sigma Delta Chi, Kansas State chapter, last June, is entertaining with a complementary banquet for the convention group Friday night. A closing meeting will be held Saturday morning.

The details of arranging the program are in charge of Henry Bodendieck, associate publisher of Bank News, of Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Bodendieck is an alumnus of Missouri university.

ATTENDS HI-Y CONFERENCE

Prof. C. V. Williams attended the senior Hi-Y conference at Topeka Friday and Saturday. Professor Williams, who has been a member of the state conference Hi-Y committee for several years, is director of the work.

The work this year is vocational guidance and at the conference each boy was given an individual analysis to assist him in choosing his life work and was then allowed to consult with a specialist in his chosen profession.

More than five hundred boys from high schools over the state attended the meeting. Another conference will be held at Wichita December 16 and 17.

GARGOYLES TO HOLD DANCE

The annual smock dance, sponsored by the Gargoyle club of the department of architecture will be held Friday evening, December 9 in the department's rooms of the engineering building. Jack Burke's orchestra will furnish the music.

CAGE MEN MEET K. U. IN RETURN TILT TOMORROW

DEFEAT KANSAS PLAYERS IN FIRST PRE-SEASON GAME LAST FRIDAY.

TEAM SHOWING UP WELL

Those Who Had Slow Start Because of Football Rapidly Getting in Shape.

Kansas State will meet the Kansas university Jayhawkers in a return pre-season engagement here Wednesday night. The Corsautmen defeated the Kansas players Friday night, December 2, in a close game, 31 to 27.

Probably the hardest thing the K-Aggies will have to do is to bottle up Bill Johnson, Kansas university's star center. In the game at Lawrence the whole Jayhawker team seemed to cater to Johnson and feed him the ball at all times during the game.

One of the starters for Kansas university will probably be Wells, Hutchinson, who was substituted Friday night and made two field goals. This was more than any other Kansas player. Besides Johnson and Wells, the other K. U. players will probably be Harrington, forward, and Schaake and Vanek, guards.

On the Kansas State squad more men are rounding into shape every day. Emmett Breen, Ralph Graham, El Dorado; Henry Dalton, Ottawa; and Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa.; are all showing up well. These men have been a little slow getting started because the football season which kept them from the early season practices.

A slight change may be made in the K-Aggie lineup giving Bus Boyd a little more of an offensive assignment. If this is done Don Hutchinson and Dougal Russell will be given more of the defensive assignment.

The game will be the first game to be played here this season and will probably be the fastest of any of the pre-season engagements that will be in Manhattan before the Big Six season opens January 7, with Oklahoma university here. The price of general admission is 40 cents and reserved seats will be $1.10.

Coach Corsaut decided to forego attending the rules interpretation meeting in Kansas City the first of this week in order to prepare for the mid-week contest.

The Wildcats will play exhibition contests with St. Louis university at St. Louis and Maryville Teachers at Maryville, Mo., December 10 and 12, respectively. They will return then for a game with Davis and Elkins college here Thursday, December 15. Two days later they will go to Wichita university and that will be all until after Christmas vacation.

The men who will probably start against K. U. are: Bus Boyd, Phillipsburg, and Don Hutchinson, Hutchinson, guards; Captain Andy Skradski, Kansas City, and Ralph Graham, El Dorado, forwards; Henry Dalton, Ottawa, center.

MUSIC GROUP INITIATES

Mu Mu chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary musical fraternity for women, held formal initiation for four new members Sunday morning at 7:30 o'clock. Those initiated were Miss Gene Maurits, instructor in the department of music, Miss Emily Rumold, Miss Mabel Russell, and Miss Juliana Amos. The ceremony was conducted by Miss Clarice Painter, west central province president. Miss Frances Jack is president of the Kansas State chapter. After the ceremony, members entertained the initiates at breakfast at the Gillett hotel.

STUDY COLORS OF INSECTS

"Colors that occur in nature never clash," so Miss Dorothy Dutton took her home economics art class to the entomology department Thursday afternoon to study colors and color patterns in insects, especially of butterflies and moths.

This work is being done to give original suggestions for the designing of clothing, making use of colors which occur together in nature.

Dean E. L. Holton attended a meeting of the Cleveland conference at Chicago this week end. This is an organization for men prominent in the field of education.

THEY DON'T WANT BEER

The failure of the house of representatives to pass the resolution providing for repeal of the eighteenth amendment yesterday will result in an attempt on the part of the Collegian to determine the concensus of opinion on the Kansas State campus.

As soon as proper arrangements can be made, polls will be placed in Anderson hall at which Kansas State students may voice their opinions as to whether the eighteenth amendment should be repealed through ratification of the repeal by the people or retain its present status regarding liquor control.

The overwhelming democratic victory November 2 evidenced that in Kansas many republicans bolted the party to vote for the much-talked-of "change." The decisive vote in Kansas was said to have been caused by the repeal plank in the democratic platform.

It is doubtful whether or not the repeal was uppermost in the hearts of Kansans when they voiced their approval of Franklin D. Roosevelt for president. The idea of the poll is to obtain a clear, intelligent viewpoint of the student body after its members have analyzed the situation to the best of their ability and feel the courage of their convictions.

COLLEGIANS, LIQUOR, SOCIALISM?

Now that national elections are over it is timely to consider the results, issues, and nominees from the point of view of interest college students.

What is going to happen?

Perhaps the most controversal, though not the most important subject of the past campaign season converged upon the dispute over prohibition. The democrats, advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment were overwhelmingly victorious. However there is a disagreement among party chieftains regarding the method by which to control liquor traffic after repeal. Local option, state control and regional state alliances have all been suggested as solutions and each one contains prominent weaknesses. Simultaneously with this argument is a militant battle being conducted by staunch drys against any change from the status quo. This fight is said to be gathering strength daily.

Duplicating an event of the election of 1928, a strong surge was again made toward the socialist party ticket and platform. Many citizens are practically convinced that there ought to be stricter social control of business and government ownership of the railroads. In universities this trend becomes particularly and too conservatives alarmingly—noticeable. Some even go so far as to predict that if the new administration does not hoist America out of the present slough of depression, a socialist regime will sweep into office in 1936.

There are many other very important questions which soon will be decided. Will John N. Garners banking principle of loaning to individuals be accepted? Will the tariff actually be lowered? Will the "lame-duck session" of congress be abolished? Will America come to elect her president by popular instead of by electorial votes? Will the federal farm board be abolished? Will the national government take over the railroads or will they pass restrictive legislation against those things which are competing with railroads with ruinous results? Will America continue her policy of isolation from the rest of the world?

Problems such as these have been and are now questions for academic consideration and every collegian should be interested in them to some extent. It is not so well to drift along in an inert attitude toward the present situation.

We college students must admit that we are ignoramuses on most political questions. However we do appreciate radical changes. A revolutionary electorate has made a revolutionary shift in government and expect radical things to be done. With something sensational taking place in Washington the eyes of the nation will be focused there, even those of collegians.—The Florida Alligator.

The Snooper

The News in Review: The Enchiladas party would have made any funeral home proprietor green with envy. You could have heard an arch fall, it was so quiet. (Pu-leeese, Mrs. Moskowits!) You didn't miss anything by not going—pardon, I mean not getting a bid. The winning Aggie Pop stunt was a religious one. The Tri Delts, pious souls, won a brass bound goboon for the trick. The Scabbard and Old Razor Blades had a hell week and an initiation. Result: some young blades. The Pax party was the nuts. Harry Miller demonstrated his ability to jump aye, not one foot but tenfold feet, straight into the ozone. Eugenia Ebling, razzer of people and crusher of reputations, has her name up in conspicuous places in competition for the Betty Co-ed title. She gave the campaign a horrible razz t'other day nothwithstanding the fact that she had the title, or one like it, last year. The Palace, The Rexall, and the Canteen, are garnishing their goods with Christmas tinsel,, or tinsel foil (a pun, tee-hee.) Swede Salsbury is on the Pi Phi party program as a tap dancer. Swede demonstrated the dance, and a new form of the buck and wing, at the recent Pi Kappa Chi party and held a spell-bound audience for several minutes. Quoth Swede, "Being an old trickster in the flesh, I am a natural for this dance business." The new Sunday night hangout, Teena's Tea Nest (thanks, Swede Lutz) is drawing a tol'able crowd. It is written that "the sun never sets on a Kappa Sig." Their family reunion drew half the male populace of Newark here for the week end.

This is hell week season. If you see somebody leading a cow through Anderson or pulling a binder through Aggieville you can deduct three conclusions, i. e., the poor boob is 1. mentally unraveled or 2. a horse, 3. or a heller in some hell week. At schools where the naughty-word week is suppressed by his holiness the president, the week is called "health" week or "inspiration" week. It is a week in which pledges are humbled in the presence of actives. They suffer lacerations, bruises, and abrasions all of which can be quickly cured with a bottle of Dr. Fillmore Graves' Mustang Linament which you can purchase at 50 cents (the small bottle) at your nearest retailers.

Sid "Squaw Man" Robinson, Layton saxophoner who shook the tent flaps of seven chieftains last summer, is giving a Tri Delt a bad time (she says.) A wrathful Comanche is still hunting Sidney with bows and arrows—mostly Pierce-Arrows (a pun.) No doubt you've heard the new dialect of the social set. Words like "sickie," "wellie," "drunkie," and "Pikie Peakie?" Well, that is supposed to represent the language of a Colorado Indian. It was introduced here by the Squaw Man and Bill Kaeser, the Layton percussionist.

On Other Hills

Imagine the downheartedness of basketball coaches at the University of Kentucky when Brad Lair, who is six feet eleven inches tall, decided college life wasn't so hot and failed to return for practice after Thanksgiving. A nine-foot bed was especially constructed for the mountaineer so that he could sleep in comfort in his dormitory room. Now the coaches either want to sell the bed or find a basketball player to fit it. Of course, they much prefer the latter.

Dyche Museum of Natural History, the mecca for the curious at the University of Kansas, has been closed. Old Dyche, according to university officials, is unsafe. Floors of the museum have groaned since 1902 under the load of dinosaurs, Kansas rhinoceri, stuffed horses, and pelicans, until further occupancy is dangerous.

This may not be news, but it at least proves that it takes plenty of hard-earned jack to go out on a date. The co-eds at Central State college are unanimously in favor of paying half the expenses of dates, according to replies on a recent questionaire. "Paying for half our entertainment enables us to enjoy ourselves more," says one of the gals.

Three Iowa State college graduates are in line for a position on President Roosevelt's cabinet. H. A. Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer; Milburn L. Wilson, Montana State Agricultural college, and C. E. Miller, North Dakota Agricultural college are being boomed for the next secretary of agriculture.

Freshmen at Grinnell college no longer experience the terrible pains and sufferings of Hell Week at the school. The week of torment has been cut to a mere probation day, devoted to teaching the freshmen etiquette, discipline and respect, in addition to the performance of menial duties.

Well, college students spend more for luxuries than education. At least if a survey of Wisconsin college holds true, taxpayers in the Badger state sift out more money for cokes and ice cream than for text-books. For every dollar Wisconsin taxpayers invest in education for their children, 83 cents is spent for tobacco; 71 cents for soft drinks, ice cream, candy, and chewing gum; 42 cents for theatres, movies, and other amusements; 49 cents for jewelry, perfumes, and cosmetics; and 19 cents for sporting goods and toys.

What has become of the old time athlete who gained a good deal of self satisfaction in returning to the old home town displaying a college letter which he earned in athletics? Princeton university freshmen, according to their own confession, prefer Phi Beta Kappa keys to varsity letters.

A Yale university professor has practically solved this depression problem. "We could end the depression overnight if it were not for the economic illiteracy of the people, who control the political machine," so says the professor. Wouldn't it be great to wake up some morning and find the depression gone.

Among the Ags

Last week was one of the big weeks of the year for Kansas State, though probably most of the college (being engrossed in Aggie Popped, the Enchiladas formal, the Empress Eugenia's modest column, and the opening of the basketball season) wasn't aware of the fact. For last week was the week of Chicago's International Livestock Exposition and the honor of Kansas State was upheld in the judging arenas of the biggest livestock show on earth, as well as in the Midwest Intercollegiate Poultry contest which was held in connection with the Coliseum Poultry show in Chicago. Kansas State's poultry juding-team placed first in their contest and made practically a clean sweep of team and individual awards. They brought home with them four silver loving cups and several individual medals and cash awards. The livestock judging-team in the biggest contest of the show placed second with twenty teams competing. The meats and grain judging team fared not so well this year as they have in former years, but they competed in contests where the team point-totals were so close together that a break might easily have sent either Kansas State team to the top. They placed fourth and fifth respectively and so are not disgraced as they stand. The meats judging-team, it should be remembered, placed first in this year's American Royal Contest. All in all and whether the college as a whole realize it or not, the prestige of Kansas State was well-maintained by this years group of judgers.

Prof. C. D. Davis, whose course in farm crops is required for nearly all ags, is ill at his home and his classes are being taught by F. L. Timmons, who took the course himself not so long ago. Since graduating from college, Timmons has been working with Prof. A. L. Clapp in cooperative experimental work. He was an "A" student in farm crops and a members of the 1928 grain judging-team. Students in the year's farm crops course used a good deal of profanity when they heard of Professor Davis' illness, but they are now convinced that as a pinch-hitter Timmons is O. K. Farm crops, as any ag can tell you, is no snap course. Professor Davis is reported to be getting along nicely and both his students and his pinch-hitter sincerely hope to see him back on the hill before long.

The lab classes in elements of dairying made ice-cream last week, and then did their best to eat what they had made. Factory-made ice-cream coming out of the freezer has about the texture of apple-butter and it is firmed and aged before being sold on the market. Coming immediately from the freezer, the cream has a taste all its own; it's the sort of food that one can easily eat too much of without knowing it (for a little while). The dairy students, alas, had too much. . .

ATTENDS POULTRY SHOW IN CHICAGO

Wilhelm Studies Eggs Under Cornell University Professor—Returns Monday.

L. A. Wilhelm, Arkansas City returned to Manhattan Wednesday, November 30, after attending the Coliseum poultry show at Chicago November 22 to 28. Egg quality studies in connection with this show have been held at Chicago the last two years under the direction of Doctor Sharp of Cornell university. Doctor Sharp also had two men from Iowa university, and twelve men from Swift, Armour, Purina Mills, and the Bowman dairy company of Chicago assisting him in his work. Doctor Sharp and his men run every egg through a group of candlers and graded them internally and externally as to quality. Every egg is weighed and the breaking strength of the shell tested with a special machine from Cornell university. Every egg yolk is tested and various measurements of width and height of the yolk are taken. On another test the eggs are passed on a belt through an electric candler with a photo electric cell. A galvonometer measures the change and grades them. This new method was checked by the opening of the eggs.

A group discussion was held for two hours each morning with Doctor Sharp and Mr. Stewart of Cornell university, and the director of research of Armour and company, leading the discussion on egg quality and experimental work.

Wilhelm also attended a meeting at the Purina Mills, St. Louis, November 29. The purpose of this meeting was to inspect experimental work of the Purina Mills on egg quality during the last five years. Those attending this meeting were taken through the laboratories at the Purina Mills, and were also taken on a trip to Gray Summit, where the mills experimental station is located. The group were guests at a banquet in the evening at which Dr. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university was the principal speaker.

FLOCK INSPECTION FINISHED

The flock inspection for the Kansas poultry improvement association and the Kansas accredited association is practically completed for this season. There are from 12 to 15 men in the field all the time and up to date 300,000 birds have been inspected by these men.

Plans are being formulated for a sectional meeting to be held throughout the state in the near future.

Dean Margaret Justin of the division of home economics is entertaining the 12 girls who were given Phi Kappa Phi recognition Tuesday night at 6 o'clock.

I started at the bottom. Then I got a better job, in a place where they didn't have sawdust on the floor. Now I'm a star with my name in lights . . . a name that's been dragged through the mud from Second Avenue to Broadway. All I get out of it is glitter and sham, and they take away my baby! AND YOU GET A BETTER TASTE

That's the reason Chesterfield not only blends but cross-blends its tobaccos.

Blending mixes the tobaccos together. Cross-Blending welds them together . . . into one tobacco of milder, more pleasing taste! And what's more, a taste that's uniform, always the same.

It's like creating a new and better tobacco for cigarettes. It makes Chesterfields milder, gives them more fragrance . . . and makes them taste better.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Aggie Pop popped and the Tri Delts and Betas came out winners. Both stunts deserve honorable mention. Much credit must be given to Mrs. Mary Myers Elliott for the success of the Delta Delta Delta stunt, because it has been revealed that she wrote the little angel skit herself. "Helen Kane" Fairbank, as a coloratura soprana, saved the Beta show . . . . The Enchiladas party went off with a bang—and from all reports a good time was had by all—particularly after intermission . . . . To get back to the Aggie Pop presentation, a number of talented K-Aggies were found among the entrants. Mention should be given Rosemary Schmidt, Lucile Allman, Sally Shafer for their dancing; Betty Stanley, Eleanor Otto, Ernestine Merritt, and Dick Herzig for their singing; and Merton Mathews for his recitation of Dan McGrew . . . . And then of course Harry Miller, the Ted Shawn protege, should not be neglected—for no doubt none of you will ever forget his meager contribution to the Chi Omega act . . . .

. . . . We would like to thank those who have made it possible for us to enter the Betty Co-ed race. We consider this a great honor indeed. What we may have said in the past with reference to the fray was just a bit of "sour grapes" . . . . The renewal of a rush week romance—Janet Murdock and "Cotton" Teitze are seen together in public . . . . And how about Marian Crocker and Milt Erhlich "keeping company" again . . . . Why is it that H. W. Davis walks and Dougal drives the car? . . . . Do you know the reason for P. D. Pryor's studying so constantly—she's been promised a car if she makes all "A's" this semester . . . . An engagement (?)—anyway "Mike" Oberhelman put his pin on Maxine Blankenship . . . . Which reminds us that Dorothy Gill wore Jimmy Richard's Boy Scout pin at the Pax party the other night--now that's true devotion . . . Jane Kahl and Genevie Johnson were seen laughing violently at Jake Faulkner's laughless gage . . . In case you didn't know Don Hutchinson is sometimes referred to as "Lily" . . . .

. . . . The crowd in the college commercial district last night was composed of spectators attending the Aggieville Christmas opening . . . . What incentive did the Pi Phis' use to induce the ultra-modest Pete Smith to appear in Aggie Pop? . . . . Beer or no beer, you can assert yourselves about prohibition when the Collegian sponsers its "beer" pool . . . What has the appearance of being a budding romance is just a journalistic friendship between Betty Gaston and Paul Dittemore (last year's Collegian editor) . . . . What's been affecting the Pi K A's is discovered to be the raccoon that they recently adopted for mascot . . . . See you on the Betty Co-ed ballot . . . .

SERVE CLUB BREAKFASTS

The successful idea is cantagious. This fact is nicely demonstrated by the recent introduction of club breakfasts at the college cafeteria. Special plate luncheons and dinners proved so popular among patrons that the special breakfast idea has been added. Various combinations such as this may be had for 15 cents: dish of fruit or glass of fruit juice, one egg (fried or poached), two pieces of buttered toast, coffee, hot chocolate, or milk, muffins and butter or buttered toast, coffee, hot chocolate, or milk; dish of fruit or glass of fruit juice, waffle, syrup and butter, and choice of beverage. Or, the person with not quite such a man-sized appetite, or one wishing to reduce, can obtain a 10 cent breakfast with fewer calories present.

To Deal With Wind Resistance—Test More Than 56 Cars.

Wind resistance is the subject with which the bulletin being prepared by Prof. L. E. Conrad of the civil engineering department, and Prof. E. R. Dawley of the applied mechanics department, will deal. It will be published by the engineering division as soon as it is completed.

More than 56 cars were tested ranging from the 1926 models to 1933 models which are to come out soon. Some of the makes of cars used in the experiment in the wind tunnel with which series tests were made are Fords, Chevrolets, and Buicks. Road tests are being made now and it has been found that the newer models of cars today show consistent improvement in streamlines which reduces wind resistance.

Snake Causes Sudden Business Elsewhere

A three foot member of the Elaphe-laota family, (common rat snake to you) stuck its ugly head from beneath the door of the Registrar's supply room in the basement of Anderson hall last Friday morning just before chapel services and gave seven varieties of jitters to several feminine office workers who were about to enter that room.

Several students, innocent bystanders, were likewise frightened when the snake (which is quite harmless and feeds on rats, mice, hash, or what have you), peered out and gave them all a dirty look. The Misses White, Kimball, Hastings, Taylor, and Knittle of the college business office, registrar's office, and Dean Van Zile's office, respectively, were among those who decided suddenly that they had business on an upper floor, but the uproar soon subsided when Mr. Niehacke, the janitor, came to the rescue with a broom.

The snake is now residing in luxury in the zoological department of Fairchild hall, according to Prof. M. J. Harbaugh.

Disappointment was registered on the faces of enthusiastic student collectors when, after rushing madly to the custodians office for free snake samples, they were told in no mild terms by Mr. Geauque, the custodian, that a thorough inspection of Anderson hall had been made and there were no more specimens to be found.

AT THE DICKINSON
"The Most Dangerous Game"

According to the story at the Dickinson this week, the most dangerous game is the man hunt. The story of "The Most Dangerous Game" is a wierd tale of men who match their cunning against that of a man who turns them out of his castle to hunt them like animals in his small island jungle. Joel McCrea is ship wrecked on the rocky coast of the island. An old castle is a madman's stronghold. Fay Wray is the pretty guest awaiting a death by being hunted in the jungle. It all turns out nicely, as all far fetched stories do. If you are tired of the conventional, try a taste of the impossible. This story will give it to you.—A. S.

AT THE VARSITY
"Rockabye"

"Rockabye"—the story of a girl who didn't ask too much of life, but never got what she asked for.

Constance Bennett does some of the best acting—and the most varied—of her career in this picture. She is a charming mother, a heartbroken daughter, an adorable sweetheart, a sophisticated actress, and an exciting blues singer. Her new gowns are creations beautiful to behold.

Joel McCrea, one of the newer leading men, is not given much of a chance to do things in this picture which is decidedly Miss Bennett's, but what he does he does with gusto. He's a nice looking young man, but not too nice looking.

Paul Lukas plays his usual balanced performance, going quietly about and giving excellent support to the cast. His voice remains the best heard.

Others on the cast also are good And the lines are grand—some funny, some sad. A rather nice balance.

Journalists Get Blame For Bugs In Experiments

Instead of singing the song "Little Pink Elephants Everywhere" the experimentors in the nutrition department are singing "great big cockroaches everywhere." Every time they shut their eyes they can see them. After spending hour after hour preparing a perfect diet for their white rats and still more hours watching them to see that they abide by it and then to have the whole thing upset by a monster of a cocktoach the minute they turn their back is certainly disconcerting. The blame for htese nightmares is placed entirely upon the journalism department where these cockroaches are alleged to be raised. If the department keeps on raising them they must find some way to corral them in Kedzie, because the experimenters are becoming desperate. They have made up theri minds "not to see those great big cockroaches any more."

OFFER SHORT COURSES

The department of dairy husbandry of K. S. C. will offer a one-week short course in ice cream making, January 23-28, 1933. A similar course in butter making w be given January 16-21, 1933.

Foreign Languages Prove Valuable In Many Walks of Life

A science student should know German. An English major should study French. Commerce men and women would do well to take Spanish. This was the conclusion of a Collegian reporter after a recent interview with the faculty of the department of modern languages.

"Do you believe in a universal language in the near future?" asked the reporter.

"There is a tendency toward making English the universal language for several reasons. Americans are great travelers. Other languages contain more dialects than the English language, making it easier to learn the latter. The geographical isolation of America causes Americans to neglect other languages thus forcing foreigners to learn English," was Miss Crittenden's answer. Her opinion was backed by that of the rest of the members of the department.

"An artificial universal language might be successful. Latin was a universal language long after dying as a popular one. Science, in fact, uses a Latin vocabulary even yet. No modern language can be considered universal except perhaps commercially. For the expression of the inner thoughts of a people only their own language will ever suffice," said Prof. L. H. Limper.

In the department of modern languages this semester 128 students are enrolled in German, 132 in French, and 119 in Spanish, according to figures given by Dr. J. V. Cortelyou, head of the department.

"Youngsters enjoy learning a foreign lanuage, and I feel they should learn one as they are learning their mother tongue. The first grade is not too early to begin giving them conversational French, Spanish or German," stated Miss Gratia Burns.

"When I taught in Kentucky," said Miss Dorothy Pettis, "I gave the first, second, and third grades a half hour of French every day Of course, this does no good unless the student keeps on with it. The child acquires better pronunciation than the adult because of his lack of self-consciousness."

ODDITIES IN WANDERINGS

Strange Courses Come to Light as Student Peers Into Labs.

College catalogues are funny things. They contain all kinds of the strangest sounding courses Strange, at least, to those outside the departments under which they are listed. Many things are included for study here at Kansas State college which few know even exist. A little snooping in the various departments will reveal many interesting surprises.

This journalist-to-be-someday maybe was wandering around and got lost in the cafeteria the other day. She sought escape through the closest door, but—much to her dismay—found herself in some sort of a laboratory. She didn't know just what, but as all women are curious, she proceeded to find out. These facts were revealed:

It was a lab in the household economics department called "The House," and taught by Assistant Prof. Mary Taylor. Thirty girls are enrolled in this one hour course which meets three hours every week. At the time, girls werebusily engaged experimenting with gas stoves. They were investigating the different types of burners. Requirements of the American Gas association were also being studied.

During the semester various phases of "The House" are thoroughly studied in detail. Such things as these are taken up by the classes; plumbing fixtures and their care; various makes of pressure cookers; extensive work on refrigeration; food choppers, flour sifters, and egg beaters; stoves, washing machines, irons, and percolators. Points of such mechanical appliances are studied on a comparative basis. Some of those items, in themselves, sound small and insignificant, but there are many little technicalities peculiar to each of them which the average person does not understand and which make a vast difference in efficient household management. The "why" and requirement of home equipment are truly important.

And so, this bewildered reporter escaped unharmed, much wiser for her wanderings. She is seriously considering getting lost again.

TO ATTEND STATE LETTING

The state lettings at Topeka, at which state institutions purchase their food supply, will be attended by Mrs. Bessie Brooks West of the institutional economics department of the college, and Miss Ina Welch, director of the college cafeteria. Such state institutions as the children's home and the state hospital are required to buy their food in this manner, however, Van Zile hall and the college cafeteria, the two food units of the college, purchase only a part of their food at the general letting.

Prof. K. Chapin has returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he gave an address before the American Acoustical society on "Sound Characteristics."

NINE GRID GAMES NEXT SEASON FOR BIG SIX SCHOOLS

CONFERENCE DIRECTORS MAKE DECISION IN KANSAS CITY MEETING FIRST OF WEEK.

NO MINOR SPORT SCHEDULE

Instead, Championships Will Be Determined at Conference Tournaments—Nebraska and Kansas Will Not Have Baseball.

The annual winter meeting of athletic directors and faculty members of the Big Six conference was held at the Kansas City Athletic club Monday and Tuesday, December 5 and 6.

Conference schedules for the remainder of the school year were arranged, and the faculty council cooperated in a movement to assist the financially embarrassed athletic departments by granting permission for each member school to schedule nine football games next season, instead of eight, as in the season just past.

There were also several other important results. Faculty members tabled a proposal which would allow graduates of junior colleges to compete in intercollegiate athletics during their first year of college, instead of waiting a year to satisfy the residence requirement now in the by-laws. The general attitude toward the proposal was described by Dean S. W. Reaves of Oklahoma as "unfavorable," but no action was taken.

Opening of football relations between Kansas State college and Tulsa university was tentatively arranged, but nothing definite was done toward scheduling of games between the two schools, as ratification of their respective athletic departments is necessary for that. Kansas State authorities in the market for football games, said they were considering meetings with Oklahoma A. and M., Creighton university, Texas Christian university, and Centre college of Kentucky, the alma mater of Coach "Bo" McMillin.

The radio broadcast was again denounced and defended, respectively as a menace to the box office and as a builder of enthusiasm which made spectators out of listeners. The three schools which had broadcast basketball games announced they would discontinue doing so. Although some were vehemently opposed to football broadcasts, the directors said there would be no change in the policy there.

Round robin schedules will not be conducted in wrestling, swimming, indoor and outdoor track, tennis, and baseball this winter and spring. Instead, the championships in all except baseball will be determined at conference tournaments. The baseball title will go to the team having the highest percentage in conference games to be arranged. Nebraska and Kansas will not have basketball teams. Basketball, which is almost self-supporting, will be played again on a double round robin schedule.

Dates and places of the conference championship meets are:

Wrestling—Ames, Ia., March 3-4.

Swimming—Lincoln, Neb., March 11.

Indoor track — Columbia, Mo., March 11.

Outdoor track — Lincoln, Neb., May 19-20.

Tennis—Lawrence, Kan., May 19-20.

CAGERS ENTRAIN FOR ST. LOUIS BATTLE TONIGHT

ST. LOUIS U. TEAM RATED AS STRONG COMPETITION — PLAYED HERE LAST YEAR.

FOUR GAMES IN EIGHT DAYS

Only One Day Layover at Home When Corsautmen Play Davis and Elkins Thursday Night—Eight Men on Trip.

The Kansas State basketball squad will entrain this afternoon at 5:15 for St. Louis where they will meet St. Louis university Saturday night, December 10. Eight men will make the trip.

Not much is known of the St. Louis U. team although it is rated as strong competition and last year played some of the fastest basketball that was played in Manhattan.

When the train leaves for St Louis the Corsautmen will be starting one of the hardest eight days on the basketball court that any Kansas State team has had in some time. The K-Aggies will play four games in eight days, returning only once to Manhattan to play Davis and Elkins college, December 15.

After the game Saturday night the basketball squad will return to Kansas City for a one-day layover before going to Maryville, Mo where they will meet the Maryvill Teachers Monday, December 12.

Only two days will elapse between this game and the one with Davis and Elkins college and then there will be another day of rest before meeting Wichita university in an annual grudge battle at Wichita Saturday, December 17.

Altogether the Corsautment will play four games and will be either on the road or playing almost every day. "It is the hardest schedule that a Kansas State team has ever attempted," Coach Corsaut remarked when the schedule was being completed.

The men who will probably go to St. Louis are: Ralph Graham, Emmett Breen, El Dorado; Kenneth Phelps, Manhattan; Captain Andy Skradski, Kansas City; Henry Dalton, Ottawa; Don Hutchinson, Hutchinson; Bus Boyd, Phillipsburg; Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa.

DR. SWANSON TO SPEAK IN STUDENT ASSEMBLY

Will Discuss "The World Wheat Surplus"—Special Music Also Feature of Program.

Dr. C. O. Swanson, head of the department of milling industry, will discuss "The World Wheat Surplus" at the student assemoly to be held this morning at 10:15 o'clock.

The background for Dr. Swanson's address is his study of conditions in Europe during his stay there in the summer of 1930 and facts which have developed since that time.

Dr. Swanson has been a member of the Kansas State faculty since 1906. He was connected with the chemistry department until 1923 when he became head of the department of milling industry. is a graduate of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn. He was granted his M. Agr. degree from the University of Minnesota in 1905 and his Ph. D. degree from Cornell university in 1922.

Special music will also be a feature of the assembly program.

Chaperons Necessary Evil, Think Students

"Sure, I like to chaperon college parties. Both my wife and I always have a good time."

"No, I do not like to act as chaperon for parties—I prefer isolation on a desert island to the kind that a chaperon finds in the crowded Wareham ballroom!"

And there you have it—the extremes in opinions of faculty members who have acted as chaperons for various Kansas State parties. Between those lies a score of "ifs." A summary of the sentiments expressed in interviews with the men and women who have chaperoned the parties of a number of organizations doesn't paint such a very attractive picture of the Kansas State student body, as far as courtesy is concerned. Several of the persons questioned remarked, "Why surely I'd have enjoyed it a lot, if only the students hadn't been quite so obvious in their consideration of me, and the other chaperons, as necessary evils—to be tolerated, since it was impossible to dispense with us!"

Two things seem to be at the base of the situation which makes faculty members who dislike to chaperon parties feel that way. One is lack of consideration—of of plain every day courtesy, and the other—and unnecessary stiffness on the part of the students, which makes them feel uncomfortable in the presence of the chaperons, and in a noticeable rush to get away from the source of that feeling of discomfort.

One of the professors, who, by the way, said he had a mighty good time at the last party he chaperoned, suggested a remedy for the situation. Have a program made out before the party begins for every chaperon. In case the chaperon doesn't care to dance, the choice of partners should be from among those members of the organization who can hold an interesting cnoversation—if such can be found. If the chaperon does like to dance, fill his or her card with names of the best dancers.

"That's not a new plan," he concluded. "We used it when I was in school—but it worked in spite of that fact, and I honestly do think it's still a pretty good idea—worth trying anyhow."

KRIDER EXHIBITS PAINTINGS

Trip Through Tennessee and Georgia Gives Opportunity to Display Art Ability.

A trip through Tennessee and Georgia last summer gave Alden Krider, a senior in the department of architecture, the opportunity of displaying his art ability on southern scenes. As a result, he now has his first one-man exhibit, consisting of 26 water colors and seven prints, in the library gallery.

In "Ringold Gap in the Rain," Krider shows a landscape and by grayed color suggests the effect of a misty rain. "This painting," said Prof. John F. Helm of the architecture department, "is one of the best Krider has done.

"A Rock Crusher" and "Coal Barges, Memphis" have grayed color schemes which are particularly adapted to the subjects, in the latter the misty effect of the river atmosphere is shown well in the distance.

The block print of "Elevators" is an outstanding paper in which the buildings and foreground show structural strength with the movement in the sky giving a desired effect. Also "Deserted House" is pleasing in the indication of the different textures, foliage, grass, wood, shingles, etc.

All of Krider's exhibit shows his fine sense of color and clever brush technique. His display is sponsored by the architecture department and will be up until December 19.

COWS ARE LUCKY

Though Kansas State students emphatically deny that this is a "cow" college many of them envy the humble bovine who has been so generously endowed by nature. The cow is fortunate in having two chances to digest her food. . . . she can bite off more than she can chew, swallow it, retire to some quiet spot, meditate and chew her cud systematically and serenely.

Students are not so fortunate. They must gulp and dash. As a result, most of them are on the verge of chronic indigestion.

From the first day of their freshman year, and that seasick feeling that accompanies registration, knowledge has been crammed down their throats so hurriedly, and in such large quantities that it has been impossible to digest it.

Students are hardly to blame for this dyspepsia. They gulp a series of "required" subjects—literature, science, math, they tear from classes to "worthwhile" extra-curricular activities, and back again to classes. They feel dizzy but they realize that they are expected to swallow as much of the information disseminated by instructors as they possibly can.

Fortunately, the disease is not incurable. Several foreign colleges have initiated systems of study which allow the student time to comprehend the information which has been given him. Some American colleges are doing likewise.

Though nature has until recently given the cow an advantage in this digestive business, man's superior brain power is catching up.

The Snooper

At this sitting everyone is holding his breath (and his nose), until the Manhattan Hippodrome announces who gets dubbed the Harry Highschool and Betty Co-ed of Kansas State. When asked who he thought would get the rap, the Collegian editor said, "Odds bodkins, how the thunder should I know", or something equally as silly. Obviously the beautiful, chestnut-haired Miss E. E. Ebling (a pun) corrupter of souls and cruncher of romances, will get the Becky (or Bulky) Co-ed title. But who among the male populace has sufficient vertebra to withstand the leers and jeers of his fellows? Handsome, strong, fun-loving Duke DuMars, Agra's favorite son and Adonis of Delaware Street, withdrew in favor of his brother in the bonds, i.e., the brawny, strong, fun-loving Hal Hinckley, Barnard had boy. Flaxen haired strong, silent, fun-loving Mike C. Oberhelman is a runner up in the contest. He is backed by a horde of Chi Omegas and Delta Shelters.

The Wednesday night band concert was livened up somewhat by a basket ball game. Most of the tunes played went out with button shoes, hand churns, and whip sockets. It is believed that most of the selections were taken from the Bay Psalm Book and the music was so weak with age that it wouldn't stay on the racks. For instance, one medley was composed of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, Yes We Have No Bananas, and Meddelsome's Bed-spring Song. Only parts of the band were used, praise Allah! In round numbers there must have been only about 900 members present. In some more round numbers, the number of musicians present was 0000. (approx.). The probable reason for the shortage of bandmen lies in the fact that there seems to be some dissention among the members. Wednesday there were remarks coming from the rhythm section (if any) which strongly smelled of mutiny. A small, sad man who confessed that he played a bass horn said that most of the fellahs were jealous of the third clarinet man who declared that he could outblow the seven of them, and to prove his point blew a blast that rattled canned goods in Wamego. So what can you do with a guy like that?

GREEKS IN THE OLYMPICS—

Well-meaning critics often have charged that members of college fraternities live too-sheltered and too-pampered lives. An excellent defense of organization members appears in the current issue of Banta's Greek Exchange, in which the publication has sought to show that life in a fraternity or sorority is not altogether devoid of mental and physical benefits. The Exchange has compiled statistics on the number of athletes who won honors at the 1932 Olympic games who belong to college organizations.

According to the Exchange, more than 150 athletes who claim affiliation with the Greek-letter system took part in the games last summer. "Out of the 150 modern-day Greeks," the Exchange states, "many won high honors, while others placed or were eliminated, for we have checked a total of sixty-five who definitely took part, and the assumption is safely made that others whom we were unable to check placed high.

"Out of the sixty-five high-point winners cecked upon by our Greek scoreboard, we find twenty-two fraternities and sororities represented. From the sixty-five competing fraternity men and women, nine took first places, nearly all breaking existing world's and Olympic records." Most prominent among the group of competing fraternity members were, of course, Ben Eastman, Alpha Delta runner from Stanford, Jim Bausch, Sigma Alpha Epsilon's decathlon athlete from Kansas, and Jane Fauntz, Kappa Alpha Theta swimmer from Illinois.

"Whole teams," the Exchange relates, "such as the 1,600-meter relay team, the water polo team, the football teams, the yachting team and skull crews were composed almost exclusively of fraternity men. The 1,600-meter relay team particularly incites admiration for the entire number of four were Greeks, who functioned perfectly as a unit and not only won the race, but set up a new record. Number one man was Ivan Fuqua, Delta Chi from Indiana university. He was followed by Edgar Ablowich, Sigma Alpha Epsilon from Southern California, who in turn gave way to Karl Warner, Phi Gamma Delta at Yale and Bill Carr, Delta Psi of Pennsylvania."

Another Indiana university fraternity man, Charles Hornbostel, who is a member of Alpha Tau Omega, came in sixth in the 800-meter finals.—Indiana Daily Student.

On Other Hills

Approximately 300 students are on scholastic probation at Oklahoma A. & M. Reasons for students failing in their grades were because of lack of interest, too heavy a schedule attempted, improper training in preparatory schools, lack of capacity for college work, lack of ability to concentrate, illness, and poor attendance.

The youngest student at Oklahoma A. & M., who is 14 years of age, likes to play with dolls and doll houses; while the oldest student, A. C. Cobb, who is 69, finds industrial shop work his pastime. Incidentally, Cobb lays claim to the oldest B. S. degree in college, having received his B. S. degree from Kansas State college in 1888.

There will be no reduction in the prices of admission to basketball games this season at the University of Missouri. This school is the only one in the Big Six that is not cutting the cost of cage events.

Fraternity boys are going to "clean house" at the University of Michigan. A warning to the effect that if the fraternities of the school did not do something in regard to liquor, the university authorities would take drastic action. At a meeting called by the president of the university, Mr. Potter, president of the Intra-fraternity Alumni council, said that the action taken by the university two years ago, when five fraternities were raided and closed on the morning after the annual J-Hop, would be "mild when compared with what will happen if fraternity men do not remedy the existing condition."

A co-ed columnist for the Daily Northwestern is thoroughly convinced that a "gossip column" can cause more trouble than it is worth in a college newspaper. Recently she announced the gossip would be discontinued after university officials had protested, and one student who played a part in the gossip, threatened to "knock your teeth out!"

At last! Here it is! Indifference and godlessness are the distinguishing characteristics of Tulane university students, according to five New Orleans preachers, all of them Tulane grads. The average college boy, they believe, is more religious than the college girl, despite the fact the girl may go to church more and the boy may profess to be an atheist.

What do you think about this kissing business? The Daily Northwestern became curious about kissing among co-eds, and checked up on the situation. They found that most girls are pretty much agreed that no man, no matter how fine a chap may be, deserves to have a kiss on the first date with the girl. Why don't they take a canvass and find out what the men think?

"Smoke-up" notices were recently sent to 340 co-eds at the University of Indiana. Probation notices were sent to all co-eds receiving more than five hours of "smoke-ups" thus limiting their evenings "out" to two a week. Students reported unsatisfactorily in eight or more hours were placed on strict probation.

At North Dakota State, a survey recently conducted at the college shows that the student body is more intelligent than the faculty. They stay at home more, and devote more time to their work than do their pedagogues.

Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas, is now starting his sixteenth year as basketball coach at that institution. He has been coaching teams without interruption since 1920, and he also coached the Jayhawkers in 1908 and 1909. Doctor Allen has been in service longer than any other coach in the Big Six conference.

AT THE DICKINSON
"If I Had a Million"

More stars appear in this picture than you realize live in Hollywood. There's Gary Cooper, George Raft, Wynne Gibson, Charles Laughton, Jack Oakie, Frances Dee, Charlie Ruggles, Alison Skipworth, W. C. Fields, Mary Roland, Roscoe Karns, May Robson, Gene Raymond, Lusien Littlefield, and Richard Bennett. And unlike most all-star productions, this one has a plot.

An eccentric multi-millionaire forsakes his undeserving relatives on his deathbed, takes a city directory, picks names at random, and delivers checks of one million dollars to each person bearing a lucky name. What these persons do with that million is something worth seeing.

You laugh at Charlie Ruggles, a china salesman, and Jack Oakie, a marine. You nearly cry over Gene Raymond, sentenced to the electric chair for a crime he didn't commit. Your reaction varies as you wath the money vanish.

It's one of the better shows of the year. You ought to like it.—E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"He Learned About Women"

Stuart Erwin plays the part of an eccentric millionaire in the picture at the Wareham this week. The show is typically the Stuart Erwin type of comedy. The story is fair. A young man (Erwin) falls heir to fifty millions of dollars. The money attracts crooks who try to work a "soup kitchen" game on him. Two of the crooks take pity on him for his simple mindedness and reveal the plot at the last minute. It turns out nicely.—Eggs.

AT THE VARSITY

Central Park, where almost anything can happen, and everything does.

Joan Blondell is unusually attractive in her starring picture. While her work doesn't compare very favorably with that she did in "Three on a Match," it is worth watching. Miss Blondell has a nice way of using her eyes.

Wallace Ford again is cast in a rather insipid part. But he does all he can with his lines.

Guy Kibbee, the grand old store-keeper in "Rain," makes a perfect policeman, whose heart and soul are wrapped up in his park beat.

The story is a cross-section of life in "Central Park." A girl is framed, a man comes to her rescue. The old park policeman is disgraced only to redeem himself. A madman throws a living person in the cage of a roaring lion. This lion escapes and terrorizes people. Men are shot. And etc., etc., etc.

It's rather exciting.—E. D.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . .

. . . . Goloshes, fur coats, scarfs and mittens hold the center of attraction right now since Old Man Winter frizzed into town. Burr!! has that wind ever been cold—yes, cold enough to cause Mark Babb and Harry Miller to don their fleece-lined flannels, and for Phi Kappa Gilligan to wear his ear muffs. . . . Wednesday night's basketball game and the K fraternity party are the important things that have happened while the Chi Omega and Alpha Delt formals are the social events scheduled for the week end . . . .

. . . . Wouldn't you like to know who it was that used Dean Van Zile's car as a rendezvous the night of the Van Zile hall formal—anyway the Dean of Women came out after the party to find the back window shade in her car down . . . . And we wonder if Max Bickford couldn't be hired as assistant to Coach Corsaut—at least Max seems able to coach the team from the sidelines. And from all reports of spectators who happened to sit next to the self-appointed coach. Mr. Bickford more than commented upon the merits and non-merits of the players. Try out for referee next time, Max . . . . The little show that dapper Jimmy Richards and dappier Ed Kelly attempted to put on for the benefit of the basketball crowd, Wednesday, is worthy of comment—as are most of their actions. The little hand-clapping exhibition and yelling-across-the-floor act was too fetching for words. Without looking up to discover the source of noise, one could just sit back, relax, and think to himself "Just Jimmy and Eddie again" . . . . Who's responsible for this—Prof H. H. Haymaker, an old K man himself, did not receive an invitation to the K fraternity party—aren't alumni invited, you athletes? . . . . And where did Max Fockele get his razzberry whistle—the one with which he helped Dwight Rean officiate the game? . . . .

. . . . And now for the K fraternity party—every burly athlete was there with his best girl, or someone else's best girl . . . . Dannie Blaine appeared with Ella Fouts, Leland Shaffer with Marie Henney. Andy Skradski with Mary Pansopher, Emmett Breen with his girl friend from El Dorado, Ralph Marshall with Grace Umberger, Major Bliss with Charlotte Remick, Harry Hinckley with Verna McAdams, Bais Bord with the little gal from the South, ect.—anyway they were all there having one hilarious time. Not to forget that the coaches and their wives, plus Chili and Swede were chaperoning . . . . June Layton's boys (including the Snoop) looked mighty nice in their tuxedos. . . .

. . . . A last word of thanks to those who worked so diligently to elect us "Batty" Co-ed. Anyway, all in all, it was a mighty clever publicity stunt for the famous "Spider" play. . . .

First Aid for unbroken joints

How to keep silt and sand from clogging telephone cable ducts was one problem put up to engineers at Bell Telephone Laboratories. No known method of joining sections of vitrified clay conduit effected a seepage-tight joint.

With scientific thoroughness, telephone men made many tests under service conditions. They devised a bandage of cheese-cloth, waterproof paper and mortar. Easily made and applied, this mortar bandage is tight against silt and sand. It prevents clogging, greatly simplifies the installation of new telephone cables and the removal of old ones.

Through solving such interesting problems, Bell System men work steadily nearer to their goal —telephone service of highest possible efficiency.

COURTMEN WIN SECOND GAME WITH KANSAS U.

DEFEAT JAYHAWKERS WEDNESDAY 15 TO 11 IN SECOND PRE-SEASON TILT.

BOYD GAINS SCORING HONORS

Guard Scores 10 of 15 Points Johnson and Harrington Are High For Opponents.

Kansas State won the second basketball game of the season from Kansas university Wednesday night when Charles Corsaut's cagemen defeated the university 15 to 11. The K-Aggies defeated K. U. Dec. 2 by a score of 31 to 27, but neither of these games count in Big Six conference competition.

The Corsautmen gained the lead at the start of the game when Skradski, Kansas State forward and captain, made a field goal and then added a free throw to make the count 3 to 0. After a few minutes Kansas made two baskets putting the university in the lead. Both teams then played on even terms for several minutes until finally Kansas State forced themselves into the lead and were never again overtaken by the university team. The score at the half stood 10 to 5, Kansas State.

Bus Boyd, Phillipsburg, gained the high scoring honors for the tilt with 10 points. It was Boyd who made the score that put the K-Aggies in the lead the second time after the university men had gained the lead early in the game. Boyd again scored early in the second half to make the score 12 to 5 for the Corsautmen.

Big Bill Johnson, Kansas university's all-conference center, was literally smothered under the brilliant guarding of Emmett Breen. El Dorado, Kansas State forward. Although Breen was not in on the scoring end of the game he held Johnson scoreless until the second half when Johnson finally managed to get two baskets. Even with strict defense, Breen did not make a foul during the entire game.

Both teams played a wild game at the start but the K-Aggies seemed to settle down and begin scoring sooner than the visitors. Even as the game progressed the Kansas State defense was better and the university men found it hard to score.

Harrington was the leading scorer for the Jayhawkers with two field goals and three free tosses.

Don Hutchinson, Hutchinson, sophomore, played a good game and justified the selection of Coach Corsaut for starting him in the game. It was Hutchinson's second game against a Big Six team. He stayed in the game until late in the second half when Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa., took his place.

FACULTY RECITAL SUNDAY

Professor and Mrs. Sayre Will Give First of Series in the Auditorium.

Prof. Edwin Sayre, tenor, and Mrs. Sayre, organist, will give the first of a series of faculty recitals Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock in the auditorium. Mrs. Sayre will play the accompaniments.

Four groups will be presented: first, an old English group, second, modern French, third, an organ group, and last, a group of modern English songs.

The program to be given is: Air from Milton's "Comus" (Dr. Arne); O Sleep! Why Dost Thou Leave Me? from "Semele" (Handel); Sound an Alarm! from "Judas Maccabaeus" (Handel). Si Je Pouvais Mourir (Barbirolli); Il Neige (Bemberg); Chere Nuit (Bachelet).

Three Preludes on Christmas Carols of the Sixteenth Century, (Boely); Song of the Wine Press (Jacob); Returning from the Vineyards (Jacob); Piece Heroque (Franck). I Will Go With My Father A-Ploughing (Quilter); If You Wish (Koechlin); The Pretty Creature (Storace); Ah, Thou Beloved One (Levittski).

The two organ numbers by Jacob are taken from a suite of 12 pieces called "A Day in Burgundy." Cesar Franck was a nineteenth century Belgian organist and composer.

Quilter and Koechlin are modern composers. "The Pretty Creature" is an old English song, but Storace's arrangement is modern. Mischa Levitski is probably better known as a pianist than as a composer.

TAKE INDIVIDUAL PICTURES

Class pictures are now being taken for the Royal Purple at the Browne-Sparr Studios in Aggieville. Almost all of the individual pictures of fraternity and sorority members have been taken so that leaves a clear field for class appointments for sittings at the studio.

"The class members are to first come to the Royal Purple office in Anderson and pay $2.25 for a receipt which entitles them to a sitting. Students not satisfied with proofs may have as many m taken until satisfied with the results, said Stephen Vesecky, business manager of the Royal Purple

Senior activity cards are being sent out by Ethel Eberhart, secretary-treasurer of the Royal Purple, to all senior class members who are to have their individual pictures in the class section of the school annual. The upper classmen receiving these cards are to print their names on them as they wish them to appear in the annual and make a list of all the honors awarded and extra-curricular activities in which they have taken part while in school. The card is to include also the correct home address of the senior.

These activities will be printed below the individual pictures as a permanent record of each graduating student's extra-curricular work and honors while in school. All seniors must have paid dues of $12 before they are represented in the class section by a picture of activities or receive a copy of the book.

WILL PRESENT PLAY

A play entitled "Milk" will be presented Sunday evening at the Congregational church at 7:30 o'clock by a cast composed almost entirely of college students. These students will take part: Dale Norris, Raymond; Gladys Paulsen; Onaga; Shirley Jacobs, Lenora; Fred Groetsema, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Ralph Van Camp, Council Grove, and Max Pfuetze, Manhattan.

No Profit This Year for Senior President

HANDLE DETAILS OF INVITATIONS UNDER NEW PLAN

COMMENCEMENT TO BE IN HANDS OF FRIARS AND MORTAR BOARD.

IN CHARGE OF COMMITTEE

One Representative From Each Organization Will Carry Out Plan—Formerly Left to President.

After considering plans for a better method of handling Senior class invitations to commencement at Kansas State, it was decided by administrative and student officials that a joint committee of Friars and Mortar Board members should handle commencement details this spring.

Commencement invitations in the past have been handled for profit by the president of the senior class or an individual appointed by that officer. College officials, however, decided the plan could be improved and opened the matter for discussion.

Selection of the new plan of handling the commencement invitations were made from plans submitted by various individuals and organizations of the college.

The organizations plan to handle the invitations through a committee of one from each organization. Representatives of the organizations of Friars and Mortar Board are Dale Pocock, Leroy, and Mary Lou Clark, Burr Oak. Both organizations are made up entirely of seniors chosen at the close of their junior years for outstanding work in campus activities, scholarship and other phases of college life.

Members of the senior class will order the invitations in the office of Dr. A. A. Holtz in Anderson hall. Invitations will also be distributed through this office.

Greater efforts will be made this year to provide all graduates, spring, summer school, or absentee, with invitations. Details of transactions such as the letting of engraving contracts, prices, and bookkeeping will be more nearly under control of college officials than heretofore.

The How and Why Of The Horse Is Fact, Not Theory, To Vets

Evolution is more than a theory to the anatomy department at Kansas State.

"The Evolution of the Horse" has recently been added to the museum of the anatomy department. It is a collection of the specimens showing the development of a horse from the Eocene period to the modern horse. Several thousand years are involved.

The Eocene horse has five toes and closely resembles a dog except the head is shaped like that of a horse. There is a model of the horse of this period in the collections. As time went on the horse went through the lower obligocene period, the miocene period, and on to the modern horse.

There are speciments comparing the heads, fore-feet, hind-feet and the teeth of the four periods. "The Evolution of a Horse" is on display in the amphi-theatre in Veterinary hall.

Says Wheat Surplus Problem Must Be Solved Within Next Few Months.

"The world wheat surplus is one of the problems connected with the present economic situation which must be solved within the next few months," said Dr. C. O. Swanson, head of the department of milling industry, speaking on "The World Wheat Surplus" at the student assembly last Friday morning.

The three great wheat producing countries of the world, according to Doctor Swanson, are China, the United States, and Russia, but of these only the United States produces a surplus. The major countries producing excess wheat are the United States, Canada, Argentina, and Australia.

"Reasons for the present surplus," Doctor Swanson said, "are increased production during the World war, wide spread use of mechanized methods of farming, decrease of per capita consumption, and decrease of exports."

COLDS AND FLU RESULT FROM MERCURY DROP

DR. C. M. SIEVER IS NOT ALARMED OVER MANY ILLNESSES.

15 CONFINED IN HOSPITAL

Other Students Are Ill in Rooming Houses; Many Wear Heavy Clothes to Ward Off Attack.

A sudden drop in the mercury Sunday night, December 12, to 11 degrees below zero, the coldest December weather recorded here since 1924, playd havoc with students at Kansas State.

Forty-three students have been to the college health office for treatment of colds this week, and 15 are confined to the college hospital as the result of a cold wave which struck here Friday, reaching the lowest temperature Sunday night

Nothing Unusual—Siever

Dr. C. M. Siever, college physician, believes there is no reason to be alarmed over the prevailing illnesses, and says it is nothing unusual to have so many students ill this time of the year.

Wet feet, as result of the heavy snow which fell Friday, are the cause of many colds. "It is far from a flu epidemic," Doctor Viever says. "Many students think they have the flu when they merely have a severe cold. There are no cases of pneumonia."

Students sent to the college hospital this week are Wilfred Pine, Alvin Lowe, Richard Schlorling, R. I. Parker, Dorothy Taylor, Mary Jane Pae, Frances Jack, Eugene Wells, Genevieve Marble, Ralph Owen, Maurice Smith, Opal Powers, Glenn Socks, Wesley Sundia, and George Sticholtz.

Many other students are ill at their sorority, fraternity, and rooming houses with bad colds and influenza.

Snow Amuses Students

Students are taking every precaution in an attempt to ward off any flu attack. Sheepskins, sweaters, boots, stocking caps, ear muffs, rubbers, golashes, and hunting caps are in evidence on the Hill.

The snow also is furnishing amusement. Duke DuMars, Franklin Thackrey, John Reinecke, seniors, indulge in snow ball fights between classes. Mary Alice Schnacke is busy tacking signs, "Close That Door," and glaring at those that don't heed her words. Mark Babb dashes from class to class wearing two sweaters under his topcoat, while Dan Blaine sports a purple and white skull cap. Dean J. E. Ackert, of the graduate division, is wearing ear muffs.

RETURNS FROM WASHINGTON

Professor Scholer Attends National Research Council Meeting.

Prof. C. H. Scholer, head of the department of applied mechanics, returned last week from Washington, D. C., where he had been in attendance at a meeting of the National Research council. He also met with a sub-committee of the American Society of Testing Materials. Owing to Professor Scholer's activities in the field of research and applied mechanics, his name will appear in the fifth Biographical Directory of American Men of Science, which is now in press. This volume will contain 23,00 biographical sketches of American scientists of outstanding achievements and is issued every five years.

Dean Margaret Justin will attend a committee meeting of the Kansas Council of Health, Education, and Welfare in Topeka next Monday. The meeting is for the purpose of assigning packets of material for the county councils. Dean Justin is secretary of the state council.

WILDCATS NOSE OUT ONE-POINT VICTORY OVER DAVIS AND ELKINS

DEFEAT VISITORS LAST NIGHT IN LAST MINUTES OF HARD-FOUGHT COURT BATTLE—SKRADSKI HIGH SCORER

TEAMS MEET IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES TONIGHT

Misunderstanding In Schedule Responsible For Additional Tilt — Eastern Aggregation Champions of West Virginia Last Season, Having Lost Only Two Contests.

Kansas State won the first of a two-game series with Davis and Elkins college, traveling West Virginia college basketball team, last night when they defeated the visitors 35 to 34 in a hard fast battle that was not decided until the final whistle had blown. This team was champion of West Virginia last season and lost only two games in all the games played.

Both teams played so fast that it was difficult for spectators to watch every play, however the game was rough. Dougal Russell, forward, McDonald, Pa., was sent from the game late in the last half because of fouls.

Captain Andy Skradski, Kansas City, was high scorer for the K-Aggies with 15 points. Ralph Graham, El Dorado, came next with 10 points for the locals. The other scores were divided between Boyd, Russell, Dalton, and Breen.

Visitors Start Early

Davis and Elkins started with a bang, running up a lead of seven points before the game had hardly progressed into minutes. The Corsautmen came back with a driving, fighting offense but did not overcome the lead until 15 minutes had passed of the first half when Captain Skradski tossed in a free throw and then added a field goal to tie the score 13 all. Henry Dalton, who had just been substituted into the game, dropped in a field goal to make the score 15 to 13 for Kansas State. Shelton, high scorer for Davis and Elkins, dropped in two field goals to bring the West Virginians again into the lead. The half ended 16 to 19 for Davis and Elkins.

The visitors again ran up a seven point lead at the start of the second half and it was this final lead that had to be overcome late in the game. When ten minutes of the lats half had passed the score was tied 29 to 29. Ralph Graham, forward, who had not up to this far in the game, hit his stride, dropped in three goals in a row to give the K-Aggies a lead of 35 to 29. Martin added a free throw while Shelton and Vest each added a field goal for the visitors to bring the final score to 35 to 34 for the Corsautmen.

K-Aggies on Defense

The last two minutes of the game the K-Aggies spent the entire time on the defensive, giving up the ball only once when they lost the ball off the bank board.

Because of a misunderstanding in the schedule, the Corsautmen will meet the West Virginians again tonight in Nichols gymnasium in another pre-season battle at 7:45 o'clock.

TO DO OR NOT TO DO—

During Christmas vacation two representatives of the student governing council will spend four days in the sunny south discussing various problems concerning student government, the honor system, athletics, year books, newspapers and other publications. Tulane university and Sophie Newcomb college at New Orleans are hosts to this meeting of the National Student Federation of the United States.

This is the second time this college has sent delegates to the federation although representatives were previously sent to the Midwest Student Council. The advisability of affiliating with a national organization and the advantage of contact with schools which our delegates were not already familiar accounted for the change.

The federation was organized eight years ago for the purpose of discussing student governing problems, and to promote international understanding, especially among students. Delegates are sent from here as visiting delegates since this school has not yet decided to become a member of the federation.

Unfortunately our delegates have always been seniors who have spent student council money liberally and have brought back to the college nothing whatsoever of a constructive nature. This is not entirely the fault of the delegates themselves, but results from a system which permits delegates who are graduated only a few months following their convention experience.

Last year two delegates went to Toledo, O., spending $173.39 for the trip. The previous year two delegates to the Midwest Student council at Pittsburgh, Pa., spent $140.13 and $139.58 respectively or a total of $279.71. This included two tickets to a conference party at $10; conference party transportation, $9.80; and party refreshments, $3.70!

Back in the spring of 1930 the delegates spent S. G. A. money even more lavishly. The total bill being $391.00 which included $15 each for taxis alone.

Surely there is no justice in allowing money from the fund allotted to the student council from the activity fund to be used to send students to represent our school off on a luxurious Christmas vacation with no idea of having them return with a valuable contribution to the group which sent them.

The delegates who have been selected to go to New Orleans next week can adequately represent us, we feel, and we trust that they are honest enough to use wisely the funds allowed them.

Neither do we oppose the federation in itself. The system is what we condemn.

We propose that delegates who are in a position to make a real contribution to the school on their return be the delegates hereafter. Before Kansas State college becomes a member of the federation or any other such organization we expect to have its value demonstrated to us.—M. A. S.

The Snooper

Well, if there isn't another strenuous weekend staring us in the pan. This week the Sigma Nus will have their bi-annual mass meeting. Someone did their Christmas shopping early and sent Frank Prentup a stag bid. Betty Eugenia Co-ed Ebling was as tough as a boot about it and is calling the Sigmas all sorts of scummy names.

Formal parties of the last week end exhausted the immediate supply of tuxes, hence some of the rent-a-tux-but-be-dam-careful-with-in places made a nice penny by pulling their older models down out of the disinfestant. The late rentees had to be content with misfit sizes. Some of the suits had choke-bore pants which resembled bicycle or bus-boy uniforms and others ran into sizes usually worn by night club bouncers and used in this peaceful community drew one of the latter sizes. Squint is about knee high on a tall Indian. He could (and did) walk in a three foot circle without missing any part of the cut (or misfit) but the vest. He finally got it fairly well under control with the aid of a puckering string. Hayden Phillips, Salina fat boy, came to a party in undertaker's clothes and an iron hat. (dertey to you, you moron!)

After a year of inactivity, Alpha Delta Pi came through with the best party of the year. Their come-and-bring-a-friend idea of other years met with its usual great success last week end. If all the stags had been laid end to end they would have reached to Aggieville but nobody thought of it soon enough. It was a good party and everybody had a good loud time.

The Chi Omega party was a Chi Omega party. Most of the old party goers know the significance of that crack. If all the stags had been laid end to end they would never have reached Aggieville, and someone would have had to pick them all up again. Sal Shafer, accompanied by the versatile Wally Duncan, put on a Mickey Mcuse dance. It was puh-lenty good. Walls was good too.

Maxine Harding, Layton songstress and former student, has acquired quite a following. The Phi Sig pledges were following her the other night after the Alpha Delta party. A blond beardless boy of 17 years was very attentive. Mark Kannal is also in the kingrow (borrowed from the Lutz vocabulary) and expects to do right well as the year wears on. Mark is the joy and pride (to get away from the conventional) of the Phi Sig house. He carries apples around with him to keep from getting hungry. On long trips, say, out to the ag buildings, Mark (rumor, of course) carries a section of summer sausage or a pork roast, and a few slices of Vienna bread.

Judge For Yourself

Should the inter-society debates held annually at Kansas State be abandoned? If the cooperation of the faculty is any criteria, it seems that they should be.

Literary societies met eight nights during the past two weeks to debate the question, "Resolved that over-production is the cause of the present economic crisis" and almost every faculty member in the student directory was asked to act as a judge. After hours and hours of telephoning on the part of the debate coaches it was finally possible to find 24 professors interested enough to respond. But before these 24 were secured the list had to be canvassed several times to reach all those who didn't answer their telephone the first time and those who said "If you can't possibly get someone else, you might call me back." and it began to look as if it would be necessary to go out into the highways and hedges to bring in the stenographers, the electricians and the janitors.

The excuses given by these professors were numerous and varied. "That's entirely out of my line" said one. However the very next professor in the same division responded that he would be glad to help out. Others were sorry they couldn't come, but they had been invited to a party. What if students gave that as an excuse for unprepared lessons? Yet these same professors urge students to cooperate in community projects and programs when they go out to teach, and to enter into more intellectual activities than social activities while they are in college.

If I were a preacher instead of a mere college student I would take for a text, Luke 14: 16 to 24—"and they all with one accord began to make excuses" for almost every excuse in this parable was used by faculty members in refusing to act as debate judges. About the only one they didn't use was "I have married a wife and therefore cannot come."

We realize that college professors are very busy at this time of the year. But so are students. Besides preparing all the lessons the professors assign, they spend hours and hours preparing these debates and giving them—and in calling college professors to act as judges! Or they have been working on Aggie Pop, The Spider, or the Y.W.C.A. bazaar. Are these activities worth while? And if so, do they not deserve the support and cooperation of the faculty? We want to know.—EAS.

On Other Hills

There are no noisy alarm clocks to awaken tired students at Rochester university, since early morning classes have been abolished. Eight o'clock classes are not being held at the school because the professors prefer to have their students sleep in bed rather than in their classes.

Students get sleepy at the University of Nebraska too. One tired fellow finds it convenient to take his morning nap on a bench between the second and third floors of the social science building. He sleeps peacefully as students dash up and down stairs between classes. Instructors suggest it might be a good idea if more students would try stretching out on some of these unoccupied benches and snatch a few winks before stumbling to classes.

A new idea has evolved at the University of Texas in order to keep the number of unemployed students to a minimum. Students at the university have been advised by the school newspaper to throw waste paper on the campus so the school's athletes will remain employed.

The short wave station at the University of Minnesota has met with great success, and nearly 150 messages of the "Best wishes, sorry you aren't here" type have been sent to far distant countries. The station was opened to the public last spring during the Engineer's day program when several messages were sent.

It's a women's school at Ohio State this year. Members of the weaker sex are enrolled in every professional course at the university, including veterinary surgery.

Things In Art

SAYRE RECITAL

Prof. Edwin Sayre, tenor, and Mrs. Sayre, organist and accompanist, were presented in recital Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock in the auditorium. This was the first of a series of recitals to be given by members of the department of music faculty this winter.

Four groups were given: (1) Air from Milton's "Comus" (Dr. Arne); O Sleep! Why Dost Thou Leave Me? from "Semele" (Handel); Sound an Alarm! from "Judas Maccabaeus" (Handel); Si Je Pouvais Mourir (Barbirolli); Il Neige (Bemberg); Chere Nuit (Bachelet).

Organ—Three Preludes on Christmas Carols of the Sixteenth Century (Boely); Song of the Wine Press (Jacob); Returning from the Vineyards (Jacob); Piece Heroique (Franck).

I Will Go With My Father A-ploughing (Quiltetr); If You Wish (Koechlin); The Pretty Creature (Storace); Ah, Thou Beloved One (Levitski).

The first group was definitely classic. The Handel numbers are somewhat reminiscent of parts of the "Messiah."

The French group was interesting. Musicians are apt to think of modern music as having beauty and rhythm, but no soul. After hearing "Si Je Pouvais Mourir" (If I Could Only Die), and "Chere Nuit" (Dear Night),—I wonder. The last named song has an unusually appealing melody—it is somewhat mystical, being descriptive of night's descent, soft, like velvet. "Il Neige" (It's Snowing) is a gay little tune with rhythmic accompaniment.

Mrs. Sayre's organ group was well received. The two Jacob numbers, taken from the suite called "A Day in Burgundy," were quite descriptive. Probably the most interesting of the four numbers was the Franck "Piece Heroique." It shows the Belgian's gift of unusual harmonization and lovely melody.

The last group was modern. "If You Wish" is quite subtle—both words and rhythm. The Levitski number was a fortunate choice—it is particularly suited to Mr. Sayre's voice, and the accompaniment is intricate. (It should be, as Levitski is a pianist).—Ruth Thomas.

KANSANS' PAINTINGS

Visitors of the architecture department gallery will find several interesting paintings of outstanding Kansas artists by Dr. Birger Sandzen of Lindsborg, Arthur W. Hall and Norma Bassett Hall of Howard, C. A. Seward of Wichita, Herschel Logan of Salina, and Robert I. Lockard and John Helm of the department of architecture. These are displayed as the fourth annual exhibit of the Kansas artists, and they will be here throughout December.

In Doctor Sandzen's "At The Timber Line," "Colorado Rocks," "Pines and Rocks," and three new studies in the Rocky Mountain National park he gives us again one of his favorite themes of big rock formations and wind swept trees. By the use of more yellows and yellow oranges, Doctor Sandzen produces a slightly cooler effect in some of his pictures than he formally achieved.

Mrs. Hall gives in her "The Village Church" a study of an old adobe church with a group of peons going into the church for service. The composition builds up nicely into a big triangle composed of the figures and the belfry of the church with the procession of peons organized to lead the eye into the picture and to lead back into the church itself through the getaway. Her organization and composition shows considerable study; and by the use of transparent colors for a basic technique, she has given a luminosity to her color that wouldn't have been achieved with opaque inks. Also by the use of graded tints of the water and sky, Mrs. Hall's "Whale Cove" expresses a Japanese feeling and technique.

A contrast of temperature is shown by Mr. Hall by the heat of the desert in "The March to Cibola" and the cold blizzard in "Coronado's Pack Train."

By picturing a small town elevator with box cars on the siding and the busy part of the small town, with its false fronts and trash piles in the back yards, Mr. Logan portrays American scenes as we can see them in Kansas; while Mr Lockard's water color "Corn Crib" is an excellent study of a Kansas farmyard.—Leonice Fisher.

"THE SPIDER"

"The Spider," a mystery melodrama, a murder thriller, evolving itself from a magician's act in a vaudeville performance, was the offering of the Manhattan Theater to students, faculty, and general public at the college auditorium on Thursday and Friday evenings, December 8 and 9.

It was the most difficult show in the way of stage business, lighting, and telepathy hokum that the local organization has ever attempted. A less daring and less able director than H. Miles Heberer would have cautiously avoided "The Spider" as a play to present before home folk in such a robust temple of drama as the college auditorium. But Mr. Heberer both dared and directed, and with results complimentary to both him and his cast.

"The Spider" deals with the solution of a murder committed on the floor of a theater during a magician's mind-reading act. It enlists the services of a flock of policemen, the magician and his assistants, a dope ring, and about everything else that might be picked up at a cheap metropolitan vaudeville house. There is much tempering with lights, firing of pistols, screaming of women, and chasing around in the audience with drawn weapons.

Denison Olmstead, who enacted the role of Monsieur Chatrand and performed the magic, did a most excellent piece of acting, and difficult acting, too. Indeed, the show was almost all his show. Ernest Reed, as Inspector Riley, also had a taxing role and carried it with much credit to himself. Margaret Bacon, as Beverly Lane, the inevitable girl in the case who is always torn with the tragedy of it all. Lyman Hall, the magician's medium. Robert Chambers and John Barhydt, who did the twin dope addicts, and Jeanne Bryan, as a female devotee of vaudeville who tries vainly and often to get home to her husband and baby also come in for entirely favorable commendation. The remainder of the cast of twenty-three furnished effective support.

"The Spider" is one of those shows that pile up mysteries, make you worry as much about lights as the director and his cast do, keep you always listening for gun-fire, and things like that. It calls for much more poise and stage resourcefulness than the usual group of amateurs can muster; but it failed befuddle Mr. Heberer's well coached players. A mix-up of light cues in the "seance" scene on Thursday evening was fairly noticeable, but the second performance corrected it. The Friday evening show moved with considerably improved snap.

All the policemen wore their hats all the time. Outside of that, their arrogance and brutality were below normal. They obeyed the commands of the sergeants and the inspector with alacrity, but were a bit nice and collegiate about it.

The college orchestra under the leadership of Lyle Downey played at intervals during the show; it appeared as A on the vaudeville appeared as "A" on the vaudeville ents in a tumbling act—music course—and fiddled while Toby, "A Funny Fellow," did a monologue and undid a trombone. —H. W. D.

Gladys Skinner of Topeka was a dinner guest at the Ellen Richards lodge practice house Sunday noon.

MISS HUGHES TELLS OF ENGLISH JOURNALISM

Speaker Spends Year in London as Settlement Worker in Whitechapel District.

"Fleet Street, London, is the journalistic Mecca of the world," so Miss Carolyn Hughes, Topeka, back from a year's work in London told the journalism students in a lecture Thursday afternoon. Fleet Street is only four or five blocks long, but is the home of all London newspapers, all foreign newspaper offices, and only newspaper employees work there.

English journalists are much more conservative than American journalists, Miss Hughes said. Slang is used less, errors of construction in material are unknown, writers never go to extremes to gather news and as a whole the standards are higher. Big headlines are used only in very important news, but advertising is used extensively on the front pages. Funny papers and comic strips are not very popular in England, but the cartoons are subtle, well done, and widely read.

The papers of England differ from American newspapers in that while rich and poor alike read the same newspapers here; in England certain social classes never read any paper except the one of their own class. The intelligentsia reads the Times, the middle class reads the Daily Mail, Telegraph, and Express, and the laboring class reads the Daily Herald. However, as in America, all classes read the sport papers.

Miss Hughes has just returned from a year as a settlement worker among the unfortunates of the Whitechapel district in London, and her information has been gained through actual contact. She is the granddaughter of Thomas Hughes, British statesman and author of the classic "Tom Brown's School Days." She received her college education at the University of Kansas and has traveled widely in England and on the continent.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . . .

. . . . Who agrees with the protest that the group of Kansas women sent to Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt with regard to her recent speech on the average girl's problem of drinking? It rather looks as if these women have never had the opportunity to visit a Kansas educational institution (such as our Kansas State and K. U., etc.,) where it could easily have been proved that Mrs. Roosevelt hit the nail on the head with her statement. For, ladies, there are no W. C. T. U. organizations in Kansas colleges . . . . We trust that Owen Welch will some day awaken to the fact that women have taken up smoking. With reference to his recent squib in the Chronicle about the two college girls seen smoking in the men's room of a train coach, we would like to ask when men have become so persnickety about the company of women. Women have invaded every other sanctum of men with their smoking, so why should the smoker on a train be so exclusive? And as for the young women waiting until they reached Manhattan to smoke—120 miles isn't such a meager distance to travel, Mr. Welch . . . .

. . . . There's the girl at Van Zile who, upon receiving the Reformatory Herald one morning, shouted, "O, goody! here's the paper from home" . . . . A Lambda Chi freshman who asked the meaning of the Harlem, whose moon every one was singing about, heard this for an answer, "Oh, Harlem is just the place where a king keeps all his wives," . . . . Spud Morgan about the "petticoat" she lost on Anderson the other noon . . . . "Joe College" Hinckley has had the greatest trouble keeping on his feet this icy weather—he holds the record of at least half a dozen falls . . . . It is rumored that H. W. Davis has put a new heater in the car for Helen Louise and Dougal . . . . Chili Cochrane did a nice job of officiating at the Davis and Elkins game, particularly since he labored under the handicap of refereeing on his home court and since he had to put up with some obvious unnecessary roughness on the part of a few Kansas State basketballers . . . . Dan Blaine, Hank Dalton, Emmett Breen, and Max Focekle were seen to rush to the front row in the Varsity theatre, yesterday, just as the song-and-dance acts began . . . . Cliff Scott thinks the huge vase in the Tri Delta house is the largest spitoon he has ever seen . . . .

BANQUET CLOSES FOOTBALL AND TRACK SEASON

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS HOST TO HIGH SCHOOL AND COLLEGE SQUADS.

INTRODUCE TEAM CAPTAINS

Presentation of 1933 Squad Leaders and an Address by McMillin Are Highlights of Program.

The 1932 football and two-mile track season for Kansas State college and the Manhattan high school drew to a finale Wednesday night when the Chamber of Commerse was host to members of the squads at a banquet at the Masonic temple. More than 300 persons attended the affair.

Highlights of the program included introductions of the 1933 team captains: Ralph Graham of the Kansas State football team, Don Landon of the Big Six championship two-mile team, and Paul Kelly of the Manhattan high school football team, and an address by A. N. "Bo" McMillin, head football coach of Kansas State.

Emphasis upon the fact that Kansas State football players are attending college for an education proved to be an outstanding point in Coach McMillin's speech. He told persons present that athletic participation played a prominent part in moulding well-rounded characters in the men who will soon take their places in their communities.

Coach McMillin paid his respects to his team, particularly the graduating members, Emmett Breen, Lloyd Dalton, Bertus J. Deters, Jack Going, J. W. Meyers. Harry Hasler, Lloyd Michael, Shelby Neely, Lawrence Pilcher were absent from the banquet, however.

Of these, Dalton, Coach McMillin said, was the most improved player. Michael was announced as his choice of centers over Ely of Nebraska and Young of Oklahoma. Weybrew, who had all of his football to learn after coming to college was considered the outstanding tackle of the Big Six conference.

The coaching staffs of the two schools and members of all of the football squads in additions to the two-mile team were introduced by their respective coaches. Speeches were given by Coach Clarence Little and Captain Eckert of the high school, Carl (Swede) Anderson, freshman coach at the college; Coach Ward Haylett, K. S. C. track mentor; Capt. Walter Zeckser, Wildcat guard; Captain - elect Ralph Graham of the Wildcats, and Head Coach A. N. McMillin.

Fullback Graham spoke briefly and in almost inaudible tones as he commented on the past season's record and cited a need for much hard work in preparation for next season's football program. He tributed the Oklahoma defeat to the absence of the head coach. Coach McMillin afterwards attributed it to the over-anxiety of the boys to win.

Captain Zeckser voiced his appreciation for the cooperation given by various individuals and agencies the past season and said. "It's been a great pleasure to be captain of this 1932 football team."

Pearce is the only graduating member of the two-mile team which won the championship in a conference meet in Lawrence. Other members who will return next season are Joe McNay, C. D. McNeal, and M. E. Nixon.

Cheers and songs were led by the high school and college cheer leaders. The Rev. W. A. Jonnard gave the invocation.

BEGIN BASKETBALL SEMI-FINALS TONIGHT

Winners of Games Tonight Will Battle for School Championship Next Tuesday Evening.

Three fraternities and two independent teams have entered the play-offs for the intramural basketball championship. Tonight at 7:30 o'clock Alpha Rho Chi, winner of group one, plays Tau Kappa Epsilon, group four champions, the winner of which will tangle with Delta Tau Delta at 7:30 Monday evening for the Pan-Hellenic title. Also on Monday, at 8:30, the Lone Stars and White Shirts play for the independent championship. These two teams and W. F. A. C. finished their regular season in a triple tie in group three, each with one defeat, and the White Shirts defeated W. F. A. C. 17-10 in their play-off Wednesday, as Lone Star A. C. drew the bye.

Finally, as a grand climax, the winners of these two semi-final games will battle for the school championship at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, December 20. The White Shirts are the defending champions, having gone through last season undefeated and lost only once this year, 20-19 in an over-time game with the Lone Stars. At the Theatres

Marinoff's Revue and "Vanity Street"

Marinoff's all-star revue is one of the best stage shows seen in Manhattan for many a year. Excellent tap dancing, blues singers, and an honest-to-goodness red hot band are featured. The famous dancing team executes difficult steps with a finesse not often witnessed here. The costumes are beautiful, the girls exceptionally pretty. The revue is entertainment enough in itself to be worth your time and money.

"Vanity Street," the feature, starring Charles Bickford and Helen Chandler, is rather dull. The story is just another one of those poor - little - girl - who - makes good sort of things. She throws a brick through a window only to arouse the cop's (Charles Bickford) sympathy. Then she gets a job in the follies and involves herself in a murder case. But the cop gets the girl.

Miss Chandler is too evidently acting. Charles Bickford, as the big-hearted cop, is well cast.

And then there's a play by play description of the U. S. C. and Notre Dame game which is another incentive for seeing the Varsity.—H. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Once in a Lifetime"

The story, "Once in a Lifetime" is another great Jack Oakie picture. The story is a hilarious ridicule of moving pictures. Oakie is a ham actor playing the part of an airdale dog at the time of the first talking picture. He is as dumb as the proverbial oyster. The act goes to California to start a school of expression and Jack, through his own dumbness is made the director at a movie studio. He makes the wrong picture, buys 2,000 airplanes, and blows up a stage setting and is pronounced the man of the hour. Sidney Fox comes to Hollywood as the world's worst actress, and is proclaimed the greatest find in the history of the industry. It's a good picture.—Eggs.

Prof. W. H. Riddell, of the dairy husbandry department, took his final examination for his Ph.D. degree at the University of Minnesota last Saturday, December 10. He has been making a study of phosphorus deficiency in dairy cattle for his thesis.

Among the Ags

Last Friday evening, we (the ag who edits this column) attended a banquet given the Sigma Delta Chi convention by the Kansas City board of trade in the Kansas City Athletic club. We sat next an associate city-editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post and across the table from a handsome and obviously prosperous gentleman whose position we never learned. As we sat there, eating five-dollars-a-plate food, the conversation ran smoothly from "the depression" in general to a discussion of the proposed domestic allotment plan as it would affect the world wheat market to a discussion of Sinclair Lewis' merits as a writer and thence to a general discussion of the conversationalist's private philosophies.

"I have lived forty years," said the prosperous gentleman across the table from us, "and I've lived them all the way up. I've had a fair quality of liquor, a damn good grade of women, and good food. I've had all that, and what else is there?"

The newspaperman beside us lit a cigarette.

"Not a damn thing," he said.

Later in the evening, a former president of the Kansas City board of trade spoke to us concerning the absolute necessity for stabilizing agriculture. Agriculture, he platitudinized, is the keystone industry of our economic arch; as the farmer prospers the nation prospers. But how should agriculture be stabilized? Modified socialism in the form of a domestic allotment plan? The worthy gentleman left that problem unsolved.

That problem is our problem; especially it is a problem for us ags. And it will be solved, if it is solved at all, by the earnest ones, the doers, the fighters. The cheap cynicism voiced by the pagans at our banquet table will only serve to drag us back. These are times which demand the best of each of us.

Thus saith the preacher.

You will think, if the editor-in-chief surprises us and allows you to read the above, that our column is becoming as full of persolalities as that of Empress Eugenia's.

A. C. "Whitie" Thompson, McCune, is certainly big news this week. He has landed a job! On January 1, 1933, he will take over the duties of assistant county agent of Washington county with headquarters in Washington, the tornado town. He will have charge of the 4-H club work of the county and will serve as chief county advisor to dairymen in distress. The entire ag division wants to know how "Whitie" did it, and he steadfastly refuses to tell.

QUILL CLUB INITIATES NINE NEW MEMBERS

Quill club held initiation Wednesday evening for nine new members of the honorary fraternity for college writers. The meeting was held at Van Zile hall.

Prof. C. W. Matthews of the department of English acted as master of ceremonies. Other officiates for the rites were: Veva Brewer, chancellor; Oma Bishop, keeper of the parchments; and Robert Groesbeck, warden of the purse.

The initiates included: Ella Fouts, McPherson; Charlotte Buchmann, Clay Center; Kathleen Fields, Atchison; Elizabeth Keegan, Great Bend, and Ellen Payne, Lucille Allman, Kenneth Davis, William Dekker, and Frederick Peery, all of Manhattan.

Non-fraternity members who were guests at the meeting were Karl Goss, Dwight; Kenneth Davis, Manhattan; and Fred Peery, Manhattan.

The opening session of the convention was held Friday afternoon, December 9, in the Kansas City Star building. At this session, Henry J. Haskell, editor-in-chief of the Kansas City Star, spoke on "Feeling the Country's Economic Pulse" and Milo Thompson, superintendent of the southwest division of the Associated Press, spoke on "Things I'd Tell You if I Were Your Journalism Instructor." Shorter talks were made by George B. Longan, president of the Kansas City Star company and ex-Governor Clyde M. Reed, publisher of the Parson's Sun. Round-table discussions were also held.

Friday evening, the convention delegates were the guests of the Kansas City board of trade at a banquet held in the Kansas City Athletic Club. The banquet was arranged by Frank Stoll, member of the department of public relations of the Kansas City board of trade and associate member of the Kansas State chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

C. H. "Pip" Thompson, editor of the column "Starbeams" in the Kansas City Star, was toastmaster at the banquet. Talks were given by Robert Reed, news editor of the Star; J. J. Kraettli, former president of the Star and former student at Kansas State; Henry E. Haskell of the Star's staff; Tom Collins, Sunday editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post; Ernest Mehl of the Star's sports staff; Fred Staker, second vice-president and head of the advertising and public relations department of the Commerce Trust company; and H. A. Bodendieck of the Bank News at Kansas City, who is district representative of Sigma Delta Chi and who introduced Professor Charles and Professor Rogers as well as a member from each chapter of Sigma Delta Chi represented at the banquet.

The meeting resulted from invitations extended by the Kansas State chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, of which Maurice DuMars is president, to the Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Nebraska chapters. All these chapters were represented at the convention with the exception of Nebraska, Oklahoma being represented by an alumnus.

GRAD TO BUILD BRIDGE

H. O. Reed, '25, was appointed recently to be the engineer in charge of the construction of the new Seventh street traffic bridge which will be built in Kansas City, Kan., to span the Kaw river. The Kansas City Journal-Post presented an artist's picture in its rotogravure section in the Sunday, December 18, edition.

Cars Freeze and Bump To Skid Garages Into Great Business Boom

With this near zero weather continuing, student and faculty motorists are being warned against the danger of motor cars skidding. This becomes greater as the snow and ice on the streets refuse to melt but become harder, the garage men declare.

At one corner alone, Laramie and Eleventh, 9 cars are known to have been put out of running condition by skidding into the curb. Local repair shops have estimated that approximately 26 wrecks resulting from skidding on the iced streets have been brought to them. The number of cars thus wrecked and not yet repaired is probably somewhat larger.

Freeze-up casualties have been high: 412 motors were estimated by local garage men to have been frozen or unabled to start because of the cold.

One car being pushed by another is a familiar sight on the streets of Manhattan just now.

At one garage alone the entire force spent one whole day thawing out motors. It was estimated that 75 such jobs were done at that garage that day.

MURRAY RESCINDS ORDERS TO EXPEL O. U. LEADERS

Athletic Stars and Class Officers Included in D. D. M. C. Membership—Make Early Morning Appeal.

The order of punishment by expulsion had hardly begun for 14 student leaders of Oklahoma university when Governor W. H. Murray retaliated by ordering their reinstatement. The fate of five athletic teams hung in the balance awaiting the governor's decision. Expulsion proceedings for the 14 students followed the flogging of Bill Stephens, a student reporter, by a 26-year-old secret order known as the D. D. M. C.

Shortly before dawn Sunday morning the expelled students gathered at the executive mansion and made a personal appeal to the governor against the expulsion order issued Saturday by the board of regents. The Oklahoma City Times and the Daily Oklahoman, for whom Stephens corresponds, had vigorously urged the disbandment of the secret order and demanded that Stephen's abductors be brought to trial in a criminal court. Governor Murray's order however, granted immunity from prosecution.

When the personnel of the order was made known early yesterday by the members themselves it was found to include Andy Beck, basketball star; Bill Pansze, Orin Borah, and Edsel Curnutt, football men, Charles Davis, tennis star; Bob Hert of the polo team; Fred Newton, president of the senior class and by student vote the "best all-around male student"; Charles Tell, post-graduate and assistant coach of the freshman football team; Bill Newlock, captain of the R. O. T. C. and track team member, and other leaders of the student body.

Murray's reinstatement order came as a surprise in view of the number of fraternity men in the organization. On several occasions he has criticized college fraternities, asserting they taught loyalty to secret rites above allegiance to government. All but three of the expelled students were fraternity men. Stephens himself is a fraternity man and a sophomore at the university.

FARM AND HOME WEEK TO BE HELD FEBRUARY 7-10

FARMERS WILL GATHER AT COLLEGE FOR FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL MEETINGS.

HOLD LITTLE ROYAL SHOW

Event Will Take Place Night of February 9—Finale of Week Will Be Achievement Banquet and Master Farmers' Program.

Kansas farmers will gather again on the Kansas State college campus for their fifty-eighth annual Farm and Home week programs February 7 to 10, inclusive. Four days will be devoted to the meetings, one each to four major branches of the industry, including poultry, dairy, livestock, and crops, as has been the custom during recent years.

For the homemaker, each day will be filled with an instructive program dealing with home management and care of the child. Miss Amy Kelly, state home demonstration leader, of the college extension service, will be in charge. Home growing and utilization of meats, vegetables, and fruits will be given major prominence on all homemakers' programs, she promises.

Concentrate on Feeds.

"In line with the times, efficient production and utilization of home grown feeds on Kansas farms will be the trend of thought for all farm programs of the week," explains L. C. Williams, of the extension service, who is program chairman for the week. He promises that the value of the market information and the adoption of improved marketing practices will be stressed.

One evening during the week has been set aside for a debate between the Iowa State college debate team and the Kansas State college debate squad. The probable topic for debate will be the "Domestic Allotment Plan."

Little Royal Show.

The night of Februry 9 has been set aside for the annual Little American Royal Livestock show. The finale of the week will be the achievement banquet and master farmers' program, Friday evening, February 10.

As outlined by L. F. Payne, head of the college poultry department the importance of the farm poultry flock and improved practices that will make it profitable will be emphasized in the sectional meetings on poultry day. J. B. Fitch, head of the college dairy department, has scheduled O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, U. S. D. A., as the main speaker for the dairy day. Mr. Reed was formerly head of the dairy department of the college and is nationally known for the work he is doing.

The livestock day program will begin with an explanation of the extension beef production program of Kansas by J. J. Moxley, extension livestock specialist. Herein will be stressed the use of sorghum grain in fattening rations and its adaptibility to a cattle raising program. Lamb and hog feeding and marketing will also be given attention. The price outlook for livestock and financing for stockmen will appropriate a part of the time. Dr. C. W. McCampbell, head of the animal husbandry department, will be in charge.

State Associations Meet.

Speaking of agronomy day, Prof. R. I. Throckmorton, head of the department of agronomy, said the program will be broad enough to include most of the principal crop-porduction problems.

During Farm and Home week annual meetings of the Kansas Crop Improvement association, the Blue Stem Pasture association, and state dairy breed associations will be held.

The direct pick-up method will go into use tomorrow evening, December 21, when 6 by 6 inch pictures will be broadcast.

The flying spot projector employs a high intensity arc for the light source and the light on the subject to be scanned. The direct pickup system will be used with the present film scanner for the presentation of programs.

Ag Students Make Economical Cooks, Conferences Prove

When there's a will there's a way.

Dean L. E. Call of the division of agriculture, on conferring with freshmen students in agriculture, has learned for the first time a number of students in the college have organized cooking clubs, bring food from home, and by doing their own cooking have sent the price of board and room crashing to a new low.

"One group here has obtained most of their food from home and spent less than two dollars apiece for food purchased during the month of November," Dean Call said.

"One student took a course in cooking in high school last year in anticipation of doing his own cooking while in college," he added.

The conferences are being held by Dean Call to discuss scholastic standing, farming experience before entering college, and other student problems. They will be completed by tomorrow.

ENGINEERS MAY ATTEND WORLD'S FAIR IN BODY

ARCHITECTS, CIVIL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERING STUDENTS PLAN TRIP.

WILL GO ABOUT EASTER

Sojourn Will Serve Same Purpose as Inspection Trip for Persons Involved—Will Visit Other Noted Places.

The civil engineering, architectural engineering, and mechanical engineering departments are considering the plan of going to Chicago to see the world's international exposition which opens June 1. The senior students of these departments will make the inspection trip if present arrangements materialize.

According to Prof. L. E. Conrad, head of the department of civil engineering, most of the instructors are in favor of this proposed inspection trip as are most of the students. If the plan proves feasible, the senior students accompanied by their instructors will probably go during easter vacation. This will be the first year that an inspection group from the division will visit Chicago.

In addition to the international exposition, the groups will probably visit Fields' museum, the Shedd aquarium, and the Planetarium, according to Prof. J. P. Calderwood. Such industrial plants as the Western Electric company, the International Harvester company, Underwriters' laboratory, and the Chicago Lighting institute as well as the Crawford avenue Central Power station will be inspected. Professor Calderwood said that the departments would know how many students will attend the inspection trip after the Christmas vacation. It is probable that the electrical engineering department may not make this trip since the students already have had their inspection trip earlier this year.

STUDENTS' AID REQUESTED

Underclassmen Are Asked to Identify High School Seniors.

More than 700 names of senior students from accredited Kansas high schools have been received by the vice-president's office recently. According to Miss Myrtle Zener, secretary to Vice-President J. T. Willard, freshman and sophomore students attending Kansas State are requested to come into the vice-president's office to identify the names. They are also to correct the spelling of the names received, and give some identity as to whether the high school senior is a boy or girl.

This procedure, according to Miss Zener, is necessary in order to be able to send appropriate literature and information regarding the Kansas State college divisions and departments in which the prospective students may wish to enroll.

HOLD PRACTICE DEBATES

A trial debate between Kansas State college and Hutchinson Junior college on the Pi Kappa Delta question on the cancellation of war debts was held Saturday. Boyd Finney, Beloit, and James York Vinland, represented Kansas State. Several other trial debates have been scheduled with other colleges in Kansas. These debates are held to give experience and practice to those entering in the tournaments in the spring.

THE SEASON'S WISH-YOU-WELL

Once more comes the two-weeks pause in the occupation of going to school. It is a time for which all collegians wait expectantly—to go home and tell the folks all about it.

The evolution of the college student can be told by observance of the four two-weeks periods of Christmas holidays through which one usually passes. The first year the enthusiastic freshman goes home with fervent tales of his new life. The second year the enthusiasm fades a little. Then comes the third year, with just a noticeable tinge of nonchalance in the poised conversation with the parents when the contacts made and the extra-curricular activities indulged in mean the most. The senior year brings John College home for Christmas knowing just about all there is to know—but telling little. He just gives that impression.

And so, through it all, whether enthusiastic, nonchalant, or impressive, there is the feeling that it is Christmas vacation, and consequently, Merry Christmas.

Judge For Yourself

Martin Vantravers, Centralia, senior in agricultural administration, who for the last several weeks has been confined in the college hospital with a purely theoretical case of scarlet fever, was released last Friday and celebrated his regained liberty by attending two parties during the weekend. His experience has been a costly one, for himself and everyone else concerned—except the doctors. It was on November 18, before the K. U. football game, just one week preceding the opening of the Chicago International Livestock Exposition, that Vantravers, suffering from a slightly sore throat and a mild skin-rash, visited a downtown doctor. The doctor immediately rushed a scarlet fever sign to the Farm House fraternity and placed him in the hospital. As a result, he lost his chance to make the judging trip he had been striving for throughout his college career, paid out a good deal of money for doctor and hospital bills, and had altogether a wrecked time. His fraternity brothers missed the K. U. game and most of their Thanksgiving vacation. Incidentally that Farm House quarantine sign spread gloom and consternation among those ag professors who had placed Farm House men on their judging teams. There was little cause for thanks-giving in the ag division that week.

There are two good erasons for believing that Vantravers never had scarlet fever. First, the rash disappeared almost immediately and he was feeling perfectly fit again; he never did run a temperature. The second is that the hundreds of people that he had certainly exposed, not one contracted scarlet fever—and scarlet fever, it must be remembered, is one of the most highly contagious of all diseases.

The night before he was placed in the hospital, the patient attended the impromptu pep varsity in the Wareham ballroom. The extent of the epidemic which might have resulted can be imagined.

Within a few days after he had handed down his decision—or it seems to us—it must have been obvious to that downtown doctor that he had made a mistake. It seems that doctors, as a class, do not correct their mistakes; they bury them—or something. Let us contrast the medical profession's ethics with those of Spinoza.—K. D.

The Snooper

What with all this friendly Christmas spirit prevailing it but little behooves this side of the page to go around giving anybody the burn. The Snooper would much rather loll about in an armchair in front of the gas heater and munch on a bag of salted karabies, but so many complaints have been registered against certain scourges of society that it is somebody's duty to make loud mention of it. Complaints have been registered against Dave Umburger, Ned Kimball, Jim Richards and skunks of similar kidney for the way they gyrate around the ballroom floor. Gyral motions within a limited area are commonplace and almost necessary, but when the dancer gyrates (boy, I like that word) too much, his gyratory actions are not appreciated by the group as a whole. Not only does the offender create ill will but also endangers the lives and limbs of other dancers who find it hard to maintain their natural balance on such a precarious footing as it is.

The Sigma Nu party met with its usual great success. There were the usual uninvited guests. Eugenia Ebling for one; others for others. The party was livened by several bushels of confetti. It is exceedingly strange, yet noteworthy, that all organizations seem to think that their party will not be successful if the dancers cannot throw colored paper at one another. There is nothing so exciting, enthralling, thrilling, and entertaining, say the followers of this belief, than to throw peck-measures-full of paper pulp into the face of a friend. It tightens the bonds of friendship and fellowship. It unlooses the gird of estrangement between man and woman. There is nothing, in the minds of many, quite so touching as a man and woman, whose affections have become alienated, to be seen throwing handsfull of colored paper into each other's face and weeping bitterly over the misadventure which has torn them apart. As you have probably noticed, there are wisps of heart-felt sarcasm in these remarks.

Two of the older Aggieville bar-flies, who have of late returned from foreign parts, were seen exhibiting themselves to the drug store hangers-out over the week end. They were, reading from left to right, Joe Menzie and Tommy Kimball. Tommy drew a bead on the Pi Phi front door the moment he hit the east end of town and has garnished its threshold ever since. Joe is exhibiting Michigan gyrations (tsk! the word again.) at parties. The Pi Phis have Tommy well in hand.

The Snooper wishes you the same old apple strudel about New Year and Christmas and hopes that you refrain from gagging yourself on a thigh bone during the holiday festivities.

On Other Hills

A new type All-American football team evolved at the University of Southern California, when members of Theta Sigma Phi, national journalistic sorority, announced the players in an issue of the Daily Trojan. The most outstanding feature of the team is its versatility, "the handsome brutes who are equally at home in the parlor or on the gridiron, who can wear 'Tuxes' as jauntily as shoulder pads." Here are the successful members of the team selected by the co-eds: Smith of Colgate, end; Tozer of California, tackle; Corbus of Stanford, guard; Gracey of Vanderbilt, center; Summerfelt of Army, guard; O'Brien of Washington, tackle; Lassiter of North Carolina, end; Newman of Michigan, quarterback; Zimmerman of Tulane, halfback; Berry of Illinois, halfback; and Christensen of Utah, fullback.

The mighty male continues to reign at Syracuse university. The Orange Peel, university magazine, recently put out an issue in which 19 male student beauties, the two handsomest deans and the two best looking instructors received their share of the honor.

Freshmen at the University of Washington lead an easy life. Apparently they are kept for the sole purpose of laughing at the actives' jokes, for they have no house duties to keep them busy. It is unheard of for fraternity men to tend furnaces, and some houses even hire outsiders to do their garden work and other little tasks.

Dancers at Purdue university were allowed to wear outfits of their own choice, and act as they pleased without being kicked off the floor by the chaperons, at the annual Sigma Delta Chi "Riveters' Rassle" held last week. Included in the price of the "Rassle Rags," which are necessary for entrance to the dance, is the annual "Razz Exponent," published by the members of Sigma Delta Chi.

Oh, for the life of a fraternity mascot! The mascots at the University of Colorado are almost as important as the students themselves. For example, Eric, the Beta canine, is registered in the university and may attend classes, and Hedgel, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon dog, is listed in the student directory—a real student. When student directory material was being sought early in the fall, the S. A. E. brethren felt that their dog, Hedgel Peter, was important enough to be listed with the pledge group.

"Back to the old days" was apparently the cry at McGill university, when members of the German club held a meeting in the form of a "bierabend." The chief refreshment was beer, (sh-h-h) and during the meeting the students gathered round the keg and sang German songs. It musta been strong beer.

They work their way through at the University of Wisconsin. More than half of the entire student body of the college is either partially or wholly self-supporting, according to figures compiled recently. Despite the times, 4,195 students, or about 54 per cent of the student body work for their expenses while attending the university.

Beauty queens at DePauw university have to be more than mere beauties. The basis of choice for the 1933 Mirror beauts will be pulchritude as determined by the judges, popularity as indicated by the audience at the final beauty pageant, and the amount of subscriptions sold by the sorority of which the candidate is a member.

Football players are not only football players, but also students at the University of Oregon this year. When the university football squad entrained for Baton Rouge, La., to meet the Louisiana eleven, an Oregon tackle begged his coach for permission to stay home and study. The coach granted the wish.

At the Theatres

AT THE DICKINSON
"Man Against Woman"

Jack Holt plays his usual role as a "tough baby" in the play "Man Against Woman" at the Dickinson. This time Holt is a tough plain clothes cop who gets into difficulties over a cabaret singer. The singer loves a crooked clerk. Holt is green with envy and proves it by sending the crook up for a ten year stretch. A gang puts bootlovers on the spot but it all works out very nicely.—Eggs.

"Virtue"

Pat O'Brien is a wise-guy taxi driver who knows all about women, but Carole Lombard, who is too sweet-faced to play the tough woman she is supposed to portray, teaches him a few things he overlooked. After they are married, however, her former companions get her into a complicated mess of situations that seem to prove to the taxi-drivers theories.

Miss Lombard has learned some valuable Garbo tricks of voice and restrained acting that make her outstanding, and Pot O'Brien gives a fine performance.

There's a screwy Burns and Allen short that is as funny as usual. —E. G.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . Since the Christmas spirit is in the air (just that trite old expression again) and you're all anticipating another visit from Santa, we've decided to lay off everyone and everything. Since we did get to the Sigma Nu party on the stag invite, we figure the world isn't such a bad place to live in after all. There've been a jillion organization Christmas parties this week when the pledges have had the opportunity to get it back on the actives with some silly and significant little gift. The Sigma Nu and freshmen women's Pan-Hell parties went off with some sort of a bang as the Snooper took a whole column to tell you. The Sig Alph drag-out tonight should be just another free-for-all varsity with all the available men and women in Manhattan present.

. . . . But before we do give you the same old worn out greetings here are a few things—someone (with all indications it was the jokester Barr) gave out the anonymous report that Swede Lutz and Marybelle Henning were supposed to be wedded (some more triteness). If they are or aren't there is some Sigma Nu who is married—guess with us . . . . Tri-Delt received an over-size bottle peroxide shampoo for Christmas . . . . Ralph Graham is planning to introduce Meredith Manion to the home folks this vacation—he has his pin back, you know . . . . Gift night at the Varsity theatre brought a free spaghetti dinner at the Italian Gardens for Harry Miller, a pair of chiffon hose to Bob McNitt, a pair of what was described as "jump-ins", size 42, to another college male, a pound of coffee to Harold Howe—others received such commodities as boneless hams and graham flour . . . .

. . . . This on Professor Lindquist. After he had announced a quiz for the next day, Mr. Lindquist was confronted with the question whether the quiz would be essay or objective type. With all the dignity becoming a music prof., he answered, "Oh you not know that I never give an oral quizz? . . . Clay Reppert and Mary Whitelaw is a new combination. . . . Sid Robinson has a lovely new portrait of a lady in Colorado—just a hint for a Xmas gift. . . . and from over the fence, we say the same old thing—just a happy Christmas and Merry New Year—Hope Santa brings you everything you don't want . . . . P. S. . . . . And why did Egg Sorrells' face have the color of a Southern rose at the Theta Sig-Sigma Delta Chi party? . . . .

WEARY WILDCATS DROP CAGE TILT TO WICHITA TEAM

CORSAUTMEN'S TWO WINS OVER DAVIS AND ELKINS WEARS THEM DOWN.

HOLD LEAD FIRST HALF

Shockers Enter Second Half Able to Hit Basket at Needed Moments—Ends Difficult Pre-Season Schedule.

After winning two hard games in a row from the strong Davis and Elkins university team, Kansas State lost the third basketball tilt in the same number of days to the strong Wichita university Shocker quintet Saturday night, 27 to 29.

The K-Aggies lead the Shockers until 10 or 11 minutes of the second half was over when the Wichita team finally overhauled a big lead to nose out ahead 19 to 18. A moment later the game was tied at 20 all but again the Shockers seemed to be able to hit the basket at the needed moment and continued to lead the Corsautmen during the remainder of the game.

Wichita started the scoring with a field goal just after the game started but Kansas State made a quick comeback and gained a 7 to 6 lead before minutes had hardly advanced into the first half. At half time the K-Aggies lead 15 to 9.

During the entire game the K-Aggies seemed bewildered by the close guarding of the Shockers, while the defensive work of the Kansas State team was not up to par and many times the Shocker forwards were able to dribble in for set-ups.

The game with Wichita ended a hard five game schedule that was played in eight days and the game Saturday seemed to be a little too much for the Corsautmen. During the eight days the Kansas State squad traveled to St. Louis playing St. Louis university, Dec. 10. They then played Maryville Teachers college, Maryville, Mo., Dec. 12, returning to Manhattan to play a two-game series with Davis and Elkins on Thursday and Friday nights, Dec. 15 and 16.

This information is kept confidential, although a report on each particular house is sent to the advisor of that organization.

Members of the subcommittee on student organizations who prepared the survey are Harold Howe, associate professor of agricultural economics, chairman; Grace Derby, associate librarian; and R. I. Throckmorton, head of the agronomy department.

ESTABLISH SCHOOL PRIZE

Kansas University Receives $2,500 from Mrs. Henry Schott for Memorial Fund.

Lawrence, Kan., Jan. 5—Permanent establishment of the Henry Schott Memorial prize in advertising at the University of Kansas, was announced today by L. N. Flint, head of the department of journalism. The announcement followed the receipt of $2,500, from the estate of Mrs. Henry Schott, with instructions that the income from the fund is to be used to continue prizes first established in 1928 by Mrs. Schott as a memorial to her husband.

Henry Schott, a native of Atchison, Kan., attended the University of Kansas in 1890 to 1892, and from 1897 to 1911 was a member of the staff of the Kansas City Star, later going into advertising work in Kansas City, then Chicago with Montgomery-Ward and company, and still later as vice-president and manager of the Seaman Paper company of Chicago. He died in 1926. Shortly after having been offered a position as associate editor of The Nation's Business, of Washington, D. C.

Five years ago Mrs. Schott sent a check for $100 to the department of journalism, asking that it be given as a prize to the student in advertising who showed aptitude and promise in the field in which Mr. Scott was later interested.

Last summer, Mrs. Schott sent to Mr. Flint a bronze medallion of Mr. Schott. This medallion was made by Theodore Spicer-Simson, well-known English medalist, and exhibitor of medals in Paris, London, and for the Century Club, New York City.

Just a short time after sending this gift, Mrs. Schott died. Instead of a check for the Schott Prize this year came notice from the administrators of her estate that provision had been made to establish the fund. The money has been invested, and beginning again next year the Schott Prizes will be awarded, coming from this fund.

FAMOUS SINGING COMEDIAN TO BE PRESENTED HERE

MANHATTAN CONCERT MANAGEMENT WILL BRING SIR HARRY LAUDER.

TO HAVE UNUSUAL PROGRAM

Will Be Many of His Favorite Old Songs and Several New Characterizations.

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous and perennially-popular singing comedian, will be presented at the college auditorium, Thursday, January 12, under the auspices of the Manhattan Concert management. Accompanying Lauder to Manhattan will be his company of Scotch musicians and actors. His program will comprise not only many of his favorite old songs, but also a number of song characterizations entirely new to local audiences.

Lauder recently returned from a trip to South Africa, and will not again know the enjoyments of home life in Dunoon, Scotland, until the close of his present 22-weeks tour of the United States and Canada. The tour will extend on both sides of the International line from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

Sir Harry's wanderings have taken him to places as far apart as Quetta and Peshawar on the borders of Afghanistan and Hobart and Lounceston in Tasmania. He has also played in Bombay, Lahore, Cilcutta, Singapore, Hongkong, Shanghai, Manila, Melbourne, and other Australian cities and towns and in New Zealand. His American tours have covered practically every town of importance in Canada and the United States, and they have been uniformly successful.

A feature of Lauder's visits is the fact that each tour brings with it a new program of characteristic Lauder songs. This year his new offerings have been attracting especial attention. They include several of his biggest London hits and some of the songs created during his South African tour. A number of the old favorites have been retained, as a Lauder program would not be compiete without selections from such old and sure-fire hits as "I Love a Lassie," "Roaming in the Gloaming," "When I Was Twenty-One," "The Saftest o' th' Farmily," "She's Ma Daisy," and other inimitable impersonations.

Sir Harry's company this season promises much in the way of novel entertainment. but as usual, the greater part of the program will be devoted to the singer's own characterizations.

Collegian Reporter Doubts Whether All Know Library Walls

How many K. S. C. students know the library's fourth floor? What bust stands at the south wall? What great American sculptor directed its casting? What K. S. C. organizations have their framed charters there? Whose oil paintings are hung on its walls?

At the south wall stands a bronze bust of Abraham Lincoln. The inscription on the pedestal reads: "Class of 1922. Bust by Leonard Volk. Cast from original under direction of Lorado Taft."

Back of this are stones set in the wall in the form of an arch with the words, Bluemont college. This formed an arch over the second floor of the original college building. Below this the date, 1859, and under and to the side are two five point stars set in the wall in stone.

On the same wall east of the inscription is an oil painting "The Still Water," by Dr. Birger Sandzen. It was painted in 1926. and given to the college by the artist. West of the inscription is another oil painting by Dr. Sandzen, "Fall in the Mountains," (Rocky Mountain National Park, Colo.) It is dated 1927, and according to Miss Grace Derby, assistant librarian, was purchased by faculty, alumni, and friends of K. S. C. at the price of $1,000.

At the head of the stairways are portraits of Ex-Governor G. W. Glick of Kansas, and of the former presidents of the college. John A. Anderson, Joseph Denison, and George T. Fairchild.

John Scherzinger and Bill Horchem, Lincoln, Neb., spent Thursday in Manhattan.

BUILDINGS DRESS UP

The students aren't the only ones who came back wearing new clothes after the holidays. The buildings on the campus got into the spirit of the occasion too. The floor in the engine room of the power plant donned a new coat of paint, the floors in Calvin received their semi-annual varnish bath, and the worn spots on the floors of recreation center were touched up.

CLEAR WALNUT TREES

Horticulture Department to Store Wood to be Sold Later.

The horticulture department cleared 20 walnut trees from a one and one-half acre plot of ground on the horticulture farm during the Christmas holidays, to prepare the ground for a small fruit plantation which will be set out in the spring of 1934.

The walnut trees which were removed varied from 14 to 18 inches in diameter. Because of the depressed condition of the market for black walnut lumber, the lumber could not be sold for a reasonable price, so it will be stored until a better price can be obtained.

COMBINE RADIO WITH MOTION PICTURES NOW

Station KSAC Offers Illustrate Lectures With Films in Kansas Counties.

Illustrated lectures via the radio and motion pictures to counties all over the state of Kansas is the latest and perhaps unique innovation by the extension division of the college.

Kansas State is believed to be the first educational institution in the United States to give a lecture of this kind.

Film strips were sent to various counties throughout the state and a radio was installed in the movie picture "theatre." Station KSAC was tuned in and at a signal the picture machines, including one set up in the broadcasting studio were started. Then the professor standing before the microphone and watching the pictures, proceeded with his lecture.

PRESIDENT FARRELL'S BIENNIAL REPORT OBJECTS TO NON-RESIDENT RULE AND TO TESTING OF LIQUOR

REPORT INCLUDES FIGURES REGARDING TREND OF ENROLLMENT TOWARD UPPER CLASS AND GRADUATE DIVISIONS—LOWER CLASSES DECREASING IN NUMBER.

WOULD ADOPT NEW RESIDENCE DEFINITION FOR COLLEGE

Involves One Year's Residence Prior to Student's Enrollment—Stipulates That Non-Resident Fee Must Be Paid For Four-Year Period If Paid When Student First Enters School

A protest against the task of analyzing intoxicating beverages and otherwise undertaking law-enforcement works, and a suggestion for new interpretation of the legislature of resident and a non-resident students were contained in the 34th biennial report of Kansas State college sent by Pres. F. D. Farrell to the state board of regents December 23. The report also called attention to the change in the student body of the college in the past five years and described the work of the various divisions of the college.

Regarding the testing of liquors by the college as required by an enactment of the legislature of 1931, the college suggested that all state schools of Kansas be relieved of the task. The law requires all state departments and institutions to give law enforcement officers "free of charge or reward—service and assistance relative to microanalysis, handwriting, toxicology, chemistry, photography, medicine, ballistics and all other sciences and matter relating to or that would aid in controlling crime and the detection, identification, and prosecution of criminals."

Objects to Testing Liquor

The report given by the college state that under the law it has been asked to make chemical tests of confiscated intoxicating beverages without the state making provision to pay for the labor involved or materials used.

"This kind of service does not properly belong in an institution devoted to education and research," the report stated. "Rather it belongs to some institution maintained by the state for the performance of duties which include police work."

A new interpretation of resident and non-resident students was asked by President Farrell because of lack of definiteness in the present regulation. In the past many students from other states have enrolled as resident students, thereby avoiding payment of the extra non-resident charge. The report suggests that the Wisconsin definition be adopted. Under this definition a resident student is one whose parents have lived in Kansas a full year before the time he entered the college. The definition covers students who are 21 years old, specifying that he must have lived in Kansas for a full year before entering college to claim residence protection. The definition also stipulates that a student, having paid the out-of-state fee once, must continue to do so during a four-year period of attendance in college.

Reports on Enrollment.

Miss Jessie McDowell Machir, registrar, also reported that resident instruction was provided the last biennium for students from 11 foreign countries, three-fourths of the states of the union and all the 105 counties of Kansas.

Enrollment for the year 1931-32 was compared with that of 1926-27, and according to the report there was adecrease of 378 or 23 per cent in the freshman class, a reduction of 102 or 12 per cent in the sopho-

A CASE OF MISTAKEN VIEWS

The biennial report of Kansas State college issued recently by President F. D. Farrell included an objectory clause regarding chemists of the institution testing confiscated liquor at the request of law enforcement officers. When the report was made public scores of Kansas editors pointed accusing editorial fingers at Kansas State officials for not desiring to cooperate in enforcing the laws of the state.

The thought in President Farrell's mind is obvious to those familiar with the situation here, but apparently several failed to see the figurative light.

Chemists are employed at the college to instruct students in the rudiments of chemistry. Whenever one of them performs a liquor test for prohibition officers he is frequently required to spend three or four days attending the trial of the miscreant whose beverage he has tested. Chemists are paid comparatively well at Kansas State to teach chemistry. They are paid three dollars a day as witnesses to loiter about outlying courthouses waiting to give a meager amount of testimony.

The comment in the report is not an indication that officials at Kansas State do not wish to aid in law enforcement. It is a statement of fact—that chemists of the college are not teaching classes when they are away testifying as to the power and purity of somebody's intoxicating liquor.

President Farrell has offered a logical remedy to the situation. He has suggested that a board or a bureau be created by the state for the express purpose of carrying on tests upon confiscated liquor. Obviously, this would allow instructors of the various state institutions to perform the prescribed duties from which they are paid.

LADY PUFFERS AND WHY THEY PUFF

Never before have we seen so many ladies puffing on cigarettes. The tobacco habit seems firmly embedded as a feminine habit in these parts, along with most other parts of this country. Frankly, we view the change with no cheers, but there is no denying that the tobacco companies are profiting more from the fairer sex than ever before.

We hardly think lassies smoke because they enjoy it. A few might, but the girls who can handle the cubebs with finesse are by far in the minority. Most of them do it because they think it looks pretty keen. We can already hear the shrieks of protest with which the skirt wearers will greet this accusation. But we have heard these before and they will not change our opinion.

We are not among those who deny the girls the privilege and right of smoking. Most certainly that is as much their prerogative as it is for the males. The funny part of it, though, is that most girls exercise that right just to show their equality and independence more than because they feel a desire for the nasty weed.

It is an inherent weakness of the frail sex to copy their brethren. The men voted, the women wanted to do the same. The men smoked cigarettes, and so the girls had the same desire. There are few fields left for the male species. He has taken recourse to the pipe, and so far his female imitators have been limited to the backwoods and hills, but the movement may spread to civilization any time. The men have tried cigars and not many of the femmes have followed suit, as yet, but even here the male monopoly is not secure. There is but one field left to the men alone, and that is the somewhat unattractive sport of chewing tobacco, but we are almost afraid to say that the women will leave this field to the opposite sex indefinitely.

And we have but little doubt that the next generation will be born with nicotine stained fingers.—The Daily O'Collegian.

The Snooper

Greetings! Whistles blew, bells jangled, and a few thousand students trudged listlessly up the hill to classes yesterday for the first time since 1932. Sad eyed professors dully called the roll for the zillionth time and in a half-hearted monotone started a discussion of something which had something to do with something. Hazy brained listeners recalled New Year's Eve incidents: the squawking of toy horns, people milling around, maybe a headache, maybe a bromo, maybe a damaged derby. Are you listenin', Harry Hasler?

A morning paper brought glad tidings to the house of Beta recently. Ned Kimball, it said, went to Kansas City to the Vanities. Merely that, nothing more. But the notation struck glee into the hearts of every true-born Beta. It meant that the one-man reform (nobody has figured out who the one man is yet), which Kimball has tried to impose upon the Betas has snapped. Ned (or Neddie; he likes it), moved from his Manhattan residence recently to an unfurnished room (don't ask which one) in the Beta house from where he started martyring for the cause of Beta. The brethren gave their sullen consent but left Ned (or Neddie; he still likes it), up in the unfurnished room to martyr all by himself while the rest went out to commit devilry. Exposed by the press Kimball has nothing to say, but giggles violently at the merest mention of the recent sportive adventure.

The military ball, a week in the offing, will make history at Kansas State in that it will be broadcast. If the floor is slick enough the crowd will be greatly entertained at the presentation of the honorary officers as several of the participants and, we reverently hope, some of the honoraries will cut awkward half-moons and make three-point landings on the slippery surface. Unintentionally of course, but highly amusing to the gallery.

At the ball, one or more girls are given titles because somebody has admired their big brown eyes. The honoraries, as they are called, are usually Polish, lisp, can milk a cow, and like cheese and goats.

On Other Hills

An "Old Clothes" drive, sondunted by students at the University of Indiana made it a merry Christmas for poverty-strirken homes in Bloomington this year. Shiny-seated trousers, cast-away suits, pleated lumberjacks and other garments which no longer share a place in the collegiate "style" parade and which the university students refuse to don this winter, were donated by Greek letter houses and dormitories.

Did you ever hear of the "Hobnob"? This new name has been chosen unanimously as the title of the all-school dances at the University of North Dakota. As the name suggests, the affairs are exceedingly informal, with floor shows and entertainment by student talent.

Listed among the honors bestowed upon that famous personage and political genius President-elect Roosevelt is an honorary membership in Scabbard and Blade at the University of Syracuse.

Students at the University of Chicago law school are now "lawyers" before they get their degree. For the first time in its history the law school has established a moot court and clinic for students. The moot court will acquaint students with the regular procedure of the law courts by having them conduct cases as if they were practicing attorneys, with prominent municipal judges presiding.

Contrary to pessimistic rumors and economic conditions, fraternity pledge lists at Michigan State college continued to swell until they have equalled the mark of the 1931 fall term with a total of 232 men pledged to date.

You may call them sissies, but the students at the University of Oklahoma simply don't swear. That is, there are twice as many women students who swear not at all, as there are women who swear regularly. But the majority of them admit that they do swear occasionally. Of the 174 questionnaires checked, 123 swear occosionally; 17, regularly; and 24 women say they "never swear." Twenty-five percent of the men students swear with regularity, and about seven per cent admit that they never swear. Are they sissies or not?

A "leap year day" was held on the campus of the University of Indiana last month. For 16 hours university co-eds scheduled dates and tossed their small change about in wild abandon as well as to carry books for the "wearers of the cords". They employed Emily Post's latest edicts on the art of entertaining, and in the evening rolled up to the fraternity house to call for her "date" and escort him to the ball.

Students at Harvard are probably more concerned over the repeal of the eighteenth amendment than some of the congressmen themselves. You see, for the first time in 75 years, the students may have liquor served with their meals if the amendment is modified. The superintendent of the college dining halls says he sees no reason why beer and light wines should not be served if the present liquor laws are changed. And if they are, watch the enrollment at Harvard increase.

School books, pens and pencils were exchanged for a bright shining gold star recently when a former University of Oklahoma co-ed quit school and took the job as sheriff. She has a ready six-shooter too, and a ten-gallon hat.

They're apparently superstitious at the University of Minnesota. Janitors at the school recently drew lots to determine who would carry several skeletons across the campus to a new laboratory.

The old-fashioned party game of "post office" is being revived by the democrats. But the republicans need not bother to pucker up for any kisses.—Moundridge Journal.

GRAD VISITS VET DIVISION

Dr. D. A. Yandell, who was graduated with the class of '23 in veterinary medicine, visited Kansas State this week. Doctor Yandell is with the Newark Dog and Cat hospital at Newark, N. J.

Doctor Yandell told members of the Veterinary Medicine division the methods used in animal care in the east. He says there has been no decrease in business there.

APPROVE ILLUSTRATIONS

Sketches for Royal Purple Drawn By Artist in Kansas City.

Illustrations for the first order of engravings for the 1933 Royal Purple were approved by the editor and sent to the engravers during the holidays.

These sketches, which included all sub-division pages of the yearbook, were drawn for the Royal Purple by an artist in Kansas City. Pictures for the football section will be sent to the engravers during the next week.

Specifications for printing the yearbook are being drawn up by Prof. E. T. Keith, faculty advisor, and the editor and business manager of the yearbook. As soon as they are completed a copy of these specifications will be sent to interested printing companies, together with a request for bids on printing the yearbook.

One copy of the 1933 Royal Purple will be given to the individual student and one to the organization which has contributed the largest number of snapshots used in the feature section of the year book, when it is published in the spring, according to Steve Vesecky business manager.

No picture will be counted to the credit of both an individual and an organization. These pictures may be of anything interesting to a number of students.

Contributors may put the snap shots in an envelope bearing their names, and mail them to the Royal Purple office or bring them to the office, according to Franklin Thackrey, editor.

SORORITY INTO NEW HOME

Beta Phi Alpha Moves to 1446 Laramie During Vacation Period.

Members of the Beta Phi Alpha sorority have moved to 1446 Laramie street on the corner of 16th and Laramie. Before Christmas they were located at 1031 Moro.

The new house, which has just been completed, is built of gray shingle and red brick. It has a chapter room in the basement; two living rooms, a dining room, a breakfast room, a kitchen, and a bath on the first floor; six dressing rooms and two baths on the second floor; and two dormitories on the third flor.

The woodwork is an ivory shade and the walls have been papered with light patterns to harmonize. The house is vapor heated with thermostatic control.

Mrs. Edith Dodd is the housemother.

At The Theatres

AT THE VARSITY
"Silver Dollar"

Edw. G. Robinson is more masterful than ever in this story woven around the history of Colorado. He, as a believer in the silver-laden hills and the men that dug for riches, rises from a prospector from Kansas, to the lofty position of Senator Martin from Colorado. Then when the bottom drops out of silver, and the country is placed on a gold standard, he, in the city which but for him would have had no post office site, nor any opera house, is forced to ask for a loan from another senator in order to pay two month's back rent!

His characterization of a mining camp's store keeper, and that of an ambitious bridegroom whose wedding the president of the United States attends, is equally superb.

Aline McMahon is convincing as the wife who asks only for a comfortable living, a small amount of affection, and a chance to return to her native Kansas.

Bebe Daniels, the second wife, is beautiful as a bride. But somehow, her lines don't ring so true.

It's two hours well spent. . . E. D.

AT THE DICKINSON
"The Mummy"

The management's right. This is not one of Karloff's "horror" pictures. Details take care of that. Explanation after explanation slows down the action in what might have been another "Frankenstein."

Archeologists excavating for the British museum in the Egyptian desert, discover the tomb of a mummy, buried alive. The mummy (Karloff) comes to life. His discoverer goes mad. Ten years later another expedition uncovers the tomb of an Egyptian princess, Karloff's love 3700 years ago.

Karloff, made up in the most ingenious fashion, weaves a strange power over a young part-Egyptian girl, who, it seems, is an ancestor of the buried Egyptian princess. But, like the picture, it takes too many words to tell the story. You'll have to see it if you want to watch Karloff again as an imaginative creature who puts the fear of the heavens above in most persons.

Zita Johann is well cast. She is not particularly beautiful, but somehow she looks rather as she should. Her eyes are lovely . . . E. D

AT THE WAREHAM

If you like them fast, if you like thrills of the 60-mile-a-minute variety, you'll enjoy "Speed Demon" playing at the Wareham theatre the last time today.

William Collier, jr., carries the lead as the "champeen" speed boat driver of the world, and races right into the heart of Joan Marsh, pretty blonde daughter of the boat builder. There's a villain, too, with a mustache and a fleet of rum runner vessels.

Though the presentation has some weak spots, Manhattan boating fans will thrill to the speed of this dashing young sportsmon in his race for the championship—and the girl.—V. B.

FROM A GEOLOGY FIELD TRIP

This is a rock—. There are lots of rocks—there is Rockhurst, Plymouth rock, rock of ages, the rock that killed father, the old rockin' chair that's got me, the rock of Gibraltrar, and rock-a-bye.

This is a Pan-Hellenic specimen of the old Grecian period. It's a chip off the old block—(maybe Aristitle's or Socrates'—who knows) It was the foundation for the first fraternity—the Athenian chapter of Rock a By Beta. This is the speciman that caused the ancient Greeks to rock with mirth—some are still rocking—hence the expression "rock bottom".

Examining this specimen more closely we notice its Grecian line of architecture—the sharp curve on the left side is certainly Doric, and the statliness of this right angle shows complete Ionic influence. In fact, when you get down to bed rock, there is nothing so utterly influencing as a rock. Even some of the most intellectual and cultural people of today wish at times they were nothing but—

"A little rock
A sittin' on a hill.
A doin' nothin' all day long,
But just a sittin' still."

But pelase don't give this dissertation much serious thought; it's merely a Grecian hangover from the time Horatious held the bridge at Rocky Ford.

Mrs. George B. Telford has returned from a three weeks' visit her daughter, Miss Juanita Telford in Arizona. She also visited places of interest in New Mexico and California.

COME OVER TO OUR GREENER PASTURES

SOMETIMES the grass is greener in the other pasture. Perhaps the dissatisfaction often aroused in you when you compare your advertising-printing with others' has a sound basis. Perhaps it is not always that the grass just seems greener in distant pastures; perhaps it is. Perhaps you have been crippling your chances with inferior printing.

Step over into our "green pasture" of effective printing. You need that extra measure of attention value, of interest urge, and inspiration of belief that our kind of copy, typography, and press reproduction gives. Now, more than ever, you need your money's worth.

COLLEGE DOES NOTED THINGS

It is the things that are "plain as the nose on your face" that are most often overlooked. People read and marvel at the work done in universities a thousand miles away, but they don't know what is going on under their very eyes.

There hasn't been very much said about the metallurgy shop and most people have apretty hazy idea as to what it really is, but it is carrying on definite scientific research, and has made many discoveries of great benefit to mechanical science.

A short time ago an airplane manufacturing company sent in a link, used to fasten the strut wires to the wings of airplanes. The company had continual trouble with thsee links breaking. They had their metal tested several times and always got high grade results.

The college metallurgy shop analyzed the link and finally determined that the breaks were caused by minute indentations along the edges of the links, caused by finishing the edges with a rough grinder. The shop advised the company to give the edges a smooth finish, and they had no more trouble with broken links

Oxford Makes Forgotten Men of Rhodes Scholars

Oxford is not what Rhodes scholars expect it to be, according to an article written for the Omaha World Herald by a member of its staff that was once one of them.

"Rhodes scholars feel like forgotten men in England's famous university. If they date coeds they are branded 'snakes,' and if they stay out after 9 o'clock they must beware of the human 'bulldogs,'" the former Oxford student declared.

Each year the United States sends thirty-two Rhodes scholars to England. Under the present district plan four are chosen in each of eight geographical districts after the district candidates have been selected by state committees.

The article states that the first lesson a Rhodes scholar learns when he reaches Oxford is that he is not a scholar. His college has its own scholarships, awarded to young Englishmen, and these students alone have the privileges and distinctions of scholars.

They wear long flowing gowns and dine at a special table in the dining hall. They get first choice of rooms and are expected to do the college credit in examinations.

However, the Rhodes scholar, like the majority of Englishmen who go to Oxford without a record of special brilliance in preparatory schools, is a commoner. He wears a short black gown with no sleeves in it, and in matters of seniority takes second place.

The article declares that the American is met at the college gate by a proctor, shown to his room and then forgotten. He gets his information concerning starting in the school from the bulletin boards. From these he learns that he is to call on a tutor, which he does. The tutor gives him a list of books to read, and a subject for an essay. Then he is again forgotten until the meeting with the tutor the following week.

All first and second year men live in a college, the gates of which close at 9 every night. It is necessary to pay a fine of from six to twenty-five cents to get in after this, and at 12 o'clock the last hope of getting in is gone.

The college serves only beer at dinner, but there is no restriction on liquor in a student's rooms. "The only rule is that you may not buy beer outside the college. This is because the college sells its own brew and wants a monopoly," the World-Herald staff member stated.

Women students do exist at Oxford, but they are mostly outcasts. If an undergraduate finds reason to hang around the women's colleges, he earns the title of 'snake.' Most men shun them during the winter terms, but in the summer they weaken and become 'snakes.'

To enforce the rules of the university there are two proctors, faculty members serving in rotation, who stalk about the street at night in cap and gown and full evening dress. They are accompanied by three or four hired townies, broad shouldered toughs who wear derby hats and are called "bulldogs." "When the proctor sights an offender, a bulldog runs him down; the proctor doffs his hat, bows, takes his name and college and requests that the student call at his office the next morning to be fined," the article states.

The former Rhodes scholar concludes his article with the statement that "it is idle to debate whether an Oxford education is better than an American one. They are different. Probably the great point of distinction—the feature which some American scholars are trying to copy—is that Oxford never browbeats a student. If he does not want to learn, Oxford does not make him."—Daily Nebraskan.

THE CAMPUS PEST

Sure, the whistle blew five minutes ago. Why is Egbert still hinging around the instructor's desk? Because he appreciated the value of individual attention. You certainly didn't expect him to ask questions during the class period did you? Of course not. If he had, the rest of the tsudents might have profited by their being answered and that would have been unfortunate, because Egbert wants to get the highest grade in the class.

And do the professors like it? Say, they're crazy about it. Such interest being displayed on the part of a student is a high compliment to the course and to the professor. It makes no difference if the questions Egbert is asking are simple ones with obvious answers; that point is the dear boy has so much faith in his intsructor he is afraid to entertain thoughts of his own until he had had his consultation.

The students love Egbert too. That makes it unanimous. Even better than the professor they realize how sincere he is. The boy is just trying so hard to wring an education from a reluctant institution, it only looks as though he were apple polishing.—University Daily Kansan.

OPEN BIG SIX CAGE SCHEDULE SATURDAY NIGHT

CORSAUTMEN MEET FAST-BREAKING OKLAHOMA QUINTET HERE.

GAME ONE OF PREDICTION

Sooners Rated With Kansas and Missouri As Strong Competition—Four Tilts in Eleven Days.

The Kansas State courtmen will open their conference schedule Saturday night when they meet the Oklahoma university basketball quintet at the Nichols gymnasium at 7:30 o'clock.

The Corsautmen have been practicing during the latter part of the Christmas vacation and are in fine trim for the encounter. Ralph Graham, forward, seemed to have hit his stride Wednesday night in practice and was dropping in shots in old form. Graham has not been up to par all season although in one of the games with Davis and Elkins he dropped in three baskets in a row to cinch the contest for the K-Aggies.

Won Four Pre-Season Tilts.

Kansas State won four games in their pre-season battles, winning from Kansas university twice. The Corsautmen also defeated the strong Davis and Elkins team both games in a two-game series to finish up their pre-season schedule.

The game Saturday with Oklahoma will probably be one of prediction as Oklahoma is rated with Kansas university and Missouri as the strongest competition in the Big Six conference this season.

"The first four games of the conference season are our hardest battles," Coach Corsaut said yesterday," and if we pass these milestones there should be lots more than any 50 per cent season this year for Kansas State." The four games, two with Oklahoma university, one with Kansas university and another with Nebraska, will be played in eleven days being so arranged that it will make an extremely difficult pace for the players.

Look to Breen on Defense.

Probably some outstanding defensive work Saturday night will be centered around Emmett Breen, Kansas State forward, and Andy Beck, Oklahoma's court star. The fans who saw Breen guard Bill Johnson, Kansas university center, in the K. U.-K-Aggie game at Manhattan December 7 will realize what is in store for them again against Oklahoma.

Coach Corsaut has been drilling his men hard with scrimmage and offensive work taking up almost the entire practice periods. Henry Dalton, Ottawa, is hitting more consistently and seems to have developed an accurate eye since the Christmas season practices have been going on. Dougal Russell, McDonald, Pa., sophomore, has also developed into a threat in the defensive side of the game.

The possible starting line-up: Raph Graham, Emmett Breen, forwards; Henry Dalton, center; Andy Skradski, F. W. Boyd, guards.

GET IN CONDITION FOR FIRST INDOOR MEET

Track Men Prepare to Go to Columbia to Meet Missouri University January 18.

Kansas State track men have again taken to the cinders in preparation for the first indoor meet with Missouri January 18, at Columbia. The conference indoor meet will be March 11.

Emmett Breen, captain and all-around star, will be the only man who will not be able to enter the sport during the indoor season. Breen is now engaged with basketball.

Every possible track man has been called to the field in preparation for the meet with Missouri university. It seems that Coach Haylett has ample material in only one event, the two-mile race. In one event, the 440-yard dash, Francis Castello, senior letterman, is the only man returning.

"At present there are 14 lettermen in school," Coach Haylett recounted yesterday, "but there is a possibility that some of them will not be here when the second semester rolls around.

The lettermen are Captain Emmett Breen, El Dorado, hurdles, broad jump; Jack Going, Topeka, sprints; Francis Castello, McCune, 440 yard dash; Russel Smith, Manhattan, 880 yards; Don Landon, Topeka, mile; Dean McNeal, Boyle, mile; Marion Pearce, Miltonvale, 2 mile; Lawrence Daniels, Haigler, Neb., 2 mile; Marion Nixon, Manhattan, 2 mile; L. R. Schmutz, Chanute, hurdles; J. E. Veach, Manhattan, javelin; W. E. Laird, Burr Oak, javelin; E. R. Kennedy, Chase, broad jump; and M. G. Bliss, Minneapolis, broad jump.

Squad men from last season who will strengthen the team are Pias, Hostettler, Harper, 880 yards; G. R. Bell, New Cambria, weights; Melvin Wertzberger, shot.

PRESIDENT FARRELL'S BIENNIAL REPORT

more class, an increase of 124 or 24 per cent in the junior class, an increase of 161 or 39 per cent in the senior class and an increase of 393 or 219 per cent in the graduate division.

The report also stated that there is an urgent need for improved hospital facilities and for a larger staff for the department of student health. For the year ending June 20, 1932, a total of 26,678 students called at the health department offices and there were 208 hospital cases.

Cites Experimental Work.

Work of the agricultural experiment station, the engineering experiment station and the home economics work was cited by the president in his report. Some of the developments in the field of agriculture were new wheat varieties, insect control methods, improved poultry production methods, the publishing of bulletins and circulars, and the control of cattle diseases.

President Farrell also referred to the work of the extension division both out of the state and at the college through home study and the radio station.

Forty miscellaneous services such as lectures, inspection of seed, taking care of sick animals, furnishing lectures and providing serums were listed in the report.

Women's Sports

Pi Beta Phi, with a score of 27, won the intramural dancing meet in the final competition which was held just before vacation. Alpha Delta Pi was second, Chi Omega third, and Kappa Delta fourth.

Posture contests are to be the next sport in women's intramurals. The contests will be held before final examinations and teams are requested to sign up on the bulletin board in the women's gym immediately.

CARS GIVEN ROAD TEST

In addition to the wind tunnel tests on 1932 automobiles to obtain the various wind resistances of the cars, road tests are being made by the department of applied mechanics and civil engineering. These tests involve coasting, de-clutched, down uniform grades with different degrees of slope. These results are intended as an independent check on those results received in the wind tunnel tests.

Dr. E. R. Frank, assistant professor of Surgery and Medicine, will appear on the technical program of the Oklahoma Veterinary Medical association at Oklahoma City, January 9 and 10.

CONFERENCE SEASON TO BE OPENED FRIDAY

Kansas University and Nebraska Will Play 62nd Game Between the Schools.

Lawrence, Kans., Jan. 5.—When the University of Kansas and the University of Nebraska basketball teams open the Big Six conference season here Friday night January 6, they will be playing the 62nd game plaed between teams of the two universities. In this cage competition the Jayhawkers have won thirty-seven games and scored 1781 points, while the Cornhuskers have won twenty-four games and rolled up 1470 points.

Winning two non-conference games from Ottawa university and three from Stanford university, but losing two non-conference games to the Kansas State college five, gave Kansas a good start for the coming conference season but none too impressive a record upon which to base hopes for retention of the Big Six conference title which the Jayhawkers have held the past two seasons.

Nebraska, on the other hand, under a new coach, Harold Browne, is more or less of unknown strength hereabouts, although a rather unimpressive showing in non-conference games to date would seem to give Kansas a slight edge for the coming battle.

Paul Harrington, who was kept from the final tilt with Stanford by an ankle injury, will probably be in shape to play against Nebraska, although he undoubtedly will not be used more than necessary. Bill Johnson, Kansas' scoring threat, will start at the center position, with the other forward berth in doubt. Schaake will occupy a guard post and either Ernest Vanek or Gordon Gray the other. The play of both of these men showed improvement in the Stanford series, and either may get the call. Dick Wells, a sophomore, may get the call to start at forward to team with Harrington.

Strong reserve forwards include Bob Curd, Lawrence; Raymond Urie, Ellis; Ernest Casini, Jeannette, Pa., is another outstanding guard.

TEST WOOD RADIO TOWER

The wood radio tower which was tested out recently by Professors C. H. Scholer and E. R. Dawley, of the applied mechanics department successfully withstood the static test of a load of 100 per cent in access of the maximum probable wind load it is to carry. Advance work is being carried on by L. C. Pasley of the electrical engineering department.

Ned Kimball, Manhattan, and Neal Hardy, K. U., drove to Kansas City December 26 and attended Earl Carroll's Vanities at the Shubert theatre.

Edward J. Hartley, Phoenix, Ariz., is spending several weeks in Manhattan on business. Hartley is a former student of Kansas State.

Among the Ags

1932 is dead. (That's hot news all right.) It was a year of misery and bewilderment, of bitterness and defeat. None of us were sorry to see it go. The revelers at the Wareham ball room's bonedry frolic Saturday night were celebrating an ending more than a beginning. The birth of '33 is probably no cause for rejoicing, but the death of such an altogether lousy year as '32 is something to cheer about. At the Wareham Saturday, the crowd celebrated the death while the orchestra remembered the birth; the orchestra was composed of sad young men. . .

Looking over the last year in retrospect is not exactly a pleasurable pastime, but among the ags the year did have some points of interest. There was, first, the famous annual Little American Royal, held in connection with Farm and Home week. An unprecedented number of girls entered the fitting and showing contest (of farm animal, you understand) with a consequent decrease in the amount of publicity accorded each individual girl. And the day after the show, Bill Myers, '32, was announced by Dean Call as the most outstanding ag student in the division that year.

In the early spring, the junior livestock judging team, competing in the intercollegiate judging contest at Denver, made a grand sweep of both team and individual awards to the glory of Coach F. W. Bell as well as the boys on the team. And then came the ag fair, and the less said about that the better. "Duke" Regnier, the fair manager, did a splendid piece of work individually but neither the division as a whole nor the college were behind him. (It is to be hoped that the division profits by last year's example and abolishes this expensive and useless activity.) This fall, the division opened the new school year with the annual ag barnwarmin', which was, in reality one of the best free-for-all fights this college has ever seen; Luella Graham, the Chi Omega candy sweetheart was crowned with paddles and cornstalks.

Later in the fall came the judging season, which was complicated this year by Marvin Vautraver's contraction of "scarlet fever" with the consequent quarantine of the Farm House fraternity during the week preceding the Chicago International Livestock exposition. You see, if you limit your field of observation to the proper group of individuals, 1932 wasn't such a bad year after all.

Plans are now being made for the annual Little American Royal which will be held the early part of next semester in connection with Farm and Home week. We wonder which girl publicity-seekers will enter the fitting and showing contest this year. Those sororities desiring state-wide publicity might try entering some of their pledges in the contest.

Milo Oberheiman, Randolph, spent several days in Clay Center last week visiting Max Hammel.

WILDCAT CAGERS TO INVADE K. U. COURT TONIGHT

KANSAS STATE WILL ATTEMPT TO WIN THIRD CONTEST WITH UNIVERSITY.

ASSIGN BREEN TO JOHNSON

Corsaut Is Confident After Week of Ironing Out Difficulties Contracted Over Christmas—Quigley to Officiate.

After taking a severe lesson from the hard-driving fast-breaking Oklahoma university basketball team last Saturday night the Kansas State cagers will invade the Kansas university court at Lawrence for the third game this season with the Jayhawkers tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Kansas State won the two pre-season contests from the university by scores of 15 to 11 and 31 to 27. Saturday night Kansas State plays Nebraska university at Lincoln. Kansas university beat Nebraska university 32 to 29 in the fastest game they have played so far this season.

A great deal is in store for the Jayhawker cagers as Coach Charles Corsaut is ironing out many of the difficulties contracted by his team during the Christmas vacation. The defensive players were somewhat stale on their signals and for this reason the Kansas State guards were caught flat-footed in the recent game with Oklahoma university.

"I really believe the boys will be ready to go Tuesday night," remarked Coach Corsaut. "The last game was just one of those nights."

Emmett Breen, Kansas State guard, will probably be assigned again to Bill Johnson, K. U. center, and star scoring threat on the team. Breen in previous games has showed his ability as one of the greatest defensive players in recent K-Aggie history. In the other two games with Kansas university Breen practically held Johnson to a scoring standstill.

Bus Boyd will be assigned to Harrington while the rest of the team will play their usual games, changing the defense to suit the play.

The probable starting lineup will be Captain Skradski, Ralph Graham, forwards; Henry Dalton, center; Bus. Boyd, Emmett Breen, guards.

VERTICAL ANTENNA FOR TELEVISION IS ERECTED

Structure Designed by L. C. Palsey and H. H. Higgenbottom Hoisted Saturday Afternoon—Make Tests Soon.

A new antenna has been erected back of the engineering building for the betterment of television. This verticle antenna, 140 feet high takes the place of the old horizontal one which didn't give signal strength to nearby stations although signals have been transmitted as far as Almira, N. Y.

This new structure was designed by L. C. Pasley, instructor in electrical engineering, and H. H. Higgenbottom, a graduate assistant in charge of the television broadcasting station, and was hoisted Saturday afternoon with the assistance of the United Power and Light company, faculty, and students.

The mast is a wooden structure, alluminum painted to give the appearance of metal.It is supported by insulators and at the middle by eight steel insulated cables. The verticle antenna gives signal strength which is more uniformly distributed as the distance from the signal varies. Better distribution is also obtained when signals are sent out. It gives one quarter of a wave length which is necessary for signal transmition at 2,100 kilocycles.

Tests of this new antenna will be made in the next few days.

The project was considered of enough importance to have motion pictures taken of it and sent to the Pathe News.

ROYAL PURPLE READY FOR GROUP PICTURES

Deadline for Organization Photos Set at January 20, According to Thackrey.

Photographing of groups for the 1933 Royal Purple will begin at once according to Franklin Thackrey, editor.

Organizations which plan to have group pictures in the yearbook may make arrangements first with the Royal Purple and then with A. O. Browne, photographer. Each organization may decide whether it is to have group or individual pictures.

"These pictures will be more attractive if the girls wear dark dresses and the boys dark coats instead of sweaters, except in organigations which have uniform dress or costume," according to the editor.

Students planning to have their pictures in the class sections of the yearbook should pay their assessments by Friday, January 20, the deadline for these pictures. Students who are wholly unable to have their pictures taken before that time should make special arrangements with staff members before that time, according to the editor.

HOLD Y. M.-Y. W. MEET IN EMPORIA

Model League of Nations Assembly to Acquaint Students With Economic Situation.

The place of economics in contemporary life will be the basis of the Y. M.-Y. W. collegiate conference to be held in Emporia, in March. Groups from the College of Emporia, Emporia State Teachers' college, Kansas university, Washburn college and Kansas State college which met in Topeka Saturday, January 7, chose a plan whereby contemporary theories for the way out of the depression would be discussed by prominent leaders of the country to be invited to speak before the conference.

Special studies and forums will be held here during February as well as a model assembly of the League of Nations, to acquaint students with the economic situation. This will be done in order that those who will attend the Emporia conference will be able to gain more information from it. The College of Emporia and the Emporia State Teachers college are to be the hosts for this meeting.

Fred C. Latimer, Manhattan, and C. L. Stutz, Manhattan, withdrew from school last week.

FIRST PRESS RUN BEING SET FOR KANSAS MAGAZINE

PERIODICAL WILL GO ON SALE KANSAS DAY, ACCORDING TO R. I. THACKREY.

REPRODUCE WORK OF ARTISTS

Paintings by Kansas Painters In Adition to Articles by Well-Known Writers Will Be Featured.

With more than half the copy in for the revival of the Kansas Magazine, scheduled for Kansas Day type for the first press run is being set, according to R. I. Thackrey, assistant professor of industrial journalism, who is editor of the magazine.

Articles both serious and humorous, verse, stories, and reproductions of the work of Kansas artists will make up the magazine. Many of the writers furnishing material to the Kansas Magazine are regular contributors to periodicals of the highest literary standards, including Harper's, Scribner's, the Atlantic Monthly, the American Mercury, etc.

One of the best features will be a long poem "The Poet in the Market Place," by Marco Morrow, business manager of the Capper publications. "Had Mr. Morrow not elected to enter the business side of publishing, where he has made an outstanding success, he would have found that same success as a writer," Thackrey commented. "We feel very fortunate in being able to publish his poem."

Miss Marion Eliet of Concordia perhaps the state's best known newspaper woman because of her daily "Mugwump" columns, is to be represented in the magazine by a short story," Roses in His Hands."

Among the artists whose works will be reproduced in the magazine are John Steuart Curry, whom New York critics refer to as "The Homer of Kansas" for his oils, water-colors, and prints of mid-western subjects; Arthur W. and Norma B. Hall of Howard; Merschel Logan Salina; S. A. Seward, Wichita; Dr. Birger Sandzen, Lindsborg; Prof. John Helm, K. S. C. In addition to page reproductions of the work of these artists the magazine will contain several small reproductions of Kansas work, obtained through the courtesy of the Prairie Print Makers organization.

APPLY FOR LOANS

More Student Applications for Funds Than In Other Years.

More students have applied for loans from the Waters Loan Fund this year than in previous years according to Dr. J. O. Hamilton chairman of the Waters Loan Fund committee.

"The money on hand is over applied for, and unless more money comes in soon, many applicants cannot be take care of," said Doctor Hamilton.

The depression has not affected the number of persons applying for loans from the Campus Chest. "It is working right along," says Doctor Hamilton.

Eugene Ross spent the week end in Wamego.

FIRST FORUM TOMORROW

Doctor Williams to Speak on the Topic, "A New Deal for the Freshmen."

The first student-faculty forum for this year will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in recreation center. Dr. C. V. Williams, of the department of education, will lead the assemblage on the topic of "A New Deal for the Freshmen." Under Dr. Williams' plan, freshmen would be called to school a week before the fall semester classes start to receive a working knowledge of the intitution, acquaint them with the conditions of the college campus and help them to orientate themselves.

"Entering freshmen deserve knowing the aims and purposes of the work of different divisions before registration," Professor Williams said. "A great saving and morality of freshmen would result if a freshmen week of three to five days were available. Freshmen would enroll much more understandingly and save much time now lost in changing divisions at the end of the first semester or the first year. Freshman week would give the students a working knowledge of the institution and acquaint them with the conditions of the college campus."

Neal Morehouse is in charge of the plans of this forum which is sponsored by Dynamis.

LEAGUE DELEGATE TO ADDRESS ASSEMBLY

Speaker Has Addressed Many Other Civic Groups in Mid-West.

Tomorrow's assembly will feature an address by a delegate to the League of Nations convention, Prof. Ben M. Cherrington, executive secretary of the Foundation for the Advancement of Social Sciences and head of the department of international relations at the University of Denver. His subject will be "Pioneering on New Frontiers."

In the spring of 1932 he attended the disarmament conference at Geneva. The month prior to its opening was spent in capital cities of the larger European countries, including Russia where he secured first-hand information on her attitude toward disarmament. At Geneva he was elected a member of the American Interorganization group. Thus, he is always in touch with the latest conference developments.

Upon his return to this country Prof. Cherrington lectured on such subjects as disarmament, the conference, the Manchurian question, democracy, economic recovery, and topis related to Russia. Among other places, he spoke at John Hopkins university and the University of Chicago. He also spoke before many civic groups in the middle-west.

In December, 1932, he was the chairman of the Round Table on disarmament at the Riverside Institute on Foreign Affairs. While in California he gave several lectures including one at Oakland forum, and one at the Commonwealth club at San Francisco.

The Honorable William E. Sweet, former governor of Colorado, made this comment on Mr. Cherrington in a letter one time: "Regarding Mr. Cherington, I would say that both the material presented and his methods of presentation are excellent. I have heard him speak frequently, and his audiences always receive his addresses with great appreciation. Mr. Charrington is regarded as an authority hereabouts on industrial relations, League of Nations, World Court, and the world disarmament conference."

Professor Cherrington has been on our campus before and has gained for himself the reputation of being a most interesting speaker.

MILITARY BALL IS ONLY ALL-SCHOOL FORMAL AFFAIR

UNIFORMS, TUXEDOS, FORMALS WILL FEATURE ANNUAL FORMAL PARTY.

WILL PRESENT OFFICERS

Honorary Cadet Colonel and Three Majors Picked By Cadet Corps to Be Named.

An array of glittering sabers, shining boots, student cadet officers in immaculate uniforms, other men in tuxedos, and beautiful girls in equally beautiful formals, will feature the annual military ball Saturday night, December 14, at the Wareham ball room. The affair is the only all-school formal party of the year, and officially opens the spring social season on the campus.

Presentation in uniform of the honorary colonel and three honorary majors of the R. O. T. C. will be a distinctive feature of the party. Election of honorary officers by members of cadet corps of the college from a list of ten candidates was held during drill periods on Saturday and Monday mornings.

Candidates for honorary officers selected by the advanced students in military training and voted upon by the cadet corps are Ellen Warren, Alpha Delta Pi, Dalhart, Tex.; Ethel Fairbank, Alpha Delta Pi, Manhattan; Verna McAdams, Pi Beta Phi, arsons; Mary Kendall, Pi Beta Phi, Great Bend; Adelaine Reid, Chi Omega, Iola; Erma Jean Miller, Delta Delta Delta, Manhattan; Helen Morgan, Delta Delta Delta, Newton; Ruth DeBaun, independent, Topeka; Colleen Zacharias, independent, Oak Hill; and Helen Hanson, Chi Omego, Clifton.

Names of the honorary cadet officers chosen by the military department will remain secret until Saturday night. Candidates were selected from among the most prominent women on the campus, and the one receiving the highest number of votes is to be honorary colonel, and the next three highest are to be honorary majors.

An outstanding characteristic of this year's military ball will be the low admission price of $1.75. A contest for the sale of tickets to the event is being conducted this week by members of the junior class in the military department.

Invitations for the ball have been extended to Governor Alf M. Landon, ex-Governor Harry Woodring, the adjutant-general of Kansas, and to the commanding officers of military posts in Kansas.

A radio broadcast will be made of a portion of the party. Ray Spilman, Manhattan, will direct the broadcast feature of the ball. Jue Layton and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Dale F. Pocock. LeRoy; Crawford Beeson. Wamego; and G. D. Ferguson, McPherson, compose the committee in charge of arrangements for the ball.

Chaplain of Sing Sing Airs Views on Collegiates

Table waiters and furnace stokers take heart—for, said Chaplain Anthony Peterson of Sing Sing prison in New York in an analysis in the February issue of the Redbook magazie, "very rare is the prisoner who has worked his way through college." Homecomings are frequent and lasting at Sing Sing when one alumnus after another returns to don the prison gray and once more be united with his brothers in the fraternal bond.

Chaplain Peterson can at any time converse with students of the best known colleges in the United States—Princeton, Cornell, Southern California, Harvard, and thirty-two others including two European schools.

Cllege men are rarely addicts to the crime passionel, doubtless avoiding that which requires extreme physical exertion. Always the gentleman—the college man, with his Lord Chesterfieldian attitude, turns more to forgery and petty larceny. The favorite is forgery, the crime which is most easily detected—and the easiest on which to obtain a conviction—seems to support the contention of the prisoner who doubts whether. after all, one gets an education in college. "The typical college man's crime," said Chaplain Peterson, "is taking money that does not belong to him, while the owner is not watching, and doing this in the easiest and safest way."

Prison atmosphere is one thing that can suppress the self assurance and conceit of the college man. "His superior intelligence prompts him to accept quietly the exigencies of his new situation, and as a rule," commented Chaplain Peterson, "our college men are model prisoners."

Thus deeply considering the chaplain's advice it behooves one to become an expert soda jerk and in so doing avoid life's pitfalls, prison bars and the road to ruin.

Depression, as an Economic Ill, Causes Proper Eating

Although old man depression is the greatest economic ill in the world, he also is the cause of more proper eating among people; which of course is an asset to one's health. In the days of prosperity such items as fruit cocktail, Japanese tuna fish, spiced peaches and apricots and others, were featured on the menu cards. But, today, the simple garden vegetables head the list.

People used to have a fancy salad and nothing else for lunch. Now Boston baked beans of a dish of whole grain corn with fried potatoes are being set before them at the lunch table. Because of the high price of luxurious food, such people have been forced to buy the very food their bodies need. It is strange how some people wait for a depression to regulate their diets.

People are not neglecting their stomachs. They are paying more attention now to their diet and food, than ever before. The prices of necessary foods have dropped considerably in the last three years. Prices of the unnecessary foods have remained about the same. The reason for this is simple. Practically every commodity or service that is in demand by the public, except the public utilities, has even dropped in price to suit the conditions. Food in demand by the public, is a sure sale for the food broker, the jobber, and the grocer; so naturally they lower their prices in order to keep the business.

A student at Kansas State college, who is interested in the wholesale grocery business, reports that fraternities and sororities at this school buy less food than ever before. It doesn't mean that they are eating less, but that they have adjusted themselves to the present conditions and are eating only those necessary foods which give correct nourishment.

Four years ago, a grocery order would call for fancy packed fruit candied cherries, shelled nuts, French and Spanish foods, etc. But now in this new year of 1933, which is supposed to bring prosperity, the grocery order features beans, peas corn, tomatoes and more beans.

STILL K. S. A. C.

Even after a noisy and reckless escapade at the state house in Topeka two years ago to persuade the legislature to change the name of Kansas State college, the official name is still Kansas State Agricultural college.

The name-changing affair came up just before the legislature met in 1930 when the teachers' college at Hays petitioned that body to use the name of Kansas State (a traditional title of K. S. A. C. for years) rather than Hays Teachers' college.

Two inspired Kansas State journalism students became highly incensed over the idea and made numerous trips to the capital—and succeeded in changing the names of both the schools. Hays college is now known as Fort Hays Kansas State college, while K. S. A. C. is Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science. The legislature injected the names into its minutes and let the matter drop. The Kansas State journalists came home satisfied—with a copy of the legislative edict and a purple plume pen.

However, all was not as it seemed. The name on the official charter of the institution at Manhattan was never struck out. The only document in existence which absolutely required the name to be recorded upon it was never touched.

Kansas State Agricultural college is still the correct title, even if the effect of the foregoing incidents has been to make the name Kansas State college.

SILENT NOW

The country lost a great man with the death of Calvin Coolidge. The Vermont boy who became president was one of the greatest figures of our generation.

When the history of this time is written in future centuries Coolidge will occupy no large part of the space. There were no sensational episodes during his administration and he made no special record as an outstanding administrator, but always he held firm hand on the reins, enjoyed the respect of the populace and his associates, remained placid and unruffled when confronted with the most perturbing problems. And now, during the recent years of depression, he has remained in the public mind as a calm and strong man to whom the world looked with respect.

One should not be partisan in speaking of the death of a truly great man—for greatness rises above political affiliations—but there is no denying that the Republicans have suffered an irreparable loss in this leader. Those who believed the Republicans could regain their lost power and prestige four years hence under the leadership of Coolidge were not few. The country would have rallied to this quiet man where the exhortations of colorful demagogues would be disregarded. His leadership was based not on personality but firmness of character. The country has none to replace this last of her ex-presidents.—Daily O'Collegian.

RADICAL DEPARTURES

It is conceded generally that the world as a world is a pretty conservative place, but at certain intervals some person or a group of persons ventures forth with a new idea. Sometimes these ideas are accepted, and in due course of time become commonplace. Sometimes, however, they remain within our midst for a while and create a furor in our complacent ways of living. But at other times these new "radical" ideas are rejected by the world before they have time to gain an upward stride.

Perhaps modern literature brings out these facts better than anything else in the world. Ten years ago literary America was going wild over free verse poetry. In its beginning it had something new and different to give to the average intelligent reader of poetry, but as the movement grew older it got away from itself, and finally became so extreme that it lacked sensibility. The poets who were writing free verse had strayed too far from the common idiom of the common man.

Government is another phase of life which toys with radical departures and sometimes they are successful. The eyes of the world are turned towards Russia and her Five Year Plan. Perhaps Communism will be successful and perhaps it will not be. It, too, can suffer the dangers of straying too far from the common idiom of the common man. Innumerable successful and unsuccessful radical departures can be cited, but neither time nor space will permit it. But radicalism is not as dangerous as some will have us believe. In fact radicalism performs a service by awaking a world that at times becomes too dormant.—Indiana Daily Student.

The Snooper

Well, the Pan-Hellenic party Saturday night proved that a lot of New Year's resolutions were in effect. Hands that had once grabbed Layton's baton to direct the band swung foolishly at their owner's sides. Bodies which could once be seen chinning guy-wires and turning handsprings were lolling around in the ballroom and even dancing occasionally. The hotel guests for once in nearly five months enjoyed an evening of uninterrupted slumber.

With two Clark Gable pictures in town Jim Richards is getting a lot of attention again. Richards and Gable both have big ears, need a shave, and look at you as if they saw you through the big end of a telescope.

Bo McMillin was seen cutting a wide swath at the skating rink a few evenings past. He did figure eights with the dexterity of a grade school boy and occasionally kissed the floor with the helplessness of a gouty grandfather.

Also, an Aggieville sundries vender says that if it wasn't for the basketball team during the holidays Manhattan would have to fence off its northwest eighty acres. The ballers kept the natives jocund with their merry jocosity.

Everett Hughes and Dave Horchen walked into the Palace the other evening looking as if they had been socked in the mouth with a ripe tomato. The substance proved to be a greasy red cosmetic. Shall I tell you who the Chi Omega freshmen were?

And what about Teena's Sixteenth Street Tea Nest? She moved up within staggering distance of a dozen Greek houses, you know. The Sig Alph house is closest. She probably wants to save the boys the long walk back home. The Sig Alphs haughtily denounce the new location. It interferes with studies and breeds mutiny among the freshmen. Sounds of ribaldry in the Nest can be heard far into the A. M. and some of the more narrow-minded neighbors have been making loud moan of the fact.

On Other Hills

The homeliest man as well as the campus sweetheart will be selected in a contest sponsored by the Whirlwind, humor magazine at the University of Oklahoma. Pictures of the winners will appear in the Valentine's day edition of the magazine.

"The book-worm and the grind may not be popular members of college society, but their industry does pay dividends in the form of increased earning power." So thinks Dr. Charles E. Friley, dean of the division of industrial science at Iowa State college. "Investigations have shown, however, that participation in campus activities beside class work also has a helpful influence on future earning power," the professor says.

Delighting hundreds of university students, a false rumor made its way about the Nebraska university campus to the effect that school was to be closed for an indefinite period as a result of the epidemic of flu which has swept the campus. The college doctor suggested sleep for those who felt the pangs of influenza.

The girls who came to the Sophomore Hop at a fraternity house at Rutgers university received the coldest welcome ever accorded to a guest when the fraternity oil furnace failed. The cold weather, however, didn't interfere with the party and it was "on with the dance" for the rest of the evening.

The "banker on the campus" is a real thing at Rutgers university this year. A campus bank, formed as a "pedagogical experiment" will grant short-time loans and offers all banking services except the maintenance of checking accounts. Capital stock in the amount of $200 was issued for the venture and already has been subscribed. Students act as tellers and comprise the board of directors.

An all star faculty eleven was recently selected by the Oregon Emerald, publication at the University of Oregon. Besides the 11 professors chosen for the positions, a number were given honorable mention. Ability to outguess oponents, versatile "passing" attacks and the knack of baffling the opposition were the standards on which the appointments were made.

Coach "Piggy" Lambert, mentor for Purdue's championship basketball teams, is the author of a new book, "Practical Basketball." The book is a discussion of the methods and devices that Lambert uses in developing championship teams at Purdue.

Students at Hamlin, the oldest university in Minnesota, are no longer required to have credits for graduation. When they are able to pass a comprehensive examination they receive their diplomas.

Dave Griffith's, sports editor of the Morning Chronicle, makes no bones in stating his opinion of the prohibitory laws of the nation. In writing of the Oklahoma basketball game last Saturday night, he points out that "Main, Sooner guard, was second high scorer with six pints."

"Do Not Dive Into Empty Pools' Is Advice of Experts

"Caution: Do not dive into an empty pool" is the sound advice printed on the back of the men's swimming permit card. No, there are no morons or idiots in school who have to be told this. Many such accidents happen here and in other gymnasiums.

"Playing in the showers often leads to a challenge such as, 'Bet I beat you in' causing a wild dash and dive into the pool," said C S. Moll, instructor in swimming, "and the victim may fall into the pool before he realizes it is empty."

"Such an accident is especially liable to happen in gyms where the showers are separated from the pool by swinging doors of opaque glass." Mr. Moll continued. "A swimmer will dash through such doors and will be unable to stop himself before it is too late."

"Most accidents are the result of horse play," he pointed out. "One is most likely to slip, especially when playing 'tag'."

According to the swimming instructor many students play basketball and then go down for a swim. Although they do not realize it, many times they are tired. In such a condition, of course, the pool should be avoided.

"The best time for swimming," he added, "is just before a meal. If one has a swimming class or a physical education class just after a meal, he should watch his diet. A minimum of one hour should be allowed between a meal and a swim."

"If you are swimming in a creek or a strange pool, depth should be ascertained by jumping—not diving—in. If it is shallow enough to wade, do so with the arms outstretched shoulder high so if a sharp drop is encountered, you will be in a swimming position."

"There is absolutely nothing to the caption, 'Throw 'em in and let 'em sink or swim.' Swimming cannot be learned by this method."

"While swimming underwater in a pool, the eyes should always be kept open, even if it does make them smart a little. Many serious accidents have been caused by the underwater swimmer blindly butting the side of the pool with his head, often knocking himself unconscious and giving him no chance to get help."

"Perhaps the most dangerous practice of the beginner is to try to swim two lengths starting at the deep end. Doing this, he reaches the deep water nearly exhausted and may need help. However, if he starts at the shallow end and is tired when he comes back to it, he could climb out, of course, very easily."

Thus we see that the precautions, even the one "Do not dive into an empty pool" are there for a purpose. "Think about them the next time you're in," he advises.

SPEAKS AT A. I. E. E.

J. B. Spiegle, of the United States department of geologic survey spoke at the meeting of the student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Thursday. His subject was "Water Surveys."

When I like something I evermore like it!

THEY'RE MILDER—
THEY TASTE BETTER

—and I like CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes.
To me, they are mild—that is, they don't seem to be strong; and there is certainly no bite, so far as I can tell.
To me, they taste better and they have a pleasing aroma.
Every CHESTERFIELD that I get is well-filled, and I feel like I am getting my money's worth—that there is no short measure about it.
I like CHESTERFIELDS. They satisfy me.

OVER THE BACK FENCE . . . .

. . . . The first collegiate engagement to be announced in 1933 is the one that concerns Ed Stone—he put out his pin on Joyce Pennington of Hutchinson during the Christmas holidays . . . . Walt Bell has been receiving innumerable telephone messages recently from one known as Lucile alias Virginia, alias (we surmise Barr) . . . . What well-established college romance went on the rocks for just 24 hours? . . . . Was it Dan Partner who gave Cib Crocker such a lovely Christmas gift? . . . . And it is said that Dannie Blaine attributes his swollen feet at the Pan-Hell party to his three minutes of playing in the O. U. basketball game . . . . Upon being asked if he were going to the game tonight, Pete Fairbank replied, "Oh, you mean the Topeka High game?"—even though Kansas State is playing K. U. tonight, your first thoughts are with your alma mater, aren't they Paul Eugene? . . . . Here's the latest and most eligible bachelor, girls—Brick Garrison . . . .

TEN SCHOOLS DEBATE OVER STATION KSAC

Discuss Questions of Public Importance With Kansas State —Debates Prove Successful.

Ten schools, located in three different states, have participated in radio discussions of important public questions over station KSAC. Discussions were held with Kirksville Teachers, College of Emporia, Wichita university, Maryville Teachers, Hastings college, Augustana college, Bethany college, University of Kansas, Kansas Wesleyan, and Washburn college. The last debate was held December 27.

The following questions were discussed: October 2, "Should Kansas Adopt the Two Tax Amendments to the State Constitution?"; November 1, "Should Congress Resubmit the 18th Amendment to the States?"; November 8, "Should the Government Negotiate Tariff Reciprocity Treaties?"; November 15, "Should We Condemn the Russian Soviet Government?"; November 22, "Should Kansas Adopt a General Sales Tax?"; November 29, "Should Half of All State and Local Revenues Comes From Sources Other Than Taxes on Property?"; December 6, "Is Capitalism in the United States a Failure?"; December 13, "Should the Federal Government Regulate All Electric Utilities?"; December 20, "Should the Nations Make a 50 Per Cent Cut in Costs of Armaments?"; December 27, "Should We Support the Farmers' Holiday Association Idea?"

These debates have proved more successful this year than ever before and there have been many requests for copies of the speeches made by citizen listening to the debaters.

NO HARD TIMES FOR GRADUATE MEDICINE MEN

ALL 1932 VETS HAVE POSITIONS OR HAVE ESTABLISHED PRACTICES.

GRADS ATTEND CONFERENCES

Alumni Attend Meetings of United States Livestock Association And Nebraska Vets.

All of last year's graduates in the veterinary medicine division have positions. "Of course, there are not so many salaried jobs now," says Dr. R. R. Dykstra, dean of the division, "but a veterinarian can always start up a practice."

Several members of the class of '32 have salaried positions, but the majority are establishing a practice of their own. Dr. W. S. Hornsby is on the staff of the State veterinarian of Tennessee as one of his official veterinarians. Dr. F. F. Schmidt is connected with the Raritan hospital at New Brunswick, N. J. Dr. O. E. Florey is devoting a great deal of time to handling swine ailments along with his pet animal practice at Dodge City.

Many old grads have taken a prominent part in the programs at the sessions of the various conferences attended by members of the veteroinary medicine faculty. Many members of the veterinary medicine alumni from Kansas State were present at the annual meeting of the Research Workers in Animal Diseases and the formal convention of the United States Live Stock Sanitary Association in Chicago, November 29 and 30, and December 1 and 2. Dr. E. A. Tunnicliff, Montana Research Laboratory, Bozeman, Montana, reported on "A Strain of Clostridium Welchi Producing Fatal Dysentery in Sheep." Dr. L. R. Vawter, University of Nevada, Reno, was the co-author of the paper "Anti-Infectious Equine Encephalomyelitis Serum." "Studies on the Control of Johne's Disease" was reported on by Dr. W. A. Hagan, dean of New York State veterinary college. Dr. F. R. Beaudette, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment station, presented a paper entitled "Experiments on Immunizing Against Laryngotracheitis in Fowls." A paper on "Three Types of Tubercle Bacilli in Live Stock Veterinary Sanitary Control Work," was discussed by Dr. Wisnicky, state veterinarian, Madison, Wisconsin.

A few Kansas State alumni attended the Nebraska State Veterinary meeting, Grand Island, December 13 and 14, of which Dr. E. C. Jones, is secretary of the association. Dr. G. H. Mydland, Horton, presented a paper entitled "Practical Methods of Milk Inspection."

Dr. Ching Sheng Lo, who is with the Bureau of Agriculture and Forestry, Department of Reconstruction, Kwangtung Province, Canton, China, and Dr. G. A. Ajwani, District Veterinary Officer, Rajanmundry, East Godavari District, India, correspond regularly with the veterinary medicine division here to keep in touch with their former colleagues.

Names of prospective students from every section of the country are being sent in by the veterinary medicine graduates.

ENTOMOLOGISTS HEAR DR. ROGER C. SMITH

Addresses Popenoe Club With Speech He Delivered at Atlantic City.

Dr. Roger C. Smith of the department of entomology addressed the Popenoe Entomological club at the meeting of that organization Monday, January 9, at 4 o'clock in room 42 of Fairchild hall.

The address, which was the same one he recently presented in Atlantic City, was the discussion of the influence of civilization on the insect fauna in the cultivated areas of North America.

Doctor Smith also took issue with the article in Friday's Kansas City Star concerning the ill effect on insect life in general due to the winter weather. According to Doctor Smith there is no depression as far as the insects are concerned but the winter has been really favorable for them instead, because they have survived with only a normal loss. In proof of this statement Doctor Smith cites Dr. H. R. Bryson's recently completed count of chinch bugs in bunch grass in which experiment he found that practically all of the insects were alive.

College Museum Is Place of Wonders At Kansas State

The college museum, on the upper floor of Fairchild hall and probably the least known to visitors, is constantly being developed.

It now contains specimens of live snakes, an alligator, turtles, and many other animals native to Kansas. The alligator is eleven or twelve years old and four and one half to five feet in length. The snake collection consists of diamond rattlesnakes, timber rattlesnakes, spreading vipers, blue racers, garter snakes, a South American black snake, and many other species. These specimens have either been donated to the museum or found on field trips by college students.

A reptile resembling a slender headed bull-snake was found by a zoology class directed by Dr. Harbaugh, assistant professor of zoology, while on a field trip near Hutchinson, Kansas. On closer examination, however, it proved to be an "Arizona elegans." This snake is not a native of Kansas, but of Arizona, as the name might indicate. The exact location of the discovery of the reptile is about two and one half miles southwest of Medora in south central Kansas, Reno county.

The elegans has been reported from three Kansas counties, Clark, Morton, and Stafford. Thus, through K. S. C., the known geographic range of the elegans has been increased.

Mr Harbaugh, who has kept the snake in his office since its capture, says it has not eaten since it was captured. The elegans is of the non-poisonius variety as are Kansas or native snakes. The poisonous snakes in Kansas consist of the rattlenakes and copperheads.

CORSAUTMEN BOW TO FAST-BREAK SOONER QUINTET

FIRST BIG SIX BASKETBALL GAME BRINGS OUT FAULTS OF KANSAS STATE.

NEITHER TEAM COULD HIT

Browning of Oklahoma Leads Scoring With Nine Points—Sooners Had Game on Ice at Half Time.

A fast hard driving Oklahoma university basketball team defeated the Kansas State cage team 28 to 16 last Saturday night after running up a six-point lead in the first half. It was the first conference victory for Oklahoma as they had lost a contest Friday night to Iowa State at Ames.

The Sooners presented a great offense which the K-Aggies had great difficulty in solving and together with the bad passes made at their own hands the Kansas State cage squad could not meet the competition. At times on offense the Oklahoma team would send two, three or four men down the court with only a single man on the K-Aggie defense to guard the basket and try to break up the play. Several times both guards wouldb e at the opposite end of the court when the Sooners would start one of their fast breaking plays.

Both teams found trouble hitting the basket and if either team could have hit their free throws the outcome of the game would have been more certain early in the game. Each team received enough free trys at the basket to win the game.

Browning Was High Scorer

Browning, guard for Oklahoma was high scorer of the evening with four field goals and one free throw for a total of nine points. Main, another Sooner guard, was second with six points.

Captain Andy Skradski and Ralph Graham, Kansas State forwards, tied for high team honors with six points each.

Oklahoma played an aggressive defensive game of basketball and many times the Kansas State players were hurried with their shots in order to get them off at all. Both teams had trouble getting the ball into the basket although many of the shots hit the goal during the game Kansas State shot 48 times during the game, making 6 shots from the court.

Henry Dalton, Ottawa, big K-Aggie center, seemed to get the tip most of the time but the team could not work the tip into a scoring play.

Breen Scores First

Breen made the first score of the game with a field goal after both teams had been unable to find the basket for some minutes. Shortly afterward Browning, Oklahoma, found the basket and then a second put the Sooners in a two point lead. Skradski tied the score the teams then playing again for some minutes without another score although many tries at the basket failed.

Main, Oklahoma, broke the tie and then Browning found the basket for another score. Graham made a basket to bring Kansas State within one point of the Oklahoma team but Anderson found the basket again for Oklahoma.

Skradski made a free throw and Graham a field goal, these were the last scores during the first half for the K-Aggies. The half ended 17 to 11.

Bross and Beck increased the Oklahoma score shortly after the second half opened and from then on the game was hardly ever in doubt. The contest ended with the final score 28 to 16 for Oklahoma.

MAT TOURNEY NEXT WEEK

Preliminary Rounds of Intramural Event Will Be This Week—Announce Standings.

All of the intramural sports, with the exception of wrestling, have been completed for this semester. The wrestling tournament will be held on Tuesday and Friday nights of next week at 7 o'clock sharp. There will be three rings with men wrestling in each ring at the same time. All men entered in this event with the exception of the lightweights, will wrestle tonight. The bouts this week will be the preliminaries, with the semifinals next Tuesday night and the finals on Friday night of next week. There were 273 men entered in the tournament last year but a smaller number is expected this year due to less freshmen being entered in this event.

The six highest teams have the following ranking in the soccer, horseshoe, and basketball events. Delta Sigma Phi, first, with a total of 546 points; Phi Kappa Tau, second, with 460; Delta Tau Delta, third, with 434; Aggie Knights, fourth, with 418; Sigma Phi Epsilon, fifth, with 383; Kappa Sigma, sixth, with 356.

Women's Sports

The last women's intramural event of the season will be the pasture contest which is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at 5 'clock in the women's gymnasium. All entries must sign their names on the poster in the gym.

Several rules are to be followed in the contest. Each organization will select six girls, not more than three of which are physical education majors, to represent the group. Three judges will be chosen from the physical education department and the entries will be judged for their standing and walking postures. "A" posture will count six points, "B" posture four points, and "C" and "D" posture no points.

If ten organizations enter the contest, first place will receive 50 points and tenth place will receive 5 points.

Among the Ags

In any group undertaking, success depends in a large part upon the group leader's selection of the men to work under. The selection of Earl C. Coulter—the boy from Willis who last summer bravely argued the right of way with a railroad train—as chairman of the entries committee for the fitting and showing contest in the forthcoming Little American Royal, should guarantee an interesting show. "I have no doubt that an unprecedented number of young women will enter the contest this year," said Coulter, modestly, as we interviewed him, "I shan't encourage them, you understand. But you know how it is—"

Ah, yes, we know.

It seems to the editor of this column that the addition of agricultural exhibits to the Little American Royal could easily expand that show into something more than a substitute for the Ag Fair. An exhibition contest might easily be arranged, the prizes being paid for out of entrance fees or, perhaps, awarded by private agricultural businesses for advertising purposes. The exhibits could be divided into two classes: those prepared by college agricultural organizations and departments and those prepared by individuals outside the college, who are engaged in agriculture as a business, e. g. farmers, seed-house men, or farm machine companies. Such an enterprize, in our opinion, would be much more worthwhile than a cheap carnival which, in these years of depression, is practically fore-doomed to failure.

Alvin Ploger, Kinsley, who is a student in one of Doctor Gainey's agricultural microbiology classes, having listened at various times throughout this semester to the professor's exposition of his distinct aversion to sour-kraut, sent said professor a large jar of sour-kraut for Christmas. Yesterday morning, Doctor Gainey—to show his heartfelt appreciation of the gift he had received—passed out large sandwiches stuffed with the sour-kraut (diseased cabbage in the estimation of this writer) to his third hour lecture class. And he selected Ploger, with an appropriate introduction, as head waiter. Ploger wrote his Christmas message on a typewriter, and how his special guilt was discovered is a weird mystery to him.

We wish to apologize for a statement made in our last week's column that Luella Graham, at the 1932 Ag Barnwarmin', was "crowned with paddles and cornstalks." The mistake, we assure you was the printer's. What we really said was, "Luella Graham was crowned with a circlet of autumn leaves and a host of engineers were crowned with paddles and cornstalks."

At The Theatres

AT THE VARSITY
"Strange Interlude"

Talking pictures have achieved what many lovers of Eugene O'Neill's dramas thought impossible. They have produced "Strange Interlude" with such finesse nothing is lost of the story. Those that have seen the stage performance of this tense drama are enthusiastic over the work of Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in the roles they know so well.

Miss Shearer equals her work in "Smilin' Through." Perhaps she overacts as she allows her unspoken thoughts to cause such sudden changes of expression on her lovely face, but a little thing like that is overlooked as she moves from an unhappy girl to a pathetic mother.

Clark Gable also does some nice acting. His hair is too evidently powdered in the last trying scenes of the picture, and his mustache is not particularly becoming. He's a sincere lover.

The supporting cast including Alex Kirkland as "Sammie," Ralph Morgan as "goold old Charley," is excellent.

No one should miss this great innovation of the screen. If you've read the drama, you'll enjoy the acting, and if you haven't read it, you'll enjoy both.—E. D.

AT THE DICKINSON
"No Man of Her Own"

Here's a picture in which all youse gals and all youse men will get to see plenty of the screen's greatest lover, Clark Gable. And you'll enjoy every minute watching him in this sophisticated production.

Like his poker friends, the women take all the losses until he meets one who knows the game a little better than he. A coin is flipped, she wins and becomes a Mrs. And a happy ending is in the offing.

Mr. Gable is more attractive than ever in this show which is so decidedly all his own. The setting, the story, the lines were all made for Mr. Gable.

Carole Lombard has some lovely new gowns. She is rather sweet as the lucky girl in Mr. Gable's life.

Dorothy Mackaill is okey. You just don't see much of her.

The lines are the cleverest that have been heard here in months—the situations more delightful. The audience reacted favorably. . .E. D.

AT THE WAREHAM
"Second Hand Wife"

Kathleen Norris, who wrote the novel on which the story, "Second Hand Wife" is based, made an office girl's love for her boss interesting because the girl did not know that the boss's wife (Helen Vinson) had stopped loving her husband. After the office girl, Sally Eilers, has married the boss, Ralph Bellamy, the triangle is a contest between boss and wife for the custody of their violin-playing prodigy daughter. Through a legal technicality Bellamy and Miss Eilers get the daughter and go to Honolulu. A fair story.—A. B.
